we cleave unto them, and we will do so in time and throughout all eternity. (Congregation said "amen.") Some of our miserable apostates may shake and tremble in their boots when somebody at the East tells them what is going to come. They may break their covenants with God and their wives, and forsake them. We are not afraid of these things, we have learned a lesson, not in their school. We can.t forsake those whom God has given to us, but we will cleave to them for ever and for ever, worlds without end.

160. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 15:27-29; George A. Smith; the New Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; Sunday, May 19, 1872.

"And in that day seven women shall take hold of one man, saying, We will eat our own bread and wear our own apparel: only let us be called by thy name to take away our reproach.

"In that day shall the branch of the Lord be beautiful and glorious, and the fruit of the earth shall be excellent and comely for them that are escaped of Israel.

"And it shall come to pass that he that is left in Zion, and he that remaineth in Jerusalem, shall be called holy, even every one that is written among the living in Jerusalem."

The portion of the prophecy of Isaiah which I have read indicates that at a certain day and under certain circumstances, spoken of by the Prophet as being holy, seven women would claim to be called by the name of one man. Most of us have a different opinion with regard to the application of this prophecy. God inspired the Prophet, and it might be necessary, peradventure, to inquire what it all means. Seven women (p. 28) are to lay hold of one man, saying, "We will eat out own bread and wear our own apparel; only let us be called by thy name, to take away our reproach." What is the meaning of this last sentiment? We will let the Bible explain it. You remember that when Rachel, the second wife of Jacob, the father of the tribes of Israel, found herself barren, while the other wives of her husband were bearing children, she prayed to the Lord that he, in his abundant mercy, would give her children, and when God heard her prayer and worked a miracle in her favor, causing her who was barren to become fruitful and bring forth a child, she said, God had taken away her reproach. This illustrates the meaning of the text. I did not make the prophecy, neither had I anything to do with making the history of Rachel, or even chronicling the event named.

In relation to Father Jacob, it is true he had four wives, and they bore him twelve sons, and their descendants are the twelve tribes of Israel. We are told by the Apostle John that the names of Jacob's twelve sons--the sons of a polygamist and his four wives--will be written upon the gates of the holy Jerusalem; and there are none of us who expect to enter in through those gates but will have to acknowledge the truth of that doctrine. It is true that the principle of plurality of wives was adopted by the Church of Latter-day Saints in consequence of the revelation and commandment which God gave to Joseph Smith, and which, through him, were laid upon the heads of this people; and we quote the passages that we do quote, in relation to the principle of celestial marriage from the Old and New Testament, to prove that God is consistent with himself; that if he revealed to his Saints in the last days, the doctrine of plurality of wives, it was in fulfillment of the prophecy of Isaiah and others of the Prophets, and in accordance with the example which was set by Abraham, Jacob, Moses, and by holy men of ancient days.

ln relation to the word "reproach" in our text, I will make another reference. In the first chapter of Luke's Gospel, verses 23 and 24, we find Elizabeth rejoicing because God had taken away her reproach. She though she had been barren, became the mother of John the Baptist.

These passages tell in so many plain words why it was that seven women wished to be called by the name of one man--it was that they might have the privilege of bearing children.

Now, if God brings to pass this prophecy in the glorious day which our text speaks of, when holiness and righteousness are to rule, and when truth is to have dominion, and peace dwell in the earth, although all the world may have been opposed to it, we can not be responsible. Until some person can find a passage in the Old or New Testament that definitely forbids a plurality of wives, with the many incidents of history, items of law, and declarations of Prophets in relation to the practice by the ancient Saints of that doctrine, we are able to assert that the Bible is a polygamous book, and that no man can believe it without believing plurality of wives, under some circumstances to be correct. I know it has been said that the Old Testament permitted plurality of wives, but the New forbids it. The Savior said he came not to destroy the law but to fulfil it, and that not a jot or tittle of the law or Prophets should pass away, but all should be fulfilled. The new dispensation did not annihilate the principles of law and right, as revealed in the Old. Both John the (p. 29) Baptist and the Savior denounced all sins with an unsparing hand, and especially adultery, fornication and divorce; and not a sentence is found in the New Testament which prohibits plurality of wives, though the Savior and his Apostles lived in a country where it was practised; and it is impossible to believe that if it were a sin it would have escaped definite rebuke and absolute condemnation.

161. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 16:122-123; President Brigham Young; the Bowery, Logan City; Sunday Morning, June 29, 1873. Brother George Q. Cannon says the sisters have borne a great deal. So they have, but if they could only stand in the shoes of their husbands who are good, true and faithful, they would know that they are by no means free from perplexities. Just fancy a man with two, three, or half (p. 123) a dozen of his beloved wives catching him on one side, and before he can take three steps more, catching him on the other, and "I want this," "I want that," and "this is not right," and "that is not right," and so on; their minds just pulled to pieces. I say if the hair is spared on their heads they may consider that they have got blessed good wives. I have as many wives as many other men, and I keep my hair yet. But as to trials, why bless your hearts, the man or woman who enjoys the spirit of our religion has no trials; but the man or woman who tries to live according to the Gospel of the Son of God, and at the same time clings to the spirit of the world, has trials and sorrows acute and keen, and that, too, continually.

162. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 16:166-167; President Brigham Young; Bowery, Paris, Oneida County, Idaho; Sunday, August 31, 1873.

Joseph received a revelation on celestial marriage. You will recollect, brethren and sisters, that it was in July, 1843, that he received this revelation concerning celestial marriage. This doctrine was explained and many received it as far as they could understand it. Some apostatized on account of it; but others did not, and received it in their faith. This, also, is a great and noble doctrine. * * * As far as this pertains to our natural lives here, there are some who say it is very hard. They say, "This is rather a hard business; I don.t like my husband to take a plurality of wives in the flesh." Just a few words upon this. We would believe this doctrine entirely different from what it is presented to us, if we could do so. If we could make every man upon the earth get him a wife, live righteously and serve God, we would not be under the necessity, perhaps, of taking more than one wife. But they will not do this; the people of God, therefore, have been commanded to take more wives. The women are entitled to salvation if they live according to the word that is given to them; and if their husbands are good men, and they are obedient to them, they are entitled to certain blessings, and they will have the privilege of receiving certain blessings that they cannot receive unless they are sealed to men who will be exalted. Now, where a man in this Church says, "I don.t want but one wife, I will live my religion with one," he will perhaps be saved in the celestial kingdom; but when he gets there he will not find himself in possession of any wife at all. He has had a talent that he has hid up. He will come forward and say, "Here is that which thou gavest me, I have not wasted it, and here is the one talent," and he will not enjoy it, but it will be taken and given to those who have improved the talents they received, and he will find himself without any wife, and he will remain single for ever and ever. But if the woman is determined not to enter into a plural marriage, that woman when she comes forth will have the privilege of living in single blessedness through all eternity. Well, that is very good, a very nice place to be a minister to the wants of others. I recollect a sister conversing with Joseph Smith on this subject. She told him: "Now, don.t talk to me; when I get into the celestial kingdom, if I ever do get there, I shall request the privilege of being a ministering angel; that is the labor that I wish to perform. I don.t want any companion in that world; and if the Lord will make me a ministering angel, it is all I want." Joseph said, (p. 167) "Sister, you talk very foolishly, you do not know what you will want." He then said to me: "Here, brother Brigham, you seal this lady to me." I sealed her to him. This was my own sister according to the flesh. Now, sisters, do not say, "I do not want a husband when I get up in the resurrection." You do not know what you will want. I tell this so that you can get the idea. If in the resurrection you really want to be single and alone, and live so forever and ever, and be made servants, while others receive the highest order of intelligence and are bringing worlds into existence, you can have the privilege. They who will be exalted cannot perform all the labor, they must have servants and you can be servants to them.

The female portion of the human family have blessings promised to them if they are faithful. I do not know what the Lord could have put upon women worse than he did upon Mother Eve, where he told her: "Thy desire shall be to thy husband." Continually wanting the husband. "If you go to work my eyes follow you; if you go away in the carriage, my eyes follow you, and I like you and I love you; I delight in you and I desire you should have nobody else." I do not know that the Lord could have put upon women anything worse than this, I do not blame them for having these feelings. I would be glad if it were otherwise. Says a woman of faith and knowledge, "I will make the best of it; it is a law that man shall rule over me; his word is my law, and I must obey him; he must rule over me; this is upon me and I will submit to it," and by so doing she has promises that others do not have.

* * * If the men of the world would be honest and full of good works, you would not see them living as they do. And the women are entitled to the kingdom, they are entitled to the glory, they are entitled to exaltation if they are obedient to the Priesthood, and they will be crowned with those that are crowned.

When Father Adam came to assist in organizing the earth out of the crude material that was found, an earth was made upon which the children of men could live. After the earth was prepared Father Adam came and stayed here, and there was a woman brought to him. * * * There was a certain woman brought to Father Adam whose name was Eve, because she was the first woman, and she was given to him to be his wife; I am not disposed to give any farther knowledge concerning her at present. There is no doubt but that he left many companions.

There is one ground of complaint that is alleged against us here, and that is, we believe in a plurality of wives. A great many men and women have practiced this principle rigidly, in all good faith; and until we can find some man who can show us a single passage in either the Old or New Testament, that actually prohibits it, we feel justified in following the examples of Prophets, Patriarchs, and holy men, fathers of the faithful, believing that if it were right in their case it can not be wrong in ours. We are told that the Old Testament sets forth such an example, but that the New Testament condemns it, for that the Savior did it away. The only question I would ask in reference to this subject is--If the Savior did away with plural marriage, why didn't he say so? If the Apostles put it down why did they not tell us of it? In the last two chapters of the Bible we have an account of the Holy City, the New Jerusalem, the gates of which we are told are to be named after the twelve sons of four wives by one father; and if we enter the gates of that city we face this polygamy, and if we can not face this polygamy we cannot enter the gates into the city. So we understand the New Testament.

Now Latter-day Saints, 1 want to say this to you, when a man lifts his heel against the counsel that we give him, I know that man will apostatize, just as sure as he is a living being, unless he repents and refrains from such conduct. Brother George A. Smith has been reading a little out of the revelation concerning celestial marriage, and I want to say to my sisters that if you lift your heels against this revelation, and say that you would obliterate it, and put it out of existence if you had the power to nullify and destroy it, I say that if you imbibe that spirit and feeling, you will go to hell, just as sure as you are living women. Emma took that revelation, supposing she had all there was; but Joseph had wisdom enough to take care of it, and he had handed the revelation to Bishop Whitney, and he wrote it all off. After Joseph had been to Bishop Whitney's he went home, and Emma began teasing for the revelation. Said she--"Joseph, you promised me that revelation, and if you are a man of your word you will give it to me." Joseph took it from his pocket and said--"Take it." She went to the fireplace and put it in, and put the candle under it and burnt it, and she thought that was the end of it, and she will be damned as sure as she is a living woman. Joseph used to say that he would have her hereafter, if he had to go to hell for her, and he will have to go to hell for her as sure as he ever gets her.

You sisters may say that plural marriage is very hard for you to bear. It is no such thing. * * * If it is the duty of a husband to take a wife, take her. But it is not the privilege of a woman to dictate the husband, and tell who or how many he shall take, or what he shall do with them when he gets them, but it is the duty of the woman to submit cheerfully. Says she--"May [sic] husband does not know how to conduct himself, he lacks wisdom--he does (p. 160) not know how to treat two wives and be just." That all may be true, but it is not her prerogative to correct the evil, she must bear that; and the woman that bears wrong--and any number of them do in this order--patiently, will be crowned with a man far above her husband; and the man that is not worthy, and who does not prove himself worthy before God, his wife or wives will be taken from him and given to another, so the women need not worry. It is the man who has need to worry and watch himself, and see that he does right.

165. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 17:214-225; Orson Pratt; the New Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; Wednesday, October 7, 1874.

It will be recollected that this law was given to a polygamic nation. When I speak of a polygamic nation, I mean a nation that practised both plural and single (p. 215) marriage, and believed one form to be just as sacred as the other. Their progenitors or ancestors were polygamists; and they were considered patterns for all future generations. * * * They were not only examples to the Jewish nation, but in their seed, the seed of these polygamists, all the nations and kingdoms of the earth were to be blessed.

I hope that pious Christians in this congregation will not find fault this afternoon with their Bible, and with the Prophets and inspired men who wrote it. I hope that they will not find fault with God for selecting polygamists to be his friends. I hope that they will not find fault with Jesus because he said, some two thousand years or upwards after the days of these polygamists, that they were in the kingdom of God, and were not condemned because of polygamy. * * *

(P. 219) Read along a little further, and it says--"Cursed be he that continues not in all things written in this book of the law." Oh, what a dreadful penalty that was. . . . Oh, what a fearful curse upon a man that refused to become a polygamist, and would not attend to the law of God! * * *

(p. 220) We can.t help it; polygamy belongs to Christianity, as well as to the law of Moses. * * *

(p. 221) God has said that seven women shall take hold of one man for the purpose of having their reproach taken away, that they may be called by his name, not cast off as harlots or prostitutes; not to take away the name of the father from the children, and cast them into the streets, as the Christian nations have been doing for many long centuries that are past. But these seven women will be desirous of having the name of their husband for themselves and their children. * * * Forbear, do not destroy the Bible because it advocates polygamy; but remember that every word of God is pure, so it is declared; and he has nowhere in this book, condemned plural marriage, even in one instance. * * *

(p. 223) Now I wish to come directly to the point in regard to polygamy as it exists at the present time among the Latter-day Saints. I stated in the beginning of my remarks, that polygamy, or any other institution that was given at one age, might not be binding upon another, without a fresh revelation from God. * * * I still say, that we are not under the necessity of practicing polygamy because God gave laws and commandments for its observance and regulation in ancient times. Why then do the Latter-day Saints practice polygamy? * * * It is because we believe, with all the sincerity of our hearts. . . that the Lord God who gave revelations to Moses approbating polygamy, has given revelations to the Latter-day Saints, not only approbating it, but commanding it, as he commanded Israel in ancient times.

(p. 224) . . . I want to say a few words in regard to the revelation on polygamy. God has told us Latter-day Saints that we shall be condemned if we do not enter into that principle. . . . I did hope there was more intelligence among the Latter-day Saints, and a greater understanding of principle than to suppose that any one can be a member of this Church in good standing, and yet reject polygamy. The Lord has said, that those who reject this principle reject their salvation, they shall be damned, saith the Lord; those to whom I reveal this law and they do not receive it, shall be damned. * * *

I want to prophecy that all men and women who oppose the revelation which God has given in relation to polygamy will find themselves in darkness; the Spirit of God will withdraw from them from the very moment of their opposition to that principle, until they will finally go down to hell and be damned, if they do not repent. * * *

I will go on and tell the people why polygamy was instituted in this dispensation. So far as a future state is concerned, God has revealed to us that marriage as instituted by him, is to benefit the people, not in this world only, but to all eternity.

166. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 18:54-56; Orson Pratt; New Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; Sunday afternoon, July 11, 1875.

For instance, here is a good young man who courts up a wife in the kingdom of God. He says to her, "Let us go and be married for time and all eternity, according to the requirements of heaven." Very well; they are agreed in it; they attend to the ordinance, and it is sealed upon their heads and recorded (p. 55) for their benefit. We will say that, in the course of two or three months after this marriage, some accident befalls the wife and she dies. They loved each other and were married for all eternity, and he mourns over the fact that in his youth, in the very prime of his manhood, he is left alone, a widower. Now is it right for him to marry another wife after having been married to one for time and for all eternity? Is it right for him again to receive a young lady for a wife? "Oh, yes," you answer, "it is perfectly right, because that would not be living with two on the earth at the same time." Very well, he goes and marries again; and now the question arises, suppose that they only marry for time, or until death shall part them--we will suppose this, because the man already has a wife on the other side of the vail-- what is to become of the second wife in the morning of the resurrection? Can you answer that question? If he only marries her for time, she has no husband when the resurrection comes. Perhaps she is just as good a woman as the wife the man married first for all eternity. What are you going to do with her? Shall she be left in a condition where she can have no posterity, no endless increase, no kingdom in connection with a husband, and no husband? Shall she be left throughout all the future ages of eternity without any such privilege, while the first wife, no better than she is, is married for all eternity, and inherits all the blessings arising therefrom? Would not there be partiality in this? There certainly would. How are you going to remedy this? We answer, when this widower takes this second wife, let her also be married to him for time and all eternity, the same as the first; then, by and by, when the resurrection comes, there come up the two women. What will you do then? This introduces plurality into the next life, does it not? Polygamists in the next world? It certainly does; and these two women, both having received this man as their husband for all eternity, one of them will now be in just as good a condition as the other.

Let this principle be extended. There are some cases in life where two women might die, and a man be still left in his young days without a wife, and he marries a third and perhaps a fourth; in the resurrection they are contemporaneously his wives. Plurality, therefore, would be perfectly consistent in the world to come, but, "Oh," says a sectarian, "how awful it is in this world!"

Thus you see that the very moment we admit the eternity of marriage, the very moment that we admit that Adam and Eve were immortal beings, when they were married, and we undertake to follow that pattern, plurality necessarily comes along; either marriage has no bearing upon eternity, and no bearing upon immortality and immortal beings, or else plurality of wives necessarily must exist in eternity.

Says one--"Turn it about the other way, then we shall have plurality of husbands." Let me say to the congregation that the object of marriage is to fulfill the commandment which God gave to immortal beings. Could a woman multiply faster by having two husbands? Everybody knows that in this respect there is a difference between the male and the female. In this life, at any rate, if one woman had two husbands, instead of making her more fruitful, the probability is that it would prevent her raising an offspring at all; and if she did, how would the father be known? And hence, God has strictly forbidden, in (p. 56) this Bible, plurality of husbands, and proclaimed against it in his law. * * *

"But then," says one, "polygamy is a crime." Who told you so? Does the Bible tell you so? Oh no, neither the Old nor the New Testament; no Prophet, no revelator, no Apostle, no man of God, nor Jesus himself, nor any angel ever denounced it as a crime, but on the contrary they advocated it, and the Lord himself administered in this divine ordinance. He gave to Jacob his four wives and children, so Jacob tells us in Genesis.

The principles of Plural Marriage were revealed for the benefit and exaltation of the children of men, but how much unhappiness has arisen through failure, on the part of some who have contracted this order of marriage, to conform to the laws that govern it! But does it arise through any defect in the order of the marriage system? 0 no; but from ignorance and the folly and wickedness of those individuals who enter into it, who abuse, rather than righteously obey, it.

168. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 20:37-39; George Q. Cannon; Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; Sunday, July 7, 1878.

A knowledge of the true condition of affairs in this Territory is gradually growing, and although it may be but slowly, it is of faster growth than we generally imagine. This is especially true of that much abused principle called plural marriage. It is becoming recognized in its true light, and people are beginning, as I never heard them before in my experience, to talk about it and reflect upon it, often alluding to it in a way that shows that a better understanding of the subject is steadily spreading among the people. And there is a reason for this: this question has been so much agitated. It is a remarkable fact that every publication against this doctrine of the Latter-day Saints has the effect to spread the knowledge of it among the people and it makes men and women reflect upon it. * * * And no true doctrine need ever fear being assailed and denounced; for it will emerge from the conflict brighter and better understood than it otherwise would appear. * * * Because there are some men and some women who reflect upon these things, and who will contrast that which they hear of us, with that which exists in their midst. And when they see a man stand up boldly and say, "we believe in plural marriage; we do not believe in prostitution; we do not suffer women to become the slaves of men's lusts; but believe they ought to become honored wives and mothers, and that children ought to be educated and provided for and called by the name of their father, and at their father's death his property be equally divided among them even though their mothers should be plural wives." When they hear this, they cannot help thinking about such a condition of affairs; and they say, there is a moral courage which these people evince in this matter that is admirable. I have had it said to me often times, by both sexes, that it is better that we should live as we do, than such practices as exist elsewhere should come in our midst. * * *

The opinion which some entertain who take their views from the slanderous reports published about us, is that we are a licentious people, who take wives

(p. 38) to gratify lust. * * * A prominent gentleman with whom I recently conversed, entertained that opinion. I said to him, after conversing a little while: Sir, you believe the people of Utah are bad and licentious, and that they degrade women by their system of plural marriage. Let me ask you, if their purposes were only sensual, have they any occasion in this day to marry women? Could they not accomplish sensual ends much easier, cheaper, and without creating any especial remark by not marry women and not caring for and educating and legitimatizing their children? There are practices which prevail in society, and which are not unpopular if a certain degree of secrecy be observed which a licentious people could avail themselves of, without the trouble, care, expense and responsibility of marriage. What is the crime of which the people of Utah are accused? It is that of marrying women! It is not that of seducing or debauching them.* * * Not one word of condemnation, nor penalty of any character, is proposed for the seducer, or the vile betrayer of female innocence; he is to walk up to the polls and vote unchallenged; but the man who marries women, and maintains them honorably and virtuously, sustaining family and parental relations in all purity and sacredness, is to be disfranchised and visited with other pains and penalties! * * * If they were not a conscientious people, with strong moral and religious convictions, they would not risk becoming martyrs, as they do, for the sake of marrying women, when, if they followed the usual practice of the age, they could get them without marrying.

He frankly acknowledged that what I had said had given him a new view of the case, and he admitted that if the gratification of sensual desires were our object, we could reach that without marriage and without exciting any particular odium. * * * Upon one occasion, while purchasing machinery in the East, he [Bro. Horace S. Eldredge] called upon a firm in Providence, Rhode Island, to whom he brought a letter of introduction. One of the members of the firm, after carrying him in his carriage to see the various objects of interest in the city, brought him back to his place of business and introduced him to his partner. This gentleman had a number of inquires to make respecting Utah and its people, and soon learned that Bro Eldredge (p. 39) was a "Mormon." After stating that he understood that the "Mormons" believed in marrying more than one wife, to which Bro. Eldredge replied in the affirmative, he asked if he himself had more than one, to which he again responded affirmatively. He then asked how many he had. To this bro. Eldredge replied: "I have such a plenty of my own that I have no occasion to trouble my neighbors.; and that is more than a great many in the land of steady habits can say."

169. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 20:26-31; Elder Joseph F. Smith; Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; Sunday Morning, July 7 1878.

In the first place, it is a principle that savors of life unto life, or of death unto death; therefore it is well for those who have embraced the Gospel to obtain a knowledge in relation to this matter. It is a principle that pertains to eternal life, in other words, to endless lives, or eternal increase. It is a law of the Gospel pertaining to the celestial kingdom, applicable to all gospel dispensations, when commanded and not otherwise, and neither acceptable to God or binding on man unless given by commandment, not only so given in this dispensation, but particularly adapted to the conditions and necessities thereof, and to the circumstances, responsibilities, and personal, as well as vicarious duties of the people of God in this age of the world. God has revealed it as a principle particularly (p. 27) suited to the nature of the work we are called to perform, that it might be hastened to its consummation. It is a righteous principle not an unrighteous one. It is a pure and holy principle; and, therefore, persons, either male or female, who have not the desire in their hearts to become pure and righteous, have no business to practice it, for it cannot be practiced acceptably before God on any other principle than that of purity and righteousness, therefore no wicked unjust or impure person can enter into the law of celestial or plural marriage without incurring the displeasure of the Almighty and his own condemnation before the Lord, unless he speedily repent of all his impure motives and designs. A man that is not honest in his heart, who does not desire to be just and impartial, even as God is just and impartial, has no business in plural marriage; and before he enters into the practice of that principle he needs to repent, to learn wisdom, to get the Spirit of God, to get understanding in relation to the purpose God has in view in regard to this principle; that he may go into the practise of it understandingly, that his heart and mind may be set upon practising it in righteousness. * * *

(P. 28) The principle is correct, great, ennobling and calculated to bring joy, satisfaction and peace, if we would but observe and practice it as we should. * * *

Some people have supposed that the doctrine of plural marriage was a sort of superfluity, or non-essential to the salvation or exaltation of mankind. In other words, some of the Saints have said, and believe, that a man with one wife, sealed to him by the authority of the Priesthood for time and eternity, will receive an exaltation as great and glorious, if he is faithful, as he possibly could with more than one. I want here to enter my solemn protest against this idea, for I know it is false. * * * The marriage of one woman to a man for time and eternity by the sealing power, according to the law of God, is a fulfillment of the celestial law of marriage in part--and is good so far as it goes--and so far as a man abides these conditions of the law, he will receive his reward therefor, and this reward, or blessing, he could not obtain on any other grounds or conditions. But this is only the beginning of the law, not the whole of it. Therefore, whoever has imagined that he could obtain the fullness of the blessings pertaining to this celestial law, by complying with only a portion of its conditions, has deceived himself. He cannot do it. When that principle was revealed to the Prophet Joseph Smith, he very naturally shrank, in his feelings, from the responsibilities thereby imposed upon him; foreseeing, as he did in part, the apparently insurmountable difficulties in the way of establishing it, in the face of popular opinion, the traditions and customs of many generations, the frowns, ridicule, slander, opposition and persecution of the world. Yes, this man of God, who dared to meet the opposition of the whole world with bold and fearless front, who dared to dispute the religious authority and accumulated learning and wisdom of the age--who dared everything for the truth, and shrank not even from (p. 29) the sacrifice of his own life in testimony of his divine mission, shrank, in his feelings, from the weight of the responsibility of inaugurating and establishing this new innovation upon the established customs of the world. But he did not falter, although it was not until an angel of God, with a drawn sword, stood before him and commanded that he should enter into the practice of that principle, or he should be utterly destroyed, or rejected, that he moved forward to reveal and establish that doctrine. To put this matter more correctly before you, I here declare that the principle of plural marriage was not first revealed on the 12th day of July, 1843. It was written for the first time on that date, but it had been revealed to the Prophet many years before that, perhaps as early as 1832. About this time, or subsequently, Joseph, the Prophet, intrusted this fact to Oliver Cowdery; he abused the confidence imposed in him, and brought reproach upon himself, and thereby upon the church by "running before he was sent," and "taking liberties without license," so to speak, hence the publication, by 0. Cowdery, about this time, of an article on marriage, which was carefully worded, and afterwards found its way into the Doctrine and Covenants without authority. This article explains itself to those who understand the facts, and is an indisputable evidence of the early existence of the knowledge of the principle of patriarchal marriage by the Prophet Joseph, and also by Oliver Cowdery.

When the revelation was written, in 1843, it was for a special purpose, by the request of the Patriarch Hyrum Smith, and was not then designed to go forth to the church or to the world. It is most probable that had it been then written with a view to its going out as a doctrine of the church, it would have been presented in a somewhat different form. * * * Joseph Smith, on the day it was written, expressly declared that there was a great deal more connected with the doctrine which would be revealed in due time, but this was sufficient for the occasion, and was made to suffice for the time. And, indeed, I think it much more than many are prepared to live up to even now. When the time came to introduce this doctrine to those who were worthy in the church, God commanded the Prophet and he obeyed. He taught it as he was commanded to such as were prepared to receive and obey it, and they were commanded to enter into it, or they were threatened that the keys would be turned against them, and they would be cut off by the Almighty. It need scarcely be said that the Prophet found no one any more willing to lead out in this matter in righteousness than he was himself. Many could see it--nearly all to whom he revealed it believed it, and received the witness of the Holy Spirit that it was of God; but none excelled, or even matched the courage of the Prophet himself.

If, then, this principle was of such great importance that the Prophet himself was threatened with destruction, and the best men in the Church with being excluded from the favor of the Almighty, if they did not enter into and establish the practice of it upon the earth, it is useless to tell me that there is no blessing attached to obedience to the law, or that a man with only one wife can obtain as great a reward, glory or kingdom as he can with more than (p. 30) one, being equally faithful.

Patriarchal marriage involves conditions, responsibilities and obligations which do not exist in monogamy, and there are blessings attached to the faithful observance of that law, if viewed only upon natural principles, which must so far exceed those of monogamy as the conditions responsibilities and power of increase are greater. This is my view and testimony in relation to this matter. I believe it is a doctrine that should be taught and understood.

The benefits derived from the righteous observance of this order of marriage do not accrue solely to the husband, but are shared equally by the wives; not only is this true upon the grounds of obedience to a divine law, but upon physiological and scientific principles. In the latter view, the wives are even more benefitted, if possible, than the husband physically. But, indeed, the benefits naturally accruing to both sexes, and particularly to their offspring, in time, say nothing of eternity, are immensely greater in the righteous practice of patriarchal marriage than in monogamy, even admitting the eternity of the monogamic marriage covenant. * * *

It is a glorious privilege to be permitted to go into a Temple of God to be united as man and wife in the bonds of holy wedlock for time and all eternity by the Authority of the Holy Priesthood, which is the power of God, for they who are thus joined together "no man can put asunder," for God hath joined them. It is an additional privilege for that same man and wife to re-enter the Temple (P. 31) of God to receive another wife in like manner if they are worthy. But if he remain faithful with only the one wife, observing the conditions of so much of the law as pertains to the eternity of the marriage covenant, he will receive his reward, but the benefits, blessings and power appertaining to the second or more faithful and fuller observance of the law, he never will receive, for he cannot. As before stated no man can obtain the benefits of one law by the observance of another, however faithful he may be in that which he does, nor can he secure to himself the fullness of any blessing without he fulfills the law upon which it is predicated, but he will receive the benefit of the law he obeys. This is just and righteous.

I understand the law of celestial marriage to mean that every man in this Church, who has the ability to obey and practice it in righteousness and will not, shall be damned, I say I understand it to mean this and nothing less, and I testify in the name of Jesus that it does mean that. * * *

This law is in force upon the inhabitants of Zion, and he that is qualified to obey it cannot neglect or disregard it with impunity. But it must be observed in righteousness.

It is now about thirty-six years since the Prophet Joseph Smith taught to me the principles of Celestial Marriage. I was then married by the order and have raised a family of both sons and daughters in what is called Polygamy, and I am not afraid to say that it is one of the most pure and holy principles that has ever been revealed to the LDS, and one that is necessary to our exaltation. * * * Then let us rejoice my Sisters, that we are numbered with the People of God, that we have embraced the Celestial Order of Marriage, and happy shall we be in a coming day if we have never spoken lightly of sacred things.

171. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 20:198-201; George Q. Cannon; April 6, 1879.

. . . It is a most difficult thing to get these Latter-day Saints to understand the principles that are as plain as the noonday sun--that they should receive readily, and why? Because, as I have said, they are heirs of the traditions of centuries that have come down through the dark ages. It is a wonderful thing to do what we have done respecting woman. Look at what monogamy has done. Look at its effects; trace its influence from the death of the Apostles, or soon afterwards, down to this the nineteenth century, and what do we behold? Why, in every generation a large percentage of our sisters has been consigned either to that nameless condition of which it is a shame to speak, or have died without ever knowing the joys of maternity.

* * * (p. 199) For the sake of illustrating the point. Here are men and women in equal numbers and equal proportions, one sex not outnumbering the other--a man for a woman and a woman for a man, no surplus of women, no surplus of men. If they were to marry, each would have a partner, each man would have a wife and each woman would have a husband; each would be perfect, for the man is not perfect without the woman, nor the woman without the man. We turn in and make a law, such as prevailed at one time in Rome that every man shall marry a wife. Such a law was made at Rome at one time; it was aimed at celibacy. It was aimed at a certain class as the law of 1862 was aimed at us. One was enacted to prevent marriage, the other to compel marriage, that no class of men should grow up in the community without wives, and that no woman should be allowed to forsake man and become a nun. * * * Every woman is provided with a husband, and every man with a wife. But after a while somebody comes along and says, "I do not like this law, it is oppressive; I know, for instance, where it works very badly; I know men who do not want to have wives." They prefer a single life, and they succeed after a while in repealing the law, as they did in Rome. The law is repealed and men are at liberty to marry or not as they please. On the top of this another law is enacted, in effect that every man shall have but one wife, and shall not be permitted to take two or more wives. The women, of course, have to do just as the men say, they cannot compel the men to marry them, but must wait until they are invited to marry. This law suits a great many individuals. Many men say, "I prefer not to have a wife and especially if you will only make a law confining the men to marry but one wife each. I like that very well, because I will not then be under the necessity of keeping a wife. If I want a partner, an associate, I can have one without being at the trouble or expense of keeping her as such. Because if (P. 200) you confine marriage to one man and one woman there will necessarily be a share of the women who cannot be married; that is, if the sexes are equal in numbers. Then I can do as I please. I know the confiding nature of woman; I know how she loves, how she clings to the object of her love. This will by my opportunity." But what shall be said respecting the women. The men so far as they are concerned, have the right to marry or not as they please. But here is a large percentage of the women who by this law are to a certain extent deprived from marrying, even supposing the sexes to be equal. A civil commotion arises. Men go to war, they go to sea, they engage in commercial pursuits, they leave their homes, they engage in hazardous occupations. The result is that though in the beginning the men and women were equal in numbers, by the effects of war, and of engaging in hazardous pursuits which women do not follow, the men die and are killed, and the women survive and outnumber the males. The operation of a law then, such as I have described, increases the hardship, increases the percentage of those who are not married and who have no opportunity of marrying. Here comes along a man after witnessing the evils that have grown up among his brothers and sisters, and says, "I have a plan to suggest which I believe will cure the evils that exist among us. I see that a dreadful vice called prostitution has crept into our midst, and arising from it are dreadful diseases, diseases that I cannot describe, so appalling are they that the very thought of them makes the heart recoil with horror; they have appeared in our family circle and they are destroying our young men and women. And now then, the plan that I have to propose to our family is this, that every man shall marry until all the women are married, until every woman that wants a husband shall have one, so that the men who will not marry shall not have a class of unmarried women, to prey upon, to commit violence with, or to prostitute. "Now," says he, "if you let all these men and women marry, there will be some women who will not want to marry, but that proportion will be very small; and by this means you will arrest this dreadful evil that is growing in our midst."

* * * I would say, as a father, if I had a family of that kind, by all means let my daughters marry, let every woman have a husband that wants one. Then if every man marries a wife, they will only have a wife apiece; but if there should be any of the boys that do not want wives, the girls would not necessarily go without husbands.

I consider our false tradition upon this subject one of the greatest evils at the present time that exists upon the earth. It has come down to us from the Greeks and Romans, than whom a more abominable lot of people never lived upon the earth. * * * (p. 201) The fairest of Earth's daughters fall yearly sacrifices to the abominable lusts of men.

172. "Historical Record", Vol. 6:224, by Andrew Jensen; Eliza R. Snow, a wife of Joseph Smith, the Prophet; Affidavit published in the Deseret News; October 22, 1879.

Recently, to my great astonishment, I read an article headed 'Last Testimony of Sister Emma,' published in the Saints' Advocate, a pamphlet issued in Plano, Ill.

In the article referred to, her son Joseph reports himself as interviewing his mother on the subject of polygamy, asking questions concerning his father. Did his father teach the principle? Did he practice or approve of it? Did his father have other wives than herself? To all of these and similar inquiries, Sister Emma is represented as answering in the negative, positively affirming that Joseph, the Prophet, had no other wife or wives than her; that he neither taught the principle of plurality of wives, publicly or privately. I once dearly loved 'Sister Emma,' and now, for me to believe that she, a once highly honored woman, should have sunk so low, even in her own estimation, as to deny what she knew to be true, seems a palpable absurdity. If what purports to be her .last testimony. was really her testimony, she died with a libel on her lips--a libel against her husband--against his wives--against the truth, and a libel against God; and in publishing that libel, her son has fastened a stigma on the character of his mother, that can never be erased. It is a FACT that Sister Emma, of her own free will and choice, gave her husband four wives, two of whom are now living, and ready to testify that she, not only gave them to her husband, but that she taught them the doctrine of plural marriage, and urged them to accept it. And, ii her son wished to degrade his mother in the estimation of her former associates, those familiar with the incidents of the period referred to, he could not do it more effectually than by proving her denial of any knowledge of polygamy (celestial marriage), and its practice by her husband. Even if her son ignored his mothers reputation for veracity, he better had waited until his father's wives were silent in death, for now they are here living witnesses of the divinity of plural marriage, as revealed by the Almighty, through Joseph Smith, who was commanded in introduce it by taking other wives.

Elder John Pack . . . spoke on celestial marriage. Said he knew that Joseph Smith had many wives sealed to him. Hyrum Smith taught my wife, my mother, and myself, the law of celestial marriage. Hyrum said my wife and I were not one; to become one, we would have to be sealed up to eternal life; my wife was then sealed to me. And I acted in behalf of my father, who was dead, and was sealed to my mother. The law of celestial marriage was taught me before the death of Joseph; and I practiced it before he died. He compared the glory that a man would have with only one wife and asked could he expect to receive the reward that a man would have, who had fulfilled all the law? Certainly not. Certain promises are given to those who obey the law; and unless they fulfill it, they will not receive the reward.

174. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 21:9-10; Elder Joseph F. Smith; delivered at the funeral services over the remains of Elder William Clayton, held in the 17th Ward Meeting House, Salt Lake City; Dec 7, 1879.

It was his pen that wrote for the first time the revelation in relation to the eternity of the marriage covenant and of a plurality of wives. Although that revelation had been given to the Prophet Joseph many years before, it was not written until the 12th of July, 1843, at which time Elder William Clayton, acting as a scribe for the Prophet, wrote it from his dictation. * * * (p. 10) . . . having come from the mouth of the Prophet, this doctrine of eternal union of husband and wife, and of plural marriage, is one of the most important doctrines ever revealed to man in any age of the world. Without it man would come to a full stop; without it we never could be exalted to associate with and become gods, neither could we attain to the power of eternal increase, or the blessings pronounced upon Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, the fathers of the faithful.

175. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 22:96-97; Elder Charles W. Penrose; Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; Sunday afternoon, May 1, 1880.

But some may say, "You are a very bad people. You marry many wives and are raising up a host of children." Well, we are no worse than the father of the faithful, Abraham, the friend of God, and if you do not like men who have more wives than one, I am very much afraid that when you get to the gates of the holy city, the New Jerusalem, on which will be inscribed the names of twelve men who were the sons of four women by one man--and if you should pass through the gates into the celestial city, and find Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of God, with their wives and children as the beginning of their everlasting glory and dominion, that you will say, "I want to go somewhere else; let me get out of this city, it is inhabited by polygamists."

Before I sit down let me say, my friends that those in this community who have married more wives than one have done so from pure motives. But some people cannot comprehend that. This generation is so corrupt and so licentious that some cannot understand how a man can marry one wife from pure motives. * * * God Almighty has given us a revelation concerning this matter. We marry our wives under divine direction and divine sanction, and under the . . . holy Priesthood. . . . I will just say that our marriage is celestial marriage for time and all eternity--like that with which Adam was married to Eve in the Garden of Eden when they were (p. 97) immortal beings, and when there was no one to unite them but God. * * *

After that pattern are we married for time and all eternity, and we expect when we come up in the resurrection of the just, if we have been worthy, to receive our wives to our bosoms, and our children to the family circle; that they will be the beginning of our exaltation and glory; that then the blessings of Abraham pronounced upon us shall be fulfilled, and of our increase there shall be no end. The Lord will multiply our seed as the stars of the heaven and as the sand which is upon the sea shore. And when we enter this holy order of marriage, whether it be with one or two, or more wives, we marry in this order and in the fear of God, and under the direction of his spirit and for holy purposes, and not for the gratification of lust, and those that say we do are either very much mistaken or they wilfully lie.

I was baptized by Uncle Brigham Young in a branch of the Chagrin river my father cutting the ice for that purpose. He & Brigham Young belong to the Quorum of Twelve Apostles. Years passed away and we were living in the City of Nauvoo. Just previous to my father's starting upon his last mission but one, to the Eastern States, he taught me the principle of Celestial Marriage, & having a great desire to be connected with the Prophet, Joseph, he offered me to him; this I afterwards learned from the Prophets. own mouth. My father had but one Ewe Lamb but willingly laid her upon the alter: how cruel this seemed to the mother whose heartstrings were already stretched untill they were ready to snap asunder, for he had taken Sarah Moon to wife & she thought she had made sufficient sacrifice but the Lord required more. I will pass over the temptations which I had during the twenty-four hours after my father introduced to me this principle & asked me if I would be sealed to Joseph who came next morning and with my parents I heard him +e+eh teach & explain the principle of (p. 2) Celestial Marriage after which he said to me, "If you will take this step, it will ensure your eternal salvation & exaltation and that of your fathers. household & all of your kindred. this promise was so great that I willingly gave myself to purchase so glorious a reward. None but God & his angels could see my mothers bleeding heart when Joseph asked her if she was willing, she replied "If Heber is willing I have nothing more to say. She had witnessed the sufferings of others, who were older, who better understood the step they were taking & to see her child, who had scarcely seen her fifteenth summer, falling in the same thorny path, in her mind she saw the misery which was as sure to come as the sun was to rise and set; but it was all hidden from me.

I thought through this life my time will be my own
The step I now am taking for eternity alone,
No one need be the wiser, through time I shall be free,
And as the part hath been the future still will be.
To my guileless heart all free from worldly care
And full of blissful hopes and youthful visions rare
The world seemed bright the threatening clouds were kept
From sight and all looked fair but pitying angels wept.
There saw my youthful friends grow shy and cold
And poison starts from slanderous tongues were hurled, Untutored heart in thy generous sacrifice,
Thou didst not weight the cost nor know the bitter price;
Thy happy dreams all are thou doomed alas to be Barred out from social scenes by this thy destiny
And o'er thy saddened memories of sweet departed joys
Thy sickened heart will brood and imagine future worlds
And like a feddered bird with wild and longing heart
Thou daily pine for freedom and murmur at thy lot
But couldst thou see the future & view that glorious crown
Awaiting you in heaven you would not weep or mourn.
Pure and exalted was thy father's aim, he saw
A glory in obeying this high celestial law,
For thousands who died without the light
'T will bring eternal joy & make thy crown more bright.
I'd been taught to revere the Prophet of God
And receive every word as the word of the Lord,
But had this not come through my dear father's mouth
I should ne'er have received it as God's sacred truth.

Two years after the martyrdom Joseph and Hyrum I love and married your father Horace Kimball Whitney, eldest son of Bishop Newel K. and Elizabeth 178. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 22:186-191; Elder John Nicholson; Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; Sunday afternoon, June 26, 1881.

. . . We regard the Constitution of our country as sacred, and the will of our Heavenly Father as supreme. That sacred instrument--the Constitution of this land--says that a man and woman in the practice of their religion shall not be interfered with, that Congress shall have no power to make such interference as that proposed by the law to which I have made allusion. But it might be said in regard to this that it is a law nevertheless because it has passed the Congress of the United States and been sustained by the Supreme Court of the United States. Nevertheless--I now speak for myself--I lay it down as a proposition that any law that infringes upon my religious rights cannot be a constitutional law, if all the courts in the world should decide that it is of that character. But it may be said--and it is said frequently--that our system of marriage--the same system of marriage that obtained among the ancients who held direct communication with the Almighty--is not a part of religion. But I state, so far as I am individually concerned, that I hope never to get into the position where any man or class on the face of this earth shall prescribe to me what shall or shall not be my religion. * * * But it is sometimes said that our system of marriage is obnoxious to the ruling sentiment of the country, and especially to those whose crafts are in danger, and who are professors of other religions. Then on the same principle, if we were in the majority would it be right for us to use coercive means to put down in the religions of others what might be obnoxious to our system? It is a poor rule that will not work both ways.

* * * (p. 188) . . . When a man enters into this holy bond, whether it be in taking more wives than one, merely for the gratification of his passions he infringes upon a law of God, of nature and of this Church, for this Church decides that its members shall be pure in every respect; therefore those who are governed by impure instincts, feelings and sentiments are departing from the genius, the spirit, and the true practice of this Church, whoever they may be. But this is not the purpose. There (p.189) are purposes in the mind of Jehovah in regard to this principle, at least we accept them as such. God has decreed that in this day He will build up His Kingdom, and we are seeking to build it up, and as it is said in the Book of Mormon that... if the Lord should desire to raise up children to himself, that He shall command His people, otherwise they shall not practice the principle of plural marriage. * * * This kingdom must have people, and if the people of the world will not come and join with us and build up the kingdom of God, we will build it from the internal strength within itself. Let a person who does not believe in this go through this Territory from north to south and from east to west, and see the flocks of beautiful children who are growing up in the midst of this people, who will aid in bearing off this kingdom. * * *

(p. 191) I say we claim that God has revealed this system, and the only concessions which can be made so far as our principles are concerned must be made by their Author, otherwise they are null and void. So far as religious liberty is concerned, we claim the same as other people.

179. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 22:280-281; President George Q. Cannon; Meadow Creek, Millard County; October 31, 1881.

And there are other things very remarkable, which show that God, in his dealings with us, intends to make us a people different from any other. I allude now to our system of marriage. * * * It is a noticeable fact that the men among our people who have obeyed this commandment of God to us are the men most prospered in the land. * * * It might be supposed, naturally speaking, that that would be the means of impoverishing them; that the men who marry wives take upon them burdens that would crush them and that they would necessarily have to live in poverty in consequence. But the contrary of this is the case; and actual experience has proven to us that God is determined to remove from us the old traditions of the world, and show us that he is able to build up his kingdom upon a new plan and upon an entirely different basis from the kingdoms of the world. * * *

(P. 281) . . . a young man says it is as much as he can do to take care of himself, without attempting to sustain a wife. But a young man marries a wife, and he sustains himself and his wife too. He feels as though he would not be able to sustain a wife and child; but the baby comes, and they are able to get along as well after as they did before the child came. And thus it seems the way is provided for a second child and a third. And in times past some of our young men have taken second wives, and they have got along as well, and in many instances a little better, than when they had but one wife. And as the family increases, they have been able to provide for them all.

God is building up a peculiar people, a people of faith, a people who will do that which he requires of them, although what he may require of us may be directly opposed to our traditions.

At the funeral service for Sister Elizabeth A. Whitney on the above date, President Joseph F. Smith was one of the speakers. In his remarks concerning the lovely character of this good sister, Pres. Smith said that there was a crown laid up for her and it was a queenly one. He knew that such women would stand in the presence of the Eternal God, crowned with glory, honor and eternal life. Here, the speaker said probably for the first time in public, that the women who entered into plural marriage with the Prophet Joseph Smith were shown to him and named to him as early as 1831, and some of them were given in marriage to him as early as that date, although it was not then prudent, under the circumstances, to make these facts public. And when the Lord showed these women to Joseph, some of them were not even acquainted with the church much less him.

181. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 23:225-233; Erastus Snow; Salt Lake Assembly Hall; Sunday afternoon, February 26, 1882.

The word translated concubine in this Scripture must not be confounded with the modern practice which obtains so largely in the great cities of Christendom, and with the more wealthy portions of old communities. * * *

The word translated concubinage in King James version of the Bible, is translated by Luther and is found in Scandinavia and Germany, where the Lutheran translation still prevails, as meaning an associated wife. In the Danish Bible it is huustro for wife and medhustro for concubine; the sacred name of wife is given to both classes, the preposition med connecting them together and conveying the idea of the second class being an associated wife, or a wife in a secondary or subordinate position, in contradistinction of the first. Close students of the Bible have not failed to recognize this as being the character of the plural wives of Moses and the prophets. * * *

The Latter-day Saints regard the intercourse of the sexes, both in time and in eternity, as regulated by sacred law given by our Father in heaven who has organized us male and female for a wise purpose in Himself, and that purpose is made manifest in the first great command given to our first parents, namely, to multiply and replenish the earth. * * *

(p. 226) When the institution of marriage is founded in religious sentiment and is confirmed by the enduring love of husband, wives and children, and the responsibilities attending that relationship, as we find it in many of the ancient worthies, there is not necessarily any defilement in plural marriage. * * * Those best acquainted with the inner workings of the system among the Latter-day Saints throughout all of their settlements, if they testify honestly and truthfully as to the result of their careful observations extending over a period of over thirty years--the time that this system of plural marriage has been practised by us in these mountains, they would, in effect, say, that there is less discontent, less strife and fewer family broils and less divorce, and less casting off wives and casting upon the community of children without care, than would be found in the same number of monogamic families. * * * They cannot comprehend the spirit that governs us, the devout God-fearing spirit of self-sacrifice which leads us onward to all that is noble, forbearing and long-suffering, that teaches us to love one another and to be charitable to all men, and which teaches us that the relationships which we make through the marriage covenant are but the foundation of eternal glory and exaltation in the worlds to come; and it also teaches us that the glories of the future that open up before us are greatly dependent upon the faithfulness of our relationships and associations in this life; and that a man must be found capable to properly govern and guide his family and preserve in time the wives and children that are given to him, leading them in the way of life and salvation, and rearing his children in all that is pure and praiseworthy, so that he can receive them in the morning of the first resurrection, (p. 228) there to have the Father confirm upon him his wives and children, the foundation of his individual kingdom which will exist for ever and ever. The outside world cannot comprehend this, and simply because they cannot believe it. It is this same religious sentiment that prompts women and the best of women, the most devout women, women of the purest motive and character to enter into this sacred relationship, and to cause them to determine in their own minds that they would sooner be associated with a man who has proven himself a man of integrity, a man of strict virtue and honor, who can be relied upon by God and man--they would rather trust themselves with such a man than to be the only wife of a man devoid of these qualifications, * * *

Referring again to Abraham, and his wife Sarai. * * * This Sarai, one of the noblest of women, received the promise of her son Isaac while in old age, a promise made to her by the angel of God, and this because of her barrenness and because too of the integrity of her heart towards her husband and her willingness to sacrifice her womanly feeling in giving to her husband other wives. And after she had given to Abraham Hagar, that she might bear him children, mark the Scripture: It was for the purpose that he might not be childless because she was childless. It was after she had thus sacrificed her womanly feeling, thereby manifesting her love and integrity to her husband, that the Lord had compassion upon her and granted the desire of her heart, promising her that she should in course of time bring forth a son, and telling her that his name should be Isaac, in whom and in whose seed all the nations of the earth were to be blessed. * * *

(p. 231) And it reminds me of a remark made recently by a gentleman in Congress. It was proposed that the bill, now being urged in Congress against polygamy, be so amended as to include adultery; the gentleman to whom the proposition was made was at first inclined to endorse the amendment, but on reflection, he turned to his friend and said, if that be done it would leave us without a quorum in the House. No, my friends, it is not adultery they wish to punish; it is not whoredom they wish to punish; it is not the cause of public or private virtue they champion; it is merely the hue and cry of the bigotry of our time against a people who are aiming at a higher morality than now exists, who are aiming to do away with and effectually destroy out of their midst the evil that is sapping the strength and vitality of our nation--a community that does not seek to shun the responsibility and the cares and labors and expense and trouble of rearing families and of educating them and making their children honorable men and women, husbands and wives, fathers and mothers, citizens of the state and defenders of human liberty. * * *

(p. 233) Some of the law-makers of our nation would not only imprison Abraham were he living now, and also his plural wives, but they would disfranchise and imprison Sarah, his first wife, because she consented to his marrying other wives.

Since the country passed the Edmunds Bill they are turning the last keys for their destruction.

183. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 23:64-66; President John Taylor; Sunday, April 9, 1882.

When Joseph Smith first made known the revelation concerning plural marriage and of having more wives than one, it made my flesh crawl; but. . . I received such evidence and testimony pertaining to this matter, scriptural and otherwise, which it was impossible for me as an honest man to resist, and believing it to be right I obeyed it and practised it. * * * This principle is connected with the Saints alone, and pertains to eternity as well as time, and is known to us by the appellation of "celestial marriage." It does not belong to them, nor does (p. 65) it pertain to all of our own people. None but the more pure, virtuous, honorable and upright are permitted to enter into these associations. * * * Should we preach the doctrine of plurality of wives to the people of the United States? No; you know very well that it is only for honorable men and women, virtuous men and women, honest men and women who can be vouched for by those who preside over them, and whom they recognize as their Presidents; it is only such people as these that can be admitted to participate in this ordinance. * * *

. . . It makes provision for our marital associations in the other world, and that while we have our wives here we expect to have them in eternity; and we believe in that doctrine that reaches beyond time into eternity. Others make their marital relations to end in death; their covenants last only till death does them part. Ours take hold of eternity, they enter into the eternal state of existence, and contemplate as eternal union of the sexes worlds without end. * * *

Is it a thing incredible that the finest and most exalted ties and sympathies of humanity, sanctified by family relations--pure undefiled love, should continue in the resurrection? ***

(P. 66) But with regard to those not of us, I will tell you what I believe about the matter. I believe it would be much better for them to have even polygamy in their state of existence than this corroding, corrupting, demoralizing and damning evil that prevails in their midst. We look upon it that polygamy is the normal condition of man; but that has nothing to do with Mormon plurality of wives, or what is termed "celestial marriage." I would state also, that when we speak of its being the normal condition, it has so existed throughout all ages. * * * Polygamy means the propagation of human life.

184. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 23:131-133; Wilford Woodruff; Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; Sunday, May 14, 1882.

I was reading in the NEWS last evening a speech reported to have been made by Joseph Smith, son of the Prophet Joseph Smith, in which he accuses us of pursuing an entirely different course from that of his father; . . . that his father had nothing to do with the patriarchal order of marriage; * * * I wish to say, that Joseph Smith [III] utters falsehoods when he says what he is reported to have said about his father: * * * Emma Smith, the widow of the Prophet, is said to have maintained to her dying moments that her husband had nothing to do with the patriarchal order of marriage, but that it was Brigham Young that got that up. I bear record before God, angels and men that Joseph Smith received that revelation; and I bear record that Emma Smith gave her husband in marriage several women while he was living, some of whom are to-day living in this city, and some may be present in this congregation, and who, if called upon, would confirm my words. * * *

(p. 132) We declare to all men that the God of heaven commanded Joseph Smith to introduce and practice the patriarchal order of marriage, including the plurality of wives. And why? Because it was the law given to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob for certain purposes; that holy men might have their wives and children with them in the morning of the first resurrection in their family organization to inherit kingdoms, thrones, principalities and powers in the presence of God throughout the endless ages of eternity. * * * Our wives and children we love and respect, and we could no more deny them their claims upon us as husbands and fathers, than we could deny our God.

Another thing, there is no man that has ever lived who can claim a wife or child in the resurrection unless he and she were married and sealed by divine authority by a man delegated of heaven to perform the ordinance of marriage. All contracts not ordained of God entered into by men, end with this life, and are therefore without binding effect in the world to come. And herein is the difference of the position of the Latter-day Saints and of the Christian world with respect to the married state. The nature of our marriage covenant is sacred and binding both for time and eternity, and I would just as soon think of denying my God as to sever the relationship existing between me and (p. 133) my wives and children. Our plural wives and our children are just as dear to us as the one wife and the children of the Gentiles are to them; and what is more, we have married our wives by command of God, and by authority of His Priesthood, which has been restored again to earth; and if we prove faithful and true to Him and to one another, we shall claim our wives and children in the world to come. Amen.

185. Questions & Answers Concerning Celestial Marriage, pp. 1-12; a revelation through President John Taylor; Church Historians Office; June 25, 1882.

Question: Is the law of Celestial Marriage a law given to this nation or to the world?

Answer: No, in no other sense than as the Gospel is given, and in accordance with the laws thereof. So far as it is made known unto them as the Gospel is made known unto them and is a part of the New and Everlasting Covenant; and it is only those who receive the Gospel that are able to, or capable of, entering into this Covenant. (p. 2) Have I not said through my servant, Joseph, that "all Kingdoms are governed by law," and if they receive not the law of My Gospel they cannot participate in the blessings of celestial marriage, which pertains to my elect.

No person, or people, or nation can enter into the principle of celestial marriage unless they come in by me, saith the Lord, and obey the law of my Gospel through the medium of him who is appointed unto this power, as made known unto my people through my servant, Joseph, in a revelation on "The eternity of the marriage covenant, including plurality of wives." * * *

You are not now sent to proclaim this principle to the United States, nor the world; nor to urge it upon them. It is not for them as a nation, or nations, only as many as accept the law of my Gospel and are governed thereby. Behold, if you were to preach this principle unto them and they said, "We accept it," Could you then administer it unto them? Verily, I say unto you, Nay. Have I not said, "Behold, mine house is a house of order, saith the Lord

God, and not a house of confusion."

186. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 24:40-46; President George Q. Cannon; Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; Sunday, June 25, 1882.

As I have repeatedly said, we believe in marriage, we have opened the door in that direction, and we say to the sexes marry; but we close the door in the other direction, and say, you shall not commit adultery, you shall not seduce, defile, prostitute or lead astray innocent beings; if you do, and we had the power, we would punish you. It seems like a paradox that those who do that which is according to their religion should be punished, while those who trample upon their religion should go free. And yet this is really true. All that we can be accused of is, we have embodied in our religion practices that belonged to the Patriarchs, which we believe, and so declare, God has revealed to us, for the purposes of salvation and of producing greater purity and of checking the flood of vice that is sweeping through the land and sapping the foundation of this nation and all the nations of Christendom. We have adopted the principle of plural marriage as part of our religion. We have not led women astray, we have protected them. We have not coerced them or used violence, but have thrown around them a shield of protection, and at the same time have left them to exercise the fullest liberty and the most extensive right of free choice in every respect. But this is a sin; this shocks, we are told, the moral sense of the nation. While, on the other hand, there are communities who say they do not believe in adultery or in seduction--that is, their religion teaches them that these things are wrong; but many of whose members practice these crimes, and yet they pass along unnoticed and undisturbed. * * * (P. 45) Government has the right, and owes it to its citizens, to protect them in their rights--to protect their live, to protect their property, to protect them in all their civil rights and in their religious rights also, and to prevent others from doing them violence. Beyond this it should not go. And they call our system of marriage, bigamy. Such confusion of terms! The essence of the crime of bigamy is that a man, already married to one wife, clandestinely marries another. Both women are wronged and deceived; the first by his marrying a second time during her lifetime; the second by his concealment of the fact that he already has a living wife. In the anxiety to attach odium to our system of marriage, our enemies call it bigamy, ignoring the fact that, according to our rules, a man who has one wife does not take another wife without the consent of the first wife; no advantage is taken of her by keeping her in ignorance. The new relationship has been entered into by common consent. There is no element of crime about this--that is, of the crime of bigamy. It is, as I have said the concealment that makes it a crime; it is the fact that both women are deceived and wronged by the act of the man. And such a man ought to be punished. That which has been done has been done in the face of high heaven, in the light of day, believing, as we did, that it would be the means of preserving this community in purity, that if every means were used to provide for marriage there would be no margin of unmarried women left for lust to prey upon.

Men have said to me: "Mr. Cannon, we cannot understand why it is that women will consent to such arrangements."

"My dear sirs," I have said, "do you not think that the ladies who occupy questionable relationships to gentlemen in this city (Washington) would be very glad to have that relationship sanctified by marriage; do you think they would object to it? Would any true woman, if she loved a man, put herself in such a false position in society, and yet not marry him if she could do so honorably? Which relation would (p. 46) be the better and more honorable?"

I do not wish to convey the idea that plural marriage can be universal. In the very nature of things as I have often said, it is impossible; * * *

Besides all this, it should be borne in mind, that God did not give this revelation and commandment to us to urge upon the world for its practice.

Free Agency; Lord as supreme ruler

"Verily, thus saith the Lord, I have instituted my Kingdom and Laws, with the Keys and power thereof, and have appointed you as my spokesmen and my Constitution, with President John Taylor at your head, whom I have appointed to my Church and my Kingdom as Prophet, Seer and Revelator unto my Church and unto my Kingdom, and to preside over my Church, and over my Kingdom, and to be my mouthpiece unto my Church and unto my Kingdom, and I will honor him, and he shall speak forth the words that I will reveal unto him from time to time by the whisperings of my Spirit, by the revelation of my will and my word, or by mine own voice, as I will, saith the Lord; and ye shall listen to his words as my words, saith the Lord Your God.

Thus saith the Lord God who rules in the heavens above and in the earth beneath, I have introduced my Kingdom and my Government, even the Kingdom of God, that my servants have here before prophesied of, and that I taught my disciples to pray for, saying, "Thy Kingdom Come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven", for the establishment of my rule, for the introduction of my law, for the protection of my Church, and for the maintenance, promulgation and protection of Civil and religious liberty in this nation and throughout the world; and all men of every nation, color and Creed shall yet be protected and shielded thereby; and every nation and Kindred, and people, and tongue shall yet bow the Knee to me,and acknowledge me to be Ahman Christ, to the glory of God the Father. And my law, and my rule, and my dominion shall extend over the whole earth, and no one shall stay my or question my authority; for I rule by right in the heavens above, and in the earth; and my right, and my rule, and my dominion shall yet be Known and extended to all people. And now, behold, I speak unto you through my Servant John, whom you have acknowledged, and shall acknowledge as my spokesman:

Thus saith the Lord God, the Maker of heaven and earth, the Ruler of the Universe, whose right it is to rule in the heavens above, and in the earth beneath, behold, I raised up my servant, Joseph Smith, to introduce my Gospel, and to build up my Church, and established my Kingdom on the earth; and I gave unto him Wisdom, and Knowledge and revelation, and intelligence pertaining to the past, the present, and the future, even to that extent which was not known among men; and I endowed him with power from on high, and conferred upon him the Priesthood of Aaron, and also the Priesthood of Melchisidek [sic], which is after the order of the Son of God, even the holiest of all, and after the power of an endless life, and administereth forever in this world and the World to come. He was called and ordained to his office before the World was. He was called by me; and empowered by me, and sustained by me to introduce and establish my Church and Kingdom upon the earth; and to be a Prophet, Seer, and Revelator to my Church and Kingdom, and to be a King and Ruler over Israel. He was slain for the testimony of Jesus and for the word of God; but he yet lives, and is with me where I am.

And now I speak unto you who are members of this Council and of my Kingdom, and I say unto you, as I said unto my disciples of old, Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you. I called you by my servant Joseph, and by my servant Brigham, and by my servant John. You did not teach and instruct me; but I have taught and instructed you, and organized you according to my eternal laws. Ye are my Constitution, and I am your God; and I will be acknowledged; and my will and my word, and my law shall bear rule in my Kingdom, saith the Lord. If it does not, then it is not my Kingdom, and then are ye not my spokesmen; for if it is by the wisdom of man, by the intelligence of man; and under the direction of man; then it is a Kingdom of man, and is not of me, and I will not acknowledge it, saith the Lord God! Have I not instructed you in all that you know, and that this Kingdom organized and directed by revelation from me? Is it not called the Kingdom of God? If, therefore, it is not my Kingdom, why do you make use of my name, and invoke my authority and my aid? Is this Kingdom not called, "The Kingdom of God, and His laws, with the Keys and power thereof, and judgment in the hands of his servants, Ahman Christ."

And because I am Kind and beneficent to all peoples, and because I have given to man his free agency, and have always maintained that free agency among all peoples, and have treated all men alike among all nations, and made the sun to shine on the evil and the good, on the just and the unjust, and have never controlled the consciences of men; think ye, therefore, that I have no rights, and will yield up all my authority to the dictates and caprices of wicked and corrupt men? Verily, I say unto you, nay. Behold, Satan sought to take away the free agency of man in the beginning, for which cause he was thrust out of heaven, and has sought to introduce the same principles upon the earth, which principles are opposed to me, to my institutions and my laws, and to the freedom, the welfare and happiness of man, and by which principles the Government of the United States has sought to deprive my people of their free agency; and because men have been under the influence and power and dominion of Lucifer and because tyranny and oppression and evil have abounded by him, and not by me, saith the Lord your God, shall righteousness and justice, and judgment, and truth, and virtue, and holiness be forever trampled under foot? and the principles of tyranny, oppression and misrule, and anarchy, deception, and fraud forever prevail? Verily, I say unto you nay; and for this Cause have I introduced my Church and my Kingdom, that pure and righteous principles might be inculcated, and in and by his free agency yield a willing obedience to my law; for after this testimony and the rejection thereof, I will sweep the earth of evil doers as with the bosom of destruction; for this is my right, and while man has his free agency, judgment belongs to me, saith the Lord; And I will Come out of my hiding place and vex the nations of the earth because of their iniquities, their misrule, their tyranny, their oppression, their Corruption, their murders, their adulteries and fornications and all their abominations; and because my servant Joseph, whose soul was pained because of their cruelties and oppression, the injustice, fraud and Corruption, and the inhumanity of men, proclaimed himself the advocate of human rights, the advocate of liberty, and the friend of man; and because, according to my eternal decrees, the free agency of man should be guaranteed to all men, I moved upon him to introduce into my Kingdom Certain parties not in my Church, for the purpose of exhibiting unto my Kingdom that I would still maintain the free agency of man, and that I hold inviolate that principle, and will still maintain it to the end. Think ye, therefore, that because they are thus admitted to a share in my government and my laws that they shall be permitted to break their covenants, violate their obligations, and reject me and my laws and authority, and seek to overthrow the Kingdom of God, and deprive my people who are Contending for freedom and who shall yet maintain it, of their agency, and of my laws? Verily, I say unto you nay. They may be admitted to the right of representation in the manner appointed, after subscribing to my Covenants and Commandments, and have a full and free opportunity of presenting their views, interests and principles, and enjoying all the freedom and rights of this Council; but they shall acknowledge me and my laws in this Council, saith the Lord God; for my people's rights and immunities and free agency shall be acknowledged as well as those of all other people, and my laws and government shall be sustained, or I will not acknowledge you, saith the Lord. I have invested you with the Keys and power of my Kingdom and they cannot be bartered away to others. Shall all men be free? Yes, free to do right, free to express their sentiments and opinions, and have a full, fair and free representation; but no man shall violate his covenants, pervert my laws, subvert others. free agency, and trample upon mine authority in this Council, saith the Lord your God. Again, I say unto you as I said before, Henceforth, do as I shall Command you, saith the Lord Your God. Even so, Amen.

King of Kings and Lord of Lords

"Am I not King of Kings and Lord of Lords? Do I not rule in the heavens above and in the earth beneath, as I will, saith the Lord? And though men do not acknowledge me yet do I control them; and I will Control them according to my will and purpose; and I will make use of the Kings of the earth, and the rulers and powers of the earth to accomplish my purposes, saith the Lord God your Redeemer, and none shall stay my hand. And I will build up my Kingdom as I have heretofore decreed and made Known through the mouth of mine holy Prophets, so far as they have declared my purposes pertaining thereto; and I have many other things to make Known and to proclaim relative to my Church and to my Kingdom, and to the building up of my Zion on the earth.

Behold, you are my Kingdom, and rulers in my Kingdom and then you are also many of you, rulers in my Church according to your ordinations therein. For are you not of the First Presidency, and of the Twelve Apostles, and some Presidents of Stakes, and some Bishops, and some High Priests and some Seventies and Elders therein? And are ye not all of my Church and belong to my holy Priesthood? And then, are ye not all of my kingdom, and do you not belong to my Kingdom, and are ye not the representatives thereof, even my Constitution? And am I not your God, even your Redeemer and your King? Behold, I have told you to do as I command you, and have I not a right to dictate in the affairs of my Kingdom, and is it not incumbent upon you to obey me as your Lord, your lawgiver and your King? Behold, thus saith the Lord, 1 will be obeyed by my Council, and if they do no acknowledge me, I will not acknowledge them, saith the Lord of hosts, the God and King of the whole earth.

Speaking of my Church, Behold I establish my Church that I might reveal unto them my word, and my will and the law of the Gospel, and the order of the Holy Priesthood, and I set in order my Priesthood, even the Aaronic and Melchisidek [sic], and I have sent forth mine Elders to the world to preach this Gospel of the Kingdom to all people, and to gather mine elect from among all nations, that a people might be prepared through my Gospel, through the manifestation of my Spirit, even the Spirit of Truth, the Gift of the Holy Ghost, the Comforter, and through the teachings of my holy Priesthood and the revelations of my Will, to comprehend the law of my Gospel, to be one with each other, and to be one with me as I am one with the Father, to Comprehend and obey the principles of righteousness, virtue and holiness, purity, and the love and fear of God, and to assist in building my Zion unto me, saith the Lord of hosts, and to prepare for the salvation and redemption of the world, even the living and the dead.

And, again, it required this Gospel, this Priesthood, this revelation, this unity, this Spirit, to introduce the Kingdom of God, that the will of God might be done on earth as it is done in heaven.

1 rule now among the nations but not by their Consent, and the rulers of the earth do not Know me or my law, nor recognize my authority. They have their free agency and use it; so have also my people, and they use their agency through my Gospel to serve me, to obey my law and to build up my Church and Kingdom. For outside of my Church there is no people on the earth who will listen to my law, and if there not be people who would listen to my law, how could I have a Kingdom, and how could I be their ruler? I have established my Kingdom to be a shield and protection to my Church, to learn and comprehend my law, and to carry out my purposes, that my will may be done on earth as it is done in heaven, the Church through the law and Spirit of the Gospel to preserve the virtue and purity of my Kingdom; and the Kingdom to preserve and protect the Church from the aggressions of the wicked and ungodly. And behold, I do not want my own will, but the will of my Father; the same is my Father and my God, and your Father and your God, and your Father and your God, and we are one, I in Him, and you in me. Are I and my Father with the Church? Yes. Are we not also with the Kingdom? Yes. Am I not your God, your Ahman Christ? You so acknowledge me. My Father is King of Kings and Lord of Lords. I rule as my Father directs me, and if ye rule and direct according to my will, under the direction of my servant who is your president and head, are we not one, and is it not the rule and government of God?

And any Kingdom, or government, or dominion that is not under my direction, and does not acknowledge me I will not acknowledge, saith the Lord of hosts; and if they fight against me and my laws, and my Church, and my Kingdom, they shall be overthrown in mine own due time, for I have so decreed, Even so, Amen."

189. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 23:240-241; President John Taylor; Ephraim, San Pete County; Sunday, August 20, 1882.

Some people tell us we ought to proclaim polygamy. We have no such mission. Further, if we were to proclaim the principle that they call polygamy, they could not obey it. We believe in celestial marriage, in celestial covenants, in men and women being united for time and for all eternity. Are (P. 241) we going to suffer a surrender of this point? No, never! No, never! We intend to be true to our covenants in time and in the eternities to come. They call it bigamy. What is a bigamist? A man who marries one wife promising to be true to her, and afterwards representing himself as an honorable man, marries another one and deceives both of them. He is a breaker of covenants. A polygamist does not do that. Abraham, Jacob, David and Solomon did not perpetrate such infamies. Nor do we. Bigamy is an institution of a perverted Christianity and not ours. We make covenants with our wives, and we will be true to them and they to us in time and in eternity. Supposing, I say, we were to preach this doctrine to the world, and tell them what David and Abraham and the Patriarchs did, and they were to say we accept it; could we administer in it? No, and they could not enter into this thing. There are only a few in Utah associated with this matter, comparatively, and those none but the most honorable, pure and virtuous, yet our nation has seen fit to condemn everybody, the non-polygamists as well as the polygamists, because the non-polygamists happen to live in the same place as the polygamists.

190. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 23:294-301; Erastus Snow; Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; Saturday morning, October 7, 1882.

I believe it was in 1856, that the Republican party was organized; at their first convention held in Philadelphia, they incorporated in their platform the noted plank, "the two relics of barbarism--slavery and polygamy," and pledged themselves to rid the country of these two evils. * * * The authors of this republican plank have taken polygamy as taught by the Latter-day Saints as being synonymous with the polygamy of oriental nations, and the bigamy of the Christian nations; this is clearly shown in the law of 1862, passed by the Congress of the United States, designed for its suppression, the term bigamy being used instead of polygamy. The offence was made to consist in (p. 295) the marriage rather than in the cohabitation; . . . when in reality there was very little, if any, similarity. The bigamy of England and the American States consists in crime and deception, the betraying and wronging of two innocent and unsuspecting women. While the corrupt, lying, deceiving, unprincipled husband was feigning virtue and integrity, both violating their confidence by lying and deception, and by violating all the duties and obligations of marriage--the duties that the father owes to the wife and children and also to the State. But the fact that our lawmakers took this view of our social system when they passed this law, shows how poorly and ill they comprehend the system of marriage as taught by the Latter-day Saints. The republican party had this view of the case, no doubt, when they first announced this noted plank. * * *

Anciently, when God's laws provided a government for ancient Israel, marriage was honorable both plural and single, as all students of the Bible know full well. At the same time adultery was punished by death. * * * But our Christian statesmen are offering premiums, for licentiousness, and are seeking to make odious the honor and purity of marriage. * * *

(p. 297) For it is known to all students of history . . . that polygamy has been the rule-- . . . polygamy has existed, and has been recognized to a greater or less extent, so far as its practice was consistent with the conditions of the people of the various nations, it has been the rule from time immemorial; and there has never been a time in the history of the world when it has not been common and recognized among the nations of the earth, with the exception of modern Europe. * * *

(P. 298) It is sheer sophistry on the part of our sectarian friends and groundless assertion that monogamy, to the exclusion of polygamy was introduced into Europe by the primitive Christians; for that system of marriage was introduced prior to the establishment of Christianity in Europe, by the Roman empire, and became the form of marriage in early times when, as history alleges, men were more numerous in Rome than women. And the earlier settlers of Rome were political refugees, renegades and scapegraces from surrounding nations, and were under the necessity of making raids upon their neighbors to procure wives; and it became a matter of necessity and for mutual protection, to limit the number to one. It was the Roman state that limited the number of a man's wives to one, and not the Christian church; and this being done, it was perpetuated. And history teaches us that under that monogamic system, Rome became the most licentious of all nations. * * *

(p. 301) And so did the Congress of the United States know what they were doing in passing the Edmunds Bill, for when an amendment was introduced making that proposed law binding upon adulterers, it was quickly disposed of; and one gentleman who was sitting near Captain Hooper at the time, remarked, that if that were to carry, it would leave the House of Representatives without a quorum. Such an amendment, of course, did not express the mind of our American statesmen and that of hireling priests; they needed adulterers, whoremongers, and fornicators, to carry out the vote in Utah over the Mormons. * * * It is not morality they seek; it is not public purity they wish to maintain. The decision of the heavens is already passed upon them, and they will go down like a mighty millstone cast into the depths of the sea. They cannot hold the reigns of government of this American soil, only to work out their own destruction.

191. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 23:278-280; President George Q. Cannon; Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; Sunday, October 8, 1882.

Now, I want to say for myself personally, if I had not obeyed that command of God, concerning plural marriage, I believe that I would have been damned. That is my position; but I do not judge any other man. I am so organized that I could have lived, if necessary, and God had commanded it, as a Catholic priest is supposed to live, without knowing woman. I believe that with God's help I could have done that all the days of my life, if it had been necessary for my salvation; but, on the contrary, when I had taken one wife, after I had returned from one of my missions, a spirit rested upon me that (p. 279) I could not resist; I felt that I should be damned if I refused or neglected to obey that law of God. It was not prompted by any improper feeling; it was not prompted by a feeling of lust, or a desire for women; but it was an overpowering anxiety to obey the commandments of God. * * * I knew that God had commanded me, whether He had other men or not; and I did obey it because of this overpowering command, believing, as I have said, that I should be damned if I did not. * * * The Prophet Joseph Smith said, and so taught, when he first communicated this principle, that there had come a time in the history of God's people, when if they did not obey that law, all progress would cease, that the kingdom could go no further. And He commanded the servants of God, His associates, the Apostles, to obey it, under penalty of losing the Spirit of God, under penalty of their ceasing to progress in the work of our God. * * * There is no other (p. 280) course for me; that is the only alternative before me. To be untrue to my God, to be untrue to the revelations of my God; to be untrue to the convictions of my nature; to be untrue to the women--wives--whom I have covenanted for time and all eternity to love, to revere and to protect, and to my children, children borne to me by those women--to be untrue to these, or to endure all the consequences that man may inflict upon me for disobeying laws which are framed against my religion. I am willing to trust to my God.

On the 27th of the following September [1882] they met in council to consider fully all the vacancies in the Quorum of the Twelve and the First Council of Seventies. It was decided to leave the nominations entirely to the President of the Church, which has been largely the custom from the beginning.

On the 13th of October the First Presidency and the Twelve met to receive the revelation of God to President Taylor, in which the duties of the Priesthood and of the Saints were set forth. In the same revelation appears the call of President George Teasdale of the Juab Stake, and President Heber J. Grant of the Tooele Stake to the vacancies in the Quorum of the Twelve. Elder Seymour B. Young was called to fill the vacancy in the First Council of Seventies and requested to keep the whole law of God as a preparation for his new calling and labors.

Concerning the Patriarchal Order of Marriage, President Taylor said: .If we do not embrace that principle soon, the keys will be turned against us. If we do not keep the same law that our Heavenly Father has kept, we cannot go with Him. A man obeying a lower law is not qualified to preside over those who keep a higher law.' In harmony with the remarks of President Taylor, Elder Woodruff observed: .The reason why the Church and Kingdom of God cannot advance without the Patriarchal Order of Marriage is that it belongs to this dispensation just as baptism for the dead does, or any law or ordinance that belongs to a dispensation. Without it the Church cannot progress. The leading men of Israel who are presiding over stakes will have to obey the law of Abraham, or they will have to resign.'

You may appoint Seymour B. Young to fill up the vacancy in the presiding quorum of Seventies, if he will conform to my law; for it is not meet that men who will not abide my law shall preside over my priesthood.

Heber J. Grant and George Teasdale to fill vacancies in Twelve; instructions to priesthood leaders--

"Thus saith the Lord to the Twelve, and to the Priesthoods and People of my Church: Let my servants George Teasdale and Heber J. Grant be appointed to fill the vacancies in the Twelve that you may be fully organized and prepared for the labors devolving upon you, for you have a great work to perform, and there proceed to fill up the presiding Quorums of Seventies, and assist in organizing that body of my Priesthood who are your co-laborers in the ministry. You may appoint Seymour B. Young to fill up the vacancy in the presiding Quorum of Seventies, if he will conform to my law; for it is not meet that men who will not abide my law shall preside over my Priesthood; and, then proceed forthwith and call to your aid any assistance that you may require from among the Seventies to assist you in your labors in introducing and maintaining the Gospel, among the Lamanites throughout the land. And then let High Priests be selected under the direction of the First Presidency to preside over the various organizations that shall exist among this people; that these who receive the Gospel may be taught in the doctrines of my Church and in the ordinances and laws thereof, and also in the things pertaining to my Zion and my Kingdom, saith the Lord, that they may be one with you in my Church and in my Kingdom.

Let the Presidency of my Church be one in all things; and let the Twelve also be one in all things; and let them all be one with me and am one with the Father.

And let the High Priests organize themselves, and purify themselves, and this Priesthood and People of the Stakes over which they preside, and organize the Priesthood in the various stakes according to my law, in all the various departments thereof, in the High Councils, in the Elders Quorums, and in the Bishops and their Councils, and in the Quorums of Priests, Teachers and Deacons, that every Quorum may be fully organized according to the order of my Church; and, then, let them inquire into the standing and fellowship of all that hold any Holy Priesthood in their several Stakes; and if they find these that are unworthy let them remove them, except they repent; for my Priesthood, whom I have called and whom I have sustained and honored, shall honor one [me] and obey my laws, and the laws of my Holy Priesthood, or they shall not be considered worthy to hold my Priesthood, saith the Lord. And let my Priesthood humble themselves before me, and seek not their own will but my will; for if my Priesthood whom I have chosen, and called, and endowed with the Spirit and gifts of their several callings, and with the powers thereof do not acknowledge me I will not acknowledge them, saith the Lord; for I will be honored and obeyed by my Priesthood. And, then, I call upon my Priesthood, and upon all of my people to repent of their sins and shortcomings, of their covetousness, and pride, and self will, and of all their iniquities wherein they sin against me; and to seek with all humility to fulfill my law, as my Priesthood, my Saints, and my people; and I call upon the heads of families to put their houses in order according to the law of God, and attend to the various duties and responsibilities appointed therewith, and to purify themselves before me, and to purge out iniquity from their households. And I will bless and be with you, saith the Lord, and ye shall gather together in your holy places wherein ye assemble to call upon [me], and ye shall ask for such things as are right, and I will hear your prayers, and my Spirit and power shall be with you, and my blessing shall be upon you, upon your families, your dwellings, and your households, upon your flocks and herds and fields, your orchards and vineyards, and upon all that pertain to you; and you shall be my people and I will be your God; and your enemies shall not have dominion over you, for I will preserve you and confound them, saith the Lord, and they shall not have power nor dominion over you; for my word shall go forth, and my work shall be accomplished, and my Zion shall be established, and my rule and my power and my dominion shall prevail among my people, and all nations shall yet acknowledge me. Even so, Amen.

At a Meeting of the First Presidency, Apostles & Pres of stakes held at Pres Taylor's office S L City Oct 14, 1882 at 10 a.m.

The Revelation given through Prest John Taylor respecting Priesthood read to the Apostles--was read to the Meeting.

President Taylor referring to the Revelation upon Celestial Marriage said when this principle was first made known to us by Joseph Smith, it was in Nauvoo, and many of you will remember the place very well. We were assembled in the office over the brick store, there being present Bro B. Young Heber C Kimball, Orson Hyde & myself. Bro Willard Richards may have been present too, but I am not positive. Upon that occasion Joseph Smith laid before us there the whole principle pertaining to this doctrine and we believed it. Having done this Joseph felt, as he said that he had got a big burden rolled off his shoulders. He felt the responsibility of that matter resting heavily upon him. Notwithstanding, however, that we received the principle & believed it, yet we were in no great hurry to enter into it. Sometime after this, I was riding out of Nauvoo when I met Joseph coming up. We met in the old graveyard--if any of you remember the place--and I moved to Bro Joseph and he moved to me, 1 think we were both on horseback, but of that I am not sure. Said he "Prest Taylor stop" and I stopped. He looked me right in the eye, and spoke with all the solemnity that I ever heard him speak, said he: "Brother Taylor, that principle has got to be complied with forthwith; and if not, the Key will be turned." He had told us before that if this principle was not entered into, the Kingdom could not go one step further. Well now that was a singular kind of a statement to make. Why? We had not made covenants that would reach unto [second page] eternity. We were married to our wives only until Death, and he said that if we could not enter into covenants that the Gods had entered into in the eternal worlds of what use was our religion? We had got, it is true, the first principles of the Gospel--doctrines that were very good to live by, but would not go high enough to be resurrected by. And in regard to the attitude of people against us now, why we have nothing of that kind to give up or sacrifice. No, they may chop us into a thousand pieces, any one among us, we could not do it, and we would not do it. We[ll] I though[t] I would refer to this at the present time. Afterwards, I had the principle made manifest to me definitely and positively so that I knew, and I have never had a particle of doubt since.

The 3 & 4 verses of the Revelation on the Eternity of the Marriage

Covenant, See 132 D & C, having been read Pres Taylor said Now the question arises, would arise are men--The President of the Church, The Twelve & others--men holding holy Priesthood who do not enter into this order, fit to preside over the Priesthood and why. If a man is not going to obtain an exaltation in the celestial Kingdom of God is he fit to preside over the priesthood that are expected to go there? These are questions for us to ask.

The 5 & 6th verses were read. Pres Taylor said These are very important things and they bring these matters home to us. It is proper that we should comprehend these things. We are not at liberty to observe such principles as God imparts as pleases ourselves [and] to reject the others & then claim blessings from the hand of God.

Thursday June 21/83 [sic] The Council house was burned this morning commencing at 1215 o'clock.

Sunday Oct 8/82 Elder Erastus Snow testified that Joseph Smith was the sixth angel spoken of in the Revelations; It was so recorded in the Kirtland Temple.

A man obeying a lower law is not qualified to preside over those who keep a higher law. E[rastus] Snow said that Joseph Smith said that the parable that Jesus spoke of that the man who had one talent & hid it in the Earth was the man who had but one wife & would not take another would have taken from him & given to one who had more.

Dear Sister:

In regard to the question which you have proposed pertaining to plurality of wives you say: "According to my understanding the revelation, I thought it was sealing, but some say it is plurality." Permit me to say that it is both, you will find that the revelation is on the Eternity of the Marriage Covenant, including Plurality of Wives, and the first paragraph reads: "Verily thus saith the Lord, unto you my Servant Joseph, that inasmuch as you have inquired of my hand, to know and understand wherein I the Lord justified my Servants, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; as also my servants Moses, David and Solomon, as touching the principle and doctrine of their having many wives and concubines." The question that was asked was evidently in relation to those people, and especially in relation to the plurality of wives. In the 4th verse it is said: "For behold, I reveal unto you a new and everlasting covenant, and if ye abide not that covenant, then are ye damned, for no one can reject this covenant and be permitted to enter into my glory. For all who will have a blessing at my hand shall abide the law which was appointed for that blessing, and the conditions thereof as were instituted from before the foundation of the world, and as pertaining to the New and Everlasting covenant, it was instituted for the fullness of my glory, and he that receiveth a fullness thereof, must and shall abide my law, or he shall be damned, saith the Lord God." You ask: "If a man and woman go to the House of the Lord and get their endowments and are sealed for time and all eternity, and they two live together quietly and peaceably and teach their children the principles of life and salvation, and bring them up in the fear of the Lord, will they gain an exaltation in the Celestial Kingdom with a continuation of their seed or not? I have been sealed to my husband, and my patriarchal blessing says: "I shall raise children in the Millennium," and I would like to live so as to gain that blessing. I hear men say that one cannot gain an exaltation and a continuation of their seed in the eternal world unless they take more wives than one, and I am anxious to understand it." In fulfilling this, you have entered so far into the everlasting covenant, which is so far acceptable before the Lord, but in regard to the Law, it is further said, verse 32: "Go ye, therefore, and do the works of Abraham." The question is: What is the Law? The 34th verse says: "God commanded Abraham, and Sarah gave Hagar to Abraham to wife. And why did she do it? Because this was the law; and from Hagar sprang many people. This, therefore, was fulfilling, among other things, the promises." In the 37th verse it is said: "Abraham received concubines, and they bore him children, and it was accounted unto him for righteousness, because they were given unto him, and he abode my law: as Isaac also, and Jacob did not other things than that which they were commanded." "David also received many wives and concubines, as also Solomon and Moses my servants; as also many others of my servants, from the beginning of creation until this time; and in nothing did they sin, save in those things which they received not of me." 38th verse.

You seem desirous to take part of the Law and reject the other part, but it is plainly stated as above quoted, that they were "to do the works of Abraham, and that if ye enter not into my law, ye cannot receive the promise of my Father which was made unto Abraham." It is further said: "God commanded Abraham, and Sarah gave Hagar to Abraham to wife, and that the reason why she did it was because it was the Law." It is evident therefore from the whole of the above that other wives were included in this law as well as the one.

You further inquire: "What is the difference in a man having dead wives sealed to him than living women, so that he has one living wife; will they gain as great an exaltation if they have dead women sealed to them as they would if they had living women sealed to them?" This law pertains more particularly to the living, and on this point I refer you to verse 52 wherein it is said: "And let mine handmaid, Emma Smith, receive all those that have been given unto my servant Joseph, and who are virtuous and pure before me; and those who are not pure, and have said they were pure, shall be destroyed, saith the Lord God," and in the 64th verse: "And again, verily, verily, I say unto you, if any man have a wife, who holds the keys of this power, and he teaches unto her this law of my priesthood, as pertaining to these things, then shall she believe and administer unto him, or she shall be destroyed, saith the Lord your God; for I will destroy her; for I will magnify my name upon all those who receive and abide in my law." "This is the law of Sarah, who administered unto Abraham according to the law, when I commanded Abraham to take Hagar to wife." You seem to be desirous to having dead women sealed to your husband instead of living ones, where as the law pertaining to these matters does not put things in that shape. We read that the Lord commanded, and Sarah gave Hagar to Abraham to wife, and it is for wives as well as husbands to perform their part in relation to these matters as explicitly stated in verse 64 wherein it is said: "If he teaches unto her the law of my priesthood as pertaining to these things, then shall she believe and administer unto him, or she shall be destroyed, saith the Lord your God." Circumstances do not always place it in the power of man to enter into this covenant and these matters are left with the Lord to adjust, but no man or woman has authority to point out any other way than that which the Lord has appointed.

Respectfully your Brother in the Gospel, /s/ John Taylor

Prest. Smoot then made brief explanations in regard to the progress of the Tabernacle.

Prest. W. Woodruff then occupied the stand reading from the Doc. and Covt. relative to the sealing ordinance.

followed by Prest. Jos. F. Smith who gave a history of the coming forth of the Revelation on Celestial Marriage; and said as follows. Bro Woodruff has read a portion of a Revelation written in 1843, known as the Revelation on Celestial Marriage which however was revealed in 1831 one thousand eight hundred and thirty one. but never written untill July 12, 1843 but was not then given as a commandment to the Church, but was given for a specific purpose and was not presented to the Church untill 1852 or 3. it was then first read to the Church in Conference assembled up to that time it was not in force unto the whole church but only to those to whom it was given but since 1852 it has been binding upon the whole Church: there were many speculations in regard to its real meaning what was the duty of the Latter day Saints in regard to this Revelation and what was meant by the principles here set forth: Joseph received it in 1831 but he was told by the Lord that the time was not come to reveal it, and was forbidden to publish it save it be to a few. Joseph did entrust this to a few soon after 1831. Lyman E. Johnson one of the Apostles received this from Joseph, we also understand that Oliver Cowdery received it from Joseph did not know of any others that Joseph entrusted it to. L. E. Johnson testified of this to Orson Pratt as early as 1832 or a little later, and Brother Orson Pratt has left his written testimony of the facts relating to this matter: Oliver Cowdery was not so discreet in regard to this matter but in consequence of his conduct brought reproach upon the Church bringing upon the Church the accusation of fornication and polygamy - he wrote an article to stave off the impression that had been made which was published in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants which has been left out of the New Edition because it was not one of the Revelations in latter times Joseph Smith was commanded to take wives, he hesitated and postponed it, seeing the consequences and the trouble that it would bring and he shrank from the responsibility, but he prayed to the Lord for it to pass as Jesus did, but Jesus had to drink it to the dregs so it was with Joseph Smith, the Lord had revealed it to him, and said now is the time for it to be practised but it was not untill he had been told he must practice it or be destroyed that he made the attempt - in 1841 he had wives sealed to him - from that time untill his death he had wives sealed unto him - Emma, his wife yielded but it was not without considerable argument that she consented and with her own hand gave to Joseph Smith four wives in this new and everlasting covenant their names are Emily and Eliza Partridge and Sarah and Maria Lawrence the latter two being sisters of Henry Lawrence of Salt Lake City and I have their testimony and of the witnesses of the Ceremony of their marriage - not withstanding this young Joseph (the son of the Prophet) has published to the world that his Father never had a plurality of wives. I do not think that Emma (Joseph Smiths wife) ever made such an assertion and if she did she lied. Soon after the marriage of Joseph to the four ladies mentioned Emma repented of having given them to Joseph and told Joseph that if [he] would not give them up, she would bring him up before the law and became very bitter about this time under this threat and on account of the determined manner of Emma, Joseph went to his brother Hyrum and had a talk with him about it. Hyrum told Joseph if you will write the Revelation I will take it and go and see Emma for I can convince her that it is true. Joseph smiled at Hyrum saying you do not know Emma as well as I do - but Hyrum said he still had faith that he could do as he said, and to satisfy his brother Hyrum, Joseph caused the Revelation to be written on the 12th July 1843. Joseph with Hyrum went into the office and Joseph commanded

Wm. Clayton to write as he should dictate. Joseph was asked by Hyrum to get the Urim and Thummim. Joseph said he knew it from beginning to end, he then dictated it word for word to Wm. Clayton as it is now in the Doctrine and Covenants it was written for this purpose at Hyrums suggestion, after it was done, Joseph said there that is enough for the present, but I have a great deal more, which would be given hereafter; Hyrum went to Emma and returned without making any impression upon her; some two or three days after this Emma getting so violent Joseph burned the Revelation to pacify her saying "there that is the last of it" and for the rest of the time he was more or less in her power, and all he done hereafter in relation to this law, was done in secret, unbeknown to Emma: the new and everlasting Covenant is marriage, plural marriage - men may say that with their single marriage the same promises and blessings had been granted, why cannot I attain to as much as with three or four, many question me in this manner I suppose they are afraid of Edmunds, what is the Covenant? it is the eternity of the marriage covenant, and includes a plurality of wives and takes both to make the law - the Lord leads the mind along step by step to this point - first that all covenants must be made by this power - next the eternity of the covenant reaching into Eternity after this the Lord tells us what the Law is and how he justified his servants. God commanded Abraham and Sarah gave Hagar to Abraham because this was the law ordained for the fullness and glory of God before the world was. This was the law and from Hagar sprang many nations, the Lord has said that to whom this Revelation is given, that they are eligible to this law, its blessings and its requirements - the men can only be saved by acts of Righteousness and the woman are under the same law. Joseph Smith declared that all who became heirs of God and joint heirs of Christ must obey his law or they cannot enter into the fullness and if they do not they may lose the one talent, when men are offered knowledge and they refuse it they will be dammed and there is not a man that is sealed by this priesthood but covenants to enter into the fullness of the law and the same with the woman she says she will observe all that pertains to the new and everlasting Covenant both are under the Covenant - and must obey if they wish to enter into a continuation of the lives or of the seeds.

The choir sang an anthem and the conference adjourned.

It is as Jesus said concerning the man who hid it in a napkin; he laid it carefully away, and by and by brought it out, saying, here it is as I received it, not having increased at all; in other words, we are just where we were when we started. Another one says I received two talents; and have increased to four, another says I received five talents, and now have ten; the master says to the one who hid his talent, who perhaps laid it carefully away and kept it nice, watching over it with the greatest care; or in other words, to him who did not multiply and increase, but on the contrary took pains to avoid doing so, .Take from him that which he seems to have and give to him that has ten; for he that has and improves upon that which he receives, shall receive more abundantly.'

Sunday June lOth 1883 - At a mtg in Centerville, several Apostles & all of the First Council of Seventy were present and the discussion of plural marriage came up.

"Bro. Thomas Grover testified to having heard the revelation on celestial marriage read by Hyrum Smith in the high council previous to the death of the Prophet. All of the council present excepting three accepted the doctrine, and those three soon afterwards apostatized. Bro. Nobles testified to having performed the first ceremony in celestial marriage in this generation he sealing his wife's sister to the Prophet Joseph."

204. "Historical Record", by Andrew Jensen Vol. 6: 233; President John Taylor; Quarterly Stake Conference at Centreville, Davis Co., Utah; June 11, 1883.

President George Q. Cannon delivered a thrillingly powerful discourse on the subject of plural marriage, showing that while those who had entered into that relation properly had, as a rule, been greatly blessed, men who had tampered with the other sex outside of the `marriage relation,' had wilted and gone down in every instance. Those who had embraced the doctrine were the leading men of the Church, possessing the Holy Spirit to a much more than ordinary degree. The speaker showed how the Lord had not confined His blessing to any class, or special families, but men of humble origin had been selected as his instruments to forward his purposes. It would yet transpire, he said, that God would take men out of the humbler walks of life and of them make Apostles and Prophets, who would perform mighty works in His name.

205. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 24:162-166; Erastus Snow; Parowan; Sunday afternoon, June 24, 1883.

. . . there are some whom Satan would stir to disobedience and try to make an impression upon their minds that the system of plural marriage, and those things that pertain to the sealing of men and women for time and for eternity, and the revelation which has been read in our hearing, given through the Prophet Joseph pertaining to this subject--that it was the work of man and not the work of God. We have recently had published in some of the Utah papers some letters on this subject, and one from Joseph Smith, the eldest son of the Prophet, . . . And the object . . . is to try to leave an impression upon the ignorant, those who know no better, that plural marriage was not introduced and sanctioned and practiced by his father, but that it has been an innovation of man, and does not belong to the system of religion which he believed and practiced and taught the people. * * * And so it is with some among the Latter-day Saints. They are pretty well satisfied that this doctrine of plural marriage is true, and that it was revealed through the Prophet Joseph Smith, but they would like an excuse for disavowing and rejecting it. And why so? Mainly because their minds are closed up and have not been able to comprehend the principles that are embraced in this doctrine and connected with it. Their minds are contracted and limited. * * * And touching our plural families, I will say that, with all the weaknesses that are common to frail humanity, and that manifest themselves in our midst--(p. 163) the men who enter into this order in the sincerity of their hearts and with devotion to God, and the women who also enter into it in the love of the truth and in the earnestness of their souls, fearing God and desiring to do His will--that with all the weaknesses that manifest themselves, I say there is treble the genuine comfort and happiness in those families who enter into this order and abide in it, than is to be found in the same number of families in monogamy in this Church, to say nothing of the Gentile world. * * *

Well, now, in regard to those who are seeking for an excuse to reject plural marriage and are inclined to receive the statement of young Joseph Smith [III], I wish to say that I know that Joseph Smith [III] is entirely ignorant of what he says, or he is a liar; for I know that he does not speak the truth. How far his mind has been blinded or how he has been influenced to look upon these things as correct, or to think that (p. 164) he speaks the truth, I do not know. * * *

Now, when the Lord raised up the Prophet Joseph to lay the foundation of this Church, He found monogamy instead of polygamy to be the rule of Christendom, and He enjoined, in the early revelations to this Church, that every woman cleave unto her husband, and that every man cleave unto his wife and none else, saying that he that looketh upon a woman to lust after her who is not his wife hath committed adultery already with her in his heart. This was the law governing Christendom which had been inherited by the Gentiles for ages past, and introduced among the Roman Empire and perpetuated by the Roman church and the Protestant churches that had sprung out of her, and the Lord in the early history of this people continued this order of things, but revealed unto the Prophet Joseph, nevertheless, that the time would come when He would require His people to enter into plural marriage as He did (p. 165) Abraham and the prophets of old, to bring about His purposes in the latter days. Joseph revealed this unto some of the first Elders of the Church, taking care to enjoin them that they must preserve these things in their own hearts; that the time had not yet come when the Lord required His people to enter into this order, but the time would come when He would require them to do so. This was made manifest in the early stages of this Church, but not until 1843 was this law committed to writing and given to the people. This revelation we find in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants.

Now, Joseph--l refer now to the young man that is alive and who was a mere boy at his father's death, and who with his mother and her children remained behind, though his mother did know for herself that her husband did teach and practice this order of marriage, yet she was not willing to own or acknowledge it to her children, and her children, the oldest of which, as I have said, was only eleven years old when his father was murdered--were studiously kept ignorant of the facts of the case as far as she was concerned, and therefore we can make allowance and excuse in part for what they assert. But there are great numbers that I can call to mind who know for themselves that the Prophet Joseph did receive from the Lord and teach this order to the first Elders of this Church, and did receive and commit to writing this revelation on the subject of plural marriage which is contained in the Doctrine and Covenants, and did teach it and did practice it, and I am one of those witnesses. I know that he taught to me as early as in the spring of 1842 what God had revealed to him on the subject; I know that he gave to me my second wife and assigned his brother Hyrum, to seal her to me; and I know that he taught this doctrine to quite a good few others--the Twelve Apostles and others of the faithful Elders of Israel--and that very many of the faithful and good women of Israel know and understand and are witnesses of these things for themselves. And we testify of these things, that God has reserved to Himself this right to command his people when it seemeth to Him good and to accomplish the object He has in view--that is, to raise up a righteous seed, a seed that will pay respect to his law and will build up Zion in the earth. And while the wicked are hardening their hearts in sin and giving themselves up to whoredoms and lust, and seeking to prevent the increase of offspring among them, God is impressing upon us the heinousness of these crimes and showing us the beauty and glory of multiplying the families of Israel. When we visit the settlements of the Saints and attend the Quarterly Conferences throughout the land, what do we hear in the reports? We hear that an average of about thirty per cent of the entire population are children under eight years of age, and another one-third between that and twenty, * * * Why, we hear that the spirit of the Gospel is in them, that faith is in them, and that they possess bright, intelligent minds that are reaching out after knowledge, and (p. 166) hearts that are grasping the things of God. It is this that causes the world to fear and tremble and this is the cause of the opposition waged against us.

206. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 24:229-231; President John Taylor; selections from his discourses in the various settlements on his trip to Bear Lake.

God has revealed, through His servant Joseph Smith, . . . the law of celestial marriage, associated with which is the principle of plural marriage. I will speak a little upon this subject. * * * I speak of it as that law given to us of God. * * * I dare not violate any law of God. And I will tell you what Joseph Smith said upon the subject. He presented this principle to the Twelve, and called upon them to obey it, and said if they did not, the kingdom of God could not go one step further. Why could it not go one step further? Because we had a religion to live by, but none that placed our associations upon eternal principles or gave us a claim upon each other in the family relations in the eternal worlds. But through this principle we could be sealed to one another through time and eternity; we could prepare ourselves for an exaltation in the Celestial Kingdom of God. It is one of the greatest blessings that ever was conferred upon the human family. It is an eternal law which has always existed in other worlds as well as in this world. ***

(p. 230) There are many people who try to excuse themselves in this matter, and who essay to do as they please, but as the Lord God liveth, He will not excuse them. He expects those who profess to be his people to carry out that law. * * *

But this was a principle that God had revealed unto us, and it must be obeyed. I had always entertained strict ideas of virtue, and I felt as a married man that this was to me, outside of this principle, an appalling thing to do. (p. 231) The idea of my going and asking a young lady to be married to me, when I had already a wife! It was a thing calculated to stir up feelings from the innermost depth of the human soul. I had always entertained the strictest regard for chastity. I had never in my life seen the time when I have known of a man deceiving a woman--and it is often done in the world, where notwithstanding the crime, the man is received into society, and the poor woman is looked upon as a pariah and an outcast--I have always looked upon such a thing as infamous, and upon such a man as a villain, and I hold to-day the same ideas. Hence, with the feelings I had entertained, nothing but a knowledge of God, and the revelations of God, and the truth of them, could have induced me to embrace such a princip[le] as this. * * *

It is for us to learn the ways of God and to place ourselves in subjection to His law. And then it is not enough for men to be married to wives and be sealed according to the order of God, they must treat them aright when they have them; they must treat them as they would treat angels of God; they must be full of kindness and mercy and long-suffering; they must provide for them and make them happy and comfortable, and take care of the families they have by them, and in this way gain the favor of God, and the respect of all honorable men. The laws of heaven must not be violated. We must keep sacred the holy covenants we have entered into.

207. Life of Wilford Woodruff, by Matthias F. Cowley, p. 542, 546-547; June-July 1883.

Concerning the Patriarchal Order of Marriage, President Taylor said: "If we do not embrace that principle soon, the keys will be turned against us. If we do not keep the same law that our Heavenly Father has kept, we cannot go with Him. A man obeying a lower law is not qualified to preside over those who keep a higher law." In harmony with the remarks of President Taylor, Elder Woodruff observed: "The reason why the Church and Kingdom of God cannot advance without the Patriarchal Order of Marriage is that it belongs to this dispensation just as baptism for the dead does, or any law or ordinance that belongs to a dispensation. Without it the Church cannot progress. The leading men of Israel who are presiding over stakes will have to obey the law of Abraham, or they will have to resign." * * *

The law of the Patriarchal Order of marriage belongs to this dispensation, and after it was revealed to the Prophet Joseph, he was commanded to receive it. If he and the people had rejected it, the Church and Kingdom of God would have advanced no further and God would have taken it from them and given it to another people. * * *

It has been said that the Patriarchal Order of Marriage has caused more sorrow to the daughters of Eve than any other principle ever revealed from Heaven to men, but this is not true. No divine principle brings trouble to those who faithfully obey it. If they who are in it have troubles it is not the fault of the principle but because of weakness and of the false traditions which surround them. The Lord never gave a law to the children of men which will give to them exaltation and glory except through the observance of that law.

Mr Smith

Dear Sir

After having asked my Father in Heaven to aid me I sit down to write a few lines as dictated by the holy Spirit. After reading the correspondence between you and L. 0. Littlefield I concluded it was the duty of some one to bear a testimony which could not be disputed finding from your Letters to Littlefield that no one of your Father's Friends had performed this duty while you were here. Now I will begin at once and tell you my own experience. My beloved Husband R. B. Thompson your Father's private (p. 2) Secretary to the end of his Mortal life Died August 27th, 1841 (I presume you will remember him) nearly Two Years after his Death your Father told me he had appeared to him several times telling him that he did not wish me to live such a lonely life and him to request your Uncle Hyrum to have me sealed to him for time he communicated this his Wife (my Sister) who by request opened the subject to me when every thing within me arose to opposition to such a step, but when your Father called and explained the subject to me I dared not refuse to obey the council lest peradventure I should be found fighting against God and especially when he told one the last time my Husband appeared to him he came with such power that it made him tremble he then went enquired of the Lord what he (p. 3) should do; the answer was go and do as my servant hath required he took an opportunity of communicating this to your Uncle Hyrum who told me that the Holy Spirit rested upon him from the Crown of his Head to the soles of his Feet The time was appointed with the consent of all parties Your Father sealed me to your Uncle Hyrum for time in my Sisters Room with a covenant to deliver me up in the Morning of the Resurection to Robert Blashel Thompson with whatever ofsping [offspring] should be of that union, at the same time counciling your Uncle to build a Room for me and have move over as soon as convenient which he did and I remained there as a Wife the same as my Sister to the day of his Death All this I am ready to testify to in the presence of God Angels and Men (p. 4) Now I assure you I have not been prompted or dictated by any Mortal being in writing to you neither does a living Soul know it but my Invalid Daughter God bless you is the sincere prayer of your true Friend

Mercy R Thompson

If you feel disposed to ask me any questions I will be pleased to answer concerning Endowments which I received under the hands of your late dear Mother by the dictation of your Father M.R.T.

209. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 24:318; Daniel H. Wells; Salt Lake Assembly Hall; Sunday, October 28, 1883.

I don't often say anything in regard to plural marriage; but there has been a great deal said about the misery of women in that order. Well, if in monogamy women do not have any trouble, if it were all serene in that order of marriage--no cause of difference of feeling or of jealousy--then there might be some cause for this hue and cry. People imagine, you know, that in a man's family where there are several wives, they must be very jealous of one another--that they must tear each other's hair and all that kind of thing. Well, as I have said, if there was never any jealousy, or any feelings of unhappiness in monogamic families, then they might say something. I have had a little experience both ways , and though not a woman, yet I am bold to bear my testimony that there is more happiness in the number of families living in plural marriage, than there is in an equal number of families in the other condition. And I speak from my own experience in regard to these matters. I think I lived as happily in monogamy as anybody, and I think, too, that I live as happily in plural marriage as anybody else.

210. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 25:21; George Teasdale, Apostle; Assembly Hall, Salt Lake City; Sunday, January 13, 1884.

I believe in plural marriage as a part of the Gospel, just as much as I believe in baptism by immersion for the remission of sins. The same Being who taught me baptism for the remission of sins, taught me plural marriage, and its necessity and glory. Can I afford to give up a single principle? I can not. If I had to give up one principle I would have to give up my religion.

* * * I bear my solemn testimony that plural marriage is as true as any principle that has been revealed from the heavens. I bear my testimony that it is a necessity, and that the Church of Christ in its fullness never existed without it. Where you have the eternity of marriage you are bound to have plural marriage; bound to; and it is one of the marks of the Church of Jesus Christ in its sealing ordinances. "Whatever you bind on earth is bound in heaven." We know how sensitive the Prophet Joseph was to introduce this principle. He knew the feeling that was against it. It had been taught from the days of heathen Rome down to the present time that a man should have but one wife, which has resulted in the prostitution of many of the fair daughters of Eve as mistresses. Here we have too much love for women to see them trampled in the dust. Here we have too much respect for unborn spirits to have them come into the world branded as bastards, illegitimate, in shame, without knowing their fathers. The children we have are legitimate. They are our own. We honor them and our wives. Our children are given unto us of God, for our wives are given to us of God. We never should have thought of practicing this principle if God had not revealed it from the heavens and commanded it, and we must stand by it and by every principle that He has revealed. It is more than I dare, to go back on that principle or any other.

211. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 25:227-229; Charles W. Penrose; Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; Sunday, July 26, 1884.

That feature seems to upset the equilibrium of our "Christian" friends. What is the matter? "Why, you believe in men having more wives than one." Yes, some men, good men. We don.t believe that a bad man should have a wife at all. None but the good deserve the fair. And we believe that righteous men, virtuous men, men that would not improperly use any power or faculty of their nature, ought to be permitted to have wives and raise up a holy posterity and train their children in the ways of virtue, honesty and uprightness. We do not believe it is right for men to give way to their animal passions. We do not believe it is right to do so either in plural or single marriage or outside of it. We believe marriage to be an holy estate, ordained of God, with which Congress has not the right to interfere. It is a religious matter with us. It is a holy ordinance established by the Eternal Father. We claim that the women of the Church are the daughters of God, and God has some right as to their disposition. We do not believe it is right for a man to pick and choose where he likes, and do as he pleases independent of God Almighty. We read in the Old Testament that "When man began to multiply on the face of the earth, and daughters were born unto them, that the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair; and they took them wives of all which they chose." And it is stated that the iniquity of man was great, and God brought a flood on the earth. Now, to understand that correctly we have to know what kind of position those persons were in, and why they were called the "Sons of God." Those men were in the same position as the Latter-day Saints. They were heirs to the Priesthood. They were the sons of God. They had obeyed the holy covenants. They had received the word of the Lord. They were consecrated to the Almighty. But they went outside of their covenants and their engagement with the Lord, and took wives of the daughters of men that were not in the covenant, and thus transgressed the law of God. The law of God in relation to this has been the same in all ages, and has been given to this people--that the sons of Israel shall wed the daughters of Israel, and shall not go out to wed with the stranger. These men did that, and God was displeased, as He is today with Latter-day Saints, who are called out of the world to be His servants, to be holy unto the Lord, to be clean because they bear the vessels of the Lord, when they go outside and wed with the stranger. The law is that they shall not do this, but shall wed under the everlasting covenant and have their wives given them of the Lord and sealed to them by an holy ordinance revealed from heaven, in a holy place prepared for the purpose--sealed for time and all eternity, so that death shall not be able to break the bond of union; that though death may separate them for a little season when they come up in the resurrection, there will be no need to marry or give in marriage, because they were married on the earth by authority of God Almighty for time and all eternity, just like Adam and Eve were, for God gave Eve to Adam (p. 228) before death came into the world. We believe that good men, who have demonstrated their fitness for the responsibilities of holy wedlock, may, under the direction of the Lord, obtain more wives than one, may have them sealed to them by the same covenant and by the same bond, to be their wives in the eternal world; and they expect when they depart hence to go where Abraham is--to that place that is called Abraham's bosom. There they will be in congenial company. They will verify the words of Jesus, who said, "Many shall come from the east and from the west, and from the north and from the south, and shall sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the Kingdom of God;" while others who supposed themselves to be the children of the Kingdom" will be "thrust out." And I am afraid that a great many of our good Christian friends who are so terribly shocked about this feature of our faith, when they get to the door and look in and see Abraham and Sarah and Hagar and Keturah, and those concubines given of the Lord to Abraham--when they see them in the eternal kingdom they will want to turn away and go to more congenial company, which they are at perfect liberty to do. If Abraham was on the earth to-day, these same good people would put him in the penitentiary, and yet they call Abraham "the father of the faithful, the friend of God," and want to go to his bosom when they die! If Jacob were here with his four wives, through whom he "did build the house of Israel," the names of whose twelve sons are to be inscribed upon the gates of the holy city, the New Jerusalem, that is to come down from God out of heaven like a bride adorned for her husband--I say if Jacob were on the earth today, they would put him in jail! * * *

Well, now, this feature of our faith to which I have alluded . . . is a divine institution. Let me bear my testimony to this congregation, as I would like to bear it to all the world, that it is a pure and holy institution; not to bring women into bondage, but to place them in that position for which they were created--to give them the opportunity to become honored wives and mothers, so that there might be "no margin left for lust to prey upon," no field for the tricks of the seducer and the adulterer, the corrupt and the ungodly. God Almighty has established this system. It is a religious ordinance established by authority from God, by revelation from on high and administered by religious ceremonies. It belongs to this Priesthood and to none other. We are not seeking to extend it to the world nor to introduce it to other people. It is confined to the Priesthood. It is "a law unto my Holy Priesthood," saith the Lord, and there are bounds, (p. 229) limitations and regulations over which we cannot pass. And it is not for the wicked. * * *

If a man was permitted to force some woman to be his wife, or to interfere with his neighbor's wife, or infringe upon the rights of another man, then the secular law might step in and interfere. But while the woman is free--no woman among us is coerced, no woman is placed in bondage, every woman is at liberty to marry or not marry--while that is the case we do not think that the law has any right to interfere. . . .

212. "Blood Atonement, As Taught by Leading Elders of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints," by Charles W. Penrose, p. 30-31; an address delivered in the Twelfth Ward Assembly Hall, Salt Lake City; October 12, 1884.

I will say here in passing that the law of 1862 in regard to our religious tenant of plurality of wives was not passed when this revelation [D & C 58:21] was given. It was afterwards enacted with special reference to a principle, doctrine, tenant and practice of our religion; it was passed with a view to putting down an establishment of our religion.

In another revelation to be found in the Doctrine and Covenants, section xviii, paragraphs 6 and 7, we are told:

(p. 31) "Therefore, I, the Lord, justify you and your brethren of my Church in befriending that law which is the constitutional law of the land.

"And as pertaining to the law of man, whatsoever is more or less than these cometh of evil."

We regard the law of 1862 as unconstitutional, as you are well aware, on the ground I have mentioned, namely, that it aims to suppress an establishment of our religion, and therefore is contrary to the Constitution.

213. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 26:43; President George Q. Cannon; Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; Sunday, December 7, 1884.

There is no other people with whom I am acquainted who so strikingly fulfill the words of the Savior, and the promises which He made unto His disciples respecting the consequences of obeying His doctrine as do the Latter-day Saints. And it is not for their wickedness, because when their lives are compared with the lives of others, they stand out in striking contrast with them. This is admitted even by our enemies. They give us credit for not being adulterers, they give us credit for not being seducers; they give us credit for not being thieves; they give us credit for keeping our word; they give us credit for being honest in our dealings. * * *

We can be truthfully accused of nothing except this: that we marry wives, that we sustain them honorably, and that we keep our children and train them up in the fear of God, and make good citizens of them. This is the head and front of our offending. It is not truthfully said that we prostitute women; or that she is degraded here by making her a prey to lust. It is not said we destroy our offspring. No such charges are made against us. But the crime is that we honorably take wives in wedlock and rear children, and bring them up legitimately, teaching them the principles of righteousness as we understand them. We could vote to-day--you men who are disfranchised, and you women who are disfranchised--you could vote to-day if you were adulterers and adulteresses. Yes, in this land of ours, in this Territory of Utah you could go to the polls and cast your vote if you lived outside of wedlock, if you prostituted yourselves, if you made women the victims of vile lust, if you trampled upon everything that is holy and pure in the sight of God and of good men, you would not be disfranchised. You could cast your vote. You could hold office--that is, you could be a candidate for office, and if elected you could hold it. Therefore, it is not for adultery, it is not for seduction, it is not for crimes of this kind that we are hated, but it is because in righteousness and in truth, without deception and without fraud, we honorably and in the sight of day--that is we have done so in times past--married wives in accordance with what we believed to be the command of our Great Creator.

We are hated of all men and of all nations for Christ's sake. It is, because of our religion.

214. Historical Record, Vol. 6:227; Thomas Grover; January 10, 1885.

Brother Hyrum was called upon to read the revelation. He did so, and after the reading said, .Now, you that believe this revelation and go forth and obey the same shall be saved, and you that reject it shall be damned.'

215. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 26:115-124; Elder H. W. Naisbitt; Tabernacle, Salt Lake City; Sunday Afternoon, March 8, 1885.

The Scriptures give an account simply of the woman Eve; declaring that this name was given her of Adam, because she was "the mother of all living;" but outside of biblical record there has been handed down from time immemorial the idea that Adam had two wives, the narrators go so far, or rather so near perfecting the tradition so as to give their names, Lilith being said to be the name of one as Eve was the name of the other, . . . it is said that Joseph Smith the Prophet taught that Adam had two wives. Without however, assuming or basing anything upon this theory, or upon this tradition--which may be mythical in its character--it is nevertheless, very evident that marriage was ordained of God. . . . (P. 117) As far as we can glean from the sacred records, we find that this relationship was established for the bringing upon this sphere of action a posterity. The powers and functions which had been conferred upon man and woman were exemplified in this direction, and when a man's wife was barren, when any of these daughters of Israel in ancient times were childless, it was considered to be a reproach to them, yet in the exercise of faith and by the blessing of the Almighty, and by obedience to the patriarchal order, many of these ancient sisters, the progenitors of the Israel of the latter days, were delivered from barrenness, and became the mothers of a vast and ever increasing host of posterity. * * *

It ought also to be remarked in connection with this question, that marriage was at times polygamic as well as monogamic--that is, right away in the early history of the world there were men who had more wives than one. * * * While under many circumstances it was monogamic, there were also many cases in which it was of a polygamic character, and in both instances it was given by command and then received the approbation of the heavens. * * *

(p. 120) But in regard to this objectionable form of marriage called polygamic, if this marriage is an eternal principle, it follows almost of necessity that there will be a period in the experience of thousands when it must be essentially and eternally polygamic. How many young wives are there who leave this stage of action sometimes without children, and sometimes leaving a little family? (p. 121) And under these circumstances a man marries again; he takes another wife and raises up another family, and for two or three times or more this may be the experience of some. Now, if marriage is not for time only, but for eternity; if the marriage relation is continued, there is a condition of things which demonstrates that in the life to come at all events, marriage must be in many cases polygamic--that is, a man must be possessed of several wives.

Now, our theories of heaven are, that there is nothing there save that which is pure, save that which is ennobling, save that which is progressive, save that which is according to the order of God. If, He, then, in the eternities that are beyond the veil can admit of this relationship by virtue of the fact that marriage is eternal, does it not appear strange that such an order is decried by His children upon the face of the earth. * * *

This polygamic form of marriage, however, when we come to consider humanity, is far in excess of the monogamic. Its influence and power and practice are felt around the globe....

In this land of ours, we find that monogamy is the rule.... Yet we might here pertinently ask the American nation--"From whence did you derive your monogamy?" (p. 122) . . . I would like to ask if it has been accepted as the result of any intelligent understanding of the two modes of marriage? Rather has it not been inherited without investigation, without thought, without reflection, without understanding the marriage covenant? We all know it is the outgrowth of tradition; that it has been received from the fathers; and so far from having been an intellectual reception of a principle, fundamental and eternal, it possesses nothing of that character whatever. Monogamy was practiced by the fathers, the same as the religions of mankind were practiced by them, it was received and accepted unhesitatingly without comment or consideration, without understanding as to whether it was conclusively the best, or whether it was the worst, or whether it was of God, or whether it was of man, or whether anything different today might or might not be of Him. * * *

When we come to the sacred books that have been received by the Church we find that, in regard to this dual idea of marriage--marriage in the monogamic form, and marriage in the polygamic form--the Book of Mormon expressly declares that it was necessary in the first colonization of this country that marriage should be monogamic, because the sexes were equal, and the people realized that marriage was an indispensable thing to both man and woman; but there is also indication that necessity would give final enlargement to this practical question.

So it was when Noah came out of the ark, and there are other periods in the history of mankind when nothing but monogamic marriage could prevail without doing an injustice to those round about them. But where there is no chance of this (p. 123) injustice; where every man is free; where every women is free; where there are thousands of mankind that never marry at all, and thousands of women who by law cannot marry, there is room for the exercise of the polygamic form thereof. . . .

* * * And if a tree is to be judged by its fruits, what of the whoredoms, the adultery, the fornication, the prostitution of women in monogamic nations? What of sexual diseases, of blighted lives, or martyred women, of little graves dotting every hillside and the resting places of the dead? What of foeticide, infanticide and abortion? What of the. . . other damning features which cling closely to the skirts of modern Sodoms, the paragons and promoters of monogamic marriage?

Dr. Newman also made another remark something like this: that polygamy was not intended for the poor man, that it was intended for the kings of the earth, overlooking the fact, however, that Israel is a nation of kings and priests; so that when he said that polygamy or the practice of a plurality of wives was (P. 124) intended only for kings, it brought home a truth pregnant with thought. . . .

There are also other avenues of information. . . and that is the revelation of individual experience. There are many men and women who have practiced this principle in the midst of Israel for thirty years and upwards. I have heard their testimonies time and time again, . . . and they tell me that in this relation they have been blessed, they have been prospered, they have had around them the influence of the Spirit of the Almighty; that peace has been upon their household and habitation, and that they have been enabled through that principle to multiply their posterity upon the earth. * * * From this condition came the discipline of life, the power of self-restraint, a tender regard for each others' feelings, and a sort of jealousy for each others. rights, all tempered by the consideration that relations meant to be enduring claimed more love and interest and soul than did monogamy under its best conditions.

216. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 26:180-182; John Henry Smith, Apostle; Tabernacle; Logan, Cache County; Monday, April 6, 1885.

Now, brethren and sisters, whom have we wronged? Whom have we wronged by peopling this desert land? Nobody. * * * (p. 181) Who is injured if my wife makes a sacrifice with me and takes into our home one of her sisters and makes her my wife. If she makes the sacrifice; if I shoulder the additional responsibility, and open the door that will save one of Eve's fair daughters, who is wronged? * * * God has laid upon every woman the decree placed upon mother Eve--multiply and replenish the earth. In sections of the land in which we live, thousands of women to-day must become the playthings of some vile wretch, if they answer the design of their being. My whole being is convinced of the fact--that it is a decree of God Himself that these women should have a chance to marry, and that He Himself has opened the door. He Himself has established the principle. I want my daughters married as I desired to marry myself; I want them honored wives, whether plural ones or otherwise, no matter who may seek to brand their offspring as infamous. I know--for God has given me the witness, He has stamped it upon this heart--that they who come through that lineage are as much honored of God and approved of Him, as any that have ever walked His footstool from the day that this earth was peopled until the day in which we live. This principle was given for a purpose, and that purpose is the salvation of the female sex as well as the male sex. * * *

(p. 182) . . . go into any of the leading streets of the great cities of the world, and gaze upon as fine specimens of womanhood as our Father ever put breath into. What are their prospects in life? What is written across their brow? Infamy, shame--going to their graves the victims of loathsome disease. It is not one, it is not two or three; but it is millions of them that are going this inevitable road. Who is responsible? Who placed upon them the interdict, preventing them from fulfilling the object of their creation? Not God; for He made His law so liberal and established principles so correct that there was no necessity for such a thing. It is man that has introduced it; it is man that has overturned the condition of society; it is man that has turned his daughter into the street. I say again and again that the "Mormon" people can wait the result of this thing without fear; they can afford to suffer pains and penalties if that will but open the door by which the fair daughters of Eve can be redeemed from the position in which they are placed and be made honored and respected women of society.

217. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 26:337-343; Apostle F. D. Richards; Logan; October 1885.

When Congress passed the law of 1862, I heard him [Brigham Young] make this remark--rather startling at the time--that a man who would not be willing to pay his fine and take a term of imprisonment for a real good, virtuous woman was not worthy of a wife at all. * * * (p. 339) It was never alleged against (p. 340) us as men of Israel, as "Mormons," if you please, that we were violators or had been, violators of the law of the land until July, 1862. It was never proven and cannot now be shown that we, as a people were violators of any law of the land whatever. In 1862, a law was enacted against bigamy, or polygamy. The term bigamy had always been used before, but now it was coupled with polygamy in order that it might be made to reach, and be understood by everybody as intended for, the Latter-day Saints. * * *

One of the last great principles that the Prophet Joseph was commanded of God to teach us, was the law regulating the eternity of marriage; that whereas, we had taken our wives only until death should us part, we should now understand that we were, while in the flesh, laying the foundation for eternal dominions, crowns and exaltations; that our wives and our children were given to us of God for the purpose of laying the foundation of a kingdom; that we shall have, if we are faithful and obedient, the covenant of eternal life ourselves and the power to seal the same upon our generations, that they (P. 341) may become, as Abraham's like the sands of the sea-shore for number.

The Latter-day Saints claim to be the children of Abraham, and if they are the children of Abraham, they will do the works of Abraham. It was difficult for men and women from all parts of the world, who had lived in the monogamic order all their lives to accept this doctrine of the eternity and plurality of marriage. It was "a new and everlasting covenant; and if ye abide not that covenant, then are you damned, saith the Lord." This was the obligation that was laid upon the Prophet Joseph, and through him, upon the true believers of the Church, even all who were worthy to accept of these obligations. It was herein that the Elders and their wives extended their faith, enlarged their obedience, and accepted the terms of the new and everlasting covenant extending not through time only, but eternity also.

Now, I ask, who is injured by a man taking a second wife, when the wife he now has is agreeable and it is mutually understood between her and him and the newly affianced; it being entered into with a mutual understanding and a mutual agreement according to the law of God--I ask, who is injured?

Wherein consists the crime of bigamy? It is this. When a man takes one wife he covenants to adhere to her until death do them part. He violates that covenant when he takes another woman, unknown to his wife; he thus practices fraud upon her. This is where the crime comes in. Fraud is perpetrated upon his own family. * * * With the Latter-day Saints there is no fraud practiced, the second wife being accepted with the mutual consent of the first, and in accordance with the revelations of God. There is in that no crime at all, unless some law of God is violated, or somebody is injured in the matter. If this transaction that I have just named violates the law of God, or if it injures or infringes upon the rights of a brother or a sister, then there may be some ground for pronouncing it a crime, but belief in, and practice of, the eternity and plurality of the marriage covenant do not violate the law of God, because He has commanded His people to accept and obey it. Neither is it an infringement upon the rights of others, neither men nor women, but gives all women an opportunity to become honorable wives and mothers, and thus to shut out what is politely called the social evil, with all its horrid concomitants of seduction, foeticide, infanticide and all the train of sexual monogamic evils which haunt and infest Christendom.

If, then, we violate no law of God nor right of our fellows, wherein, I ask again, consists the crime of our religious faith? It is in this: that Congress forbids it; just as Darius forbade Daniel praying to God, and because he persisted, cast him into the den of lions; the same as Herod caused all the male children to be slain, hoping to kill Christ our Savior in his infancy; the same also as Nebuchadnezzar cast the Hebrew children into the flames because they worshipped the living God rather than his idol.

* * * (p. 342) In the establishment of this principle of the Gospel, the marriage covenant, it is intended only for God's people, and not for the people of the world. * * * It is because the people of God have taken a course that every righteous woman may have an honorable husband, become an honorable wife and have a position in the family and household, that our brethren are hailed to prison; because they are and faithful to their families; because they have taken wives in order that they may rear up children, have a generation to bear their names and their priesthood, and to become a people devoted to the living God.

I want to say in this connection, as I wish all to understand it, that when we adopted this principle by the revelations of God, there was no law in the land against it. ***

I want these young boys and girls, as well as the older ones, to know that God has never given us a law that was in conflict with any law of the land; but that Congress has enacted laws to make us criminals. * * * (p. 343) Thus, we are not violators of the law of the land, but the law-makers of the nations make us transgressors.

Joseph Smith and Celestial Marriage

But examination of the history and the facts will disclose that there is no real contradiction between the alleged conflicting statements, nor between the action of Joseph and Hyrum in regard to polygamy and the doctrines laid down in the revelation of July 12, 1843. Polygamy, in the ordinary and Asiatic sense of the term, never was and is not now a tenet of the Latter-day Saints. That which Joseph and Hyrum denounced and for preaching which without authority an Elder was cut off the Church in Nauvoo, was altogether different to the order of celestial marriage including a plurality of wives, which forms the subject of the revelation.

So with that spiritual wife doctrine which lustful men attempted to promulgate at that period. Joseph the Prophet was just as much opposed to that false doctrine as anyone could be. It was a counterfeit. The true and divine order is another thing. * * * They were conscientious in their statements. Joseph and Hyrum were consistent in their action against the false doctrines of polygamy and spiritual infeism, instigated by the devil and advocated by men who did not comprehend sound doctrine nor the purity of the celestial marriage which God revealed for the holiest of purposes.

Until the open enunciation of the doctrine of celestial marriage by the publication of the revelation on the subject in 1852, no Elder was authorized to announce it to the world. The Almighty has revealed things on many occasions which were for his servants and not for the world. Jesus enjoined his disciples on several occasions to keep to themselves principles that he made known to them. And his injunction "Cast not your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you," has become as familiar as a common proverb. In the rise of the Church the Lord had occasion to admonish his servants in regard to revelations that were afterwards permitted to be published. . . .

* * * Under these instructions Elders had no right to promulgate anything but that which they were authorized to teach. And when assailed by their enemies and accused of practising things which were really not countenanced in the Church, they were justified in denying those imputations and at the same time avoiding the avowal of such doctrines as were not yet intended for the world.

When God sets up any portion of His Kingdom upon the earth, it is patterned after his own order in the heavens. When He gives to man a pattern of family organization on the earth that pattern will be just like his own family organization in the heavens. The family of Abraham was a transcript of a celestial pattern. . . . This family order of Abraham was spread out before God, and met with His entire and full approbation. And why did God approve of it? Because it is the only order practiced in the celestial heavens, and the only peaceful, united, and prosperous order that will endure, while man invented orders and devices will utterly deceive and perish with the using.

I have remarked in the opening of this chapter that the consideration of this subject at this period of Nauvoo's history would aid the reader to understand more clearly many things in the subsequent events we have to relate. It is to be observed first of all that this principle of plural marriage had to be introduced secretly; first, because of the traditions and prejudices of the Saints themselves; and, secondly, because of the advantage that their enemies surrounding them would have when once the doctrine was publicly proclaimed. This enforced secrecy, then, which a reasonably prudence demanded, gave rise to apparent contradictions between the public utterances of leading brethren in the Church and their practice. Wicked men took advantage of the situation and brought sorrow to the hearts of innocent and reproach upon The Church. Some, possessed a zeal without wisdom, knowing of this doctrine, hastened without authority to make public proclamation of it and had to be silenced, as, for instance, a number of Elders who were reproved by Hyrum Smith for preaching this doctrine at a branch of The Church at China Creek, near Nauvoo; and later one Hiram Brown who did the same thing in Lapeer County, Michigan; for which he was disfellowshipped from The Church and notified by Joseph and Hyrum to attend the conference in April of that year to give a further account of his proceedings.

"My Son John: You have asked me concerning the New and Everlasting Covenant and how far it is binding upon my people; thus saith the Lord: All commandments that I give must be obeyed by those calling themselves by my name, unless they are revoked by me or by my authority, and how can I revoke an everlasting covenant; for I the Lord am everlasting and my everlasting covenants cannot be abrogated nor done away with, but they stand forever.

Have I not given my word in great plainness on this subject? Yet have not great numbers of my people been negligent in the observance of my laws and the keeping of my commandments, and yet have I borne with them these many years; and this because of their weakness, because of the perilous times, and furthermore, it is more pleasing to me that men should use their free agency in regards to these matters. Nevertheless, I the Lord do not change and my word and my covenants and my law do not.

And as I have heretofore said by my servant Joseph: All those who would enter into my glory must and shall obey my law. And have I not commanded men that if they were Abraham's seed and would enter into my glory, they must do the works of Abraham?

I have not revoked this law, nor will I, for it is everlasting, and those who will enter into my glory must obey the conditions thereof; Even so. Amen."

Kanosh, Millard Co.

Dear Brother.

You submit a peculiar case to me in your letter of the 15th a woman who is the wife of one of our Elders, herself incapable of bearing children because of physical malformation, threatens her husband with the Pen[itentary] if he shall attempt to obey the law of God, and take to himself another wife and obtain for himself a posterity which otherwise he cannot have.

If it were not for the law of man he could do this without her consent, after having given her the privilege of exercising the right of the law of Sarah. As we are now situated he cannot do this without endangering his liberty, through her taking advantage of the Edmunds law. But there is more than one law of the land and under another law he can obtain a separation from her, physical malformation being deemed by the law a sufficient cause for divorce. * * * If he is a worthy faithful Latter-day Saint and there be nothing against him more than this, he should not be denied the privilege of going to the Temple, or of taking a wife without condemnation. He ought, however, to treat his first wife with kindness and sustain her; but if she still persists in threatening him for obeying the law of God, she herself becomes a transgressor and has no right to fellowship in the Church.

224. Minutes of Meeting (Feb 26, 1887)--in George Q. Cannon Papers, CHO. Stapled papers with the inscription on the outside piece of paper, "Remarks of Brethren on Scot Amendment", handwritten in pencil on 20 pages measuring 19.5 cm and on 8 pages measuring 22.0 cm.

--part of Heber J. Grant's remarks: "My impression has been from the beginning to give the Scot amendment a trial, and when I heard that Prest. Taylor had sat down upon it, I must say I felt a little disappointed. I see nothing to be lost but a great deal may be gained."

--remarks of Franklin D. Richards: "I feel that I would like the Scott Amendment tried. I do not see that it necessarily Compromises us, that is, in an official capacity; by trying it we would gain one year, and that of itself would be of great value. And if Mr. Cleveland could be got nite [sic] nearer Communication, he may find something to admire and praise in us, and it may stimulate him, by way of a desire to get rid of the Mormon problem, to work with a view to let us into the Union."

--part of remarks of John W. Taylor: "the only thing that we can gain by making this Compromise is from 2 to 4 years. At the expiration of that time we will thoroughly advertize to this nation that we are willing to sacrifice, at least so far as our Word is concerned, in order to obtain liberty, and just as soon as we begin to break through suffering for righteousness sake, and clinging to the truth, and avoiding the very appearance of evil, He believe [sic] the Calamities will be greater upon us than if the bill now should become law. It has taken quite a time to school the Laterday Saints to what we believe to day. And I find that it is getting to be believed that Prest. Taylor will yet receive a revelation to cancel the revelation on Celestial Marriage. And you let anything officially be given about this, and it will create quite a stir among the people. He did not want to express himself in regard to the wisdom of the matter, would leave that to older heads."

--remarks of Abraham 0. Smoot: "He did not regard this a new question at all; the same thing was ventilated, only in a different form, perhaps, in Delegate Hooper's day. He was present on a certain occasion when this same subject was submitted to Prest Young & he remembered Bro. Geo. A. Smith's views on it, & his own personal endorsement at the time, which was that we had nothing at all on that point to offer as a Compromise. He had not changed his views since then. Even if he had the right to vote, he would be loth [sic] for it unless it was so dictated by those who had the right to commune with the Lord upon the question. If there were any light from that source he would submit with his brethren. But to say that he will forever sacrifice the practice of that command, he could not; neither did he think anybody could be justified in doing so unless the Lord himself so ordered it. There may be, he said, a policy in it which the ordinary mind could not comprehend. What he wished to know was, whether it was the will of the Lord to do it in order to gain a Victory. If by accepting this amendment we can do it without making it to appear to Israel (he did not care so much for the world) a Compromise or sacrifice, & in reality not to be a sacrifice, he was willing to follow his file-leaders and support it."

--remarks of a "Williams", "This telegram puts a new phase on the question. This Scot Amendment is to be sent by the President to Congress, stating that he will sign the bill if Congress will accept the Amendment. Most of the members of Congress have already expressed themselves as opposed to it. They will vote it down; the whole bill itself, and from voting on the question of the Constitutional Amendment. If we reject the proposition it will be considered by the government and the country that the few polygamists who control affairs in Utah are unwilling to have the question submitted to the body of the people. This will be damaging to our cause. By accepting the proposition now we make no promise, we make no agreement. We simply say, we are willing for the people to take their own course in regard to the proposition; and if we accept, the bill is killed, and we are relieved of both the danger and the question of compromise. If the amendment should pass the Congress with the bill, we then will have ample time to reflect upon the question of what shall be done by the people, and the probable effects of voting for the prohibition upon our people upon Congress and upon the Country."

--part of remarks of William B. Preston, "As a political strategy I would accept the proposition. It is generally said by the world that our people do just as the Presidency say. Now, let this proposition be submitted to the people, and let them say whether they are willing to adopt a Constitution with this proposition in. That would be Democratic."

--part of remarks of William Budge: "With my understanding of what they call polygamy, I could recommend the placing of this question before the people. It would be necessary, however, to make some explanation to the people in regard to our understanding of what is called polygamy. If polygamy as understood in the world, I could vote for the amendment, but not to renounce Celestial Marriage."

--part of remarks of Angus M. Cannon: "I look upon it that it may be a ram in the thicket, but I cannot acquiesce in it without feeling that I am losing influence in consequence of the professions I have made heretofore."

--remarks of H. B. Clawson: "If we could do anything without compromising our views and our religion, I would be in favor doing it, merely to gain time. Time is what we want. I am willing to rest on the decision of the First Presidency in regard to this."

--part of remarks of A. Miner: "We must accept this proposition by all means. It is not a binding condition upon my faith, or upon the faith of any of our brethren. It will not bring the faith of the Latter-day Saints in contempt."

--remarks of Frank Armstrong: "He was in favor of submitting this to the people out of courtesy to our friends at Washington. It would also give time to perfect measures for securing the property. He would rather have the crisis come from the head of the nation than from those here. Individually, he could not vote for it."

--the collection described above is followed by a 9 page account of the verbatim remarks of George Q. Cannon at this meeting, handwritten, and beginning "Dear Bro: Having expressed yourself [sic] that you had forgotten to hear my opinion with regard to our concurrence to the Scott amendment and having since reflected somewhat on the subject I take this means of giving it."

--his conclusion is found on the last page as follows, "My unqualified opinion that it is too dangerous a thing to play at concessions or anything approaching concession, or the color of concession with the government; the ground is not tenable let the circumstances be what they may."

227. Declarations of the First Presidency on Temple Work, Vol 5:44; May 22, 1888.

President's Office
Salt Lake City, Utah
May 22, 1888

Bishop S. A. Woolley,
19th Ward, Salt Lake City,

Dear Brother: . . .

You asked whether a person who has once been married in the Endowment House or Temple, and is left a widow or a widower, commits adultery by marrying again when the ceremony is performed by a justice of the peace or a civil officer.

There is a manifest impropriety, which every Latter-day Saint who has had his or her endowments should perceive, in such a person going to a civil officer to have a ceremony of marriage performed. The fact that such a person does so is in evidence that he or she is falling away, because if in good standing a recommendation could be obtained for the temple, where the ceremony could be performed, should be performed according to the order which God has instituted. But a person marrying under such circumstances does not commit adultery.

You ask some other questions concerning how many living wives a man must have to fulfill the law.

When a man, according to the revelation, married a wife under the holy order which God has revealed and then married another in the same way, he enters into the new and everlasting covenant, so far as he has gone he has obeyed the law. I know of no requirement which makes it necessary for a man to have three living wives at a time.

With kind regards,
I remain,

Gospel Mysteries

Your Brother,

W. Woodruff.

Declarations of the First Presidency on Temple Work, Vol. 8:35. Our young people come here to be married to be husband and wife through all eternity taking upon them covenants to observe all the laws, rites and ceremonies pertaining to the Holy order of matrimony, this is the way God has established, and the ceremony that seals one wife to a man seals other wives. And when a man takes a wife they enter this sacred order and covenant to observe all the rites in this. The man covenants to take more wives, the woman covenants to do the part of Sarah and gives her consent for him to take more wives. Hoped the young people would understand these things. A covenant not kept is a covenant broken. When we enter that covenant we must continue in it. Still there is no one here who will say you shall take more wives, that is left entirely with yourselves.

One of the obligations we assume here is not to repeat anything we see or hear in this House; for instance if we see a person who we think is here to take another wife, we should not talk about it for there is not danger of him doing so. At the time the Tucker Edmunds bill became Law, President McAllister sent me to Salt Lake City to see President Taylor and learn what we should do as the penalties were very heavy for the person who performed an illegal Marriage and this class of cases would be illegal under this new law.

The President of the Church said. There must be no more Plural Sealings in the Temple and we will leave the responsibility upon our enemies and I can give you my word that the instructions then given has been faithfully carried out. Keep a correct Record of all the work you may do here today. God bless you in the name of Jesus Christ.--Amen.

Elder Martin Johansen, Feb. 25th, 1889
Ferron

Dear Brother:--Your letter of Feb. 20th, asking certain questions, has been received.

It would be quite proper for you to submit all such questions to the Bishop of you[r] Ward or the President of your Stake. However, in reply to your question as to what is meant in Sec. 131 Book of Doc. & Cov.--viz:

"If a man hath one wife seal[ed] to him in the Temple for time and for all eternity, will he enter into the celestial glory and have increase, or hath it reference to a man who hath more than one wife sealed to him?"

It may mean one wife, under certain circumstances; but when circumstances will permit it means more. The words through the Prophet Joseph, as recorded in Sec. 131 Doctrine and Covenants, are correct and mean what they say.

With kind regards, Your Brother,W. Woodruff

IN HIS JOURNAL FOR THIS DATE WILFORD WOODRUFF WROTE: "Attended a meeting with the lawyers at the Gardo House in the evening. They wanted me to make some concessions to the court upon polygamy and other points, and I spent several hours alone and inquired of the Lord and received the following revelation."

Thus Saith the Lord, to my Servant Wilford, I the Lord have heard they [sic] prayers and thy request, and will answer thee by the voice of my spirit. Thus Saith the Lord, unto my Servants, the Presidency of my Church, who hold the Keys of the Kingdom of God on the earth. I the Lord hold the destiny of the Courts in your midst, and the destiny of this Nation, and all other nations of the earth in mine own hands; all that I have revealed, and promised and decreed concerning the generation in which you live, shall come to pass, and no power shall stay my hand. Let not my Servants who are called to the Presidency of my Church, deny my word or my law, which concerns the Salvation of the Children of Men, Let them pray for the Holy Spirit, which shall be given them to guide them in their acts. Place not yourselves in jeopardy to your enemies by promise; your enemies seek your destruction [sic] and the destruction [sic] of my people. If the Saints will hearken unto my voice, and the counsel of my Servants the wicked shall not prevail. Let my servants, who officiate as your Counselors before the Courts, make their pleadings as they are moved upon by the Holy Spirit, without any further pledges from the Priesthood, and they shall be justified. I the Lord will hold the Courts, with the officers of Government, and the nation responsible for their acts towards the inhabitants of Zion. I, Jesus Christ, the Savior of the World, am in your midst. I am your advocate with the Father. Fear not little flock, it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the Kingdom. Fear not the wicked and ungodly. Search the Scriptures, for they are they (p. 107) which testify of me; also those revelations which I have given to my Servant Joseph, and to all my Servants since the world began, which are recorded in the records of divine truth. Those revelations contain the judgments of God, which are to be poured out upon all nations under the heavens, which include great babylon. These judgments are at the door, they will be fulfilled as God lives. Leave judgment with me, it is mine saith the Lord. Watch the signs of the times, and they will show the fulfillment of the words of the Lord. Let my servants call upon the Lord in mighty prayer, retain the Holy Ghost as your constant companion, and act as you are moved upon by that spirit, and all will be well with you. The wicked are fast ripening in inequity [sic], and they will be cut off by the judgments of God. Great events await you and this generation, and are nigh at your doors. Awake, 0 Israel, and have faith in God, and his promises, and He will not forsake you. I the Lord will deliver my Saints from the dominion of the wicked, in mine own due time and way. I cannot deny my word, neither in blessings nor judgments. Therefore let mine Anointed gird up their loins, watch and be sober, and Keep my commandments. Pray always and faint not; exercise faith in the Lord and in the promises of God; be valient [sic] in the testimony of Jesus Christ. The eyes of the Lord and the Heavenly Hosts are watching over you and your acts. There-fore [sic] be faithful until I come. I come quickly, to reward every man according to the deeds done in the body, even so. Amen.

During our meeting a revelation was read which President Woodruff received Sunday evening, Nov. 24th. Propositions had been made for the Church to make some concessions to the Courts in regard to its principles. Both of Pres. Woodruff's counselors refused to advise him as to the course he should pursue, and he therefore laid the matter before the Lord. The answer came quick and strong. The word of the Lord was for us not to yield one particle of that which He had revealed and established. He had done and would continue to care for His work and those of the Saints who were faithful, and we need have no fear of our enemies when we were in the line of our duty. We are promised redemption and deliverance if we will trust in God and not in the arm of flesh. We were admonished to read and study the Word of God, and to pray often. The whole revelation was filled with words of the greatest encouragement and comfort, and my heart was filled with joy and peace during the entire reading. It sets all doubts at rest concerning the course to pursue.

Mina (AHC plural wife) was feeling somewhat sad at the prospect of the raid again commencing against the 'polygamous Mormons,' her father having to go on the 'underground' because of an indictment being found against him for adultery. He was arrested on a charge of cohabitation on the 14th inst., but the commissioner released him and sent the witnesses direct to the Grand Jury, who found a bill as mentioned above. I comforted her all I could.

235. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Vol. 12:166; New York City; May 19, 1890.

The U.S. Supreme Court today rendered one of the most important decisions of its existence. By the provisions of the Edmunds-Tucker act the property of the Church was ordered escheated for the use of the schools. In pursuance of this provision some $750,000 worth of Church property was seized and placed in the hands of a receiver. The case was tried in the lower courts and the act was decided to be valid. An appeal was taken to the court of last resort in the U.S. It was agreed some months since and today Justice Bradley read the decision in which the law is upheld, and the property is confiscated. The principle ground for this unjust ruling is that the Church upholds polygamy, and doubtless uses this means for the promotion of this doctrine.
Chief-Justice Fuller and Justices Fields and Lamar dissent from the opinion of the majority. Thus one by one are the rights of the Saints taken away, and the safeguards of the Constitution trampled underfoot.

For some cause or other which I could not understand Mina was in a very bad temper, and finally became so worked up that desired me to take her to her mother's where she said she would live. She demanded a divorce from me, which I told her she might have at any time. She said she considered herself in disgrace every day that she lived with me in polygamy and she would as soon be a prostitute as a plural wife. She said she would prevent me from ever seeing the children. Many more cruel things did she say which caused me great sorrow. If I have treated her badly it has been for want of judgment and not because of intention. As I was taking her to town she changed her mind and decided to remain tonight at the farm, and tomorrow leave my home. This is a sore trial to me.

239. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Vol. 12:217; Salt Lake City; July 9, 1890.

Mina was very much changed in feeling this evening. She repented the course she had taken, and after considerable talk she begged my forgiveness for what she said last night. This I readily granted, and all past differences were settled. Her mother had been down today and gave her a good scolding for her folly, and this helped, I suppose to convince her of her foolishness.

Though rabid anti-Mormons are working against the people, yet the Republican Party are becoming more favorably impressed with regard to the importance of securing Mormon votes and influence and the leaders feel as though Utah should be admitted as a State into the Union. Even Secretary of State Blaine is desirous of Utah's admission; while Stephen B. Elkins says he is in favor of admitting the Territory 'polygamy or no polygamy.' The Democrats might have won several States had they but possessed sufficient courage when Cleveland was President to admit Mormons to political power, but they failed to do so and now realize their loss.---The resolution of the First Presidency of June 30/90 in regard to plural marriages was read. It is to the effect that none shall be permitted to occur even in Mexico unless the contracting parties, or at least the female, has resolved to remain in that country.

(After just arriving from a trip south.) . . . I was met by Mina with the buggy, and drove to the farm where I found all well. There is considerable comment and fault-finding among some of the Saints because of a manifesto which Pres. Woodruff issued on the 24th inst., in reply to a statement made by the Utah Commission that plural marriages were still authorized and celebrated, and that within the past year some 40 or more had been performed. Pres. W. denied this allegation, and said that such marriages were forbidden by the Church in this Territory, and he called upon the Saints to submit to the law of the land in this particular. In his declaration, however, there is no renunciation of principle nor abandonment of families recommended, as some fault-finders try to make it appear.

242. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon; Salt Lake City; Tuesday, September 30, 1890.

I was at the office by 8 a.m. and was copying our Quorum meeting minutes nearly all day until noon. At 2 p.m. our Quorum meeting was held. There were present Lorenzo Snow, Franklin D. Richards, Moses Thatcher, Francis M. Lyman, John H. Smith, Heber J. Grant, John W. Taylor and myself.

J. W. Taylor was called to act as clerk. Opened by singing, .Come let us anew,' etc. Prayer by John H. Smith. Pres. Snow was pleased to meet and felt that if we really deserve a blessing we will get it as the Lord is willing to bestow light and wisdom upon us, and in these meetings it is our privilege to receive great knowledge. Some business matters pertaining to Stake Conferences, missionaries and changes in Bishops, etc., were briefly discussed. Referring to Pres. Woodruff's late manifesto concerning plural marriage, Pres. Snow said: The Lord will not permit any faithful Saint to loose blessings through the acts of the wicked, or because of circumstances over which the individual has no control. . . . God has a right to suspend His law, as He has done in the inspiration under which Pres. Woodruff wrote the manifesto, and as the Savior did when He suspended the law of Moses and permitted the disciples to pluck corn on the Sabbath day when they were hungry. The very important law concerning baptism is at times suspended as in the case of married women whose husbands are opposed to the gospel, or minors whose parents object to the baptism of their children. I can see great good and no inconsistency in this matter. Many honorable men in this nation have been opposed to us because they believed we were disloyal, but this declaration will remove stumbling blocks from the paths of such persons.

F.D. Richards: In the issuance of this Manifesto I see good, and those who possess the spirit of revelation will understand and appreciate it. Before the War of the Rebellion slaves were refused baptism unless their masters consented, and because of the refusal of the latter to permit such things the gospel was withheld for 25 years from the Southern States. When Pres. Woodruff prepared his Manifesto it was without the aid or suggestions of his counselors. He took a clerk and went to a room alone where under the spirit of inspiration he dictated the declaration he desired to make, and there was only one slight change made therein when it was read to Counselors Cannon and Smith. Therefore I feel it is from the Almighty. The Lord is causing the wisdom of men to fail. The Supreme Court held the case of the Church property under advisement for over a year and then rendered so foolish a decision that when they began to consider the result, they vacated their own order, and in some matters will give a decision later. Thus the highest tribunal in this land is confused and disgraced when it seeks to do wrong to the Saints.

John W. Taylor: When I first heard of this Manifesto I felt to say 'Damn it', but on further thought I felt it was not right to be so impulsive. I do not yet feel quite right about it. My father when President of the Church sought to find a way to evade the conflict between the Saints and government on the question of plural marriage, but the Lord said it was an eternal an unchangeable law and must stand. Pres. Woodruff lately received an encouraging revelation in regard to this principle, and now I ask myself, .Is the Lord a child that He thus changes?. Yet I feel that the Lord giveth a law and he can also take it away.

Moses Thatcher: In 1885 Pres. Taylor made a public statement in the Tabernacle that he had taken a house to place himself outside the reach of the law, and many persons then felt and do feel that he was seeking to evade the issue, just as many now feel concerning Pres. Woodruff's declaration. Yet I feel that both of these brethren acted exactly right. The law of God is not abrogated, but in order to try the nation which has long called us traitors because of the practice of this principle, the cause of offence is removed, so that the law-makers and people may be left without just excuse in their prosecution of the Saints. This Manifesto will doubtless have the effect, however, to make the attacks upon us in other directions more bitter, and we may have to suffer greatly at the hands of the wicked, yet it is satisfying to my feelings. It may force us to make friends with the .battle-axe' of the Lord in Canada and Mexico, and we will yet become the saviors of the Constitution of our country. . . .

F. M. Lyman: I endorse the manifesto, and feel it will do good. I design to live with and have children by my wives, using the wisdom which God gives me to avoid being captured by the officers of the law.

He gave a brief account of his recent labors. We then adjourned till tomorrow at 10 a.m. Benediction by John H. Smith. . . .

243. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon; Salt Lake City; Wednesday, October 1, 1890.

. . . At the latter time I went to my Quorum meeting (10 a.m.) in the Gardo House. In addition to the brethren of yesterday Anthon H. Lund was present today. Singing, "0 My Father," etc. Prayer by Lorenzo Snow in which he asked that if it was the Lord's will, we might be permitted to see his face even as Joseph and Oliver, and Moses of old did.

John H. Smith: I cannot feel to say that the manifesto is quite right or wrong. It may be that the people are unworthy of the principle and hence the Lord has withdrawn it. I cannot consent to cease living with my wives unless I am imprisoned.

Heber J. Grant: I approve of the Manifesto, and feel that it is merely a public announcement of the course which we had already decided in our private councils to adopt, and this being the case I do not know why we should not receive any possible benefits which may arise from a public declaration. Yet I believe greater trouble will follow the prominent Elders in the Church through the adoption of this policy. If this plan had been accepted in the beginning of this crusade the nation would not have been tried as it has been, and would not be worthy of condemnation such as it now merits, hence I feel this has come at the proper time.

Anthon H. Lund: Sickness prevented my being here yesterday to my sorrow. I feel that the manifesto will result in good. I gave my approval to what had been said.

Moses Thatcher: I think the brethren should so arrange their families that women bearing children shall not be in constant fear of capture. For this feeling is bound to affect the offspring both in mind and body to its injury. The troubles will perhaps cause us to seek refuge in Mexico where there are twelve millions of Lamanites to whom we can then turn our attention, and when they are converted they will form the battle-axe of the Lord, and we will help them to redeem and build up Zion.

Lorenzo Snow: I am pleased at our unanimity of feelings, and know that the Lord will direct us aright. . . .

244. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon; Salt Lake City; Thursday, October 2, 1890.

. . . At 12 o.clock our Quorum met with the First Presidency. Present:

W. Woodruff, Geo. Q. Cannon, Jos. F. Smith, L. Snow, M. Thatcher, F. M. Lyman, J. H. Smith, H. J. Grant, J. W. Taylor, A. H. Lund and myself. . . . The Manifesto was next discussed, and finally on motion of F. M. Lyman all voted to sustain and approve it. The question as to whether or not it should be presented to the Saints for approval or rejection at our conference was discussed at some length. Some felt that the assent of the Presidency and Twelve to the matter was sufficient without committing the people by their votes to a policy which they might in the future wish to discard.

Joseph F. Smith: He presented the view that it would lack much force and would not bring the desired results unless accepted by the vote of the people. The Manifesto had already been the means, he was convinced, of presenting [preventing?] the enactment of Edmunds. bill, which passed the Senate, confiscating the Church personal property to the school fund. Now if we could convince leading men of the nation that it is the bona fide intention of the people to have no more plural marriages in this country in conflict with the laws, it would no doubt bring some concessions on the part of the government towards those who have already entered into the plural relation. The matter of presenting the Manifesto to the Conference was left open for the present. It was, however, resolved that we use our private influence at present to prevent our brethren from going into court and promising to obey the law; and as soon as possible we take steps to get some favors from the government for those who already have more wives than one.

245. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Vol. 13:129; Salt Lake City; Sunday, October 5, 1890.

After meeting (Conference in the Tabernacle) our quorum met the First Presidency at the Gardo House where we agreed that John T. Caine would suit us as Delegate to Congress, if he was acceptable to the convention which meets on Tuesday. A telegram was read from J. T. Caine concerning an interview with Secretary of the Interior Noble. The latter felt that he could not accept Pres. W. Woodruff's Manifesto without its acceptance by the Conference as authoritative, against the statements of the Utah Commission and Gov. A. L. Thomas. It was therefore decided to present the matter tomorrow for the vote of the people. It was said that Gov. Thomas had overreached himself in his zeal, and this thing would break his influence... At 7:30 the largest Priesthood meeting I ever attended was held in the large Tabernacle. . . .

246. Doctrine and Covenants Commentary, revised edition, 1951, pp. 836-837; Publication Committee: Joseph Fielding Smith, Harold B. Lee, Marion G. Romney; MANIFESTO was dated Sept. 24th, 1890 & read & accepted in General Conference on October 6, 1890.

This is the full text of the Manifesto:

Press dispatches having been sent for political purposes, from Salt Lake City, which have been widely published, to the effect that the Utah Commission, in their recent report to the Secretary of the Interior, allege, that plural marriages are still being solemnized and that forty or more such marriages have been contracted in Utah since last June or during the past year, also that in public discourses the leaders of the Church have taught, encouraged and urged the continuance of the practice of polygamy,

I, therefore, as President of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, do hereby, in the most solemn manner, declare that these charges are false. We are not teaching polygamy or plural marriage nor permitting any person to enter into its practice, and I deny that either forty or any other number of plural marriages have during that period been solemnized in our temples or in any other place in the Territory.

One case has been reported, in which the parties allege that the marriage was performed in the Endowment House, in Salt Lake City, in the spring of 1889, but I have not been able to learn who performed the ceremony; whatever was done in this matter was without my knowledge. In consequence of this alleged occurrence the Endowment House was, by my instructions, taken down without delay.

Inasmuch as laws have been enacted by Congress forbidding plural marriages, which laws have been pronounced constitutional by the court of last resort, I hereby declare my intention to submit to those laws, and to use my influence with the members of the Church over which I preside to have them do likewise.

There is nothing in my teachings to the Church or in those of my associates, during the time specified, which can be reasonably construed to inculcate or encourage polygamy, and when any Elder of the Church has used language which appeared to convey any such teaching, he has been promptly reproved. And I now publicly declare that my advice to the Latter-day Saints is to refrain from contracting any marriage forbidden by the law of the land.

WILFORD WOODRUFF
President of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints

President Wilford Woodruff issued his Manifesto against the practice of plural marriage, and this was accepted by a unanimous vote of the General Conference assembled in Salt Lake City, Oct. 6th, 1890. (Commentary, p. 836)

247. General Conference, October 6, 1890. See end of D&C for reference to following: President Lorenzo Snow speaking after the Manifesto was read:

I move, that, recognizing Wilford Woodruff as the President of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, and the only man on the earth at the present time who holds the keys of the sealing ordinances, we consider him fully authorized by virtue of his position to issue the manifesto which has been read in our hearing and which is dated Sept. 24, 1890, and that as a Church in General Conference assembled, we accept his declaration concerning plural marriages as authoritative and binding. The vote to sustain the foregoing motion was unanimous.

248. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Vol. 13:130; Salt Lake City; Monday, October 6, 1890.

. . . The Church authorities were presented and sustained. 0. F. Whitney then read the Articles of our Faith and on motion of Franklin D. Richards they were accepted by the Church as its rules of guidance. Pres. Woodruff's manifesto was then read, and Lorenzo Snow moved that recognizing Pres. W. as the only man who now holds the keys of the sealing ordinance upon the earth, we sustain him in his action in this matter. The vote was unanimous. . . . Pres. Woodruff (12 min.) expressed his gratitude to the Saints for the support they had given him. He knew God would over rule this act for the good of His Saints. His course had been taken under direction of God, and rather than do anything contrary to the will of God, he would allow himself to be taken out to his death. . . .

249. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Vol. 13:131-134; Salt Lake City; Tuesday, October 7, 1890.

. . . I then went to the Gardo House where the majority of the First Presidency, Twelve, First Seven Presidents of the Seventy, Presiding Bishopric and Presidents of Stakes were assembled. . . .

George Q. Cannon: I feel like saying, Damn the law. We can expect neither justice nor mercy in the administration of the law with the present corrupt administrators. Women should be encouraged, for some feel as though they had been betrayed, and a man who will act the coward and shield himself behind the Manifesto for deserting his plural wife or wives, would be damned. I will prophesy that in our action at conference yesterday lies safety; the Lord has revealed this much to me. I believe that before long your men will be allowed to vote. If it were not for my public duties I would not live a day in my present condition, but my family understand that my liberty depends on refraining from visiting them in their homes and they are contented.

W. Woodruff: This manifesto only refers to future marriages, and does not affect past conditions. I did not, could not and would not promise that you would desert your wives and children. This you cannot do in honor.

W. F. Rigby of Bannock State: I know of cases in Bannock and Cache Stakes where some men are legalizing certain wives by marrying them before the Justice of the Peace, and then abandon the others. The sons of these deserted wives feel so enraged that they threaten to kick their fathers if they ever darken their doors.

Moses Thatcher: "If such things are done, those guilty should repent and do right or be severed from the Church." Father thought a private labor should be immediately commenced with such faithless men.

Angus M. Cannon: Because of the Manifesto many will feel justified in promising to obey the law when brought into court. I would not feel justified in such a course, but many may. . . .

250. John M. Whitaker Daily Journal; Journal 7, p. 11 (Vol 1:242, U. of U. edition); November 1, 1890. Typed as in original without use of [sic].

November 1st, 1890. Tonight after my days work, we all attended the regular anniversary Party of President John Taylor in the 14th ward assembly Hall, at which Presidents Wilford Woodruff and George Q. Cannon and other of the General Authorities were present, and at which Presidents Woodruff and Cannon related how President Taylor was tried as Abraham of Old, by the Prophet Joseph Smith just after the revelation on Plurality of wives was received, at a special meeting of the Twelve when the prophet explained the revelation to them, a number were very reluctant and in fact felt they could not support such a principal and John Taylor was the only one who stood up for the Prophet and a short time after this, the Prophet went to the home of President Taylor, and said to him, "Brother John, I WANT LEONORA, president's Wife,, of all the requests coming from the Prophet, this was the last straw; it is said. John Taylor never answered the prophet, turned away and walked the floor all night, but the next morning, went to the home of the Prophet's and said to him, Brother Joseph, IF GOD Wants Leonora He can have her. That was all the prophet was after, to see where President Taylor stood in the matter, and said to him, Brother Taylor, 'I don't want your wife, I just wanted to know just where you stood.' President Taylor was one of the most devout, loyal and Trustworthy persons the Prophet ever had save his Bother Hyrum, he loved him and offered his life for him at Carthage, when he stood in the doorway, parrying off the bullets fired by the mob, and at the Family Reunions often told his family How he loved the Prophet, and also said there is no love in the world equal to the Love I had for Joseph Smith How I loved that man, it was a different kind of love, surpassing an love for woman. He often wept in relating his experiences with the Prophet to his family and from the prophet he drank in the spirit of the Celestial order of thing and breathed in his heart the spirit of Celestial things, and no man in or out of the church has a better understanding of the great principles of the Kingdom of God and of Heavenly order of things than John Taylor. He breathed it in his speeches and in his writings as a Defendant of the Faith, and even President Brigham Young once said of him, John Taylor is the greatest mind I have ever met.

In relation to S. F. Ball who desires to go to Mexico and get a fourth wife, Father said it could not be done, as such things had ceased to occur even there. One young man who recently had this privilege, came back and allowed the knowledge of it to go out, and thus put the Church in danger. Father feels, as I do, that it is best to entirely cease the performance of such marriages for the present and thus make the brethren more appreciative of present blessings.

252. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Vol. 13:184; Salt Lake City; December 1, 1890.

Pres. Harrison's message to Congress today expresses pleasure at the increase of the Gentiles in Utah, and at Pres. Woodruff's manifesto. He says, however, that the doctrine of polygamy is not abolished by this announcement, and while not wishing to see legislation against a mere belief he suggests that the Mormons be given no power whereby they may make this practice lawful.

253. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Vol. 13:185; Salt lake City; December 2, 1890.

I attended my Quorum meeting. . . . We then spent nearly two hours in interesting and instructive conversation on various points of doctrine. The subject of the Josephite Church, its authority and gifts, was discussed, in the course of which John Henry Smith read a letter to him from the head of that Church--Joseph Smith--dated Nov.r 7th - the people and authorities here are congratulated therein for our abandonment of plural marriage, and the writer suggests that this matter could not habe originated with the Lord or it would have remained unchanged.---This man is certainly not sincere or he would have accepted the truth long ago, as he has had abundant evidence given him that his father, the Prophet, had more than one wife.

254. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Vol. 14:87; Salt Lake City; April 2, 1891.

(At the Gardo House with the Quorum) Thereafter Pres. Woodruff spoke: In the name of Jesus Christ I say that God has not forsaken the Presidency or Twelve. He inspired me to issue the Manifesto and if he had not done so I should never have taken that course even though all ordinances for the living and the dead had ceased, and our temples had fallen into the hands of our enemies. The principle of plural marriage will yet be restored to this Church, but how or when I cannot say. God will hold this nation responsible for the wrongs done this people.

255. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Vol. 15:36-37; Salt Lake City; August 20, 1891.

(Respecting anticipated meetings with the Master in Chancery) I attended my regular council meeting where all the Presidency and Twelve were present excepting Brigham Young, John Henry Smith and Geo. Teasdale. . . . it is felt that the situation here demands the saying of something in regard to the Manifesto and our future intentions in regard to polygamy, and hence it is expected that we will prove that the latter is really abandoned. Written questions, which it is likely will be asked in court, has been sent to all the Twelve for their replies. . . .

256. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Vol. 15:85-88; Salt Lake City; October 7, 1891.

. . . attended a meeting of the Presidents of Stakes, their counselors, the Bishops and their Counselors, the Presidency, Twelve and First Council of Seventies. . . . President Jos. F. Smith spoke. Among other things he said: 'God will not justify you in kicking out your families and stultifying yourselves in the eyes of all good men. We do not want you to leave your wives because of the Manifesto. Tell your people to take care of their families just as they have always done. What, cohabit with them? I would advise them not to do it in the United States. Take them where they will be safe and where you can live with them without violating the law. The time will come when those who endure faithful in this practice will receive a full, complete deliverance and be more exalted. All the principles are just as true as they ever were, and if they have been withdrawn it is because the people as a rule are unworthy of them. . . .'

Pres. Woodruff said among other things: 'I never would have issued the Manifesto had it not been for the inspiration of God to me.' About 3:15 p.m. we adjourned, and the Presidency and Twelve went to the Gardo House where we had some dinner, and then had a Council meeting concerning the replies we shall give concerning polygamy and cohabitation when the Church cases come before the Master in Chancery in the near future. There was considerable discussion with the result that we all got to the point where we realize that polygamy is no longer a law of the Church, and as far as our present families are concerned we must support and honor them, though if we live with them it is at our peril.

257. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Vol. 15:103; Salt Lake City; October 19, 1891.

(Wilford Woodruff on witness stand before Master in Chancery) Father and Pres. Woodruff were placed on the witness stand and questioned as to the uses to which Church funds received from tithing and donations had been put. They were also examined as to the meaning and intent of the Manifesto. They gave it their views that plural marriages had ceased in the Church and cohabitation was discountenanced. In fact, Pres. Woodruff said that he intended in the Manifesto to cause men who had plural wives to cease associating with them. This was on reply to Dickson's inquiry.

258. Wilford Woodruff Diary; Wilford Woodruff; Oct. 25, 1891.

"Thus saith the Lord" not to be used excessively

". . . The Lord is with us & gives us revelation. But I will say for myself that I wish to Avoid saying 'Thus Saith the Lord' as far as I Can when I give the will of the Lord to the people. In the days of Joseph Smith it was 'Thus saith the Lord' almost daily until the revelations now embodied in the Book of Doctrine & Covenants had been given. Since that day President Brigham Young and John Taylor to myself have seldom used the words 'Thus saith the Lord' when giving the word of the Lord to the people. In the 68 Sec of the Book of D&C we are informed that when men speak as they are moved upon by the Holy Ghost it is word of the Lord & revelation.

259. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Vol. 15:110; Salt Lake City; October 29, 1891.

(Abraham H. Cannon visit with his father, George Q. Cannon) He believes as I do that after a while a change will come whereby polygamists will be allowed to live with the families they already have.

260. Deseret News; reported by Arthur Winter; November 7, 1891. Remarks made by President Wilford Woodruff at the Cache Stake Conference, held in Logan, Sunday afternoon, on November 1, 1891.

I have had some revelations of late, and very important ones to me, and I will tell you what the Lord has said to me. Let me bring your minds to what is termed the Manifesto. The Lord has told me by revelation that there are many members of the Church throughout Zion who are sorely tried in their hearts because of that Manifesto. And also because of the testimony of the Presidency of the Church and the Apostles before the Master in Chancery. Since I received that revelation I have heard of many who are tried in these things, though I had not heard of any before that particularly. Now, the Lord has commanded me to do one thing, and I fulfilled that commandment at the conference at Brigham City last Sunday, and I will do the same here today. The Lord has told me to ask the Latter-day Saints a question, and He also told me that if they would listen to what I said to them and answer the question put to them, by the spirit and power of God, they would all answer alike, and they would all believe alike with regard to this matter. The question is this: 'Which is the wisest course for the Latter-day Saints to pursue---to continue to attempt to practice plural marriage, with the laws of the land against it and the opposition of 60,000 people and at the cost of the confiscation and loss of all the temples, and the stopping of all the ordinances therein, both for the living and the dead, and the imprisonment of the First Presidency and Twelve and heads of families in the Church, and the confiscation of all personal property of the people (all of which of themselves would not [?] stop the practice), or after doing and suffering what we have through our adherence to this principle to cease the practice and submit to the law and through doing so, to leave the Prophets, Apostles, and fathers at home, so that they can instruct the people and attend to the duties of the Church, and also leave the temples in the hands of the Saints, so that they can attend to the ordinances of the gospel, both for the living and for the dead?'

The Lord showed me by vision and revelation exactly what would take place if we did not stop this practice. If we had not stopped it would have had no use for Brother Merrill, for Brother Adlefson, for Brother Roskelley, for Brother Leishman, or for any of the men in this temple at Logan; for all ordinances would be stopped throughout the land of Zion. Confusion would reign throughout the whole Church and we would have been compelled to stop the practice. Now, the question is, whether it should be stopped in this manner, or in the way the Lord has manifested to us, and leave our Prophets and Apostles and fathers free men, and the temples in the hands of the people, so that the dead may be redeemed. A large number has already been delivered from the prison house in the spirit world, by this people, and shall the work go on or stop? This is the question I lay before the Latterday Saints. You have to judge for yourselves. I want you to answer for yourselves. I shall not answer it; but I say to you that is exactly the condition we as a people would have been in had we not taken the course we have.

I know there are a good many men and probably some leading men, in this Church who have been tried and felt as though President Woodruff had lost the spirit of God and was about to apostatize. Now, I want you to understand that he has not lost the Spirit nor is he about to apostatize. The Lord is with him, and with this people. He has told me exactly what to do, and what the result would be if we did not do it. I have been called upon by friends outside the Church and urged to take some steps with regard to this matter. They knew the course which the Government was determined to take. This feeling has also been manifested more or less by the members of the Church. I saw exactly what would come to pass if there was not something done. I have had this spirit upon me for a long time, but I want to say this: I should have let all the temples go out of our hands; I should have gone to prison myself; and let every other man go there; had not the God of Heaven commanded me to do what I did do; and when the hour came that I was commanded to do that, it was all clear to me. I went before the Lord, and wrote what the Lord told me to write. I laid it before my brethren--such strong men as Brother George Q. Cannon, Brother Joseph F. Smith, and the Twelve Apostles. I might as well undertake to turn an army with banners out of its course as to turn them out of a course that they considered to be right. No. Why? Because they were moved upon by the Spirit of God and by the revelations of Jesus Christ to do it. . . .

261. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Vol. 15:119-120; Salt Lake City; November 11, 1891.

Heber J. Grant who just returned from a pleasure jaunt in California and elsewhere, came in to obtain my views this afternoon concerning the recent testimony by the Presidency before the Mastery in Chancery. He feels that according to their statements made under oath none of us who have plural wives can live with them any place on the earth. He thinks, therefore, that the brethren should issue another manifesto commanding polygamists to cease cohabiting with plural wives, at least within the jurisdiction of the United States, otherwise some of us will be watched and captured with the result that we will nullify the testimony of the Presidency, and brand ourselves as a set of base deceivers. The testimony which they gave is opposed to what was decided should be given, at former council of ours. Heber will bring the matter up for discussion in an early council.

262. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon; Salt Lake City; November 12, 1891.

(At a council meeting with the First Presidency and members of the Quorum of the Twelve) The matter of the Manifesto and the extent of its meaning was then discussed. Pres. Woodruff said that he was placed in such a position on the witness stand that he could not answer other than he did; yet any man who deserts and neglects his wives or children because of the manifesto, should be handled on his fellowship. Our talk resolved itself into this that men must be careful to avoid exposing themselves to arrest or conviction for violation of the law, and yet they must not break their covenants with their wives.

263. The Contributor, p. 197; Feb 1892. HISTORICAL NOTE: The President [of the United States] and the Cabinet discussed this earnest appeal, and because the question arose as to the President's power to grant the amnesty, a bill was introduced by Senator Paddock amending the Edmunds-Tucker Act so as to give the President the desired authority.

Salt Lake City, Utah
December 21, 1891

TO THE PRESIDENT:

We have the honor to forward herewith a petition signed by the President and most influential members of the Mormon Church. We have no doubt of its sincerity, and no doubt that it is tendered in absolute good faith. The signers include some who were most determined in adhering to their religious faith, while polygamy, either mandatory or permissive, was one of its tenets, and they are men who would not lightly pledge their faith and honor to the Government or subscribe to such a document without having fully resolved to make their words good in letter and spirit. We warmly recommend a favorable consideration of this petition, and if your Excellency shall find it consistent with your public duties to grant the relief asked, we believe it would be graciously received by the Mormon people and tend to evince to them what has always been asserted, that the government is beneficent in its intentions, only asks obedience to its laws, and desires all law abiding citizens to enjoy all the benefits and privileges of citizenship. We think it will be better for the future if the Mormon people should now receive this mark of confidence.

As to the form and scope of a reprieve or pardon, granted in the exercise of your constitutional prerogative, we make no suggestions. You and your law advisers will best know how to grant what you may think should be granted.

We are, very respectfully,
/s/ Arthur L. Thomas,
Governor of Utah
/s/ Charles S. Zane
Chief Justice of Utah Territory

AMNESTY

The following petition for amnesty has been presented to the President of the United States:

Salt Lake, Dec. 19, 1891

"We the First Presidency and Apostles of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, beg respectfully to represent to your Excellency the following facts:

"We formerly taught to our people that polygamy, or celestial marriage, as commanded by God through Joseph Smith, was right; that it was a necessity to man's highest exaltation in the life to come.

"That doctrine was publicly promulgated by our President, the late Brigham Young, forty years ago, and was steadily taught and impressed upon the Latter-day Saints up to a short time before September, 1890. Our people are devout and sincere, and they accepted the doctrine, and many personally embraced and practiced polygamy.

"When the Government sought to stamp the practice out, our people, almost without exception, remained firm, for they, while having no desire to oppose the Government in anything, still felt that their lives and their honor as men were pledged to a vindication of their faith; and that their duty towards those whose lives were a part of their own was a paramount one, to fulfill which they had no right to count anything, not even their own lives, as standing in the way. Following this conviction hundreds endured arrest, trial, fine and imprisonment, and the immeasurable suffering borne by the faithful people, no language can describe. That suffering, in abated form, still continues.

"More, the Government added disfranchisement to its other punishments for those who clung to their faith and fulfilled its covenants.

"According to our faith the head of our Church receives, from time to time, revelations for the religious guidance of his people.

"ln September, 1890, the present head of the Church, in anguish and prayer, cried to God for help for his flock, and received permission to advise the members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, that the law commanding polygamy was henceforth suspended.

"At the great semi-annual conference which was held a few days later, this was submitted to the people, numbering many thousands and representing every community of the people in Utah, and was by them in the most solemn manner accepted as the future rule of their lives.

"They have since been faithful to the covenant made that day.

"At the late October conference, after a year had passed by, the matter was once more submitted to the thousands of people gathered together, and they again in the most potential manner, ratified the solemn covenant.

"This being the true situation and believing that the object of the government was simply the vindication of its own authority and to compel obedience to its laws, and that it takes no pleasure in persecution, we respectfully pray that full amnesty may be extended to all who are under disabilities because of the operation of the so-called Edmunds and EdmundsTucker laws. Our people are scattered; homes are made desolate; many are still imprisoned; others are banished or in hiding. Our hearts bleed for those. In the past they followed our counsels, and while they are thus afflicted our souls are in sackcloth and ashes.

"We believe there are nowhere in the Union a more loyal people than the Latter-day Saints. They know no other country except this. They expect to live and die on this soil.

"When the men of the South, who were in rebellion against the government, in 1865, threw down their arms and asked for recognition along the old lines of citizenship, the Government hastened to grant their prayer.

"To be at peace with the Government and in harmony with their fellow citizens who are not of their faith, and to share in the confidence of the government and people, our people have voluntarily put aside something which all their lives they have believed to be a sacred principle.

"Have they not the right to ask for such clemency as comes when the claims of both law and justice have been fully liquidated?

"As shepherds of a patient and suffering people, we ask amnesty for them, and pledge our faith and honor for their future.

"And your petitioners will ever pray. Wilford Woodruff, George Q. Cannon, John Henry Smith, M. W. Merrill, John W. Taylor, Joseph F. Smith, Lorenzo Snow, Moses Thatcher, Anthon H. Lund, H. J. Grant, Franklin D. Richards, Francis M. Lyman, Abraham H. Cannon.

Dear Brother: * * *

With reference to the "Manifesto" prohibiting plural marriages, I scarcely need to say more than that you expressed yourself on that matter Strictly in accord with my own views, and in harmony with the views of President Woodruff-and the facts.

The doctrine is not repealed, the truth is not annulled, the law is right and just now as ever, but the observance of it is stopped. And as to the future--no man knows, only as it may be revealed to him, and no one is authorized to foretell. We may have opinions, but it may not be wise to express them for by doing so antagonism might be engendered [P. 4] Altho our belief would necessarily come within the relm of conjecture only. I am willing to let the matter rest with God for I feel I have done my whole duty, as an individual, in regard to that matter. Of course this is not germane to your question, but I trust you will pardon the digression. I certainly believe fully in the Revelation and I know the principle is sound and right. I believe those who entered into it, are as sacredly obligated today to fulfil their covenants as they ever were. The Manifesto stopped further pl. marriages in time, but it did not divorce a single wife--nor relieve a man who had entered into the Covenant, of a single responsibility. The operation of the law--as to further pl. marriages was suspended--or stopped: but the obligations already incurred were not touched. * * *

With very Kind regards, I am &c. /s/ Jos. F. Smith

266. Notes from the Historical Department, Vol. 3:111; Thursday, October 26th, 1899.

The following report was read by the secretary to the Council, it having been collated through correspondence with the several stake presidents. All the stakes were included in this report excepting Wayne, that is, the stakes within the confines of the United States:--

In 1890, at the time of President Woodruff's manifesto, there were 2,000, 451 polygamic [sic] families in existence. Since then this number has been reduced as follows: 750 by death, 63 by removals into Mexico and Canada, 95 by divorce; leaving 1,543 polygamic families in the United States. This shows that 37% of these families had ceased to exist as polygamist families since Woodruff's manifesto.

At Wasatch Stake MIA Conference, remarks of Sister and President Joseph F. Smith: "Sister Smith bore a very strong testimony to the divinity of the principle of plural marriage. Pres. Smith endorsed it. He said it was taken away from the people--like the law of consecration--because the saints rejected it, and neither would be restored until there is a people prepared to live them. Anyone should beware that casts slurs upon the birth of those born under this covenant. Also that men who will not appreciate their wives and children and provide for them will lose them."

I was sealed to Joseph Smith the Prophet by commandment, in the Spring of 1831. The Savior appeared and commanded him to seal me up to everlasting life, gave me to Joseph to be with him in his Kingdom even as he is in the Fathers Kingdom. In 1834 he was commanded to take me for a wife, I was a thousand miles from him, he got afraid. The angel come to him three times the last time with a drawn Sword and threatened his life. I did not believe, if God told him. So, why did he not come and tell me. [p. 2] The angel told him I should have a witness, and an angel came to me, it went through me like lightning, I was afraid. Joseph Said he came with [unreadable word] more Revelation and Knowledge than Joseph ever dare reveal. Brigham Young sealed me to him, for time and all eternity. Joseph Said I was his, before I came here. he said all the Devils in Hell should never get me from him. I was

Dear Brother: April 21, 1902

I herewith enclose a statement of one of our aged sisters who while visiting me here in Provo during Conference time related to me for my entertainment some of her Nauvoo experiences, and thinking that perhaps the enclosed statement might be of interest to you, if not a matter of sufficient importance to become a part of Church history, I had a stenographic report make on the points set forth by her concerning the practice of plural marriage and the endowments, both of which are so strenuously denied by the so-called Reorganized Church.

My health is, I believe, somewhat better, yet I am far from being on a working basis. In many respects I feel much better. I have planned to visit the Temple to-morrow and be baptized for my health and receive such blessings there as the Lord may have in store for me, then on the 23rd go with Brother Joseph E. Robinson, President of the California Mission, to the Coast.

With kindest regards and brotherly love, I am as ever

Dear Brother

In reply to your request through the "News" that "Copies of all publications by the Elders in defence of the truth should be forwarded to your office" To comply with which I inclose two pamphlets. The first is a mutilated and only copy I have left of a pamphlet written in Honolulu ST and published in San Francisco in 1854. Which was one of the first publications in defence of plural marriage by the missionaries sent out in 1852.

And now should this old broken copy be deemed by you of little or no worth to the office I would be grateful to you for its return.

The other pamphlet was written in the "Crusade" just before the "Manifesto" and both pamphlets in their times were efficient in closing the mouths of our enemies, and now Brother Lund I respectfully ask if there is anything further needed in Testimony from one who received the Gospel in 1831 and from 1833 until the time of his death was a close observer and much of that period a close associate with the prophet. Being from the earliest days at Kirtland and acquainted personally with D. P. Thurlbut and with the Spauldin Fake from its inception after which in the winter of 1840 I baptized into the church some of the "Spauldins" where that romance was written/ I was with the Prophet at Far West and at Adam ondi Ahman where at the time Pres Joseph F. Smith was born I was prisoner in Gen Wilsons camp At the Prophets Escape from Mo I was with him at old commerce then called "the grave yard" and was his constant atendant through his severe sickness there in Sep 1839 - the same fall I left there and after a mission to Canada and the middle states returned to Nauvoo in the spring 1842 when as the Prophets legal atorney or agent I was placed in charge at Ramus Soon after which I was instructed in the Sealing Powr of the Priesthood and taught the duty of plural marriage and he then having my sister widow of Lyman R. Shirman as wife by proxy he soon through my consent took another sister then living with us to be his wife, after which I proceeded with his means and my own to build a large brick joint residence for his wife and my own which was just being completed at his death.

The first plural wife brought to my house with whom the prophet stayed was Eliza Patridge after which he was there with my sister Almera as his wife - on April 2d and May 16th 1843 the Prophet was at my house with Wm Clayton as scribe at which time was written in answer to questions asked all of sections 130 to 131 Doc & Cov and he then gave to us all keys of knowledge contained in sec 129 & 132 of the both before it was written On may 17th He sealed to me my first wife and he gave to me to be my wife a young orphan girl then living with us who I think is now the only woman in Israel still living with the man to whom she was given by the Prophet.

With the prophets home life both in the "Mansion" with Emma as before I was well acquainted with the "Lawrence Girls" that I knew were living in the "mansion" by Emma's consent as his wives as also others with homes elsewhere of which she knew of the prophets circle of friends or private council I was among the first called and am now the only one left to remember the wonderful things that he taught unto the marvelous incidents that transpired just previous to his death especially the one in which he while filled with Prophetic Teaching turns to the Twelve who were present as members of that council and with a powr of language rarely heard by mortals he reviewed the past of his life in labor and sacrifice under the burden of responsibilities that had heretofore rested upon him pertaining to the Kingdom of God which was now upon earth The responsibility of which "To bear it off to all the world he then and there placed upon the shoulders of the twelve in conection with that council declaring with a voice that shook the very house and thrilled every heart that he was clean from the blood of this generation and from all men and he raised himself from the floor with a vehemuth not to be described as he shook his skirts free from the blood of all men and from all further responsibility in bearing of the kingdom of God to all the earth, and said that those who were now made responsible would be damned did they not fulfill there calling" and altho both his words and his doings forboded his death we yet could not deem it posible that he would leave us - and now at about 85 in age I am the only one left to bear testimony as he said I should "When Hoary with age" In relation to the "Kingdom and Government of God as it would exist imbracing all nations upon earth" I was with him when writing the "Powrs and policy of the U S Government" His letters to Clay Calhoon and to James Arlington Bennet and was Conversant with all the last acts of his life.

. . . the admissions made by President Smith and Apostle Lyman have greatly angered the country. Speaking of their testimony generally, I would not want to change a word. Some things might have been made clearer, some might have been shown up in a more favorable light, but as a whole, they did the best they could. An honest confession being good for the soul, I think the testimony ought to do us all good. I think it might have been better if the President had not said that the Gentiles "condoned" his lapses; that gave them a chance to quibble,--and they have taken advantage of it. If he had simply said that he had broken the law, that his offenses were generally known, or at least, that he had not covered them up, that the courts are open and the officers of the courts non-Mormons, the state of things would have been generally recognized. . . . The hard part of the testimony is to come yet. President Smith and Apostle Lyman have admitted that they have broken the law of the land and the law of God in their course of conduct, and though Brother Lyman said he was "not repentant" yet if the declaration is to count for any thing it means that polygamy is to go with the generation which began its practice before the Manifesto. I do not think that the brethren realize what they say when they declare that they have broken the law of God,--they make him out a very easy "Boss". The truth of the matter is that very few of our people have been willing to admit that the Manifesto was a revelation and that the leading authorities have not encouraged this view, but rather that the necessities of the cause compelled that we openly give up what we secretly clung to. Now Senator Smoot's answers to the protests have insisted that the Manifesto was the word of God and the President of the Church has so declared it, and, in spite of his conduct to the contrary, this will carry great weight, unless it be conclusively proved that the leaders have never so regarded it, and that some of them are not willing to so regard it at the present time. I refer to the possible contingency that Apostles Cowley and Taylor will refuse to regard it so. I want to see Brother Taylor compelled to make this admission. I think we are greatly indebted to him for all this "unpleasantness"--if you can refer to a national scandal as such. I for one want to see polygamy go, and I believe that we have got to ask aid from the enemy to have it go, that is, that we have not strength of character to live up to our promises, we need a little compulsion from the outside. . . .

. . . I almost tumbled out of my chair when the boy brought the paper this morning and I read the heading,--"Yield to the Law"--"Polygamy Renounced by Conference of Mormons." I was very glad to read the statement made by President Smith. I do not see how he could do more. I wish it had come ten years ago, but, in this world we are not changed in the twinkling of an eye, we grow more and more unto the perfect day. The fact that President Smith was sustained by the conference is completely lost in the statement that polygamy--new polygamous marriages,--will be prosecuted by the Church courts. Of course, the charge is on the tongues end of the opponents that this declaration is not made in good faith, and the President is inconsistent in what he denounces, or makes punishable, the sins of others, but leaves his own violations of the law unmentioned, but we will let that go in the general thanks--saying that we who do not want to see polygamy reestablished can stand on the declaration of the President of the Church that the Church will punish these things. If I wanted to be critical, I would point to the fact that the language of the statement is all in the future tense, that is, the part which declares punishment. Then the wording "will be liable to be dealt with", etc, might, according to my opinion, be better rendered, "will be excommunicated"; that word "liable" is a weak word, but if the people will put strength into it, it will serve the purpose. . . .

. . . It is impossible to say just what the developments of the last week will do. If the Senate comes to the conclusion that the obligations taken in the Temple are merely archaical, academical, and that they do not bind the conscience and the conduct of those who take them, I suppose that they will not be sufficient to unseat the Senator; but if these ceremonies are thought to mean just what they say, I do not see how the judgement that they are against "public policy" will be avoided. Do not quote me on this matter. . . .

274. Post Woodruff Manifesto Plural Marriage and the Reed Smoot Hearings, Extracts from some letters of Carl A. Badger, Secretary to Reed Smoot; the Carl A. Badger papers may be found in Archives & Manuscripts, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; February 12, 1905.

. . . This is a contemptible attitude for us to be in. We have said that certain things do not exist, they are proved to exist; we say that if they are proved to exist that the guilty ones will be punished, and now they are going to wait to see if we mean what we say. James H. Anderson tells me plainly that there is nothing in the manifesto. Think of such a thing. And I know that there are many of the leaders of the Church who are acting on this theory. It is abominable. We are occupying a cowardly, hypocritical attitude in this matter, and cannot but reap a harvest of humiliation and shame. There is no use quibbling about whether we made a "compact" or a "covenant", no one doubts but what the country, which had been fighting us on this issue for a quarter of a century, understood that polygamy had gone, and we allowed them to have such an impression,--encouraged them in it for our own ends, and we are now estopped to say that we made no agreement. Where is our honor in this matter. It makes me angry. Well, the end is not yet. . . .

275. Post Woodruff Manifesto Plural Marriage and the Reed Smoot Hearings, Extracts from some letters of Carl A. Badger, Secretary to Reed Smoot; the Carl A. Badger papers may be found in Archives & Manuscripts, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; May 11, 1906.

. . . Did you read the editorial in the News of May 1st, "Wrong and Irrational." The News could hardly have done the Senator greater damage if it had deliberately planned it. The common understanding is that Taylor and Cowley were compelled to resign because they had been guilty of taking new wives since the Manifesto; the News says they were out of harmony with the Apostles in regard to certain regulations, and being out of harmony, handed in their resignations. It looks as though the action of conference was in bad faith. The truth of the matter is that it was. The same men who were then deposed could have been sustained by the same people who voted against them. The fact that without explanation the successors of these men could be sustained and the men thereby deprived of their callings, is a striking instance of the unthinking, blind obedience of the Mormon people. Well, it will end someday. . . .

276. Post Woodruff Manifesto Plural Marriage and the Reed Smoot Hearings, Extracts from some letters of Carl A. Badger, Secretary to Reed Smoot; the Carl A. Badger papers may be found in Archives & Manuscripts, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; June 22, 1906.

. . . Let me come to the point of difficulty first: I am not disposed to argue the question of polygamy; that day has gone by. I do not agree with you on the merits of the question, but I think we should agree that there can be no new marriages. That polygamy is right, divine, a perfect relation cannot change the matter; we have said that God has told us not to enter into the relation any more, and we must keep our promise, and will. Now, I know, as you do, that a great deal of our difficulty has come from the fact that a large number of these new marriages have taken place in Mexico--when I say know, I do not mean that you have been present when the marriages took place, but that you know it as we know other things by indisputable evidences that such things have occured; among our people the fact that a woman bears children is positive proof that a marriage has taken place, and that the parties living in that relation feel that their union has the approval of God above and his Church below. I have no patience with the silly subterfuge by which these persons say they assume the complete responsibility and that the Church does not share with them in the matter; what is meant is that the Church shall not be compelled to bear the consequences of the act which the participants believe the Church sustains them in--what they mean is that they will say that the Church is in no way responsible to protect the Church, but that these people do not think that they have the approval of the priesthood is inconceivable to one who knows the persons concerned and the views of all Mormons in relation to virtue,--a moral relation is only possible to one who has gone through the Temple when the priesthood has authorized its assumption. Well, there is nothing new in this, I am sure.

When I say that I am glad that you have not married a new wife, I say so because I believe our honor is more to us than anything on earth; and we must keep our word sacred. If we wish to convert the world to the truths of polygamy, let us first be honest. If as a people we had strictly observed the Manifesto, I believe that our example would have challenged the admiration of the world; but we have thought that there is something higher than honesty, and behold our confusion. I resent anyone saying that I am not as loyal to my people as those who deny conditions which they know exist; and I affirm my determination to try to tell the truth about everything. I wish it could have been said to the Senate Committee: Come, gentlemen, bring your searchlights; go into every corner; we will hide nothing; our record is like the saying of the Almighty, one jot or one tittle of the word that has proceeded from our mouth has not remained unfulfilled. How proud we would be today if this were so, though it had caused the blood to flow from many hearts. One man at the head of the American nation has done more in five years for reform because he has been honest, than has been accomplished in any twenty years before. Simple honesty, the facts, publicity, is his sovereign remedy; a remedy from which we shrink--but I pray for the last time. I wish it were possible for me to hurl in the teeth of the world the accusation and the boast: While you have been cruel, we have been honest.

Of course what we have done is but an exhibition of human nature, and it is remarkable that no more instances of new marriages have taken place than have really occured, but those that have occured are to our discredit. We have had the proud title of a people who kept their word; I have lived to see the day when honorable, conscientious men have disputed that we held the title by right; I want to see our claim to this title acknowledged again, and will.

You ask if I intend to repudiate the principle that gave me birth. I hope to heaven I never shall. I believe I have defended its virtues, its benefits, its cleanness, its humanity, as strongly as I know how; and I am sure that I love and respect my father and mother for what they have done for me. I cannot see that polygamy is ideal in an ideal state. It seems to me that one honorable woman and one honorable man form the ideal union, but as I have said before, I regard any argument based on the question of the merits of polygamy as out of the question as far as it affects the question of the practice of the principle. We have said that we have given up the practice, and no matter how high we regard it, we must give it up. We cannot go back to the practice of the principle without dishonor, and I have always been taught that dishonor was impossible for a Mormon.

277. Anthony Woodard Ivins Journal; Special Priesthood Meeting; 10:00 a.m. October 8, 1906.

John R. Winder. . . read from remarks of Pres. Smith April Conference 1904 regarding plural marriages. Also resolution presented by F. H. Lyman. It is said that the above was done simply for effect and was not intended to be enforced. That there is an inner circle where these things are better understood. THERE IS NO INNER CIRCLE. The Presidency & Apostles are united to a man on this question and maintain the declarations made above & expect it to be enforced. There is no inner circle and this policy is sapping the faith of young people in the Church and we want every officer present to see that the policy of the Church is maintained. I am speaking for myself. Pres. Smith: "You are speaking for all of us."

Pres. Smith: While Pres. Winder made himself clear I desire to make his remarks clearer. This whispering which has been so prevalent and which has brought some of our brethren into trouble is wrong. Every sensible man ought to know that when we make public assertions that we mean it, and when men come around whispering that there are other Counsels, that there is an inner circle other than they have received, and some of them have not received what they merited. The talk about Reed Smoot being the cause of the trouble is ridiculous nonsense. Sustain those who sustain you. Get out of debt. Do not seek pleasures to excess. . . . Every young man in Israel should marry and not go whoring after the world. Very important. Officials should not be called by official titles.

278. Post Woodruff Manifesto Plural Marriage and the Reed Smoot Hearings, Extracts from some letters of Carl A. Badger, Secretary to Reed Smoot; the Carl A. Badger papers may be found in Archives & Manuscripts, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; February 21, 1907.

. . . I must confess that the situation is beyond me. The Senator has just said that he intends to tell the brethren when he gets home that if they want to continue this "polygamy business" they must leave the United States. I asked if he meant unlawful cohabitation, and he said no. Well, I am dumfounded that there should be the least suggestion of the possibility of the Church attempting to establish polygamy; that it should be thought of for a moment. The Senator also says that if Taylor and Cowley are brought back and placed in the quorum of the apostles nothing will save us from the wrath of the American people. I cannot entertain the thought that such a thing is possible. To think of it as being possible is to make the Church out a hypocritical fraud; but here is the Senator talking about the calamity as though it were a possibility....

279. Letter from the First Presidency to Elder Henry H. Rolapp; Notes from the Historical Department, Vol 3:153; April 10, 1909.

April lOth, 1909
Elder Henry H. Rolapp,
Ogden

Dear Brother:--
Referring to your favor of the 29th ult., containing enclosure in the shape of a copy of letter from Mr. Fred J. Kiesel to Mr. A. Plehn, Emperial German Consul at Denver, answering the Consul on the present statis [sic] of polygamy, we suggest that you use Mrs. Kiesel in the way indicated by you, that is, as a means of conveying to the German Consul the facts in relation to the stand taken by the Church on the question of polygamy. In this connection we may remind you that we fought this question through the courts, maintaining our right under the Constitution to practice plural marriage as part of our religion, and that this was done until the court of last resort decided the anti-polygamy laws to be constitutional, and that since President Woodruff's manifesto of 1890, the Church has in no wise sanctioned the solemnization of plural marriages. But that while we have no direct testimony, we have reason to believe the Elders Taylor and Cowley fell [sic] to strictly observe the manifesto, and for that reason failed to appear at the Smoot hearing at Washington, and were therefore dropped from their position as members of the Quorum of Apostles; but it is our understanding that whatever they did was done in Mexico in the belief that the manifesto applied only to the United States.
We may add also that a consensus [sic] of the polygamist families in America has been taken on two different occasions, and a report of the same made to the government, going to show that they are fast dying out, and that it is only a question of time when they will cease to exist.
For your information we may say that Prest. Sergef. Ballif of the Swiss and German mission has been in correspondence with Senator Smoot with a view to the Senator's interesting himself in behalf of our Church in Germany, by way of getting the Secretary of State to take the matter up with the German Government with a view to the German Government's granting to our missionaries the same liberty accorded to other foreign missionaries. And anything you can say, that Mr. Kiesel, to the German consol [sic] at Denver May 8, and perhaps hasten favorable action. We suggest however that you do this yourself, as we do not wish to be put under obligations to Mr. Kiesel for obvious reasons.
Your brethren,
Joseph F. Smith

Attended meeting of Quorum at Temple. President Smith was still suffering with rheumatism. He is confined to his bed. The Quorum discussed the question of New polygamy cases and I stated that it was my opinion that all new cases should be excommunicated from the church and that action should be taken at once. Also that the church should not retain any man taking a plural wife after the Manifesto in a church position where people were asked to support him. All members present agreed with this position. Present at meeting Lyman, Smoot, Penrose, Whitney, Richards, McKay and Jos. F. Smith Jr. . . . (Later) I told Pres Lund and John Henry Smith my ideas of the action that should be taken by the church in the new polygamy cases and also thought Pres Smith should instruct the Presidents of Stakes and Bishops and Wards to begin action against any such living in their stakes or wards. Pres Lund wanted me to tell Pres Smith and I will do so as soon as he is well enough. ln the evening I met Bp Mibley and we spent a couple of hours in discussing the coming campaign and I told him what I had said to the Quorum of the new polygamy cases. He agreed with me that action should be taken.

Attended a meeting of Quorum of Apostles at 10 oclock AM. All present but Clawson, Geo A. Smith and Ivins. I opened meeting by prayer. I made a statement regarding the new polygamy cases and insisted that the church take action against them at once. I believe that every person taking a plural wife since the manifesto should not be sustained in prominent positions in the church where the people have to vote for them and I strongly demand that cases at least since April 1904 be excommunicated and vigorous action commenced at once. The question was discussed the whole day. The most of the members agreed with me but thought that a wholesale slaughter should not be made of those who were induced to take plural wives by Taylor, Cowley, Woodruff and Merrill before Pres Smith's declaration of April 1904, but drop them as fast as conditions will permit without making a great stir about it.

282. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Wednesday, 28 September 1910. I called on President Smith and told him what I said to the Quorum on new polygamy cases and I told him I thought some public statement should be made by him at the coming Conference and instruct the President[s] of Stakes and Bishops of Wards to handle all new cases. This must be done to prove to our people we are sincere in our opposition to new polygamy. We talked for over one hour and I tried to cover the whole ground. Meeting of the Quorum at 11 oclock. Israel Barlow Jr. was summoned before the Quorum to answer to charges against him of marrying Miss Welling within the last few years, also for lying and forgery. He did not appear. He was excommunicated for marrying the girl. The girl's brother was present and stated he knew his sister was not married in April 1909.

Gospel Mysteries

At 11 oclock met with the Quorum of twelve. All present but Clawson and Geo A Smith. We had before us Patriarch Judson Tolman having cited him to appear and answer the charge of his having married different men to plural wives contrary to the rules and regulations of the church. We tried to get the whole truth out of him but could not do it. He acknowledged to having performed fifteen plural marriages. We tried to get out of him who they were but he said he could not remember. He mentioned four as follows: Bp Muir, Jas Eldridge, a Mr. Pratt and Merrill. We could not get the names of the others but found out he had married a woman himself but did not know who performed the ceremony. The party had a mask on. He, himself, married most of the parties on the street and some in buggies and one or two in a house. He told us the first marriage he performed was Bp Muir and he insisted all were before April 1904, the year of the declaration of President Smith. It was evident to all he was not telling the truth and had been instructed what to say but he would not tell with whom he had been talking. We adjourned until 3 oclock and asked Bp Muir to be present. He was present and admitted he married a plural wife on June 14/05. He would not inform on anyone else--did not believe the declaration of President Smith was made in good faith nor the Woodruff manifesto was ever intended to put a stop to polygamy--claimed they had been going on ever since 1890 and no action taken. Believed now that they were stopped because action was being taken. The bunch, as he designated them, knew each one ran a risk and was liable to be excommunicated if found out. We agreed to summon Judson Tolman before us again to show cause why he should not be excommunicated next Monday, October 3rd, at 10:30 am. at Temple rooms. We also thought we would get some additional information from him. I have insisted that action should be taken long ago and today's proceedings demonstrate it beyond a question.

Meeting at the Temple at 10:30 a.m. Judson Tolman was present as requested. He told a little more about how he came to perform the illegal marriages and had been instructed to put them all back of April 1904, by Henry S. Tanner and others because it was necessary to save himself and others. He continued to evade and even lie about certain actions of his. After he was excused it was unanimously agreed to excommunicate him from the church for performing plural marriages and also for having married a woman himself contrary to the rules and order of the church.

Meeting of Quorum at 9 oclock. We discussed the Tolman case for nearly one hour and Pres Lyman was instructed to send him a notice of excommunication similar to published notice in News of last evening. We did not mention his lying and taking another wife in 1905. Pres Lund and John Henry came in at 10 oclock and reports were made. We clothed and Lyman prayed in opening and I in circle. We took up the question of a circular letter to be signed by the First Presidency to the Presidency's [sic] of all the stakes of Zion, calling their attention to new polygamy cases and directing them to bring action against any such persons who have violated the declaration of Pres Smith made at April Conference, 1904. At one oclock adjourned until 5 oclock. . . . Meeting at Temple 5 oclock. We agreed upon the letter and construction of same after nearly two hours discussion. We discussed the question of dropping all known polygamists for positions where the comming [sic] Conference was asked to vote for them; that is, all polygamists marrying since 1890. I made the motion but it was not carried as President Lund suggested we do not present the auxiliary organizations at this conference and in doing this we avoid presenting any such person. This was agreed to. I thought the President if he was able to attend meeting should make a statement and define his position on new Polygamy cases in such a way that none can misunderstand. Adjourned a few minutes after 8 oclock.

286. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Saturday, 8 October 1910. The special priesthood meeting held at 10 oclock in the Assembly Hall. Very large attendance. Pres Lund in his remarks called attention to new polygamy cases and stated they were against the rules of the church and rumors had become so numerous and in some cases proofs that it was found necessary to take some strong stand and repeat[ed] the letter that was agreed upon that was going to be sent to each Stake Presidency with instructions that all cases be handled and excommunication be administered in cases found guilty. He was followed by President Smith and he did not mince words. He stated no man has been authorized by him to solemnize a plural marriage since the manifesto and [any] man claiming he had [been] was a liar and if proven he should be excommunicated from the church. He wanted the Bishops and Presidents of Stakes to do their duty and handle such cases. Pres Lyman spoke and referred to men starting the rumor [that] I was out of harmony with my quorum and stated it was not true. This rumor was started by Jos. Cardon of Logan so Pres Lyman informed me. Pres Smith asked me to speak and I did so for a few minutes pleading with all men to be true to their pledges made to man and God. After meeting the Quorum met and agreed to issue summons on Jas W. Summerhays to appear next Wednesday before the Quorum and show cause why he should not be excommunicated from the church for performing plural marriages and also taking a plural wife.

287. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Wednesday, 12 October 1910.

Went direct to Temple and found the Quorum present with Jas W. Summerhays. Pres Lyman read the summons and asked Summerhays to make whatever statement he wished to. He was talking and questioned until one oclock and adjournment was taken until 4 oclock. He claimed President Smith advised him in 1898 to take another wife and gave him authority to marry Miss Sears in Mexico in February 1906. When questioned he said he thought President Smith had done so and stated the circumstances, but Pres Smith told me his statements were not true. At 4 oclock we met and talked the statement made by Summerhays over and all were in favor of dropping him from all church positions but not to excommunicate him with the exception of Lyman and myself. I think he made statements that were not true and so did Lyman. He wanted to place the blame on Pres Smith. The decision agreed upon by majority vote was to drop him from all church positions.

288. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Thursday, 13 October 1910. Meeting of Quorum and Presidency at Temple. . . . We agreed to summons M. F. Cowley, John W. Taylor and H. S. Tanner before us to show cause why they should not be excommunicated from the church for marrying plural wives and performing said marriages and other actions unbecoming a member of the church. We agreed upon the changing of several Stake Presidencies where polygamists were in them having married their wives since the Manifesto. When the changes are made the new presidencies will be asked to handle new cases of polygamy. The crowd that [has] been marrying and getting others to marry plural wives [is] beginning to think the church is in earnest.

289. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Wednesday, 9 November 1910.

Meeting of Quorum at Temple at 10 oclock. All present but Grant, Geo A Smith and Rudger Clawson. H. S. Tanner was present to answer to the charge of having married plural wives and performing plural marriages contrary to the rules of the church, also encouraging others to enter plural marriages. His position was that he had done no wrong and would not answer certain questions. He was given one week to decide whether he would answer of not. He claimed the party performing the marriage required him to never divulge his name, the date and place. He was to see the party and find out if he would release him from the obligation entered into.

Held a meeting with first Presidency and F. M. Lyman for purposes of discussing the question of new polygamy cases and what action the church was going to take with them. I wanted to know positively so if asked by President Taft or other Senators I could answer with a knowledge that my position would be right. All cases after 1904 would be handled and if testimony could be secured against them they would be excommunicated from the church. All cases between the Woodruff manifesto and 1904 should be dealt with according to the circumstances and if drawn into by Apostles they would not be excommunicated but would be relieved of all positions in the church where the people were asked to vote for them. President Smith wanted to wait until tomorrow morning for final decision on latter point and we were to meet in the morning at 9 oclock.

Met at Presidents office and agreed upon the future action of church on the new polygamy cases as outlined yesterday.

292. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Tuesday, March 4, 1911.

Held a long meeting with the Presidency and presented my views on the present situation on the new polygamy cases and the sentiment of the leading men of the country. The immediate cause of the renewal of the discussion of this subject is the many magazine articles on the mormon question charging a return to the practice of polygamy by the church members. I again insisted that the only way the church can clear itself is to handle every new case of polygamy and remove from any position in the church. The church or church authorities cannot or will not be believed as to their sincerity in abolishing polygamy if men violating the rules and promise that it should cease are sustained as officers of the church such as Bishops and Presidents of Stakes etc. They seem to think that the fact that the church has not approved or sanctioned the marriages [means] it cannot be held responsible for them. Many of them were authorized by President Cannon. The Presidency seem to be fearful of results on members of the church if a wholesale action is taken. I am of the opinion non action will have a worse effect especially upon the young people.

293. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Thursday, 16 March 1911.

Attended meeting of Quorum at Temple 10:30 A.M. . . . I again called the question of new polygamy cases up for consideration; again told them of the danger to the church of holding men entering into polygamy since the manifesto in office and stated it was my opinion that we should drop them from all positions where people are asked to vote for them. If we do not do so we cannot convince Pres Roosevelt or the American people that we are honest or sincere. I spoke of the letter of Pres Roosevelt's to Isaac Russell that he expects to publish in Colliers magazine in connection with an article he is preparing as an answer to [Frank] Cannon's articles. I am in doubt as to the wisdom of it for we know there have been new cases. ... [Later] With Ed Callister called on the Presidency and discussed the Roosevelt letter to Isaac Russell and both of us impressed upon them with as much force as we could the necessity of dropping men who have entered into polygamy since the manifesto. No other data [?] will answer. We looked over the Stake authorities and there was not over 14 or 15 in office and by the removal of a President of Stake in some cases we removed three. This is the case in David and Granite Stakes.

I sent a long telegram to Geo F Gibbs for President Smith on effect of the Anti-Mormon magazine articles and expressing my opinion as to what must be done with men holding positions in the church that have married in polygamy since the manifesto.

Received an answer to my telegram of yesterday.

296. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Sunday, 2 April 1911.

The Presidents answer was a disappointment. He does not understand the feeling of the people. The country will not accept excuses and they will not consider it humiliating a man to punish him for same. It is evident no action against the persons taking polygamist wives before 1904 will be taken. If there is another investigation I do not know how present position will be justified in face of testimony given in my case before Senate Committee. We are in a bad position for an examination or investigation.

297. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Friday, 7 April 1911.

Received a cipher telegram from President Smith stating he would read at conference this afternoon an answer to the charges made by the magazines and asked me to have the Associated Press instruct their local representative to secure synopsis of statement of about 1200 words and have it published in papers generally. I called Mr. Elliott Associated Press Representative and asked him to see that Salt Lake Representative was instructed to get synopsis of statement and have it carried as full as possible. He took it up with Melvin Stone over the telephone.

298. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Saturday, 8 April 1911.

President Smith wires me that he will not make answer to magazine articles at conference until Sunday and wants me to arrange with Associated Press to carry a synopsis of statement of 1200 words. I wired Melvin Stone Mgr New York asking him to do so. Received answer as follows: "Cannot promise but will have synopsis brought in here as special and will see what can be done." I wired Pres Smith accordingly.

Mrs. Susa Young Gates
My dear sister
Please pardon my delay in answering your note.
I will gladly give you what information I can concerning my mother, Elvira Anna Cowles, daughter of Austin and Phebe Cowles was born Nov. 23, 1813, at Unadilla, Otsego Seal, New York. She was treasurer for the first Relief Society and also one of the plural wives of the Prophet Joseph Smith. After the Prophets death, she was sealed for time to Jonathan H. Holmes, (then a widower with on [sic] child). to them was born 5 children (of which I am the only surviving one) she buried her first child I believe (page 2) in Winter Quarters. She came to Utah with the pioneers in 1847. She had with her, her little step daughter, my father being in the Mormon Battalion. She walked and drove her own ox and cow team the entire way across the plains. She settled in S.L.C. with the saints until her husband joined her after being released from the M.B. she taught the first school that was taught in what was called the "old fort" and took wolf meat, sego and thistle roots for pay. Her first child born after entering the valley, was born in the "old fort," July 17, 1849. Soon after that time, they moved to Farmington. She was a teacher, in the first R.S. in that place. She was a weaver by occupation and in her time, she wove all (page 3) kinds of weaves, from bed counter pains to mens wear, woven out and women's out and underwear, table linen towels and gingham for aprons. My father raised sheep and flax from which she made cloth, thread and head and foot wear. She was a hard working, industrious women [sic], an affectionate wife, a kind and loving mother, a good neighbor and a true and faithful Latter-Day Saint. Through exposure she died at the age of 58 years at Farmington Davis Co. Utah. I have only an enlarged, old, and very old fashion picture of her, it is very poor and still it has some of the features of a clear mother's face. If such a picture would be of any use to you, I will gladly send it to you and you may return it or, have it with (page 4) Sister Emiline B. Wells (dear "Aunt Emm") and I will call for it, when I am down to the temple. Sister Wells could give you more information concerning my mother's early history, also Mrs. Sarah M. Cleveland than I possibly could. Of Mrs. Cleveland I know nothing, except that I have heard mother speak of her in connection with the Relief Society. I would think she was Coun. to Sis Emma, but would not be sure. I know nothing of her family or relatives in the Church.
Trusting you may be able to gleen a little from this rambling sketch. I am very truly

/s/ Mrs. Pheb L.H. Welling

300. Letter From Anthony W. Ivins to Mr. Thomas H. Jones, Colonia Dublan, Chihuahua, Mexico; CHO, Film 272/Box 15/Letters #499-501; President Joseph F. Smith is being quoted in the letter; June 25, 1926.

Brother Ivins, plural marriage must be discontinued, in Mexico as well as in other parts of the Church. When you return to Mexico I want you to see that no more plural marriages are solemnized there. Tell the brethren there that they must cease their activities. There is no man who is authorized to perform a plural marriage, not even I can do it after the action taken by the conference, unless they shall vote again in favor of it.

301. "1926-Memoirs of the Life of Rudger Clawson Written by Himself", (498 pp. typescript), pp. 7-8; Utah Historical Society, 603 South East Temple, Bx 1/fd 1.

Margaret Gay Judd Clawson was the mother of eleven children. She was my father's second (or plural) wife. I was her third child and of course was a product of plural marriage.
Many people look upon plural marriage as inferior to monogamous marriage and actually believe it is wrong. If it were judged by its fruits, why then it must surely be regarded as a superior marriage, and furthermore it's a Biblical marriage. Abraham, Jacob, Moses and others of the holy prophets who were approved of God were polygamists. It is not to be wondered at that Joseph Smith, Brigham Young, John Taylor, Wilford Woodruff, Lorenzo Snow, Joseph F. Smith and Heber J. Grant, modern prophets, my father himself a bishop and patriarch, and many others should have followed in the footsteps of those ancient worthies. This great law of plural marriage is set forth plainly in Section 132 of the Doctrine and Covenants.
Some members of the Church, not being able apparently to discern between principle and practice have gone so far as to say that under the manifesto plural marriage has been abrogated, or done away with by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Such, however, is not the case. The principal is not abrogated, or done away with, but plural marriage is suspended at the present time (1934) and any Latter Day Saint who now presumes to enter into its practice would be summarily excommunicated from the Church.
Plural marriage, like monogamous marriage, is a principle of the Gospel and could not very well be other wise under the marriage ceremony of the Latter Day Saint Church. Those who are worthy of so great a blessing are married (or sealed together) as husband and wife, by one having the authority for time and all eternity. Death is not taken into account; death does not, will not separate them. When death intervenes followed by the resurrection, they will still be husband and wife. If the wife dies and the husband takes another wife by the Temple ordinance, and she dies, he will be a widower on earth but later when death overtakes him, his marital status will be unchanged. He will be recognized as a polygamist in the spirit world--a man with three wives.
I have been led to make the foregoing observation because of my father's and mother's status in the marriage relation and the further fact that I am a product of that relationship. I believe and know and testify that plural marriage is a true principle and cannot be abrogated except the marriage ordinance be eliminated from among the sacred ordinances of the holy Temple of God, and it seems to me that that cannot now and never will be done.

The apparant denials by Church leaders in Nauvoo days that the Church practised plural marriage were correct. At that time, the Church members as a whole had not heard the revelation, nor had they been given an opportunity to accept it. But many of the leaders knew of it and were polygamists. (P. 344)
Did Joseph Smith introduce plural marriage? Many of the elders in Nauvoo entered into plural marriage, under the authority of Joseph Smith who was yet living as certified to by the men and their wives. (p. 342)
It should be remembered that permission to enter the system was granted only by the President of the Church, and after careful examination of the candidate. (p. 393)

304. Doctrinal New Testament Commentary, Vol. 1:361-62, 518; Elder Bruce R. McConkie; 1973 edition.

In this dispensation, the promulgation of the law of plural marriage had an effect similar to the presentation of the doctrine of the Bread of Life in the meridian dispensation. Opposition from without the Church increased, while some unstable members of the Kingdom itself found themselves unable to accept the fulness of the revealed program of the Lord. There were many important reasons why the Lord revealed the doctrine of plurality of wives. But if plural marriage had served no other purpose than to sift the chaff from the wheat, than to keep the unstable and semi-faithful people from the fulness of gospel blessings, it would have been more than justified.
In Missouri and Nauvoo the mobs were often led by ministers; throughout the whole era when plural marriage was made the pretext for persecution, those who caused the earthly kingdom to suffer violence, who sought to destroy it, who took the children of the kingdom by force, were themselves the most immoral and adulterous of men. (p. 518)

305. The Ensign, "I Have A Question"; Daniel H. Ludlow; September 1980.

What laws governed the inheritance of birthright in the Old Testament?
* * * When the father had only one wife, there was no question as to who the birthright son would be. However, in those days the Lord permitted some of his patriarchs to have more than one wife (polygamy). Then the father might have several "firstborn" sons, possibly one from each of his wives. The question then naturally arose as to which firstborn son of which wife would become the head of the entire family upon the death of the father. Custom and tradition indicated that the first wife should have precedence over the other wives; thus it was determined that the firstborn son of the first wife would be the birthright son as long as he proved worthy. Only in case of unworthiness or death would the birthright go to the firstborn son of the second wife. No second-born sons were considered for the birthright unless all firstborn sons proved to be unworthy.

No other success can compensate for failure in the home.

Family Exaltation
and

President Woodruff has made it perfectly clear that all who come forth in the First resurrection come forth in great glory with Christ and those who come forth in the Second or Last Resurrection do so with great glory.

How are people called out of their graves? A father calls forth from the grave his wife, his sons and his daughter. (Sermon delivered by the Prophet Joseph Smith at the funeral of Lorenzo D. Barnes 15 May 1843. Reported in the times & Seasons 4:194.) The son then calls his wife, his sons and his daughters until all the righteous have been raised from the dead and stand with Christ at the second coming. Remember the Order of God is the Order of the Priesthood. The Head of the earthly priesthood in the first dispensation was Adam. Christ was the first fruits of the resurrection. Now the Order is this. God calls Christ forth from the Tomb Christ called Adam forth from the grave-Adam called his children forth from the grave and so on. This is the Order that will be followed because it is the order followed in heaven. The sealing work on this earth is to seal families together for the resurrection and for the Patriarchal order followed in the celestial Kingdom. Now do you see if you do not do the work for your dead and seal up your lines back to Adam you have dammed your soul to wait until the last resurrection with your ancestors pointing their finger at you asking "why didn't you do my work."

Prayers From World of Spirits:

When you think that you are chosen to be saviors to the children of men, to stand as a medium through whom salvation shall flow unto unnumbered thousands, what manner of people ought we to be? They pray for you today in the spirit world, as they have been no doubt from the beginning praying for their descendants that they may be faithful to the truth. You cannot tell the interest felt in eternity for you by those of our dead who have gone before us. Their hearts yearn after us, their constant desire being that we may be faithful and maintain our integrity and be prepared to bring salvation to them and redeem them by going forth and obeying every ordiance which god has established in the Church for the salvation of the living and the dead. (Oct. 31, 1880, Jd, 22:129-131; Gospel Truth, George Q. Cannon, p. 363.)

WHO SHALL RISE

IN THE FIRST RESURECTION
OR
THE RESURRECTION OF THE JUST

Who does the Lord identify as those who shall be priviledged to come forth in the first resurection-The Lord identified to the prophet the qualifications of those who are to rise in the highest glory of the celestial kingdom as contained in D. & C. 76:50-70:

And again we bear record--for we saw and heard, and this is the testimony of the gospel of Christ concerning them who shall come forth in the resurrection of the just--
The Following qualifications must take place before the resurection of glory-they are all identified as having taken place when the resurrection occures of past tence once it takes place:

[1] They are they who received the testimony of Jesus, and [2] believed on his name and
[3] were baptized after the manner of his burial, being buried in the water in his name, and this according to the commandment which he has given--

That by keeping the commandments they might be

[4] washed and cleansed from all their sins, and
[5] receive the Holy Spirit by the laying on of the hands of him who is ordained and sealed unto this power;
[6] And who overcome by faith, and
[7] are sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, which the Father sheds forth upon all those who are just and true.
[8] They are they who are the church of the Firstborn.
[9] They are they into whose hands the Father has given all things--
[10] They are they who are priests and kings, who have received of his fulness, and of his glory;
[11] And are priests of the Most High, after the order of Melchizedek, which was after the order of Enoch, which was after the order of the Only Begotten Son.
[12] Wherefore, as it is written, they are gods, even the sons of God--
[13] Wherefore, all things are theirs, whether life or death, or things present, or things to come, all are theirs and [14] they are Christ's, and Christ is God's.

The following are Future tense or in other words those things will happen after the resurrection takes place:
[1] And they shall overcome all things. Wherefore, let no man glory in man, but rather let him glory in God, who shall subdue all enemies under his feet.
[2] These shall dwell in the presence of God and his Christ forever and ever.

[3] These are they whom he shall bring with him, when he shall come in the clouds of heaven to reign on the earth over his people.

These are they who shall have part in the first resurrection. These are they who shall come forth in the resurrection of the just.

What does the Lord say of those who have come forth in this first resurection–or the Highest Glory in the Celestial kingdom:

[1] These are they who are come unto Mount Zion, and
[2] unto the city of the living God, the heavenly place, the holiest of all.
[3] These are they who have come to an innumerable company of angels, to the general assembly and church of Enoch, and of the Firstborn.
[4] These are they whose names are written in heaven, where God and Christ are the judge of all.
[5] These are they who are just men made perfect through Jesus the mediator of the new covenant, who wrought out this perfect atonement through the shedding of his own blood.
[6] These are they whose bodies are celestial, whose glory is that of the sun, even the glory of God, the highest of all, whose glory the sun of the firmament is written of as being typical.

Blessings of the Fulness of the Priesthood
As seen by the Prophet Isaiah

|c49|v0 Messiah shall be a light to the Gentiles and shall free the prisoners--Israel shall be gathered with power in the last days--Kings shall be their nursing fathers--Compare 1 Nephi 21.

|v1 Listen, O isles, unto me; and hearken, ye people, from far; The LORD hath called me from the womb; from the bowels of my mother hath he made mention of my name.

We are all foreordained and known unto the Lord, and we shall all recognize that the Lord has called us all from the womb, and made mention of our name.

We were foreordained from the very beginning to receive a fullness of the Priesthood, which is a fullness of the father. Our names are mentioned: Ordinance of Naming and blessing of infants and temple blessings....

|v2 And he hath made my mouth like a sharp sword; in the shadow of his hand hath he hid me, and made me a polished shaft; in his quiver hath he hid me;

|v3 And said unto me, Thou art my servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified.

We all take upon ourselves to be the Lords servants, pointing to the mortal ministry of Jesus Christ as did John the Baptist and all the holy prophets and righteous fathers before him, for the blessings of the Father through the Son. And like all the Prophets and righteous fathers since the Saviors mortal ministry, we as servants and Elias point to the Son's Second coming. Where he shall come in glory. And we prepare the Saints not only with baptism, and the Holy Ghost, but the fulness of all the Priesthood blessings found in the holy temple, that when he comes we shall be like him. And when he shows the Father unto us we shall be like him too.

|v3 And said unto me, Thou art my servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified.

How is the Lord glorified? He told Moses, "For behold, this is my work and my glory–to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man.

Who is the Lord talking to, in whom he will be glorified?
His servant Israel [the children of Israel]. Through the posterity of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob... The Lord will give these people immortality and eternal life as he gave Abraham and Sarah and promised to all their posterity.

In Doctrine and Covenants section 132 verse 37 the Lord brings further light of what he means by being glorified and bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of his children,
"Abraham received concubines, and they bore him children; and it was accounted unto him for righteousness, because they were given unto him, and he abode in my law; as Isaac and also Jacob did none other things than that which they were commanded; and because they did none other things than that which they were commanded, they have entered into their exaltation, according to the promises, and sit upon thrones, and are not angels but are gods."

|v4 Then I said, I have labored in vain, I have spent my strength for nought, and in vain: yet surely my judgment is with the LORD, and my work with my God.

As long as every Prophet, Elias, or Father, Mother, Brother or Sister knows that there is one more soul to be saved, one more soul to receive all the blessings of the Priesthood and the fulness of the Father. There Labor is in vain. For what Father or Mother having received there Exaltation like Abraham and sees his children or grandchildren truly has a fulness of joy. No one for all their children and grandchildren and great-grandchildren to the latest generation are engraven on their hands and they know them and are doing everything in there power to help them receive the Fulness of the Priesthood which is a fulness of the fathers even the greatest father of us all, God our heavenly Father.

Was this not Christ mission, to bring us back unto the fulness of The Father. Thus each Prophet, Elias, Father and Mother takes the same image as Christ and Abraham, Adam and Elohim, to bring to pass the immortality and eternal lives of their children.... We can never have a fulness of Joy until every last child or brother or sister has the opportunity to live the life that the Fathers and Mothers live.

|v5 And now, saith the LORD that formed me from the womb to be his servant, to bring Jacob [the house of Israel] again to him, Though Israel be not gathered, yet shall I be glorious in the eyes of the LORD, and my God shall be my strength.

|v6 And he said, It is a light thing that thou shouldest be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel: I will also give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayest be my salvation unto the end of the earth.

What is the light that the Lord promised Isaiah should be to raise up [all] the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel:

The Lord also promised that Isaiah would give the same light to the Gentiles, that Isaiah would be the Salvation to the end of the earth.
Isaiah is told that he would give some special light to raise up the tribes of [Israel] to a new elevation, a new height, a zenith. He was then told that he would give this same light to the Gentiles. The Lord then explains that this light would be the Capstone of salvation to the end of the earth.
In other words the light that Isaiah is about to share with us will be very great, the capstone of the blessings of the Father the Capstone of Salvation and exaltation to the children of Fathers, Adam, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob or all the tribes of Israel and that these great blessings of the Fathers even of God the Eternal would be given to the Gentiles as well for a great purpose.

The Lord finally tell Isaiah that this Light is so important that he shall be the Lord's salvation to the end of the Earth.

What does this mean? We know that the Lord Glory is, "For behold, this is my work and my glory–to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of [my children]."

Isaiah is going to shed light to help all the Fathers children receive the Capstone blessings of the Priesthood to raise up the tribes of Israel and the Gentiles to receive the fulness of the Priesthood and the fulness of the Father....

|v7 Thus saith the LORD, the Redeemer of Israel, and his Holy One, to him whom man despiseth, to him whom the nation abhorreth, to a servant of rulers, Kings shall see and arise, princes also shall worship, because of the LORD that is faithful, and the Holy One of Israel, and he shall choose thee.

The LORD has chosen us because we are his children and he wants his children, to be awakened to the truth and receive all the blessings which he has to offer, that we may be like him. For what parent having children doesn't want them to grow up and be like them possessing all that they have and are.... These are the blessings of eternity.

|v8 Thus saith the LORD, In an acceptable time have I heard thee, and in a day of salvation have I helped thee: and I will preserve thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, to establish the earth, to cause to inherit the desolate heritages;

We have the promises of the Fathers, of Adam, Noah, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. And the now the Lord, through Isaiah is telling us that we should again receive and inherit the great promises of the Fathers which have become desolate. Of which the Lord said,"In an acceptable time (1) have I heard thee, and in a day of salvation have (2) I helped thee: and (3) I will preserve thee, and (4) give thee for a covenant of the people, (5) to establish the earth, (6) to cause to inherit the desolate heritages; because we are his children.

We now know why we are to receive the fullness of the blessings of the Priesthood, a fullness of our anointings, a the fulness of the Fathers even God the Eternal Father and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent.

And when we have received a fullness of the blessings of the Lord, then what does the He expect us to do with them...

Christ himself gives us the answer. He said:

If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet.
For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.
Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him.
If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.
(John 13:13-17).

Now there are many who have received the key-stone blessings and ordinances of the Fathers, but as Isaiah is about there are not many who have received the Capstone blessings and ordinances of the Fullness of the Priesthood, which is a Fulness of the blessings of the Fathers, even God Our Eternal Father and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent.

And why do we receive these Capstone blessings. 1. So that We ourselves can receive the fulness of the blessings of the Fathers and Mothers and 2. So...

|v9 That thou mayest say to the prisoners [those in spirit prison], Go forth; to them that are in darkness, Shew yourselves. They shall feed in the ways, and their pastures shall be in all high places [all the blessings and ordinances found in the House of our Eternal Father and Fathers Adam, Noah, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and even our immediate Fathers and Mothers].

|v10 They shall not hunger nor thirst; neither shall the heat nor sun smite them: for he that hath mercy on them shall lead them, even by the springs of water shall he guide them.

Here the Lord is telling us the simple truth, that we will no longer be prisoners, that we will no longer hunger or thirst, for he will guide us by the springs of water.

We are his children and he has promised that he will give us all he blessings, all of them to the point that we hunger and thirst no longer for ourselves, because we have the fullness of blessings powers, thrones and principalities as our fathers Adam, Enoch, Noah, Melchizedek, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and our immediate Fathers and we will "have entered into their exaltation, according to the promises, and sit upon thrones, and are not angels but are gods." For the Lord tells us that he will guide us by the springs of water. And what is our springs of water, it is none other than the fullness of the priesthood, living the same lives that of our Fathers and Mothers, Even our true Spring of Living Water who is God our Eternal Father.

|v11 And I will make all my mountains a way, and my highways shall be exalted.

The Lord has prophesied that the highways where with we shall be exalted will be found in the mountains or in other wards where the Lord has established the Keys of his holy Priesthood, which is the order of the Priesthood after the Order of Melchizedek, which is after the Order of the Son of God, which is after the Order of God our Father our Spring.
|v12 Behold, these shall come from far: and, lo, these from the north and from the west; and these from the land of Sinim.

|v13 Sing, O heavens; and be joyful, O earth; and break forth into singing, O mountains: for the LORD hath comforted his people, and will have mercy upon his afflicted.

Here we see the unnumbered multitudes found in heaven and earth who are in prison are to receive a blessings at the Hand of the Priesthood, the fulness of the Priesthood of God our Father in the Mountains: For it is here that the LORD Will comfort his people [his Children] and will have mercy upon his afflicted [who many of his children have not had the opportunity to receive of his fulness but are in prisons having only receive portions of light, but need all light even the Capstone light of the Fulness of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost even the fulness of the Priesthood to enter the same blessings as Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and the Fathers even God the Eternal Father and Jesus Christ whom he has sent.

|v14 But Zion said, The LORD hath forsaken me, and my Lord hath forgotten me.

And because these blessings have become desolate and there are many prisoners the people cry and Zion, [those who have received the Key-stone blessings] say the LORD hath forsaken us and forgotten me and I am left here in this prison and there is none to bring me to salvation and exaltation.....

But the Lord having no fulness of joy, without his faithful children told Isaiah that he would teach us the greater light and bring even the Lord his Salvation unto the end of the earth [those things telestial and terrestrial], and bring us to the light of the celestial, the fulness of the Priesthood for all the worthy children of the Fathers and God the Eternal Father.

For said he,

|v15 Can a woman forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? yea, they may forget, yet will I not forget thee.
|v16 Behold, I have graven thee upon the palms of my hands; thy walls are continually before me.

We are the Lords children and it greaves him when we are stopped from progressing to him. But he has not forgotten us but will bless us with a fulness of his great blessings. For our prayers are before him always.

|v18 Lift up thine eyes round about, and behold: all these gather themselves together, and come to thee. As I live, saith the LORD, thou shalt surely clothe thee with them all, as with an ornament, and bind them on thee, as a bride doeth.

We shall be clothed and cloth those who are in prison with the fulness of the Priesthood. For we are the bride of the bridegroom and if the bridegroom is to receive the fulness of the blessings of the Priesthood or the Father, he must receive them with the bride, for they must receive them together or not at all. Therefore these blessings must be extended to all the faithful for the bridegroom cannot come in glory without the bride.

Therefore let the prisoners go free. Let the bride of the Lord clothe herself with the ornament of the fulness of the Priesthood and all the blessings found in the House of our Heavenly Father, by the hands of his holy Servants.

|v19 For thy waste and thy desolate places, and the land of thy destruction, shall even now be too narrow by reason of the inhabitants, and they that swallowed thee up shall be far away.

The un-numbered hosts who have gathered in prison are already to many. The time is far spent and there is little remaining, "even now this prison is to narrow (crowded) by reason of the inhabitants. And because we don't let our dead go free but keep adding to them we have swallowed them up in this great prison and are far, far away from our fathers whom we must surly set free. That the bride may come with the bridegroom. Where the Lord shall be a King of kings and a Lord of lords-a God of gods.

|v20 The children which thou shalt have, after thou hast lost the other, shall say again in thine ears, The place is too strait for me: give place to me that I may dwell.

Now we children of the Fathers, according to the Light which Isaiah hath shown us are saying we don't want to go to the prison which is already to strait or crowded, bless us with the blessings of the Fathers, the blessings of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and let us break down the prison door of our Father that we might be saved with them and be the true bride at the Bridegrooms Second coming with all the ornaments of the Fulness of the Priesthood lacking nothing.

|v21 Then shalt thou say in thine heart, Who hath begotten me these, seeing I have lost my children, and am desolate, a captive, and removing to and fro? and who hath brought up these? Behold, I was left alone; these, where had they been?

|v22 Thus saith the Lord GOD, Behold, I will lift up mine hand to the Gentiles, and set up my standard to the people: and they shall bring thy sons in their arms, and thy daughters shall be carried upon their shoulders.

We have the responsibility to bring the key-stone blessings to our dead and living who haven't received these blessings, but Isaiah is about to shed a greater light even the Capstone blessings of the Fulness of the Priesthood.

|v23 And kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and their queens thy nursing mothers: they shall bow down to thee with their face toward the earth, and lick up the dust of thy feet; and thou shalt know that I am the LORD: for they shall not be ashamed that wait for me.

Here is the further light, Kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and their queens thy nursing mothers. We shall be called up and Anointed Kings and our wives Queens unto their husbands and we shall nurse these captive [do the work for our dead by proxy and bestowing the fulness of the priesthood upon them, making them kings and queens, priests and priestesses unto the Most High God.]

We also learn, by looking at another angle found in Nephi, that Nephi recorded these things for his posterity-his children and his children's children. Not only will our dead bow down to us with their faces toward the earth, and lick up the dust of thy feet. But we fathers will, as Adam, Enoch, Noah, Melchizedek, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Lehi, and Nephi bestow these blessings of the Fathers upon our children. Teaching our children to know the Lord as Adam taught Seth and Seth taught Enos all the way to Noah, and as Abraham taught Isaac and Isaac taught Jacob to know the Lord. For do not our children do what we do and say what we say, thus licking up the dust of our feet that they shalt know through the Fathers that the Lord is God. For none will be ashamed that wait upon the Lord for in that day all shall know him from the least (the children) unto the greatest (the fathers) and no man shall need to teach his brother to know the Lord for all shall know him. Because they shall be like him and shall Be King and priests and Queens and Priestesses and shall walk forth out of the prison and be a kingdom of priests and Priestesses a kingdom of Anointed a kingdom of kings and queens to the most high God and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent.....

Also in the Doctrine and Covenants the Lord says,

|v26 God shall give unto you knowledge by his Holy Spirit, yea, by the unspeakable gift of the Holy Ghost, that has not been revealed since the world was until now;
|v27 Which our forefathers have awaited with anxious expectation to be revealed in the last times, which their minds were pointed to by the angels, as held in reserve for the fulness of their glory; |v28 A time to come in the which nothing shall be withheld, whether there be one God or many gods, they shall be manifest.
|v29 All thrones and dominions, principalities and powers, shall be revealed and set forth upon all who have endured valiantly for the gospel of Jesus Christ.
(D&C: Section 121:25-29)

|v24 Shall the prey be taken from the mighty, or the lawful captive delivered?
|v25 But thus saith the LORD, Even the captives of the mighty shall be taken away, and the prey of the terrible shall be delivered: for I will contend with him that contendeth with thee, and I will save thy children.

The Fathers have received a promise, that all their righteous children shall not be held captive any longer but shall receive the fulness of all the Keystone and Capstone blessings just as they have received them that they might be one with the Father even as the Son is one with the Father.

(OldT:Isaiah 49:Heading-26)

|c21|v0 Messiah shall be a light to the Gentiles and shall free the prisoners--Israel shall be gathered with power in the last days--Kings shall be their nursing fathers--Compare Isaiah 49.

|v1 And again: Hearken, O ye house of Israel, all ye that are broken off and are driven out because of the wickedness of the pastors of my people; yea, all ye that are broken off, that are scattered abroad, who are of my people, O house of Israel. Listen, O isles, unto me, and hearken ye people from far; the Lord hath called me from the womb; from the bowels of my mother hath he made mention of my name.
|v2 And he hath made my mouth like a sharp sword; in the shadow of his hand hath he hid me, and made me a polished shaft; in his quiver hath he hid me;

|v9 That thou mayest say to the prisoners: Go forth; to them that sit in darkness: Show yourselves. They shall feed in the ways, and their pastures shall be in all high places.

|v17 Thy children shall make haste against thy destroyers; and they that made thee waste shall go forth of thee.

|v18 Lift up thine eyes round about and behold; all these gather themselves together, and they shall come to thee. And as I live, saith the Lord, thou shalt surely clothe thee with them all, as with an ornament, and bind them on even as a bride.
|v19 For thy waste and thy desolate places, and the land of thy destruction, shall even now be too narrow by reason of the inhabitants; and they that swallowed thee up shall be far away.
|v20 The children whom thou shalt have, after thou hast lost the first, shall again in thine ears say: The place is too strait for me; give place to me that I may dwell.

|v25 But thus saith the Lord, even the captives of the mighty shall be taken away, and the prey of the terrible shall be delivered; for I will contend with him that contendeth with thee, and I will save thy children.
|v26 And I will feed them that oppress thee with their own flesh; they shall be drunken with their own blood as with sweet wine; and all flesh shall know that I, the Lord, am thy Savior and thy Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.
(BofM:1 Nephi 21:Heading-26)

|c6|v0 Jacob recounts Jewish history: Their Babylonian captivity and return; the ministry and crucifixion of the Holy One of Israel; the help received from the gentiles; and their latter-day restoration when they believe in the Messiah.

|v1 The words of Jacob, the brother of Nephi, which he spake unto the people of Nephi:
|v2 Behold, my beloved brethren, I, Jacob, having been called of God, and ordained after the manner of his holy order, and having been consecrated by my brother Nephi, unto whom ye look as a king or a protector, and on whom ye depend for safety, behold ye know that I have spoken unto you exceedingly many things.
|v3 Nevertheless, I speak unto you again; for I am desirous for the welfare of your souls. Yea, mine anxiety is great for you; and ye yourselves know that it ever has been. For I have exhorted you with all diligence; and I have taught you the words of my father; and I have spoken unto you concerning all things which are written, from the creation of the world.

|v4 And now, behold, I would speak unto you concerning things which are, and which are to come; wherefore, I will read you the words of Isaiah. And they are the words which my brother has desired that I should speak unto you. And I speak unto you for your sakes, that ye may learn and glorify the name of your God.
|v5 And now, the words which I shall read are they which Isaiah spake concerning all the house of Israel; wherefore, they may be likened unto you, for ye are of the house of Israel. And there are many things which have been spoken by Isaiah which may be likened unto you, because ye are of the house of Israel.

|v6 And now these are the words: Thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I will lift up mine hand to the Gentiles, and set up my standard to the people; and they shall bring thy sons in their arms, and thy daughters shall be carried upon their shoulders.
|v7 And kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and their queens thy nursing mothers; they shall bow down to thee with their faces towards the earth, and lick up the dust of thy feet; and thou shalt know that I am the Lord; for they shall not be ashamed that wait for me.

|v8 And now I, Jacob, would speak somewhat concerning these words. For behold, the Lord has shown me that those who were at Jerusalem, from whence we came, have been slain and carried away captive.
|v9 Nevertheless, the Lord has shown unto me that they should return again. And he also has shown unto me that the Lord God, the Holy One of Israel, should manifest himself unto them in the flesh; and after he should manifest himself they should scourge him and crucify him, according to the words of the angel who spake it unto me.

|v10 And after they have hardened their hearts and stiffened their necks against the Holy One of Israel, behold the judgments of the Holy One of Israel shall come upon them. And the day cometh that they shall be smitten and afflicted.
|v11 Wherefore, after they are driven to and fro, for thus saith the angel, many shall be afflicted in the flesh, and shall not be suffered to perish, because of the prayers of the faithful; they shall be scattered, and smitten, and hated; nevertheless, the Lord will be merciful unto them, that when they shall come to the knowledge of their Redeemer, they shall be gathered together again to the lands of their inheritance.

|v12 And blessed are the Gentiles, they of whom the prophet has written; for behold, if it so be that they shall repent and fight not against Zion, and do not unite themselves to that great and abominable church, they shall be saved; for the Lord God will fulfil his covenants which he has made unto his children; and for this cause the prophet has written these things.
|v13 Wherefore, they that fight against Zion and the covenant people of the Lord shall lick up the dust of their feet; and the people of the Lord shall not be ashamed. For the people of the Lord are they who wait for him; for they still wait for the coming of the Messiah.
|v14 And behold, according to the words of the prophet, the Messiah will set himself again the second time to recover them; wherefore, he will manifest himself unto them in power and great glory, unto the destruction of their enemies, when that day cometh when they shall believe in him; and none will he destroy that believe in him.
|v15 And they that believe not in him shall be destroyed, both by fire, and by tempest, and by earthquakes, and by bloodshed, and by pestilence, and by famine. And they shall know that the Lord is God, the Holy One of Israel.
|v16 For shall the prey be taken from the mighty, or the lawful captive delivered?
|v17 But thus saith the Lord: Even the captives of the mighty shall be taken away, and the prey of the terrible shall be delivered; for the Mighty God shall deliver his covenant people. For thus saith the Lord: I will contend with them that contendeth with thee--
|v18 And I will feed them that oppress thee, with their own flesh; and they shall be drunken with their own blood as with sweet wine; and all flesh shall know that I the Lord am thy Savior and thy Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.
(BofM:2 Nephi 6:Heading-18)

|c10|v0 Jews shall crucify their God--They shall be scattered until they begin to believe in him--America shall be a land of liberty where no king shall rule--Be reconciled to God and gain salvation through his grace.

|v1 And now I, Jacob, speak unto you again, my beloved brethren, concerning this righteous branch of which I have spoken.
|v2 For behold, the promises which we have obtained are promises unto us according to the flesh; wherefore, as it has been shown unto me that many of our children shall perish in the flesh because of unbelief, nevertheless, God will be merciful unto many; and our children shall be restored, that they may come to that which will give them the true knowledge of their Redeemer.
|v3 Wherefore, as I said unto you, it must needs be expedient that Christ--for in the last night the angel spake unto me that this should be his name--should come among the Jews, among those who are the more wicked part of the world; and they shall crucify him--for thus it behooveth our God, and there is none other nation on earth that would crucify their God.
|v4 For should the mighty miracles be wrought among other nations they would repent, and know that he be their God.

|v5 But because of priestcrafts and iniquities, they at Jerusalem will stiffen their necks against him, that he be crucified.
|v6 Wherefore, because of their iniquities, destructions, famines, pestilences, and bloodshed shall come upon them; and they who shall not be destroyed shall be scattered among all nations.

|v7 But behold, thus saith the Lord God: When the day cometh that they shall believe in me, that I am Christ, then have I covenanted with their fathers that they shall be restored in the flesh, upon the earth, unto the lands of their inheritance.
|v8 And it shall come to pass that they shall be gathered in from their long dispersion, from the isles of the sea, and from the four parts of the earth; and the nations of the Gentiles shall be great in the eyes of me, saith God, in carrying them forth to the lands of their inheritance.
|v9 Yea, the kings of the Gentiles shall be nursing fathers unto them, and their queens shall become nursing mothers; wherefore, the promises of the Lord are great unto the Gentiles, for he hath spoken it, and who can dispute?
|v10 But behold, this land, said God, shall be a land of thine inheritance, and the Gentiles shall be blessed upon the land.
|v11 And this land shall be a land of liberty unto the Gentiles, and there shall be no kings upon the land, who shall raise up unto the Gentiles.
|v12 And I will fortify this land against all other nations.
|v13 And he that fighteth against Zion shall perish, saith God.
|v14 For he that raiseth up a king against me shall perish, for I, the Lord, the king of heaven, will be their king, and I will be a light unto them forever, that hear my words.
|v15 Wherefore, for this cause, that my covenants may be fulfilled which I have made unto the children of men, that I will do unto them while they are in the flesh, I must needs destroy the secret works of darkness, and of murders, and of abominations.
|v16 Wherefore, he that fighteth against Zion, both Jew and Gentile, both bond and free, both male and female, shall perish; for they are they who are the whore of all the earth; for they who are not for me are against me, saith our God.
|v17 For I will fulfil my promises which I have made unto the children of men, that I will do unto them while they are in the flesh--
|v18 Wherefore, my beloved brethren, thus saith our God: I will afflict thy seed by the hand of the Gentiles; nevertheless, I will soften the hearts of the Gentiles, that they shall be like unto a father to them; wherefore, the Gentiles shall be blessed and numbered among the house of Israel.
|v19 Wherefore, I will consecrate this land unto thy seed, and them who shall be numbered among thy seed, forever, for the land of their inheritance; for it is a choice land, saith God unto me, above all other lands, wherefore I will have all men that dwell thereon that they shall worship me, saith God.

|v20 And now, my beloved brethren, seeing that our merciful God has given us so great knowledge concerning these things, let us remember him, and lay aside our sins, and not hang down our heads, for we are not cast off; nevertheless, we have been driven out of the land of our inheritance; but we have been led to a better land, for the Lord has made the sea our path, and we are upon an isle of the sea.
|v21 But great are the promises of the Lord unto them who are upon the isles of the sea; wherefore as it says isles, there must needs be more than this, and they are inhabited also by our brethren.
|v22 For behold, the Lord God has led away from time to time from the house of Israel, according to his will and pleasure. And now behold, the Lord remembereth all them who have been broken off, wherefore he remembereth us also.

|v23 Therefore, cheer up your hearts, and remember that ye are free to act for yourselves--to choose the way of everlasting death or the way of eternal life.
|v24 Wherefore, my beloved brethren, reconcile yourselves to the will of God, and not to the will of the devil and the flesh; and remember, after ye are reconciled unto God, that it is only in and through the grace of God that ye are saved.
|v25 Wherefore, may God raise you from death by the power of the resurrection, and also from everlasting death by the power of the atonement, that ye may be received into the eternal kingdom of God, that ye may praise him through grace divine. Amen.
(BofM:2 Nephi 10:Heading-25)

Elijah the Prophet
His latter-day mission was to "restore the authority and deliver the keys of the priesthood, in order that all the ordances may be attended to in righteousness.... Why send Elijah? Because he holds the keys of the authority to administer in all the ordinances of the priesthood; and without the authority is given, the ordinances could not be administered in righteousness." (Teachings, p. 172.)
"The spirit, power, and calling of Elijah is," the Prophet also taught, "that ye have power to hold the key of the revelations, ordiances, oracles, powers and endowments of the fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood and of the kingdom of God on the earth; and to receive, obtain, and perform all the ordinances belonging to the kingdom of God, even unto the turning of the hearts of the fathers unto the children, and the hearts of the children unto the fathers, even those who are in heaven....
"This is the spirit of Elijah, [1] that we redeem our dead, and [2] connect ourselves with our fathers which are in heaven, and [3] seal up our dead to come forth in the first resurrection; and here is the power of Elijah to seal those who dwell on earth to those who dwell in heaven. This is the power of Elijah and the keys of the kingdom of Jehovah." (Teachings, pp. 337-338.)
"How shall God come to the rescue of this generation?" the Prophet asked. "He will send Elijah the Prophet....Elijah shall reveal the covenants to seal the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers. The anointing and sealing is to be [1] called, [2] elected, and [3] made sure." (Teachings, p. 323.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 224-225).

[Here we see a number of significant things:
1. The spirit, power, and calling of Elijah is to bestow the Fulness of the Melchizedek Priesthood-which is to receive all the ordiances of the temple.
2. We learn that it is the Power of
a. Revelations
b. ordiances
c. oracles
d. powers
e. endowments of the fulness of the Melchizedek Preisthood
f. and of the kingdom of God on the earth
g. and to receive
h. obtain
i. perform all the ordiances belonging to the kingdom of God,
j. sealing the children to the fathers.
"...to seal those who dwell on earth to those who dwell in heaven" (Teachings, pp. 337-338.)
3. We learn that it is the power in the to seal up our dead [and ourselves to come forth in the first resurrection which is a joint sealing contained in the New and Everlasting Covenant of Celestial mariage. (D & C 132:19.)

Gospel Mysteries

4."It is to seal the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers." (Teachings, p. 323.)
This is contained as part of the joint blessing that husband and wife receive together or not at all; That of sealing children to parents all the way back to Adam and Eve and from them to Our heavenly Father and Mother for this is a Joint blessing or not at all.
5. The Power of Elijah which is fulfilled within the New and Everlasting Covenant contains the following:
" The anointing and sealing is to be [1] called [to join the church and receive the fulness of the priesthood], [2] elected [to receive the Melchizedek Priesthood and the New and everlasting covenant of Celestial Marriage, and [3] the crowning ordinance of the Fulness of the Melchizedek Preisthood in the New and Everlasting Covenant of Marriage is to receive the fulness of the priesthood to be annointed and made a king and priest and queen and preistess and become a member of the Church of the Firstborn and all these are then to be sealed] and made sure [by 1. the sealing power of the Priesthood and 2. the ratifing seal of the Holy Ghost..." (Teachings, p. 323.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 224).

Lamb of God
In honor of the Lamb, a great choir of 100,000,000 [men] voices of the redeemed shall sing this new song (Rev. 5:9-13):
[In order for there to be 100 Million men voices singing this song, who had been made kings and priests their would have to be at least another 100 million queens and priestesses who held jointly these blessings.]

Thou wast slain,
And hast redeemed us to God by thy blood
Out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation;
And hast made us unto our God kings and priests:
And we shall reign on the earth....
Worthy is the Lamb that was slain
To receive power, and riches, and wisdom,
And strength, and honour, and glory, and blessings....
Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power,
Be unto him that sitteth upon the throne,
And unto the Lamb for ever and ever.
(Mormon Doctrine, p. 430.)

Resurrection
...Those beings[s] resurrected with celestial bodies, whose destiny is to inherit a celestial kingdom, will come forth in the morning of the first resurrection. Their graves shall be opened and they shall be caught up to meet the Lord at his Second Coming. They are Christ's, the firstfruits, and they shall descend with him to reign as kings and priests durring the millennial era. (D. & C. 29:13; 43:18; 76:50-70; 88:97:98; 1 Thess. 4:16-17; Rev. 20:3-7.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 640.)

Yet the total number who will gain salvation will be great and not small. John on one occasion saw in vision a group of exalted persons who exceeded 100,000,000 in number [men] (Rev. 5:9-11) and on another occasion he beheld a group of saved persons which formed such a great multitude that "no man could number" them. (Rev. 7:9.) (DNTC 1, p. 496.)

Gospel Mysteries

[Resurrection of Kings & Priests]
When the Lords comes the righteous dead shall come forth form their graves in celestial splendor and be caught up to meet him; and the righteous living, also, shall be caught up to meet him, and shall return to live and reign with him a thousand years. (1 Thess. 4:13-17.)

"The face fo the Lord shall be unveiled; And the saints that are upon the earth, who are alive, shall be quickened and be caught up to meet him. And they who have slept in their graves shall come forth, for their graves shall be opened; and they also shall be caught up to meet him in the midst of the pilar of heaven--They are Christ's, the first fruits, they who shall descend with him first, and they who are on the earth and in their graves, who are first caught up to meet him." (D. & C. 88:95-98; 29:13; 133:56.) (DNTC 1, p. 680.)

"Therefore it is given to abide in you; the record of heaven; the Comforter; the peaceable things of immortal glory; the truth of all things; that which quickeneth all things, which maketh alive all things; that which knoweth all things, and hath all power according to wisdom, mercy, truth, justice, and judgment." (Moses 6:61.)

Saints Saved at Second Coming
1 Thessalonians 4:13-18
Salvation is given the saints--all of them, both the living and the dead--at the Second Coming. The living are caught up to meet their returing Lord, and with him they shall return to live on this earth, which will then be changed and received its paradisical glory. (Tenth Article of Faith.) When the living arrive at the age of a tree, 100 years, they shall be changed from mortality to immortality in the twinkling of an eye and shall then reign as kings and priests in exalted glory. (D. & C. 101:23-31.) [This means that they and their spouces have had all the ordiances available in the temple of the most high and can therefore be changed at any time as a twinkling of an eye. D&C 132:7.]
Also at our Lord's return, the righteous dead shall come forth from their graves with celestial bodies to meet their God. They, then, as kings and priests, [Meaning they are such before the resurrection, this ordiance performed either when they are alive or by proxie for them before they are raised.] (Rev. 5:10.) Thus the saints, whether they sleep in the Lord or live in the flesh until he comes, shall inherit glory and honor and salvation at his Coming. [Their Lamps are filled and one of the wise virgins and the have the Fulness of the Priesthood-all the ordiances of the New and Everlasting covenant of Marriage.] (2 Ne. 9:15-16.)

16-17.
"A trump shall sound both long and loud, even as upon Mount Sinai, and all the earth shall quake, and they shall come forth -- yea, even the dead which died in me, to receive a crown of righteousness, and be clothed upon , even as I am, to be with me, that we may be one." (D. & C. 29:13.) "And the saints that are upon the earth, who are alive, shall be quickened and be cautht up to meet him. And they who have slept in their graves shall come forth, for their graves shall be opened; and they also shall be caught up to meet him in the midst of the pillar of heaven--They are Christ's [A Christ is one who is Annointed with the fulness of the Priesthood.] The first fruits, they who shall descend with him first, and they who are on the earth and in their graves, who are first caught up to meet him; and all this by the voice of the sounding of the trump of the angel of God." (D. & C. 88:96-98.) (DNTC 3, p. 52.)

And now we learn that after the converts are made, after there kindreds of the earth, there will be those among them who advance and progress until they become kings and priests. See Rev. 1:1-6; 5:1-14; 20:4-6. John here sees 144,000 of these kings and priests, 12,000 from each tribe, converted, baptized, endowed, married for eternity, and finally sealed up unto eterhal life, having their callings and elections made sure. See 2 Pet. 1:1-19. (DNTC 3, p. 491.)

Rev. 7:3
Saying, Hurt not the earth, niether the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads.

Sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads] Of this sealing the Prophet Joseph Smith said: "Four destroying angels holding power over the four quarters of the earth until the servants of God are sealed in their foreheads, which signifies sealing the blessing upon their heads, meaning the everlasting covenant, thereby making their calling and election made sure, none so involved shall be lost [guaranteed]; all shall come forth to an inheritance of glory and exaltation in the kingdom of God. [Also, an unnumbered multitude.] (DNTC 3, p. 492.)
The keys and power to restore the Ten Tribes to their former high status in Israel, and to lead them from their unknown places of lodgement in the lands north of Canaan and Assyria, where given by Moses to Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery on April 3, 1836. (D. & C. 110:11.) These keys now reside in the President of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. That the remnants of Israel shall be restroed before the Second Coming of the Son of Man is evident from the fact that 12,000 from each tribe are to receive the restored gospel, and theat through the ordiances of the Lord's house they are to become kings and priets, who shall administer the blessings of the everlasting gospel to the Lord's elect. (D. & C. 77:9-11.) [Those who have been called and elected these shall seal them up and make their callings and ellections sure, this work shall be done for the living and the dead as they shall dwell do their work in the temple's day and night. Probable sealers...]

As the servants of God have their calling and election made sure when they are "sealed...in their foreheads" (Rev. 7:2-8), (DNTC 3, p. 524.)

A perfect description of exalted beings! For, as with the 144,000, so with all of whom the glorified Lord says, "Ye shall be even as I am." (3 Ne. 28:10.) (DNTC 3, p. 527.)

Christ is king of kings and lord of lords.
Revelation 19:16
And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.

A name written, that no man knew] As with all glorified beings, our Lord has a new name in celestial exaltation, a name [1] known to and [2] comprehended by those only who know God in the sense that they have become as he is and have eternal life. See Rev. 2:12-17. Thus, Christ's "new name" shall be written upon all those who are joint-heirs with him (Rev. 3:12), and shall signify that they have become even as he is and he is even as the Father. (3 Ne. 28:10.) [In otherwords our names shall also become KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.] (DNTC 3, p. 567.)

Gospel Mysteries

All men of whatever rank, status or position are now and everlastingly shall be subject to Christ our Lord who is King over all. But in the great and eternal plan of salvation, as joint heirs with the Father's natural Son, all exalted beings shall become kings, priests, lords and gods. Christ thus becomes a King of Kings, a Priest of Priests, a Lord of Lords, a God of Gods. (Mormon Doctrin, 2nd ed., pp. 322-323; 424; 451.) (DNTC 3, p. 568.).

Rev 22:4-5
And they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads. And their shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveht them lighe: and they shall riegn for ever and ever.

They shall see his face] They shall dwell in the presence of God and the Lamb and have personal communion and intercourse with them. Man shall converse with God, as when " a man speaketh unto his friend." (Ex. 33:11.)

They shall reign for ever and ever] "Then shall they be gods." (D. & C. 132:20.) "Every man who reigns in celestial glory is a God to his dominions." (Teachings, p. 374.) (DNTC 3, p. 589.)

There are a great many wise men and women too in our midst who are too wise to be taught; therefore they must die in their ignorance, and in the resurrection they will find their mistake. (TPJS, p. 309)

277. Anthony Woodard Ivins Journal; Special Priesthood Meeting; 10:00 a.m. October 8, 1906.

John R. Winder. . . read from remarks of Pres. Smith April Conference 1904 regarding plural marriages. Also resolution presented by F. H. Lyman. It is said that the above was done simply for effect and was not intended to be enforced. That there is an inner circle where these things are better understood. THERE IS NO INNER CIRCLE. The Presidency & Apostles are united to a man on this question and maintain the declarations made above & expect it to be enforced. There is no inner circle and this policy is sapping the faith of young people in the Church and we want every officer present to see that the policy of the Church is maintained. I am speaking for myself. Pres. Smith: "You are speaking for all of us."

Pres. Smith: While Pres. Winder made himself clear I desire to make his remarks clearer. This whispering which has been so prevalent and which has brought some of our brethren into trouble is wrong. Every sensible man ought to know that when we make public assertions that we mean it, and when men come around whispering that there are other Counsels, that there is an inner circle other than they have received, and some of them have not received what they merited. The talk about Reed Smoot being the cause of the trouble is ridiculous nonsense. Sustain those who sustain you. Get out of debt. Do not seek pleasures to excess. . . . Every young man in Israel should marry and not go whoring after the world. Very important. Officials should not be called by official titles.

. . . I must confess that the situation is beyond me. The Senator has just said that he intends to tell the brethren when he gets home that if they want to continue this "polygamy business" they must leave the United States. I asked if he meant unlawful cohabitation, and he said no. Well, I am dumfounded that there should be the least suggestion of the possibility of the Church attempting to establish polygamy; that it should be thought of for a moment. The Senator also says that if Taylor and Cowley are brought back and placed in the quorum of the apostles nothing will save us from the wrath of the American people. I cannot entertain the thought that such a thing is possible. To think of it as being possible is to make the Church out a hypocritical fraud; but here is the Senator talking about the calamity as though it were a possibility....

279. Letter from the First Presidency to Elder Henry H. Rolapp; Notes from the Historical Department, Vol 3:153; April 10, 1909.

April lOth, 1909
Elder Henry H. Rolapp,
Ogden

Dear Brother:--
Referring to your favor of the 29th ult., containing enclosure in the shape of a copy of letter from Mr. Fred J. Kiesel to Mr. A. Plehn, Emperial German Consul at Denver, answering the Consul on the present statis [sic] of polygamy, we suggest that you use Mrs. Kiesel in the way indicated by you, that is, as a means of conveying to the German Consul the facts in relation to the stand taken by the Church on the question of polygamy. In this connection we may remind you that we fought this question through the courts, maintaining our right under the Constitution to practice plural marriage as part of our religion, and that this was done until the court of last resort decided the anti-polygamy laws to be constitutional, and that since President Woodruff's manifesto of 1890, the Church has in no wise sanctioned the solemnization of plural marriages. But that while we have no direct testimony, we have reason to believe the Elders Taylor and Cowley fell [sic] to strictly observe the manifesto, and for that reason failed to appear at the Smoot hearing at Washington, and were therefore dropped from their position as members of the Quorum of Apostles; but it is our understanding that whatever they did was done in Mexico in the belief that the manifesto applied only to the United States.
We may add also that a consensus [sic] of the polygamist families in America has been taken on two different occasions, and a report of the same made to the government, going to show that they are fast dying out, and that it is only a question of time when they will cease to exist.
For your information we may say that Prest. Sergef. Ballif of the Swiss and German mission has been in correspondence with Senator Smoot with a view to the Senator's interesting himself in behalf of our Church in Germany, by way of getting the Secretary of State to take the matter up with the German Government with a view to the German Government's granting to our missionaries the same liberty accorded to other foreign missionaries. And anything you can say, that Mr. Kiesel, to the German consol [sic] at Denver May 8, and perhaps hasten favorable action. We suggest however that you do this yourself, as we do not wish to be put under obligations to Mr. Kiesel for obvious reasons.

Your brethren,
Joseph F. Smith

Attended meeting of Quorum at Temple. President Smith was still suffering with rheumatism. He is confined to his bed. The Quorum discussed the question of New polygamy cases and I stated that it was my opinion that all new cases should be excommunicated from the church and that action should be taken at once. Also that the church should not retain any man taking a plural wife after the Manifesto in a church position where people were asked to support him. All members present agreed with this position. Present at meeting Lyman, Smoot, Penrose, Whitney, Richards, McKay and Jos. F. Smith Jr. . . . (Later) I told Pres Lund and John Henry Smith my ideas of the action that should be taken by the church in the new polygamy cases and also thought Pres Smith should instruct the Presidents of Stakes and Bishops and Wards to begin action against any such living in their stakes or wards. Pres Lund wanted me to tell Pres Smith and I will do so as soon as he is well enough. ln the evening I met Bp Mibley and we spent a couple of hours in discussing the coming campaign and I told him what I had said to the Quorum of the new polygamy cases. He agreed with me that action should be taken.

281. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Tuesday, 27 September 1910.

Attended a meeting of Quorum of Apostles at 10 oclock AM. All present but Clawson, Geo A. Smith and Ivins. I opened meeting by prayer. I made a statement regarding the new polygamy cases and insisted that the church take action against them at once. I believe that every person taking a plural wife since the manifesto should not be sustained in prominent positions in the church where the people have to vote for them and I strongly demand that cases at least since April 1904 be excommunicated and vigorous action commenced at once. The question was discussed the whole day. The most of the members agreed with me but thought that a wholesale slaughter should not be made of those who were induced to take plural wives by Taylor, Cowley, Woodruff and Merrill before Pres Smith's declaration of April 1904, but drop them as fast as conditions will permit without making a great stir about it.

282. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Wednesday, 28 September 1910. I called on President Smith and told him what I said to the Quorum on new polygamy cases and I told him I thought some public statement should be made by him at the coming Conference and instruct the President[s] of Stakes and Bishops of Wards to handle all new cases. This must be done to prove to our people we are sincere in our opposition to new polygamy. We talked for over one hour and I tried to cover the whole ground. Meeting of the Quorum at 11 oclock. Israel Barlow Jr. was summoned before the Quorum to answer to charges against him of marrying Miss Welling within the last few years, also for lying and forgery. He did not appear. He was excommunicated for marrying the girl. The girl's brother was present and stated he knew his sister was not married in April 1909.

283. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Saturday, 1 October 1910.

At 11 oclock met with the Quorum of twelve. All present but Clawson and Geo A Smith. We had before us Patriarch Judson Tolman having cited him to appear and answer the charge of his having married different men to plural wives contrary to the rules and regulations of the church. We tried to get the whole truth out of him but could not do it. He acknowledged to having performed fifteen plural marriages. We tried to get out of him who they were but he said he could not remember. He mentioned four as follows: Bp Muir, Jas Eldridge, a Mr. Pratt and Merrill. We could not get the names of the others but found out he had married a woman himself but did not know who performed the ceremony. The party had a mask on. He, himself, married most of the parties on the street and some in buggies and one or two in a house. He told us the first marriage he performed was Bp Muir and he insisted all were before April 1904, the year of the declaration of President Smith. It was evident to all he was not telling the truth and had been instructed what to say but he would not tell with whom he had been talking. We adjourned until 3 oclock and asked Bp Muir to be present. He was present and admitted he married a plural wife on June 14/05. He would not inform on anyone else--did not believe the declaration of President Smith was made in good faith nor the Woodruff manifesto was ever intended to put a stop to polygamy--claimed they had been going on ever since 1890 and no action taken. Believed now that they were stopped because action was being taken. The bunch, as he designated them, knew each one ran a risk and was liable to be excommunicated if found out. We agreed to summon Judson Tolman before us again to show cause why he should not be excommunicated next Monday, October 3rd, at 10:30 am. at Temple rooms. We also thought we would get some additional information from him. I have insisted that action should be taken long ago and today's proceedings demonstrate it beyond a question.

284. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Monday, 3 October 1910.

Meeting at the Temple at 10:30 a.m. Judson Tolman was present as requested. He told a little more about how he came to perform the illegal marriages and had been instructed to put them all back of April 1904, by Henry S. Tanner and others because it was necessary to save himself and others. He continued to evade and even lie about certain actions of his. After he was excused it was unanimously agreed to excommunicate him from the church for performing plural marriages and also for having married a woman himself contrary to the rules and order of the church.

285. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Wednesday, 5 October 1910.

Meeting of Quorum at 9 oclock. We discussed the Tolman case for nearly one hour and Pres Lyman was instructed to send him a notice of excommunication similar to published notice in News of last evening. We did not mention his lying and taking another wife in 1905. Pres Lund and John Henry came in at 10 oclock and reports were made. We clothed and Lyman prayed in opening and I in circle. We took up the question of a circular letter to be signed by the First Presidency to the Presidency's [sic] of all the stakes of Zion, calling their attention to new polygamy cases and directing them to bring action against any such persons who have violated the declaration of Pres Smith made at April Conference, 1904. At one oclock adjourned until 5 oclock. . . .

Meeting at Temple 5 oclock. We agreed upon the letter and construction of same after nearly two hours discussion. We discussed the question of dropping all known polygamists for positions where the comming [sic] Conference was asked to vote for them; that is, all polygamists marrying since 1890. I made the motion but it was not carried as President Lund suggested we do not present the auxiliary organizations at this conference and in doing this we avoid presenting any such person. This was agreed to. I thought the President if he was able to attend meeting should make a statement and define his position on new Polygamy cases in such a way that none can misunderstand. Adjourned a few minutes after 8 oclock.

286. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Saturday, 8 October 1910. The special priesthood meeting held at 10 oclock in the Assembly Hall. Very large attendance. Pres Lund in his remarks called attention to new polygamy cases and stated they were against the rules of the church and rumors had become so numerous and in some cases proofs that it was found necessary to take some strong stand and repeat[ed] the letter that was agreed upon that was going to be sent to each Stake Presidency with instructions that all cases be handled and excommunication be administered in cases found guilty. He was followed by President Smith and he did not mince words. He stated no man has been authorized by him to solemnize a plural marriage since the manifesto and [any] man claiming he had [been] was a liar and if proven he should be excommunicated from the church. He wanted the Bishops and Presidents of Stakes to do their duty and handle such cases. Pres Lyman spoke and referred to men starting the rumor [that] I was out of harmony with my quorum and stated it was not true. This rumor was started by Jos. Cardon of Logan so Pres Lyman informed me. Pres Smith asked me to speak and I did so for a few minutes pleading with all men to be true to their pledges made to man and God. After meeting the Quorum met and agreed to issue summons on Jas W. Summerhays to appear next Wednesday before the Quorum and show cause why he should not be excommunicated from the church for performing plural marriages and also taking a plural wife.

287. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Wednesday, 12 October 1910.

Went direct to Temple and found the Quorum present with Jas W. Summerhays. Pres Lyman read the summons and asked Summerhays to make whatever statement he wished to. He was talking and questioned until one oclock and adjournment was taken until 4 oclock. He claimed President Smith advised him in 1898 to take another wife and gave him authority to marry Miss Sears in Mexico in February 1906. When questioned he said he thought President Smith had done so and stated the circumstances, but Pres Smith told me his statements were not true. At 4 oclock we met and talked the statement made by Summerhays over and all were in favor of dropping him from all church positions but not to excommunicate him with the exception of Lyman and myself. I think he made statements that were not true and so did Lyman. He wanted to place the blame on Pres Smith. The decision agreed upon by majority vote was to drop him from all church positions.

288. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Thursday, 13 October 1910. Meeting of Quorum and Presidency at Temple. . . . We agreed to summons M. F. Cowley, John W. Taylor and H. S. Tanner before us to show cause why they should not be excommunicated from the church for marrying plural wives and performing said marriages and other actions unbecoming a member of the church. We agreed upon the changing of several Stake Presidencies where polygamists were in them having married their wives since the Manifesto. When the changes are made the new presidencies will be asked to handle new cases of polygamy. The crowd that [has] been marrying and getting others to marry plural wives [is] beginning to think the church is in earnest.

289. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Wednesday, 9 November 1910.

Meeting of Quorum at Temple at 10 oclock. All present but Grant, Geo A Smith and Rudger Clawson. H. S. Tanner was present to answer to the charge of having married plural wives and performing plural marriages contrary to the rules of the church, also encouraging others to enter plural marriages. His position was that he had done no wrong and would not answer certain questions. He was given one week to decide whether he would answer of not. He claimed the party performing the marriage required him to never divulge his name, the date and place. He was to see the party and find out if he would release him from the obligation entered into.

290. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Tuesday, 15 November 1910.

Held a meeting with first Presidency and F. M. Lyman for purposes of discussing the question of new polygamy cases and what action the church was going to take with them. I wanted to know positively so if asked by President Taft or other Senators I could answer with a knowledge that my position would be right. All cases after 1904 would be handled and if testimony could be secured against them they would be excommunicated from the church. All cases between the Woodruff manifesto and 1904 should be dealt with according to the circumstances and if drawn into by Apostles they would not be excommunicated but would be relieved of all positions in the church where the people were asked to vote for them. President Smith wanted to wait until tomorrow morning for final decision on latter point and we were to meet in the morning at 9 oclock.

Met at Presidents office and agreed upon the future action of church on the new polygamy cases as outlined yesterday.

292. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Tuesday, March 4, 1911.

Held a long meeting with the Presidency and presented my views on the present situation on the new polygamy cases and the sentiment of the leading men of the country. The immediate cause of the renewal of the discussion of this subject is the many magazine articles on the mormon question charging a return to the practice of polygamy by the church members. I again insisted that the only way the church can clear itself is to handle every new case of polygamy and remove from any position in the church. The church or church authorities cannot or will not be believed as to their sincerity in abolishing polygamy if men violating the rules and promise that it should cease are sustained as officers of the church such as Bishops and Presidents of Stakes etc. They seem to think that the fact that the church has not approved or sanctioned the marriages [means] it cannot be held responsible for them. Many of them were authorized by President Cannon. The Presidency seem to be fearful of results on members of the church if a wholesale action is taken. I am of the opinion non action will have a worse effect especially upon the young people.

293. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Thursday, 16 March 1911.

Attended meeting of Quorum at Temple 10:30 A.M. . . . I again called the question of new polygamy cases up for consideration; again told them of the danger to the church of holding men entering into polygamy since the manifesto in office and stated it was my opinion that we should drop them from all positions where people are asked to vote for them. If we do not do so we cannot convince Pres Roosevelt or the American people that we are honest or sincere. I spoke of the letter of Pres Roosevelt's to Isaac Russell that he expects to publish in Colliers magazine in connection with an article he is preparing as an answer to [Frank] Cannon's articles. I am in doubt as to the wisdom of it for we know there have been new cases. ... [Later] With Ed Callister called on the Presidency and discussed the Roosevelt letter to Isaac Russell and both of us impressed upon them with as much force as we could the necessity of dropping men who have entered into polygamy since the manifesto. No other data [?] will answer. We looked over the Stake authorities and there was not over 14 or 15 in office and by the removal of a President of Stake in some cases we removed three. This is the case in David and Granite Stakes.

294. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Friday, 31 March 1911.

I sent a long telegram to Geo F Gibbs for President Smith on effect of the Anti-Mormon magazine articles and expressing my opinion as to what must be done with men holding positions in the church that have married in polygamy since the manifesto.

295. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Saturday, 1 April 1911.

Received an answer to my telegram of yesterday.

296. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Sunday, 2 April 1911.

The Presidents answer was a disappointment. He does not understand the feeling of the people. The country will not accept excuses and they will not consider it humiliating a man to punish him for same. It is evident no action against the persons taking polygamist wives before 1904 will be taken. If there is another investigation I do not know how present position will be justified in face of testimony given in my case before Senate Committee. We are in a bad position for an examination or investigation.

297. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections,

Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Friday, 7 April 1911.

Received a cipher telegram from President Smith stating he would read at conference this afternoon an answer to the charges made by the magazines and asked me to have the Associated Press instruct their local representative to secure synopsis of statement of about 1200 words and have it published in papers generally. I called Mr. Elliott Associated Press Representative and asked him to see that Salt Lake Representative was instructed to get synopsis of statement and have it carried as full as possible. He took it up with Melvin Stone over the telephone.

298. Reed Smoot Journals; Archives and Manuscripts, Special Collections, Harold B. Lee Library, Brigham Young University; Saturday, 8 April 1911.

President Smith wires me that he will not make answer to magazine articles at conference until Sunday and wants me to arrange with Associated Press to carry a synopsis of statement of 1200 words. I wired Melvin Stone Mgr New York asking him to do so. Received answer as follows: "Cannot promise but will have synopsis brought in here as special and will see what can be done." I wired Pres Smith accordingly.

Mrs. Susa Young Gates
My dear sister
Please pardon my delay in answering your note.
I will gladly give you what information I can concerning my mother, Elvira Anna Cowles, daughter of Austin and Phebe Cowles was born Nov. 23, 1813, at Unadilla, Otsego Seal, New York. She was treasurer for the first Relief Society and also one of the plural wives of the Prophet Joseph Smith. After the Prophets death, she was sealed for time to Jonathan H. Holmes, (then a widower with on [sic] child). to them was born 5 children (of which I am the only surviving one) she buried her first child I believe (page 2) in Winter Quarters. She came to Utah with the pioneers in 1847. She had with her, her little step daughter, my father being in the Mormon Battalion. She walked and drove her own ox and cow team the entire way across the plains. She settled in S.L.C. with the saints until her husband joined her after being released from the M.B. she taught the first school that was taught in what was called the "old fort" and took wolf meat, sego and thistle roots for pay. Her first child born after entering the valley, was born in the "old fort," July 17, 1849. Soon after that time, they moved to Farmington. She was a teacher, in the first R.S. in that place. She was a weaver by occupation and in her time, she wove all (page 3) kinds of weaves, from bed counter pains to mens wear, woven out and women's out and underwear, table linen towels and gingham for aprons. My father raised sheep and flax from which she made cloth, thread and head and foot wear. She was a hard working, industrious women [sic], an affectionate wife, a kind and loving mother, a good neighbor and a true and faithful Latter-Day Saint. Through exposure she died at the age of 58 years at Farmington Davis Co. Utah. I have only an enlarged, old, and very old fashion picture of her, it is very poor and still it has some of the features of a clear mother's face. If such a picture would be of any use to you, I will gladly send it to you and you may return it or, have it with (page 4) Sister Emiline B. Wells (dear "Aunt Emm") and I will call for it, when I am down to the temple. Sister Wells could give you more information concerning my mother's early history, also Mrs. Sarah M. Cleveland than I possibly could. Of Mrs. Cleveland I know nothing, except that I have heard mother speak of her in connection with the Relief Society. I would think she was Coun. to Sis

Emma, but would not be sure. I know nothing of her family or relatives in the Church.
Trusting you may be able to gleen a little from this rambling sketch. I am very truly 300. Letter From Anthony W. Ivins to Mr. Thomas H. Jones, Colonia Dublan, Chihuahua, Mexico; CHO, Film 272/Box 15/Letters #499-501; President Joseph F. Smith is being quoted in the letter; June 25, 1926.

Brother Ivins, plural marriage must be discontinued, in Mexico as well as in other parts of the Church. When you return to Mexico I want you to see that no more plural marriages are solemnized there. Tell the brethren there that they must cease their activities. There is no man who is authorized to perform a plural marriage, not even I can do it after the action taken by the conference, unless they shall vote again in favor of it.

301. "1926-Memoirs of the Life of Rudger Clawson Written by Himself", (498 pp. typescript), pp. 7-8; Utah Historical Society, 603 South East Temple, Bx 1/fd 1.

Margaret Gay Judd Clawson was the mother of eleven children. She was my father's second (or plural) wife. I was her third child and of course was a product of plural marriage.
Many people look upon plural marriage as inferior to monogamous marriage and actually believe it is wrong. If it were judged by its fruits, why then it must surely be regarded as a superior marriage, and furthermore it's a Biblical marriage. Abraham, Jacob, Moses and others of the holy prophets who were approved of God were polygamists. It is not to be wondered at that Joseph Smith, Brigham Young, John Taylor, Wilford Woodruff, Lorenzo Snow, Joseph F. Smith and Heber J. Grant, modern prophets, my father himself a bishop and patriarch, and many others should have followed in the footsteps of those ancient worthies. This great law of plural marriage is set forth plainly in Section 132 of the Doctrine and Covenants.
Some members of the Church, not being able apparently to discern between principle and practice have gone so far as to say that under the manifesto plural marriage has been abrogated, or done away with by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Such, however, is not the case. The principal is not abrogated, or done away with, but plural marriage is suspended at the present time (1934) and any Latter Day Saint who now presumes to enter into its practice would be summarily excommunicated from the Church.
Plural marriage, like monogamous marriage, is a principle of the Gospel and could not very well be other wise under the marriage ceremony of the Latter Day Saint Church. Those who are worthy of so great a blessing are married (or sealed together) as husband and wife, by one having the authority for time and all eternity. Death is not taken into account; death does not, will not separate them. When death intervenes followed by the resurrection, they will still be husband and wife. If the wife dies and the husband takes another wife by the Temple ordinance, and she dies, he will be a widower on earth but later when death overtakes him, his marital status will be unchanged. He will be recognized as a polygamist in the spirit world--a man with three wives.
I have been led to make the foregoing observation because of my father's and mother's status in the marriage relation and the further fact that I am a product of that relationship. I believe and know and testify that plural marriage is a true principle and cannot be abrogated except the marriage ordinance be eliminated from among the sacred ordinances of the holy Temple of God, and it seems to me that that cannot now and never will be done.

302. Evidences & Reconciliations, p. 342, 344, 393; Elder John A. Widtsoe; Copyright 1960.

The apparant denials by Church leaders in Nauvoo days that the Church practised plural marriage were correct. At that time, the Church members as a whole had not heard the revelation, nor had they been given an opportunity to accept it. But many of the leaders knew of it and were polygamists. (P. 344)
Did Joseph Smith introduce plural marriage? Many of the elders in Nauvoo entered into plural marriage, under the authority of Joseph Smith who was yet living as certified to by the men and their wives. (p. 342)
It should be remembered that permission to enter the system was granted only by the President of the Church, and after careful examination of the candidate. (p. 393)

303. Mormon Doctrine, 2nd edition, p. 578; Bruce R. McConkie; 1966.

Obviously the holy practice will commence again after the second coming of the Son of Man and the ushering in of the millennium (lsa. 7).

304. Doctrinal New Testament Commentary, Vol. 1:361-62, 518; Elder Bruce R. McConkie; 1973 edition.

In this dispensation, the promulgation of the law of plural marriage had an effect similar to the presentation of the doctrine of the Bread of Life in the meridian dispensation. Opposition from without the Church increased, while some unstable members of the Kingdom itself found themselves unable to accept the fulness of the revealed program of the Lord. There were many important reasons why the Lord revealed the doctrine of plurality of wives. But if plural marriage had served no other purpose than to sift the chaff from the wheat, than to keep the unstable and semi-faithful people from the fulness of gospel blessings, it would have been more than justified.
In Missouri and Nauvoo the mobs were often led by ministers; throughout the whole era when plural marriage was made the pretext for persecution, those who caused the earthly kingdom to suffer violence, who sought to destroy it, who took the children of the kingdom by force, were themselves the most immoral and adulterous of men. (p. 518)

305. The Ensign, "I Have A Question"; Daniel H. Ludlow; September 1980.

What laws governed the inheritance of birthright in the Old Testament?
* * * When the father had only one wife, there was no question as to who the birthright son would be. However, in those days the Lord permitted some of his patriarchs to have more than one wife (polygamy). Then the father might have several "firstborn" sons, possibly one from each of his wives. The question then naturally arose as to which firstborn son of which wife would become the head of the entire family upon the death of the father. Custom and tradition indicated that the first wife should have precedence over the other wives; thus it was determined that the firstborn son of the first wife would be the birthright son as long as he proved worthy. Only in case of unworthiness or death would the birthright go to the firstborn son of the second wife. No second-born sons were considered for the birthright unless all firstborn sons proved to be unworthy.

Patriarchal, Celestial & Plural Marriage

1. The Seer, Prospectus; January, 1853; Orson Pratt.

The views of the Saints in regard to the ancient Patriarchal Order of Matrimony or Plurality of Wives as developed in a revelation given through Joseph the Seer, will be fully published.

2. Millennial Star., Vol. 22:498-99; 1860.

President Joseph Smith taught him and his wife, Jane Benbow, the doctrine of celestial marriage, or plurality of wives, Hyrum being present.

5. J.D. 13:197; October 9, 1869; George Q. Cannon.

We have heard, during Conference, a great many precious instructions, and in none have I been more interested than in those which have been given to the Saints concerning that much mooted doctrine called Patriarchal or Celestial Marriage.

Further, the fact is established that Joseph Smith received the revelation on celestial or plural marriage, and the eternity of the marriage covenant.

11. Spencer's Letters, p. 193; Orson Spencer.

When God sets up any portion of His Kingdom upon the earth, it is patterned after his own order in the heavens. When He gives to man a pattern of family organization on the earth that pattern will be just like his own family organization in the heavens. The family of Abraham was a transcript of a celestial pattern. . .This family order of Abraham was spread out before God, and met with His entire and full approbation. And why did God approve of it? Because it is the only order practiced in the celestial heavens, and the only peaceful, united, and prosperous order that will endure, while man invented orders and devices will utterly deceive and perish with the using.

The New & Everlasting Covenant of Marriage

1. Utah Stake Historical Record #64904/CH0/1877-1888. Quarterly Conference held March 3rd and 4th, 1883; Sunday, 2 PM (page 271-); President Wilford Woodruff.

The new and everlasting Covenant is marriage, plural marriage - men may say that with their single marriage the same promises and blessings had been granted, why cannot I attain to as much as with three or four, many question me in this manner I suppose they are afraid of Edmunds, what is the Covenant? it is the eternity of the marriage covenant, and includes a plurality of wives and takes both to make the law - the Lord leads the mind step by step to this point - first that all covenants must be made by his power - next the eternity of the covenant reaching into Eternity after this the Lord tells us what the Law is and how he justified his servants. God commanded Abraham and Sarah gave Hagar to Abraham because this was the law ordained for the fullness and glory of God before the world was. This was the law and from Hagar sprang many nations, the Lord has said that to whom this Revelation is given, that they are eligible to this law, its blessings and its requirements - the men can only be saved by acts of Righteousness and the woman are under the same law. Joseph Smith declared that all who became heirs of God and joint heirs of Christ must obey his law or they cannot enter into the fullness and if they do not they may loose the one talent, when men are offered knowledge and they refuse it they will be damned and there is not a man that is sealed by this priesthood by covenants to enter into the fullness of the law and the same with the woman she says she will observe all that pertains to the new and everlasting Covenant both are under the Covenant - and must obey if they wish to enter into a continuation of the lives or of the seeds.

2. Declarations of the First Presidency on Temple Work, Vol. 5:44; May 22, 1888.

President's office
Salt Lake City, Utah
May 22, 1888

Bishop S.A. Woolley,
19th Ward, Salt Lake City,

Dear Brother: . . .

You asked whether a person who has once been married in the Endowment House or Temple, and is left a widow or a widower, commits adultery by marrying again when the ceremony is performed by a justice of the peace or a civil officer.

There is a manifest impropriety, which every Latter-day Saint who has had his or her endowments should perceive, in such a person going to a civil officer to have a ceremony of marriage performed. The fact that such a person does so is in evidence that he or she is falling away, because if in good standing a recommendation could be obtained for the temple, where the ceremony could be performed, should be performed according to the order which God has instituted. But a person marrying under such circumstances does not commit adultery.

You ask some other questions concerning how many living wives a man must have to fulfill the law.

When a man, according to the revelation, marries a wife under the holy order which God has reveals and then marries another in the same say, he enters into the new and everlasting covenant, so far as he has gone he has obeyed the law. I know of no requirement which makes it necessary for a man to have three living wives at a time.

With kind regards,
I remain,

Your Brother,

W. Woodruff.

Feb. 25th, 1889

Elder Martin Johansen,
Ferron
Dear Brother:--Your letter of Feb. 20th, asking certain questions, has been received.
It would be quite proper for you to submit all such questions to the Bishop of you[r] Ward or the President of your stake. However, in reply to your question as to what is meant in Sec. 131 Book of Doc. & Cov.--viz:

Gospel Mysteries

"If a man hath one wife seal[ed] to him in the Temple for time and for all eternity, will he enter into the celestial glory and have increase, or hath it reference to a man who hath more than one wife sealed to him?"
It may mean one wife, under certain circumstances; but when circumstances will permit it means more.
The words through the Prophet Joseph, as recorded in Sec. 131 Doctrine and Covenants, are correct and mean what they say.

With kind regards, Your Brother, W. Woodruff

The Patriarchal Law of Marriage Given to Abraham

1. J.D. 4:224; February 8, 1857; Salt Lake Tabernacle; Pres. Heber C. Kimball.
Do you suppose that Joseph and Hyrum and all those good men would associate with those ancient worthies, if they had not been engaged in the same practices? They had to do the works of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in order to be admitted where they are; they had to be polygamists in order to be received into their society.

2. J.D. 11:268-69; August 19, 1866; Salt Lake Bowery; Pres. Brigham Young.

It is the word of the Lord, and I wish to say to you, and all the world, that if you desire with all your hearts to obtain the blessings which Abraham obtained, you will be polygamists at least in your faith, or you will come short of enjoying the salvation and the glory which Abraham has obtained. This is as true as that God lives.

3. J.D. 13:200; October 9, 1869; Salt Lake Tabernacle; George Q. Cannon.

God revealed that strait and narrow way (D&C 132:22) to Abraham, and taught him how he could enter therein. He taught him the principle of plurality of wives; Abraham practiced it and bequeathed it to his children as a principle which they were to practice.

4. J.D. 21:10; December 7, 1879; 17th Ward Meetinghouse, Salt Lake City, at the Funeral of William Clayton; Joseph F. Smith.

And as he [Wm Clayton] has here stated, as having come from the mouth of the Prophet, this doctrine of eternal union of husband and wife, and of plural marriage, is one of the most important doctrines ever revealed to man in any age of the world. Without it man would come to a full stop; without it we never could be exalted to associate with and become gods, neither could we attain to the power of eternal increase, or the blessings pronounced upon Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, the fathers of the faithful.

5. J.D. 23:132; May 14, 1882, Sunday; Salt Lake Tabernacle; Wilford Woodruff.

We declare to all men that the God of heaven commanded Joseph Smith to introduce and practice the patriarchal order of marriage, including the plurality of wives. And why? Because it was the law given to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob for certain purposes.

6. Life of Wilford Woodruff, p. 542, by Matthias F. Cowley; October 13, 1882.

Concerning the Patriarchal Order of Marriage, President Taylor said: 'If we do not embrace that principle soon, the keys will be turned against us. If we do not keep the same law that our Heavenly Father has kept, we cannot go with Him. A man obeying a lower law is not qualified to preside over those who keep a higher law.' In harmony with the remarks of President Taylor, Elder Woodruff observed: 'The reason why the Church and Kingdom of God cannot advance without the Patriarchal Order of Marriage is that it belongs to this dispensation just as baptism for the dead does, or any law or ordinance that belongs to a dispensation. Without it the Church cannot progress. The leading men of Israel who are presiding over stakes will have to obey the law of Abraham, or they will have to resign.'

7. The Gospel Kingdom, p. 390; 4th ed.; Revelation given to President John Taylor, October 13, 1882.

You may appoint Seymour B. Young to fill up the vacancy in the presiding quorum of Seventies, if he will conform to my law; for it is not meet that men who will not abide my law shall preside over my priesthood.

Necessary to Gain Exaltation & Fulness of Glory

1. J.D. 1:54; August 29, 1852; Salt Lake Tabernacle; Orson Pratt.

In reply we will show you that it is incorporated as a part of our religion, and necessary for our exaltation of the fulness of the Lord's glory in the eternal world. Before we get through, we will endeavour to tell you why we consider it an essential doctrine to glory and exaltation, to our fulness of happiness in the world to come.

2. J.D. 11:269; August 19, 1866; Salt Lake Bowery; Pres. Brigham Young.

The only men who become Gods, even the Sons of God, are those who enter into polygamy. Others attain unto a glory and may even be permitted to come into the presence of the Father and the Son; but they cannot reign as kings in glory, because they had blessings offered unto them, and they refused to accept them.

3. Historical Record, Vol. 6:226; February 16, 1874; William Clayton.

From him [Joseph Smith] I learned that the doctrine of plural and celestial marriage is the most holy and important doctrine ever revealed to man on the earth, and that without obedience to that principle no man can ever attain to the fulness of exaltation in celestial glory.

4. J.D. 20:28; July 7, 1878, Sunday morning; Salt Lake Tab.; Joseph F. Smith.

Some people have supposed that the doctrine of plural marriage was a sort of superfluity, or non-essential to the salvation or exaltation of mankind. In other words, some of the Saints have said, and believe, that a man with one wife, sealed to him by the authority of the Priesthood for time and eternity, will receive an exaltation as great and glorious, if he is faithful, as he possibly could with more than one. I want here to enter my solemn protest against this idea, for I know it is false. . .The marriage of one woman to a man for time and eternity by the sealing power, according to the law of God, is a fulfillment of the celestial law of marriage in part --- and is good as far as it goes --- But this is only the beginning of the law, not the whole of it. Therefore, whoever has imagined that he could obtain the fullness of the blessings pertaining to this celestial law, by complying with only a portion of its conditions, has deceived himself. He cannot do it.

5. Journal of Eliza M. Partridge (Smith) Lyman, pp. 92-94; 1879.

It is now about thirty-six years since the Prophet Joseph Smith taught to me the principles of Celestial Marriage. I was then married by the order and have raised a family of both sons and daughters in what is called Polygamy, and I am not afraid to say that it is one of the most pure and holy principles that has ever been revealed to the LDS, and one that is necessary to our exaltation.
* * * Then let us rejoice my Sisters, that we are numbered with the People of God, that we have embraced the Celestial Order of Marriage, and happy shall we be in a coming day if we have never spoken lightly of sacred things.

6. J.D. 24:146; May 6, 1883, Sunday morning; Quarterly Stake Conference held in Logan, Cache County, Utah; George Q. Cannon.

And I obeyed the doctrine of patriarchal marriage, upon the same principle of salvation and of exaltation, and that if I would be exalted in the presence of God I must obey the law.

7. The Contributor, Vol. 13:196; February 1892; First Presidency and Quorum of the Twelve Apostles.

We, the First Presidency and Apostles of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, beg respectfully to represent to your Excellency the following facts:
We formerly taught to our people that polygamy, or celestial marriage, as commanded by God through Joseph Smith, was right; that it was a necessity to men's highest exaltation in the life to come. . .up to a short time before September, 1890 [when the Manifesto was issued].

8. Historical Record, Vol. 6:231; Bishop S. A. Woolley.

. . .and that no man could or would receive a fulness of celestial glory and eternal life, except he obeyed that law, and had more than one living wife at the same time.

Necessary For The Church To Advance Forward

1. J.D. 11:221; April 7, 1866; Salt Lake Tabernacle; John Taylor.

Joseph Smith told others; he told me, and I can bear witness of it, 'that if this principle was not introduced, this Church and kingdom could not proceed.' When this commandment was given, it was so far religious, and so far binding upon the Elders of this Church, that it was told them if they were not prepared to enter into it, and to stem the torrent of opposition that would come in consequence of it, the keys of the kingdom would be taken from them.

2. J.D. 21:10; December 7, 1879; Funeral of William Clayton, held at the 17th Ward Meetinghouse, Salt Lake City; Joseph F. Smith.

And as he has here stated, as having come from the mouth of the Prophet, this doctrine of eternal union of husband and wife, and of plural marriage, is one of the most important doctrines ever revealed to man in any age of the world. Without it man would come to a full stop.

3. J.D. 24:229-230; June-July 1883; John Taylor's trip to Bear Lake.
And I will tell you what Joseph Smith said upon the subject. He presented this principle to the Twelve, and called upon them to obey it, and said if they did not, the kingdom of God could not go one step further.

4. Life of Wilford Woodruff, p. 546; by Matthias Cowley; July 1883.

The law of the Patriarchal Order of marriage belongs to this dispensation, and after it was revealed to the Prophet Joseph, he was commanded to receive it. If he and the people had rejected it, the Church and Kingdom of God would have advanced no further and God would have taken it from them and given it to another people.

5. Historical Record, Vol. 6:232, by Andrew Jensen; Comments of Sarah M. Kimball & John Taylor; No date.

. . .God had revealed it again and instructed him [Joseph] to teach it with commandment, as the Church could travel (progress) no further without the introduction of this principle. (Sarah M. Kimball)

President Taylor spoke briefly, stating that he was present at a meeting of the leading authorities of the Church in Nauvoo, at which the subject of the revelation on celestial marriage was laid before them and unanimously received as from God. Joseph declared that unless it was received the Church could progress no further. Soon after he met the Prophet Joseph, who addressing [me] said the time had come when he must embrace the doctrine of plural marriage. (John Taylor)

Living Plural Marriage Does Not Bring Sorrow

1. J.D. 11:301; February 3, 1867; Salt Lake Tabernacle; Pres. Brigham Young.

I do not wonder at this people having trouble; I do not wonder at some of our sisters having sorrow in what is termed plural marriage; for they do not live so as to have the Spirit and power of God upon them; if they did, they could see its beauty and excellence, and not a word would be said against it from this time henceforth and forever. But they see this with a selfish eye, and say, 'I want my glory and my comfort here.'

2. J.D. 12:312; November 29, 1868; Salt Lake Tabernacle; Pres. Brigham Young.
Our sisters need not be worried about any doctrine. Brother Penrose said it would be better for them if they believed in the doctrine of polygamy. But they do believe it; they know it is true, and that is their torment. It perplexes and annoys many of them, because they are not sanctified by the spirit of it; if they were there would be no trouble.

3. Life of Wilford Woodruff, pp. 546-47; by Matthias F. Cowley; July, 1883.

It has been said that the Patriarchal Order of Marriage has caused more sorrow to the daughters of Eve than any other principle ever revealed from Heaven to men, but this is not true. No divine principle brings trouble to those who faithfully obey it. If they who are in it have troubles it is not the fault of the principle but because of weakness and of the false traditions which surround them. The Lord never gave a law to the children of men which will give to them exaltation and glory except through the observance of that law.

Opposition To Plural Marriage Brings Damnation

1. J.D. 3:266; July 14, 1855; Provo Bowery; Pres. Brigham Young.

Now if any of you will deny the plurality of wives, and continue to do so, I promise that you will be damned; and I will go still further and say, take this revelation that the Lord has given, and deny it in your feelings, and I promise that you will be damned.

2. J.D. 11:211; April 4, 1866; Salt Lake Tabernacle; Pres. Heber C. Kimball.

I speak of plurality of wives as one of the most holy principles that God ever revealed to man, and all those who exercise an influence against it, unto whom it is taught, man or woman, will be damned, and they, and all who will be influenced by them, will suffer the buffetings of Satan in the flesh; for the curse of God will be upon them, and poverty, and distress, and vexation of spirit will be their portion; while those who honor this and every sacred institution of heaven will shine forth as the stars in the firmament of heaven, and of the increase of their kingdom and glory there shall be no end.

3. J.D. 11:221; April 7, 1866; Salt Lake Tabernacle; John Taylor.
Where did this commandment come from in relation to polygamy? It also came from God. It was a revelation given unto Joseph Smith from God, and was made binding upon His servants. When this system was first introduced among this people, it was one of the greatest crosses that ever was taken up by any set of men since the world stood. Joseph Smith told others; he told me, and I can bear witness of it, 'that if this principle was not introduced, this Church and kingdom could not proceed.' When this commandment was given, it was so far religious, and so far binding upon the Elders of this Church, that it was told them if they were not prepared to enter into it, and to stem the torrent of opposition that would come in consequence of it, the keys of the kingdom would be taken from them. When I see any of our people, men or women, opposing a principle of this kind, I have years ago set them down as on the high road to apostasy, and I do to-day; I consider them apostates, and not interested in this Church and kingdom.

4. J.D. 13:42; October 8, 1869; Salt Lake Tabernacle; George A. Smith.

Is not the man that denounces Celestial Marriage a liar? Does he not work abominations?

5. J.D. 17:159; August 9, 1874, Sunday afternoon; Lehi City Meetinghouse; Pres. Brigham Young.

I want to say to my sisters that if you lift up your heels against this revelation, and say that you would obliterate it, and put it out of existence if you had the power to nullify and destroy it, I say that if you imbibe that spirit and feeling, you will go to hell, just as sure as you are living women. Emma took that revelation, supposing she had all there was. . .She went to the fireplace and put it in, and put the candle under it and burnt it, and she thought that was the end of it, and she will be damned as sure as she is a living woman. Joseph used to say that he would have her hereafter, if he had to go to hell for her, and he will have to go to hell for her as sure as he ever gets her.

6. J.D. 17:224-225; October 7, 1874, Wednesday; Salt Lake Tab.; Orson Pratt.

I did hope there was more intelligence among the Latter-day Saints, and a greater understanding of principle than to suppose that any one can be a member of this Church in good standing, and yet reject polygamy. The Lord has said, that those who reject this principle reject their salvation, they shall be damned, saith the Lord; those to whom I reveal this law and they do not receive it, shall be damned. * * *
Now I want to prophecy a little. It is not very often that I prophecy, though I was commanded to do so, when I was a boy. I want to prophecy that all men and women who oppose the revelation which God has given in relation to polygamy will find themselves in darkness; the Spirit of God will withdraw from them the very moment of their opposition to that principle, until they will finally go down to hell and be damned, if they do not repent.

7. Historical Record, Vol. 6:227; January 10, 1885; Thomas Grover.

Brother Hyrum was called upon to read the revelation. He did so, and after the reading said, 'Now, you that believe this revelation and go forth and obey the same shall be saved, and you that reject it shall be damned.'

Parable of the Talents Refers to Plural Marriage

1. Historical Record, Vol. 6:221-222; March 4, 1870; Benjamin F. Johnson.

He [Joseph] also told me that he would preach a sermon that day for me which I would understand while the rest of the congregation would not comprehend his meaning. His subject was the ten talents, 'unto him that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundantly, but from him that hath not (or will not receive), shall be taken away that which he hath (or might have had)'. Plainly giving me to understand that the talents represented wives and children, as the principle of enlargement throughout the great future to those who were heirs of salvation.

2. J.D. 16:166; August 31, 1873, Sunday; Bowery, Paris, Oneida County, Idaho; Pres. Brigham Young.

Now, where a man in this church says, 'I don't want but one wife, I will live my religion with one,' he will perhaps be saved in the celestial kingdom; but when he gets there he will not find himself in possession of any wife at all. He has had a talent that he has hid up. He will come forward and say, 'Here is that which thou gavest me, I have not wasted it, and here is the one talent,' and he will not enjoy it, but it will be taken and given to those who have improved the talents they received, and he will find himself without any wife, and he will remain single for ever and ever. But if the woman is determined not to enter into a plural marriage, that woman when she comes forth will have the privilege of living in single blessedness through all eternity.

3. Journal of Wilford Woodruff; October 14, 1882. At a meeting of the First Presidency, Quorum of the Twelve and Stake Presidents, Erastus Snow said:

E Snow said that Joseph Smith said that the parable that Jesus spoke of that the man who had one talent & hid it in the Earth was the man who had but one wife & would not take another would have taken from him & given to one who had more.

4. J.D. 24:75; April 6, 1883, General Conference; Salt Lake Tab; Erastus Snow.

It is as Jesus said concerning the man who hid it in a napkin; he laid it carefully away, and by and by brought it out, saying, here it is as I received it, not having increased at all; in other words, we are just where we were when we started. Another one says I received two talents; and have increased to four, another says I received five talents, and now have ten; the master says to the one who hid his talent, who perhaps laid it carefully away and kept it nice, watching over it with the greatest care; of in other words, to him who did not multiply and increase, but on the contrary took pains to avoid doing so, 'Take from him that which he seems to have and give to him that has ten; for he that has and improves upon that which he receives, shall receive more abundantly.'

The Law of Sarah

1. Doctrine & Covenants 132:61, 65; July 12, 1843.

And again, as pertaining to the law of the priesthood--if any man espouse a virgin, and desire to espouse another, and the first give her consent, and if he espouse the second, and they are virgins, and have vowed to no other man, then is he justified; he cannot commit adultery for they are given unto him; for he cannot commit adultery with that that belongeth unto him and to no one else.
Therefore, it shall be lawful in me, if she receive not this law, for him to receive all things whatsoever I, the Lord his God, will give unto him, because she did not believe and administer unto him according to my word; and she then becomes the transgressor; and he is exempt from the law of Sarah, who administered unto Abraham according to the law when I commanded Abraham to take Hagar to wife.

2. The Seer, p. 41; March 1853; Elder Orson Pratt.

When a man who has a wife, teaches her the law of God, as revealed to the ancient patriarchs, and as manifested by new revelation, and she refuses to give her consent for him to marry another according to that law, then it becomes necessary for her to state before the President the reasons why she withholds her consent: if her reasons are sufficient and justifiable, and the husband is found in the fault or in transgression, then he is not permitted to take any step in regard to obtaining another. But if the wife can show no good reason why she refuses to comply with the law which was given unto Sarah of old, then it is lawful for her husband, if permitted by revelation through the Prophet, to be married to others without her consent, and he will be justified, and she will be condemned, because she did not give them unto him, as Sarah gave Hagar unto Abraham, and as Rachel and Leah gave Bilhah and Zilpah to their husband, Jacob.

3. Journal of Wilford Woodruff; October 26, 1868; Remarks made at the funeral of Vilate Kimball by her husband, Heber C. Kimball.

I have taken 40 wives and many without her knowledge but she afterwards gave them to me in the Temple.

4. J.D. 16:166-67; August 9, 1873, Sunday Afternoon; Lehi City Meeting House; Pres. Brigham Young.

I recollect a sister conversing with Joseph Smith on this subject. She told him: 'Now, don't talk to me; when I get into the celestial kingdom, if I ever do get there, I shall request the privilege of being a ministering angel; that is the labor that I wish to perform. I don't want any companion in that world; and if the Lord will make me a ministering angel, it is all I want.' Joseph said, 'Sister, you talk very foolishly, you do not know what you will want.' He then said to me: 'Here, brother Brigham, you seal this lady to me.' I sealed her to him.

5. J.D. 17:159; August 31, 1874, Sunday; Delivered in the Bowery, Oneida County, Idaho; Pres. Brigham Young.

If it is the duty of a husband to take a wife, take her. But it is not the privilege of a woman to dictate the husband, and tell who or how many he shall take, or what he shall do with them when he gets them, but it is the duty of the woman to submit cheerfully.

Dear Sister:
You further inquire: "What is the difference in a man having dead wives sealed to him than living women, so that he has one living wife; will they gain as great an exaltation if they have dead women sealed to them as they would if they had living women sealed to them?" This law pertains more particularly to the living, and on this point I refer you to verse 52 wherein it is said: "And let mine handmaid, Emma Smith, receive all those that have been given unto my servant Joseph, and who are virtuous and pure before me; and those who are not pure, and have said they were pure, shall be destroyed, saith the Lord God," and in the 64th verse: "And again, verily, verily, I say unto you, if any man have a wife, who holds the keys of this power, and he teaches unto her this law of my priesthood, as pertaining to these things, then shall she believe and administer unto him, or she shall be destroyed, saith the Lord your God; for I will destroy her; for I will magnify my name upon all those who receive and abide in my law." "This is the law of Sarah, who administered unto Abraham according to the law, when I commanded Abraham to take Hagar to wife." You seem to be desirous of having dead women sealed to your husband instead of living ones, where as the law pertaining to these matters does not put things in that shape. We read that the Lord commanded, and Sarah gave Hagar to Abraham to wife, and it is for wives as well as husbands to perform their part in relation to these matters as explicitly stated in verse 64. * * * Circumstances do not always place it in the power of man to enter into this covenant and these matters are left with the Lord to adjust, but no man or woman has authority to point out any other way than that which the Lord has appointed.

7. Letter from Pres. John Taylor to Bishop A. A. Kimball, November 19, 1886; First Presidency Letterbook Copybooks, 1877--1949/Vol. 14:18-19; CR/1/20/#12 Church Archives.

Bishop A.A. Kimball
Kanosh, Millard Co.

Dear Brother.

You submit a peculiar case to me in your letter of the 15th a woman who is the wife of one of our Elders, herself incapable of bearing children because of physical malformation, threatens her husband with the Pen[itentary] if he shall attempt to obey the law of God, and take to himself another wife and obtain for himself a posterity which otherwise he cannot have.
If it were not for the law of man he could do this without her consent, after having given her the privilege of exercising the right of the law of Sarah. As we are now situated he cannot do this without endangering his liberty, through her taking advantage of the Edmunds law. But there is more than one law of the land and under another law he can obtain a separation from her, physical malformation being deemed by the law a sufficient cause for divorce. * * * If he is a worthy faithful Latter-day Saint and there be nothing against him more than this, he should not be denied the privilege of going to the Temple, or of taking a wife without condemnation. He ought, however, to treat his first wife with kindness and sustain her; but if she still persists in threatening him for obeying the law of God, she herself becomes a transgressor and has no right to fellowship in the Church.

Our young people come here to be married to be husband and wife through all eternity taking upon them covenants to observe all the laws, rites and ceremonies pertaining to the Holy order of matrimony, this is the way God has established, and the ceremony that seals one wife to a man seals other wives. And when a man takes a wife they enter this sacred order and covenant to observe all the rites in this. The man covenants to take more wives, the woman covenants to do the part of Sarah and gives her consent for him to take more wives. Hoped the young people would understand these things. A covenant not kept is a covenant broken. When we enter that covenant we must continue in it. Still there is no one here who will say you shall take more wives, that is left entirely with yourselves.

Gospel Mysteries

Must Be Practiced Under Priesthood Control

1. J.D. 13:201-02; October 9, 1869; Salt Lake Tabernacle; George Q. Cannon.

It is necessary that this principle should be practiced under the auspices and control of the priesthood. God has placed that Priesthood in the Church to govern and control all the affairs thereof, and this is a principle which, if not practiced in the greatest holiness and purity, might lead men into great sin, therefore the Priesthood is the more necessary to guide and control men in the practice of this principle.

2. Questions & Answers Concerning Celestial Marriage, pp. 1-12; June 25, 1882; A Revelation through President John Taylor; Church Historians Office.

Question: Is the law of Celestial Marriage a law given to this nation or to the world?

Answer: No, in no other sense than as the Gospel is given, and in accordance with the laws thereof. So far as it is made known unto them as the Gospel is made known unto them and is a part of the New and Everlasting Covenant; and it is only those who receive the Gospel that are able to, or capable of, entering into this Covenant. [page 2] Have I not said through my servant, Joseph, that "all Kingdoms are governed by law," and if they receive not the law of My Gospel they cannot participate in the blessings of celestial marriage, which pertains to my elect.
No person, or people, or nation can enter into the principle of celestial marriage unless they come in by me, saith the Lord, and obey the law of my Gospel through the medium of him who is appointed unto this power, as made known unto my people through my servant, Joseph, in a revelation on "The eternity of the marriage covenant, including plurality of wives." * * *
You are not now sent to proclaim this principle to the United States, nor the world; nor to urge it upon them. It is not for them as a nation, or nations, only as many as accept the law of my Gospel and are governed thereby. Behold, if you were to preach this principle unto them and they said, "We accept it," Could you then administer it unto them? Verily, I say unto you, Nay. Have I not said, "Behold, mine house is a house of order, saith the Lord God, and not a house of confusion.

Cause For Withdrawal & Future Practice

1. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon; October 1, 1890, Wednesday; Salt Lake City, Utah; Meeting of the Quorum of the Twelve.

John H. Smith: I cannot feel to say that the manifesto is quite right or wrong. lt may be that the people are unworthy of the principle and hence the Lord has withdrawn it. I cannot consent to cease living with my wives unless I am imprisoned.

2. William H. Smart Diary, 1901-1902 Book, p. 94; July 28, 1901.

At Wasatch Stake MIA Conference, remarks of Sister and President Joseph F. Smith: "Sister Smith bore a very strong testimony to the divinity of the principle of plural marriage. Pres. Smith endorsed it. He said it was taken away from the people--like the law of consecration--because the saints rejected it, and neither would be restored until there is a people prepared to live them. Anyone should beware that casts slurs upon the birth of those born under this covenant. Also that men who will not appreciate their wives and children and provide for them will lose them."

3. Letter From Anthony W. Ivins to Mr. Thomas H. Jones, Colonia Dublan, Chihuahua, Mexico; June 25, 1926; Film 272/Box 15/Letters #499-501/CHO. Pres. Joseph F. Smith is being quoted in the letter.

Brother Ivins, plural marriage must be discontinued, in Mexico as well as in other parts of the Church. When you return to Mexico I want you to see that no more plural marriages are solemnized there. Tell the brethren there that they must cease their activities. There is no man who is authorized to perform a plural marriage, not even I can do it after the action taken by the conference, unless they shall vote again in favor of it.

Obviously the holy practice will commence again after the second coming of the Son of Man and the ushering in of the millennium (Isa. 7).

Plural Marriage Ceremony

1. The Seer, Vol. 1, No 2, pp. 31-32; February, 1853.

The wife stands on the left hand of her husband, while the bride stands on her left. The President, then, puts this question to the wife: "Are you willing to give this woman to your husband to be his lawful and wedded wife for time and for all eternity? If you are, you will manifest it by placing her right hand within the right hand of your husband." The right hands of the bridegroom and bride, being thus joined, the wife takes her husband by the left arm, as if in the attitude of walking: the President, then, proceeds to ask the following question of the man: "Do you brother, (calling him by name,) take sister, (calling the bride by her name,) by the right hand to receive her unto yourself to be your lawful and wedded wife, and you to be her lawful and wedded husband for time and for all eternity, with a covenant and promise, on your part, that you will fulfill all the laws, rites, and ordinances, pertaining to this holy matrimony, in the new and everlasting covenant, doing this in the presence of God, angels, and these witnesses of your own free will and choice?" The bridegroom answers, yes. The President, then, puts the question to the bride: "Do you, sister, (calling her by name,) take brother, (calling him by name,) by the right hand, and give yourself to him, to be his lawful and wedded wife for time and for all eternity with a covenant and promise, on your part, that you will fulfill all the laws, rites, and ordinances, pertaining to this holy matrimony, in the new and everlasting covenant, doing this in the presence of God, angels, and these witnesses of your own free will and choice?" The bride answers, yes.
The President then says, "ln the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and by the authority of the Holy Priesthood, I pronounce you legally and lawfully husband and wife for time and for all eternity; and I seal upon you the blessings of the holy resurrection, with power to come forth in the morning of the first resurrection, clothed with glory, immortality, and eternal lives; and I seal upon you the blessings of thrones, and dominions, and principalities, and powers, and exaltations, together with the blessings of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and say unto you be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, that you may have joy and rejoicing in your posterity in the day of the Lord Jesus. All these blessings, together with all other blessings pertaining to the new and everlasting covenant, I seal upon your heads, through your faithfulness unto the end, by the authority of the Holy Priesthood, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, Amen."

2. The L.D.S. Millennial Star, Vol. 15:214; 1853.

3. Journal of Wilford Woodruff; September 17, 1854; Ms/f/115.

President Young preached this afternoon & spoke upon the Law of Consecration & had an interesting conversation in our Prayer Circle. The subject of Elder Orson Pratt publishing the Seer and the doctrine it contained was brought up in conversation. President Young said he ought not to have published the marriage ceremony--lt was sacred and one of the last ceremonies attended to in the endowments and ought not to have been given to the world. Brother Pratt said that he thought it was no harm as the plurality of wives and its doctrine was to be published to the world. He said he should not have done it---if he had thought there had been the least harm in it. President Young said he was satisfied that he intended no wrong in it.

4. History of Utah, pp. 353-354, by Hubert H. Bancroft. n.d.; Typed w/o sic. This rendition closely follows the pattern given by Orson Pratt in The Seer.

Ann Eliza Webb, who was twice married according to Mormon practice, once by Brigham, and afterward to him, thus describes the ceremonies:

After registration, which includes names, age, place of birth, with county, state, or country, 'we went before Brigham Young, who was waiting for us,' and who asked, 'Do you, Brother James Dee, take Sister Ann Eliza Webb by the right hand, to receive her unto yourself, to be your lawful and wedded wife, and you to be her lawful and wedded husband, for time and eternity, with a covenant and promise on your part that you will fulfil all the laws, rights, and ordinances pertaining to this holy matrimony, in the new and everlasting covenant, doing this in the presence of God, angels, and these witnesses, of your own free will and accord?' 'Yes'. 'Do you, Sister Ann Eliza Webb, take Brother James Dee by the right hand, and give yourself to him, to be his lawful and wedded wife, for time and for all eternity, with a covenant and promise on your part that you will fulfil all the laws, rights, and ordinances pertaining to this holy matrimony, in the new and everlasting covenant, doing this is the presence of God, angels, and these witnesses, of your own free will and accord?' 'Yes'. 'In the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and by the authority of the holy priesthood, I pronounce you legally and lawfully husband and wife, for time and for all eternity. And I seal upon you the blessings of the holy resurrection, with power to come forth in the morning of the first resurrection, clothed with glory, immortality, and everlasting lives; and I seal upon you the blessings of thrones, and dominions, and principalities, and powers, and exaltations, together with the blessings of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. And I say unto you, Be fruitful, and multiply and replenish the earth, that you may have joy and rejoicing in your prosperity in the day of the Lord Jesus. All these blessings, together with all other blessings pertaining to the new and everlasting covenant, I seal upon your heads, through your faithfulness unto the end, by the authority of the holy priesthood, in the name of the father, and of the son, and of the holy ghost. Amen'

'The scribe then entered the date of the marriage, together with the names of my mother and the one or two friends who accompanied us.' When the marriage is a polygamous one, the wife stands on the left of her husband, and the bride at her left hand. The president then puts this question to the wife: 'Are you willing to give this woman to your husband, to be his lawful and wedded wife for time and for all eternity? If you are, you will manifest it by placing her right hand within the right hand of your husband.' The right hands of the husband and bride being thus joined, the wife takes her husband by the left arm, as in walking, and the ceremony then proceeds as in the manner quoted above. Of course, as these ceremonies took place in the endowment house, the temple robes were worn.

MARY WAS SEALED TO THE FATHER

1. Luke 1:26-35

26. And in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth,
27. To a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary.
28. And the angel came in unto her, and said, Hail, thou that art highly favoured, the Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women.
29. And when she saw him, she was troubled at his saying, and cast in her mind what manner of salutation this should be.
30. And the angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favour with God.
31. And, behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name JESUS.
32. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David:

33. And he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end.
34. Then said Mary unto the angel, How shall this be, seeing I know not a man?
35. And the angel answered and said unto her, The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God.
36. And, behold, thy cousin Elisabeth, she hath also conceived a son in her old age: and this is the sixth month with her, who was called barren.
37. For with God nothing shall be impossible.
38. And Mary said, Behold the handmaid of the Lord; be it unto me according to thy word. And the angel departed from her.

2. The Seer, p. 158; October, 1853; Elder Orson Pratt

The fleshly body of Jesus required a mother as well as a father. Therefore, the father and mother of Jesus, according to the flesh, must have been associated together in the capacity of husband and wife; hence, the virgin Mary must have been, for the time being, the lawful wife of God the Father: we use the term lawful wife, because it would be blasphemous in the highest degree to say that he overshadowed her or begat the Savior unlawfully. * * * He had a lawful right to overshadow the virgin Mary in the capacity of a husband and beget a son. * * * Whether God the Father gave Mary to Joseph for time only, or for time and eternity, we are not informed. Inasmuch as God was the first husband to her, it may be that he only gave her to be the wife of Joseph while in this mortal state, and that he intended after the resurrection to again take her as one of his own wives to raise up immortal spirits in eternity.

3. Box Elder News, Brigham City, Utah, January 28, 1915; Discourse of President Joseph F. Smith at the Box Elder Stake Conference, December 20, 1914, morning session of conference.

Now, little boys and girls, when you are confronted by infidels in the world who know nothing of how Christ was begotten, you can say he was born just as the infidel was begotten and born, so was Christ begotten by His Father who is also our Father---the father of our spirits---and He was born of His mother, Mary.
The difference between Jesus Christ and other men is this. Our fathers in the flesh are mortal men who are subject unto death, but the Father of Jesus Christ in the flesh is the God of Heaven. Therefore Jesus, as he declared, received the power of life from His Father and was never subject unto death but had life in Himself. * * *
These are truths and I wish they could be instilled into the hearts of these little children so that they will not be tossed about by every wind of doctrine and be confused by the teachers of atheism. * * *
Now my little friends, I will repeat again in words as simple as I can, and you talk to your parents about it, that God the Eternal Father is literally the Father of Jesus Christ.
Mary was married to Joseph for time. No man could take her for eternity because she belonged to the Father of her divine Son. In the revelation that has come thru Joseph Smith we learn that it is the eternal purpose of God that man and woman should be joined together by the power of God here on earth for time and eternity.

MAN IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE WOMAN
by Richard Ware

Important concepts related to this idea:

1. The husband covenants to obey the Lord God, the wife covenants to obey her husband in all righteousness. (Endowment)

2. The husband was given the keys to his own kingdom when he entered into the new and everlasting covenant of marriage at temple marriage.

3. His wife is sealed to him and is made a full participant in all the blessings of that kingdom.

4. He is the one who will take his wife through the veil. The worker on the other side of the veil always represents the husband. In the early days of the Church the husbands would always take their own wives through the veil, but because it slowed the temple work down, it was dispensed with.

5. She is made a queen and a priestess unto her husband.

6. The wife rules in the home and teaches and corrects her children, and adorns her castle with beauty and righteousness and the spirit of the Lord.

7. The husband is responsible for the conduct of his wife and children. (6)

8. The wife places herself in subjection to her husband through the covenant of obedience, not through any other ordinance or covenant.

9. The husband must vouch for the conduct of his wife or wives (for those who lived during the time of plural marriage) when the time comes for them to pass through the veils of heaven.

MAN IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE WOMAN

1."A Few Words of Doctrine", Unpublished Discourse of Pres. Brigham Young, October 8, 1861 A.M. in the Great Salt Lake Tabernacle. Church Archives Ms/d/1234/Bx 49/fd 8.

A few remarks on woman. She is the glory of the man, but she is not at the head in all the creations of God. Pertaining to his children on this earth she is not accountable for the sins that are in the world. God requires obedience from man, he is Lord of creation, and at his hands the sin of the world will be required. Could the female portion of the human family fully understand this, they would see that they are objects of tender mercy, and greatly blessed. * * * Woman must atone for sins committed by the volition of her own choice, but she will never become an angel to the devil, and sin so far as to place herself beyond the reach of mercy. She will suffer all that she has strength to suffer according to the venality of her sins. The woman is the glory of the man; what is the glory of the woman? It is her virginity until she gives it into the hands of the man that will be her Lord and master to all eternity.

2. Journal of Heber C. Kimball, 14 December 1845.

Elder Geo. A. Smith arose and addressed the congregation.

To make a man responsible he must have the power and ability not only to save himself but to save others. . . .

3. Journal of Heber C. Kimball, 21 December 1845.

When a man and his wife are united in feeling, and act in union, I believe they can hold their children by prayer and faith. . . .--the woman ought to be in subjection to the man--be careful to guard against loud laughter--against whispering--levity, talebearing. * * *

Elder Kimball next addressed the meeting. * * * -- He spoke of the necessity of women being in subjection to their husbands--I am subject to my God, my wife is in subjection to me and will reverence me in my place, and I will make her happy. I do not want her to step forward and dictate to me any more than I dictate to Pres. Young. * * *

Amasa Lyman addressed the assembly. * * *

It is not for amusement you are brought to receive these things--but to put --- you in possession of the means of Salvation and be brought into a proper relationship to God -- Hence a man becomes responsible for his own conduct, and that of his wife if he has one. * * * We want the man to remember that he has covenanted to keep the law of God, and the woman to obey her husband and if you keep your covenants you will not be guilty of transgression. The line drawn is for you to maintain your covenants and you will always be found in the path of obedience. -- * * *

Elder H. C. Kimball said, the ideas advanced by brother Lyman are good and true -- * * * You have got to honor and reverence your brethren, for if you do not you never can honor God. The man was created, and God gave him dominion over the whole earth, but he saw that he never could multiply, and replenish the earth without a woman. And he made one [viz. a woman] and gave her to him. He did not make the man for the woman, but the woman for the man, and it is just as unlawful for you to rise up and rebel against your husband, as it would be for man to rebel against God.
When the man came to the vail, God gave the key word to the man, and the man gave it to the woman. But if a man don't use a woman well and take good care of her, God will take her away from him, and give her to another.

4. Journal of Heber C. Kimball, 28 December 1845

[Pres. Brigham Young:] * * *

After his fall, another name was given to Adam, and being full of integrity, and not disposed to follow the woman nor listen to her, was permitted to receive the tokens of the priesthood. * * *
The order and ordinances passed through here prove the principles taught in the Bible--First men should love their God supremely. Woman will never get back, unless She follows the man back--if the man had followed the woman he would have followed her down until this time--Light, liberty and happiness will never shine upon men until they learn these principles--The love which David & Jonathan had for each other was the love of the priesthood.

By Brother Kimble on Resurection

* * * The woman cannot attain to all that man can in the Priesthood, but the[y] must have the husband by their side and he is to rule over them and receive the washing and anointing and the Sealing power for them to be sealed together and to their kindred and there are keys and words that do not belong to the women. But should the husband fall away then some other one will take his place [and have] them sealed to him and take them to his kingdom and they are to ask their husbands at home and their husband shall instruct them. But the woman is to rule the house and take charge of the children to instruct them [in] Righteousness and then when they are washed and anointed then he shall teach the woman and preside over all the family of his redeemed[.] this will make a man to be a God to his family for this is the order and organization of heaven.

6. J.D. 5:289; 4 October 1857; Elder Erastus Snow.

Every man in Israel is responsible in a certain degree for the conduct of his wives and children. He has covenanted that he will assume that responsibility; that is, he will assume the responsibility of the sins of his wives, if he fails to discharge his duties towards them in teaching and leading them in the ways of life and salvation.

WHO SHALL RISE

IN THE FIRST RESURECTION
THE RESURRECTION OF THE JUST

Who does the Lord identify as those who shall be priviledged to come forth in the first resurection-The Lord identified to the prophet the qualifications of those who are to rise in the highest glory of the celestial kingdom as contained in D. & C. 76:50-70:

And again we bear record--for we saw and heard, and this is the testimony of the gospel of Christ concerning them who shall come forth in the resurrection of the just--
The Following qualifications must take place before the resurection of glory-they are all identified as having taken place when the resurrection occures of past tence once it takes place:

[1] They are they who received the testimony of Jesus, and [2] believed on his name and
[3] were baptized after the manner of his burial, being buried in the water in his name, and this according to the commandment which he has given--

That by keeping the commandments they might be

[4] washed and cleansed from all their sins, and
[5] receive the Holy Spirit by the laying on of the hands of him who is ordained and sealed unto this power;
[6] And who overcome by faith, and [7] are sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, which the Father sheds forth upon all those who are just and true.
[8] They are they who are the church of the Firstborn.
[9] They are they into whose hands the Father has given all things--
[10] They are they who are priests and kings, who have received of his fulness, and of his glory;
[11] And are priests of the Most High, after the order of Melchizedek, which was after the order of Enoch, which was after the order of the Only Begotten Son.
[12] Wherefore, as it is written, they are gods, even the sons of God--
[13] Wherefore, all things are theirs, whether life or death, or things present, or things to come, all are theirs and [14] they are Christ's, and Christ is God's.

The following are Future tense or in other words those things will happen after the resurrection takes place:
[1] And they shall overcome all things.
Wherefore, let no man glory in man, but rather let him glory in God, who shall subdue all enemies under his feet.
[2] These shall dwell in the presence of God and his Christ forever and ever.

[3] These are they whom he shall bring with him, when he shall come in the clouds of heaven to reign on the earth over his people.

These are they who shall have part in the first resurrection. These are they who shall come forth in the resurrection of the just.

What does the Lord say of those who have come forth in this first resurection–or the Highest Glory in the Celestial kingdom:

[1] These are they who are come unto Mount Zion, and
[2] unto the city of the living God, the heavenly place, the holiest of all.
[3] These are they who have come to an innumerable company of angels, to the general assembly and church of Enoch, and of the Firstborn.
[4] These are they whose names are written in heaven, where God and Christ are the judge of all.
[5] These are they who are just men made perfect through Jesus the mediator of the new covenant, who wrought out this perfect atonement through the shedding of his own blood.
[6] These are they whose bodies are celestial, whose glory is that of the sun, even the glory of God, the highest of all, whose glory the sun of the firmament is written of as being typical.

(ROBES & GARMENTS)

APOCRYPHAL QUOTATIONS

1. Book of Jasher 7:24-30. 1887-1967 Edition; Published by J. H. Perry and Co.; p. 15.

19. These are the generations of Shem; Shem begat Arpacshad and Arpachshad begat Shelach, and Shelach begat Eber and to Eber were born two children, the name of one was Peleg, for in his days the sons of men were divided, and the latter days, the earth was divided.
20. And the name of the second was Yoktan, meaning that in his day the lives of the sons of men were diminished and lessened.
21. These are the sons of Yoktan; Almodad, Shelaf, Chazarmoveth, Yerach, Hadurom, Ozel, Diklah, Obal, Abimael, Sheba, Ophir, Havilah and Jabab; all these are the sons of Yoktan.
22. And Peleg his brother begat Yen, and Yen begat Serug, and Serug begat Nahor and Nahor begat Terah, and Terah was thirty-eight years old, and he begat Haran and Nahor. (Gen 11:19(
23. And Cush the son of Ham, the son of Noah, took a wife in those days, in his old age, and she bare a son, and they called his name Nimrod, saying, `At that time the sons of men again began to rebel and transgress against God, and the child grew up, and his father loved him exceedingly, for he was the son of his old age.'
24. And THE GARMENTS OF SKIN which God made for Adam and his wife, when they went out of the garden, were given to Cush.
25. For after the death of Adam and his wife, the garments were given to Enoch, the son of Jared, and when Enoch was taken up to God, he gave them to Methuselah, his son.

26. And at the death of Methuselah, Noah took them and brought them to the ark, and they were with him until he went out of the ark.

27. And in their going out, Ham stole those garments from Noah his father, and took them and hid them from his brothers.

28. And when Ham begat his first born Cush, he gave him the garments in secret, and they were with Cush many days.

29. And Cush also concealed them from his sons and brothers, and when Cush had begotten Nimrod, he gave him those garments through his love for him, and Nimrod grew up, and when he was twenty years old he put on those garments.

30. And Nimrod became strong when he put on the garments, and God gave him might and strength, and he was a mighty hunter in the earth, yea, he was a mighty hunter in the field, and he hunted the animals and he built altars, and he offered upon them the animals before the Lord. 31. And Nimrod strengthened himself, and he rose up from amongst his brethren, and he fought the battles of his brethren against all their enemies round about.

32. And the Lord delivered all the enemies of his brethren in his hands, and God prospered him from time to time in his battles, and he reigned upon the earth.

2. Jasher 27:3-4, 7-12.

And Nimrod was observing Esau all the days, for a jealousy was formed in the heart of Nimrod against Esau all the days. And on a certain day Esau went in the field to hunt, and he found Nimrod walking in the wilderness with his two men. . . . And Nimrod and two of his men that were with him came to the place where they were, when Esau started suddenly from his lurking place, and drew his sword, and hastened and ran to Nimrod and cut off his head. And Esau fought a desperate fight with the two men that were with Nimrod, and when they called out to him, Esau turned to them and smote them to death with his sword. And all the mighty men of Nimrod, who had left him to go to the wilderness, heard the cry at a distance, and they knew the voices of those two men, and they ran to know the cause of it, when they found their king and the two men that were with him lying dead in the wilderness. And when Esau saw the mighty men of Nimrod coming at a distance, he fled, and thereby escaped; and Esau took the valuable garments of Nimrod, which Nimrod's father had bequeathed to Nimrod, and with which Nimrod prevailed over the whole land, and he ran and concealed them in his house. And Esau took the garments and ran into the city on account of Nimord's men, and he came unto his father's house wearied and exhausted from fight, and he was ready to die through grief when he approached his brother Jacob and sat before him. And he said unto his brother Jacob, Behold I shall die this day, and wherefore then do I want the birthright? And Jacob acted wisely with Esau in this matter, and Esau sold his birthright to Jacob, for it was so brought about by the Lord.

Every place where God manifest Himself is holy. To take off the shoes is an ancient as well as modern way of expressing reverence in the East. The Mohammedan takes off his shoes when he enters the mosque. The action Symbolizes the removal of the defilement caused by sin or contact with the world on entering the presence of Him with whom evil cannot dwell.

To gird up the loins is to gather up the long flowing skirt of the outer robe under the girdle, so as to leave the limbs free in working or running:

7. The One Volume Bible Commentary; J. R. Dummelow; 1908 Copyright; 1973 Edition Thirty-fifth Printing; p. 77-78.

2. Holy Garment] The garments are holy because they are specially set apart and consecrated for use in the sancuary. * * *

6-12. THE EPHOD] This is a kind of waistcoat, made of varigated material, supported by straps passing over the shoulders and bound round the waist with a girdle. On each of the shoulders is an onyx stone engraved with the names of six tribes of Israel. On the front of the ephod and attached to it by means of gold chains and rings is a pouch called the `breastplate' (v. 15). * * *

9-12. The engraving of gems was an art well known to the Egyptians. The names were those of the twelve tribes. In v. 12 the stones are called stones of memorial unto the children of Israel. The high priest wore these stones when he ministered before the Lord, as the representative of the people. They served as a kind of visible supplication of His gracious remembrance. 13 Ouches] The word, which is properly `nouche,' means a rosetter or button of gold filigree in which the stone is set.

14. The chains are for attaching the breastplate to the ephod: see vv. 22-25.

15-30. THE BREASTPLATE] This is really a pouch, one span, or half a cubit, square, made of the same material as the ephod, and ornamented on the outside with twelve jewels set in four rows, each stone being engraved with the name of a tribe. The pouch is intended to hold the Urim and Thummim, by means of which God's judgments are declared (see on v. 30), and is therefore here called the breastplate of judgment. * * *

THE ROBE OF THE EPHOD] This is a frock or cassock, woven entirely of blue, without sleeves, drawn over the head, and worn under the ephod. Its chief characteristic is a row of golden bells attached to the skirt which sounded when the high priest moved, and enabled the people to follow him with their thoughts and prayers when he went into the Holy Place as their representative before God.

32. HABERGEON] A sleeveless jacket.

33. HEM] RV `skirts.' The pomegranate is a tree with a fruit like an apple, with a juicy pulp and full of seeds (hence the name, which means grained or seeded apple), extensively cultivated and highly prized in the East. The Heb. name is rimmon, which enters into many place-names. The pomegranates here are embroidered on the skirt of the robe. The bells are hung upon it. * * *

36-38. THE MITRE] This is made of fine linen, and is in the form of a turban. Fastened in front of it is a plate of pure gold with the inscription HOLINESS TO THE LORD (RV `HOLY TO THE LORD). * * *

39. THE COAT] is different from the robe (see 29:5). It is an under-garment or shirt of fine linen fastened with an embroidered girdle.

40. BONNETS] RV `headtires': close fitting caps, probably of a different shape from the turban of the high priest.

41. Anoint them] see on 29:7. Consecrate] lit. `fill the hand.' The expression probably refers to some symbolic action indicating the giving of authority at a ceremony of installation to a sacred office: cp. 29:24.* * *

29:7 ANOINTING OIL] This oil was specially prepared: Anointing with oil is an act symbolising a special consecration to the service of God. Jacob anointed the stone at Beth-el with oil (Gen 28:18; cp. 31:13; 35:14), and the tabernacle and its furniture were also anointed (Lv 8:10, 11). Priests were consecrated by anointing (as here) and also kings (see 1S 10:1, 16:13; 2K 11:12) who are accordingly called the `Lord's anointed' . . . Christians are called the anointed of God, as having received the unction of the Holy Spirit: see 2 Cor 1:21; 1 Jn 2:20, 27.

8. The One Volume Bible Commentary; J. R. Dummelow; 1908 Copyright; 1973 Edition Thirty-fifth Printing; p. 134.

The loosing of the shoe and handing it over signified an act of transfer or renunciation. In this case it was a mark of discredit: . . . .

. . . the office of the meanest slave. "A slave unlooses his master's shoe, and carries it after him; does what he needs for the bath, undresses, washes, anoints, robes, re-dresses him, and puts on his shoes." (See Matthew 3:11)

(Luke 15:22) Then the father says to his servants [The ministers of the Church], Bring forth the former robe, [Best robe], and put it on him, . . ., and shoes on his feet [symbolising spiritual freedom, for slaves went barefoot], . . .

Then Adam stood and asked God to show him something wherewith to cover their bodies. Then came the Word of God and said unto him, "O Adam, take Eve and come to the seashore, where ye fasted before. There ye shall find skins of sheep, whose flesh was devoured by lions, and whose skins were left. Take them and make raiment for yourselves, and clothe yourselves withal.

12. 1st Adam and Eve 51:5. The Forgotten Books of Eden; Edited by Rutherford H. Platt, Jr.; 1927 Copyright; 1972 Edition - 27th Printing; p. 33-34. [1 Adam and Eve 51 tells how Adam and Eve were stopped along the way by Satan and then rescued by the Word of God:]

After this Adam and Eve said no more, but wept before God on account of their creation, and of their bodies that required an earthly covering. Then Adam said unto Eve, "O Eve, this is the skin of beasts with which we shall be covered. But when we have put it on, behold, a token of death shall have come upon us, inasmuch as the owners of the skins have died, and have wasted away. So also shall we die, and pass away.

13. 1st Adam and Eve 52:3-9. The Forgotten Books of Eden; Edited by Rutherford H. Platt, Jr.; 1927 Copyright; 1972 Edition - 27th Printing; p. 33-34.

Then Adam and Eve took of the skins, and went back to the Cave of Treasures; and when in it, they stood and prayed as they were wont, and they thought how they could make Garments of those skins; for they had no skill for it. Then God sent to them His angel to show them how to work it out. And the angel said to Adam, `Go forth, and bring some palm-thorns.' Then Adam went out, and brought some, as the angel had commanded him. The angel began before them to work out the skins, after the manner of one who prepares a shirt. And he took the thorns and stuck them into the skins, before their eyes. Then the angel again stood up and prayed God that the thorns in those skins would be hidden, so as to be, as it were, sewn with one thread. And so it was, by God's order; they became Garments for Adam and Eve, and He clothed them withal. From that time the nakedness of their bodies was covered from the sight of each other's eyes.

The pattern of the Lord is the pattern of the House of David, and it would have been handed down, and Mary would have had this to show that she was of the royal House of David; and the child would have been wrapped in the same swaddling garments that belonged to David. For He was to put on the seed of David, and so this pattern of the Lord would be arranged here, the royal swaddling garment of the shepherd king.

Every House has its ensign. Mary's and Joseph's ensign was of the House of David. This is a root of Jesse of the House of David. You can tell by the sign and the descent of the man. And so, for the Christ, in that day, there should be a root of the House of Jesse, which shall stand for an ensign of the people. To it shall the Gentiles come.

Enter, you messengers of God. So the shepherds came and brought their offerings of Lambs and laid them before the child. And they looked at the babe and said, "THERE IS THE SWADDLING GARMENT OF WHICH THE ANGEL SPOKE." And the chief shepherd says, "WE WERE JUST NOW IN THE FIELD, AND A GREAT LIGHT SHONE, and a great angel came among us and said to us, `Unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior which is Christ the Lord, and this shall be the sign: you shall find Him wrapped in swaddling clothes in the plaid of the King of the Shepherds.'"

And so in Bethlehem of Judea, in His own homeland, in that of His ancestors, the home of Boaz, was born Jesus the Christ, fulfilling all the prophecies made about Him, that He was to put on the seed of David, the light of the world has shown.

No special disqualifications for the Levitical office existed, though the Rabbis insist that a good voice was absolutely necessary. It was otherwise with the priest's office. The first inquiry instituted by the Sanhedrin, who for the purpose sat daily in `the Hall of Polished Stones,' was into the genealogy of a candidate. Certain genealogies were deemed authoritative. Thus, `if his father's name were inscribed in the archives of Jeshana at Zipporim, no further inquiry was made.' If he failed to satisfy the court about his perfect legitimacy, the candidate was dressed and veiled in black, and permanently removed. If he passed that ordeal, inquiry was next made as to any physical defects, of which Maimonides enumerates a hundred and forty that permanently, and twenty-two which temporarily disqualified for the exercise of the priestly office. Persons so disqualified were, however, admitted to menial offices, such as in the wood-chamber, and entitled to Temple support. Those who had stood the twofold test were DRESSED IN WHITE RAIMENT, and their names properly inscribed. To this pointed allusion is made in Rev. iii. 5, `He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life.'

Thus received, and afterwards instructed in his duties, the formal admission alike of the priest and of the high-priest was not, as of old, by anointing, but simply by investiture. For even the composition of the sacred oil was no longer known in the second Temple. They were called `high-priests by investiture,' and regarded as of inferior rank to those `by anointing.' As for the common priests, the Rabbis held that they were not anointed even in the first Temple, the rite which was applied to the sons of Aaron being valid also for their descendants. It was otherwise in the case of the high-priest. His investiture was continued during seven days. In olden days, when he was anointed, the sacred oil was not only `poured over him,' but also applied to his forehead, over the eyes, as tradition has it, after the form of the Greek letter X. The coincidence is certainly curious. This sacred oil was besides only used for anointing such kings as were of the family of David, not other Jewish monarchs, and if their succession had been called in question. Otherwise the royal dignity went, as a matter of course, by inheritance from father to son.

32. The Temple: Its Ministry and Services; Alfred Edershiem; December 1976 (Reprinted); pp. 96-100.

The high-priests `by investiture' had not any more the real Urim and Thummim (their meaning even being unknown), though a breast-plate, with twelve stones, was made and worn, in order to complete the eight sacred vestments. This was just double the number of those worn by an ordinary priest, viz. the linen breeches, the coat, the girdle, and the bonnet. To these the high-priest added other four distinctive articles of dress, called `golden vestments,' because, unlike the robes of the ordinary priests, gold, the symbol of splendour, appeared in them. They were the Meil, or robe or the ephod, wholly of `woven work,' of dark blue colour, descending to the knees, and adorned at the hem by alternate blossoms of the pomegranate in blue, purple, and scarlet, and golden bells, the latter, according to tradition, seventy-two in number; the Ephod with the breast-plate, the former of the four colours of the sanctuary (white, blue, purple, and scarlet), and inwrought with threads of gold; the Mitre; and, lastly, the Ziz, or golden fontlet. If either a priest or the high-priest officiated without wearing the full number of his vestments, his service would be invalid, as also if anything, however trifling (such, for instance, as a plaster), had intervened between the body and the dress of the priest. The material of which the four vestments of the ordinary priest were made was `linen,' or, more accurately, `byssus,' the white shining cotton-stuff of Egypt. These two qualities of the byssus are specially marked as characteristic, [Rev. 15:6, `clothed in pure and shining linen.'] and on them part of the symbolic meaning depended. Hence we read in Rev. xix. 8, "And to her' - the wife of the Lamb was read - "was granted that she should be arrayed in byssus vestments, shining and pure; for the byssus vestment is the righteousness of the saints.'

We add some further particulars, chiefly in illustration of allusions in the New Testament. The priest's `coat' was woven of one piece, like the seamless robe of the Saviour. (John xix. 23.) As it was close-fitting, the girdle could not, strictly speaking, have been necessary. Besides, although the account of the Rabbis, that the priest's girdle was three fingers broad and sixteen yards long (!), is exaggerated, no doubt it really reached beyond the feet, and required to be thrown over the shoulder during ministration. Hence its object must chiefly have been symbolical. In point of fact, it may be regarded as the most distinctive priestly vestment, since it was only put on during actual ministration, and put off immediately afterwards. Accordingly, when in Rev. i. 13, the Saviour is seen `in the midst of the candlesticks,' `girt about the paps with a golden girdle,' we are to understand by it that our heavenly High-Priest is there engaged in actual ministry for us. Similarly, the girdle is described as `about the paps,' or (as in Rev xv. 6) about the `breasts,' as both the girdle of the ordinary priest and that on the ephod which the high-priest wore were girded there, and not round the loins. (Compare Ezek. xliv.18) Lastly, the expression `golden girdle' may bear reference to the circumstance that the dress peculiar of the high-priest was called his `golden vestment,' in contradistinction to the `linen vestment,' which he wore on the Day of Atonement.

Of the four distinctive articles in the high-priest's dress, the breast-plate, alike from its square form and the twelve jewels on it, bearing the names of the tribes, suggests `the city four-square,' whose `foundations' are twelve precious stones. (Rev 21:16, 19, 20.) The `mitre' of the high- priest differed from the head-gear of the ordinary priest, which was shaped like the inverted calyx of a flower, in size and probably also somewhat in shape. According to the Rabbis, it was eight yards high (!!). Fastened to it by two (according to the Rabbis, by three) ribbons of `blue lace' was the symbol of royalty - the `golden plate' (or Ziz), on which, `Holiness unto Jehovah' was graven. . . .

It only requires to be added that the priest's garments, when soiled, were not washed, but used as wicks for the lamps in the Temple; those of the high-priest were `hid away.' The High-priest wore `a fresh suit of linen vestments' each time on the Day of Atonement.

33. The Temple: Its Ministry and Services; Alfred Edershiem; December 1976 (Reprinted); pp. 305-306.

THE DAY OF ATONEMENT] In briefly reviewing the Divine ordinances about this day, we find that only on that one day in every year the high-priest was allowed to go into the Most Holy Place, and then arrayed in a peculiar white dress, which differed from that of the ordinary priests, in that its girdle also was white, and not of the Temple colours, while `the bonnet' was of the same shape, though not the same material as `the mitre,' which the high-priest ordinarily wore. The simple white of his array, in distinction to the `golden garments' which he otherwise wore, pointed to the fact that on that day the high-priest appeared, not `as the bridegroom of Jehovah,' but as bearing in his official capacity the emblem of that perfect purity which was sought by the expiations of that day. Thus in the prophecies of Zechariah the removal of Joshua's `filthy garments' and the clothing him with `change of raiment,' symbolically denoted - `I have caused thine iniquity to pass from thee.' (Zech 3:3-4) Similarly those who stand nearest to God are always described as arrayed `in white.' (See Ezek 9:2; Dan 10:5; 12:6.) And because these were emphatically `the holy garments,' `therefore' the high-priest had to `wash his flesh in water, and so put them on,' (Lev 16:4.) That is, he was not merely to wash his hands and feet, as before ordinary ministrations, but to bathe his whole body.

The first among the leaders of the corrupt men was Nimrod. His father Cush had married his mother at an advanced age, and Nimrod, the offspring of this belated union, was particularly dear to him as the son of his old age. He had given him the clothes of skins with which God had furnished Adam and Eve at the time of their leaving Paradise. Cush himself had gained possession of them through Ham. From Adam and Eve they had descended to Enoch, and from him to Methuselah, and to Noah, and the last had taken them with him into the ark. When the inmates of the ark were about to leave their refuge, Ham stole the garments and kept them concealed, finally passing them on to his first-born son Cush. Cush in turn hid them for many years. When his son Nimrod reached his twentieth year, he gave them to him. These garments had a wonderful property. He who wore them was both invincible and irresistible. The beasts and birds of the woods fell down before Nimrod as soon as they caught sight of him arrayed in them, and he was equally victorious in his combats with men. The source of his unconquerable strength was not known to them. They attributed it to his personal prowess, and therefore they appointed him king over themselves.

Thus Nimrod and Esau after him were able to rule over men and beasts.

Regarding Jacob's receiving of the blessing from Isaac in the stead of Esau: "Jacob's hesitation was not yet removed. His father, he feared, would touch him and convince himself that he was not hairy, and therefore not his son Esau. Accordingly, Rebekah tore the skins of the two kids into strips and sewed them together. . .to cover his hands. To make Jacob's desguise complete, Rebekah felt justified in putting Esau's wonderful Garments on him. They were the High-Priestly raiment in which God had clothed Adam, `the first-born of the world,' for in the days before the erection of the Tabernacle all the firstborn males officiated as Priests. From Adam these garments descended to Noah, who transmitted them to Shem, and Shem bequeathed them to Abraham, and Abraham to his son Isaac, from whom they reached Esau as the older of his two sons. It was the opinion of Rebekah that as Jacob had bought the birthright from his brother, he had thereby come into possession of the garments as well. There was no need for her to go and fetch them from the house of Esau. He knew his wives far too well to entrust so precious a treasure to them; they were in the safekeeping of his mother. As a rule, he did not lay much stress on decent apparel. He was willing to appear on the street clad in rags, but he considered it his duty to wait on his father arrayed in his best."

The clothes of the first `human couple' which were `garments of light,' were made of the hide of the female Leviathan.

44. Legends of the Jews, V:97; Lewis Ginzberg. See note 69 to Vol. I.

The older Haggada speaks of `garments of light,' which the first `pair' wore before the fall of man, as bestowed upon them by God, in accordance with Gen. 3.21, where cr (`skin') is explained as though it were written 'r (`light').

45. Legends of the Jews, V:103-104; Lewis Ginzberg. Note 93.

Against this later view the older sources maintain that the Garments mentioned in Gen., loc. cit., were given to Adam and Eve by God before the fall, and that they really were not `garments of skin', but of light. . . . The view that the garments were made of the skin of Leviathan wishes to retain cr (`skin') in the Biblical text, without losing the `light', since the skin of leviathan has a shining lustre. . . . [Note that the two Hebrew words for `light' and `skin' differ in but the initial letter, and that they are pronounced alike in modern Hebrew.] Origen, CONTRA CELSUM (based very likely on Philo, QUAESTIONES, Gen. 1.53), remarks: They received garments of skin at the time of the fall; i.e., bodies, since before the fall they were spiritual beings. A similar statement is found in Zohar I, 36b, which reads: Before the fall they were dressed in `garments of light' (= k`tunt 'r), after the fall in `garments of skin' (k`tunt cr), which were useful only for the body, not for the soul. A very important part is played by Adam and Eve's `garments of light' in the various versions of the Vita Adae; comp. ADAMSCHRIFTEN, 52-53. However, we must not, without any further proof, connect the garments of light with the splendor of the light which shone over Adam before the Fall. . . . But we shall not go astray if we identify them with the celestial garments of the pious, frequently mentioned in the pseudopigraphic literature, and in early Christian as well as Kabbalistic writings. . . . But also those who assert that Adam and Eve received their garments from God after the fall maintain that these clothes were of a superior and unusual kind. God created these garments in the twilight of the first Friday, whence it belongs to the primordial creations, on account of which both Adam and his descendants wore them as Priestly Garments at the time of the offering of the sacrifices. Furthermore, they were not only of extraordinary brilliance and splendor, but had also supernatural qualities. . . . Identifying Adam's Priestly Garments, which he received after the fall, with the garment of light, Abkir has the following statement (Yalkut I, 34): God made the High-Priestly Garments for Adam which were like those of the angels; but when he sinned, God took them away from him. In ARN 42, 116, it is stated briefly: Adam wore splendid garments, which were removed from him after the commission of the sin. That the garments of Adam and Eve belonged to the primordial creations is also asserted in Christian sources: comp. ps.-Justinian, QUAESTIONES. . . AD ORTHODOXES, VI, 1293; Jacob Sarug, cited by Moses bar Cepha, DE PARADISO, 84A; comp. further Theodoretus, Gen. 3.27. The latter cannot admit that God killed certain animals in order to furnish Adam and Eve with clothes. The same objection. . .is very likely on the basis of the statement in Sotah 14a and BR 20.12 that the garments of Adam and Eve were made of wool, or, according to others, of linen.

According to ps.-Philo, 20; 20D, God spoke to Joshua after the death of Moses, saying: `Take the Garments of his wisdom (those worn by Moses?) and put them on thee, and gird thy loins with the Garments of his knowledge; then shalt thou be changed and become another man.' The robe of Jesus, like that of the High Priest in ancient Israel (Exodus 28:32) was woven as ONE PIECE (John 19:23). Much has been written of this robe, and more recently in Lew Wallace's novels THE ROBE and DEMETRIUS AND THE GLADIATORS. According to some of the legends, after the crucifixion (when the soldiers removed Jesus clothing), the robe fell into Pilate's hand. Pilate was arrested and brought before the emperor at Rome. Now he was wearing the seamless tunic of Jesus. When he came before the emperor, he, who had been raging against him before, became quite mild. He sent Pilate away and immediately his rage returned. This happened again. Then, either by divine inspiration or on the suggestion of some Christians, he had him stripped of the tunic, sent him back to prison, and shortly after sentenced him to die by the basest of deaths.

67. Epistle of Barnabas 6:11.

We know that, in Gethsemane, Jesus sweat great drops of blood (Luke 22:44; D&C 19:18), which must have stained his garment red. Hence we read, regarding the scapegoat which was cursed with Israel's sins (see Leviticus 16:7- 10): "And why was that which was accursed crowned? Because they shall see Christ in that day having a scarlet Garment about his body; and shall say: Is not this he whom we crucified; having despised Him, pierced Him, mocked Him? Certain, this is He, who then said, that He was the Son of God."

THE STOLEN GARMENT] Nimrod claimed his kingship on the ground of victory over his enemies; his priesthood, however, he claimed by virtue of possessing "THE GARMENT OF ADAM." The Talmund assures us that it was by virtue of owning this garment that Nimrod was able to claim power to rule over the whole earth, and that he sat in his tower while men came and worshiped him. The Apocryphal writers, Jewish and Christian, have a good deal to say about this garment. To quote one of them: "The garments of skin which God made for Adam and his wife when they went out of the garden and were given after the death of Adam . . . to Enoch"; hence they passed to Methusaleh, and then to Noah, from whom Ham stole them as the people were leaving the ark. Ham's grandson Nimrod obtained them from his father Cush. As for the legitimate inheritance of this clothing, a very old fragment recently discovered says that Michael "disrobed Enoch of his earthly garments, and put on him his angelic clothing," taking him into the presence of God. This garment of Enoch was supposed to be the very garment of skins that John the Baptist wore, called by the early Christians "the garment of Elias." An Abrabic "Life of John the Baptist" says that Gabriel brought it to John from heaven as "THE GARMENT OF ELIJAH";<1> "it went back," says John Chrysostome, "to the beginning of the world, to the times before which Adam required covering. THUS IT WAS THE SYMBOL OF REPENTANCE.<2> Others believed it was the same garment that Herod and later the Romans put under lock and key when they wished to prevent the people from putting it on a candidate of their own choice, and tell how the Jews tried to seize the garment by force and put it on John the Baptist, thus making him, instead of Herod, their high priest. Whatever its origin, the wearing of a garment of repentance, symbolic of life of man in his fallen state, was known to the most ancient christians and practised by certain ultra-conservative cults down to modern times.<3>

Incidently the story of the stolen garment as told by the rabbis, including the great Eleazer, calls for an entirely different rendering of the strange story in Genesis II from the version in our King James Bible. They seemed to think that the 'erwath of Genesis IX:22 did not mean "nakedness" at all, but should be given its primary root meaning of "SKIN COVERING." Read thus, we are to understand that Ham took the garment of his father while he was sleeping and showed it to his brethren, Shem and Japheth, who took a pattern or copy of it (salmah) or else a woven garment like it (simlah) which they put upon their shoulders, returning the skin garment to their father. Upon awaking, Noah, recognized the priesthood of two sons but cursed the son who tried to rob him of his garment. By an extremely common type of substitution, the simlah of Gen. II:23 could very easily stand for an original tsimlay, a copy, imitation, pattern, or by an equally common type of transposition for salmah, a garment or mantle, as in Michah 2:8. Even as it stands simlah means only a woven garment and can hardly refer to the original skin article. This is, apparently, the source of the widespread legend that Ham stole the garment of Noah and claimed to possess the priesthood by virtue of his illegal insignia. Ham's descendants, Cush and Nimrod--both Africans, though Nimrod in his wandering moved to Asia--made the same claim. It is interesting that according to certain ancient scriptures which the Latter-day Saints claim have been restored by revelation in our own age, Pharaoh (who represents the Afro-Asian line of Cush- Nimrod) "was blessed as to the kingship but cursed as to the priesthood," and he offered Abraham the privilege of wearing his own royal insignia in hope that Abraham would return the compliment by allowing Pharaoh to wear his priestly ones, (Abraham 1:26-27.) According to a very old tradition, Pharaoh coveted the priesthood of Moses exactly as his ancestor Nimrod did that of Abraham, and it was said that the Pharaohs of Egypt dressed in a skin garment "to show that their origin was older than time itself."

According to the Talmund, Nimrod's great success in hunting was due to the fact that he wore the coat of skin which God made for Adam and Eve." There is a tradition that Nimrod, becoming jealous of the rival hunter Esau (so much for chronology!), lay in ambush for him but was defeated by Esau who cut off his head and "took the valuable garments of Nimrod . . . with which Nimrod prevailed over the whole land (or earth!), and he ran and concealed them in his house." These garments, says the report, were nothing less than the birthright which Esau later sold to Jacob. (Jasher 27:2.) (Esau latter tried to regain the Birthright - the garments and force his way into the Temple. What is a Temple p. 235 by Hugh W. Nibley.)

Two significant conclusions come from, all this:

(1) that any historical reconstruction of what actually happened is out of the question, what has come down to us being a mass of conflicting legends and reports, and

(2) that these conflicting legends and reports nevertheless agree on certain main points, that they are very old, and were considered by the most learned Jews to present matters of great importance, the significance of which escaped later ages. The priests and kings of antiquity certainly wore such garments, and the skin garment was often imitated in woven materials;<4> in fact, the skin garment was itself held to be a substitute for a still older garment made of the leaves of the ficus religiosus.

I make no apology for conducting you into these lost bypaths of the past. You have often proclaimed the unusual. Still there is such a thing as going too far, and it is high time I was showing you what a sober, factual, and common-sense document the book of Ether really is. Let us return to Bable.

FOOTNOTES:

<1> Robt. Eisler cites the tradition that John the Baptist wore the garment of raw skin (or, Gen. III:21) in place of the original garment of light (or) worn before the fall; various early cults, since they forbade the slaying of animals, changed the skin garment into a hair garment.

<2> According to the Book of Jubilees . . . To Adam he (God) gave a covering for his shame . . . On this account it is prescribed on the heavenly tablets as touching all those who known the judgment of the law, that they should cover their shame, and should not uncover themselves as the gentiles uncover themselves."

<3> The Mandaeans believed the garment of John the Baptist would be given to all who were admitted to salvation.

<4> The Syrian Christians said that the garment give to Adam was of cotton, the "skin" of the tree; this doctrine they say was known only to Moses, "Who called cotton `skin' because among trees it takes the place of skin" hence the idea that John the Baptist took his clothes from trees. The Jews retained traces of the older garment in their phylacteries and in the Sisth, the four strings worn once by orthodox Jews on the edge of their garments.

Dr. Oliver further said of this symbolism:

The square was an emblem of mortality, which taught them to square their lives and actions by the unerring laws of God's word, and to regulate their conduct according to the doctrine laid down by their divine Creator, to preserve a lively faith in his holy gospel, and taught them to live in charity with all mankind. The level was an emblem of equality, and reminded them that in the eyes of God all men were equal; that he caused the sun to shine upon the poor man's cottage as well as the king's palace; with him there was no distinction, unless they so far forgot their duty as to neglect and disobey the divine commands. The plumbrule, signifying uprightness, reminded them to use justice and equity in all their dealings on earth, so that, through the great mercy of God, and the mediation of his blessed Son, they might hope to obtain an entrance into the great Lodge above, not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

3. Mormonism and Masonry, p. 60-61; E. Cecil McGavin; 1956.

Another writer [Robert Morris] has said of these emblems:

The square is the implement of proof. "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good," is an injunction cheerfully accepted by the Craft. The compasses--the boundary of passion. The oblong square--true to perfect angles, the form of Solomon's Temple. Oil, the emblem of joy. The olive oil of Palestine is of the heaviest and purest. It was probably one of the three conservating elements of Solomon's Temple, chosen a representative of the country's best products.

4. Mormonism and Masonry, p. 61-62; E. Cecil McGavin; 1956.

Another Masonic writer [M. A. Pottenger] explains:

The compass describes a perfect circle, thus (O); and a perfect circle is without beginning or end. It is therefore, a symbol of Divinity--the infinite, perfect mind, that mind which is limitless, boundless, and which includes within itself all real things--that mind which is at once all things, and yet no particular thing.

The square is another great light, for the reason that it is composed of two absolutely straight lines, the plumb and level, thus (//).

A straight line whether it be perpendicular or level or oblique, is without blemish, for it is not crooked, bent, twisted, or turned. It is, therefore, an emblem of truth--absoluteness.

During the building of King Solomon's Temple it is said that there were three Grand Masters, and the triangle to a Mason might be the symbol of these three noted personages. It is simply one of the characters of a sign language.

The same authority [Mackey] says of the apron:

There is no one of the symbols of Speculative Masonry more important in its teachings, or more interesting in its history, than the lambskin, or white leather apron. . . .

On the contrary, we shall find the most satisfactory evidence that the use of the apron, or some equivalent mode of investiture, as a mystic symbol was common to all the nations of the earth from the earliest periods.

Among the Israelites the girdle formed a part of the investiture of the priesthood. In the mysteries of Mithras, in Persia, a candidate was invested with a white apron.

6. Mormonism and Masonry, p. 72-73; E. Cecil McGavin; 1956.

In this connection we should call attention to another striking discovery involving the Indians. It is universally known that Mormon temple clothing contain certain marks of the priesthood, including the square and compass. The discovery of such a costume in an Indian grave is of tremendous importance.

A few years ago Bishop E. P. Pectol, of Torrey, Wayne County, Utah, was excavating in the sand-covered ruins of an ancient Indian village and found several articles of clothing made from buckskin. Mr. Frank Beckwith, a non-Mormon, was among the first to call attention, through the public press, to this remarkable discovery. He did not scruple to label these ancient articles of wearing apparel "The High Priest's Vestment."

Soon after its discovery Bishop Pectol wrote this description to the author:

"Yes, we found a set of skins undoubtedly intended for a burial suit from the condition under which they were found. A child had died and was buried in a small cave. Ten feet from the child a larger grave had been started and this roll of tanned skins placed in one end. The soil was then replaced. This tells the story that the one who buried the baby was to be buried later by its side and clothed in these skins.

"Only one edge of what we call the robe was evened off by the knife. By the mark we call the left breast mark is a patch of splendid workmanship, indicating that this mark was wanted or it also would have been patched over. Placing this mark at the breast and letting the skin fall as it naturally would, a mark appears in the proper place for the navel mark and very similar. Fold the skin about you and another mark like that of the knee comes to the proper place. Now from the left breast, passing the skin under the arm and then over the right shoulder, a perfect right breast mark appears at the right place. Four belts of equal length that would fasten this robe to the body were in the bundle. We liken these to the girdle. A skin tanned with the hair on we call the apron, and another smaller one we call the cap. The marks are in the robe. Whether this is a coincidence or not, you can use your own judgment as well as I. If this is truly intended for the purpose it suggest, then the shields I have represent the remainder of the Temple ordinances."

These skins have been examined by hundreds of people, being exhibited for some time in Salt Lake City. Their genuineness and antiquity cannot be denied. The marks are as distinct and visible as emblems on a Mason's badge or watch fob; yet those skins were certainly marked before 1842, when the Mormons were admitted to Masonry.

. . . In the Israelite way of thinking, writes Pedersen "the clothes follow and partake of the total character of the soul. . . . There may be garments, so penetrated by a definite physical substance, that they are indissolubly connected with its forms of manifestation. This holds good where special importance is attached to the functions. Thus . . . the honour and glory of the priest is bound up with his garment (Sirach 50,11).... The anxiety lest the holy garments should be defiled, appears from the careful ritual for the Day of Atonement, preserved in the Mishna." [Johs. Pederson, Israel (London: Oxford Univ. When Moroni (Alma 46:24) begins his story by saying ". . . let us remember the words of Jacob . . ." he is plainly reminding his hearers of a tale that is familiar to them all. Yet who in the West has ever known anything about the story that follows, in which the words of Jacob are "even as this remnant of garment of my son hath been preserved, so shall a remnant of the seed of my son be preserved. . . while the remainder of the seed of Joseph shall perish, even as the remnant of his garment?" Here the survival of Joseph's garment guarantees and typifies the survival of Joseph.

In the tenth century of our era the greatest antiquarian of the Moslem world, Muhammad ibn-Ibrahim ath-Tha'labi, collected in Persia a great many old tales and legends about the prophets of Israel. After the fall of Jerusalem and the scattering of the Jews, many of the sectaries, such as those that once lived around the Dead Sea, moved East to be under the protection of the Persians. Thus groups of Jews representing various sects and shades of belief were scattered all over central Asia in the Middle Ages, and it is from such, no doubt, that Tha'labi gets his amazing fund of information, which is worthy to be set up beside the most enlightening volumes of Apocrypha. Among other things, Tha'labi tells a number of stories, which we have not found anywhere else, about Jacob and the garments of Joseph. In one, Joseph's brethren bring his torn garment to their father as proof that he is dead, but Jacob after examining the garment, ("and there were in the garment of Joseph three marks or tokens when they brought it to his father") declares that the way the cloth is torn shows him that their story is not true: "Behold, if the bear had eaten him he surely would have rent his garment, and since he would (naturally) have fled towards the gate, verily the garment should have been torn behind. . . ." But since this is not the case it may be that Joseph lives. Another account is the case of "the Vizier" Potiphar, who by examining the tears in Joseph's garment knew that he was innocent and spared his life, "for he knew that if he (Joseph) had attacked his wife the tear would have been in front. . ." So again his torn garment declared that Joseph should live.

Most significant is Tha'labi's discussion of the two remnants of Joseph's garment, from which we quote:

"And when Joseph had made himself known unto them (his brethren) he asked them about his father, saying, `What did my father after (I left)?' They answered, `he lost his eyesight (from weeping).' Then he gave them his garment (qamis, long outer shirt). According to ad-Dahak that garment was of the weave (pattern, design) of Paradise, and the breath (spirit, odor) of Paradise was in it, so that it never decayed or in any way deteriorated (and that was) a sign (omen). And Joseph gave them that garment, and IT WAS THE VERY ONE THAT HAD BELONGED TO ABRAHAM, having already had a long history. And he said to them, Go, take this garment of mine and place it upon the face of my father so he may have sight again, and return (to me) with all your families. And when they had put Egypt behind them and come to Canaan their father Jacob said, `Behold, I perceive the spirit (breath, odor) of Joseph, if you will not think me wandering in my mind and weakheaded from age. . . (for) he knew that upon all the earth there was no spirit (breath, odor) of Paradise save in that garment alone. . .' And as Sadi says that Judah said to Joseph, `it was I who took the garment bedaubed with blood to Jacob, and reported to him that the bear had eaten Joseph: so give me this day thy garment that I might tell him that thou art living, that I might cause him to rejoice now as greatly as I caused him to sorrow then.' And Ibn-Abbas says that Judah took the garment and went forth in great haste, panting with exertion and anxiety . . . and when be brought the garment he laid it upon the face, so that his sight returned after blindness, and his strength after weakness and youth after age, and joy after sorrow." (then follows a dialogue between Jacob and the King of Death.)

Note here that there were TWO REMNANTS OF JOSEPH'S GARMENT, one sent by Joseph to his father as a sign that he was still alive (since the garment had not decayed), and the other, torn and smeared with blood, brought by Judah to his father as a sign that Joseph was dead. Moroni actually quotes Jacob ("Now behold, this was the language of Jacob") as saying: "Now behold, this giveth my soul sorrow; nevertheless, my soul hath joy in my son . . ." (Alma 46:25 f.). Compare this with Judah's statement in the Old World Account, that the undecayed garment caused Jacob as much joy as the bloody garment caused him sorrow. In both accounts Jacob is described as being near to death - hence Judah's haste to reach him with the garment and make amends for the evil he had done.

Surely there is "a type and a shadow" in this story, for the particular concern of Israel is with Joseph and Judah and how, after working at cross purposes they were reconciled after many years by the magnanimity of the one and the remorseful repentance of the other. IT IS ANOTHER FORM OF THE SYMBOLIC STORY OF THE TWO STICKS told in the 37th chapter of Ezekiel. But aside from the great symbolic force of the tale, there can be no doubt that the story told by Moroni as one familiar to all the people actually was one that circulated among the Jews in ancient times and was taken to the East by them, being like much early Jewish lore completely lost in the West. It was totally unknown to the world in which Joseph Smith lived.

These interesting little details are typical apocryphal variations on a single theme, and the theme is the one Moroni mentions; THE RENT GARMENT OF JOSEPH IS THE SYMBOL BOTH OF HIS SUFFERING AND HIS DELIVERANCE, MISFORTUNE AND PRESERVATION . . . .

After bringing home the plates, Joseph commenced working with his father and brothers on the farm in order to be as near as possible to the treasure which was confided to his care.

Soon after this he came in from work one afternoon, and after remaining a short time, he put on his great coat and left the house. I was engaged at the time in an upper room, in preparing some oil-cloths for painting. When he returned he requested me to come down stairs. I told him that I could not leave my work just then, yet, upon his urgent request, I finally concluded to go down and see what he wanted, upon which he handed me the breastplate spoken of in his history.

It was wrapped in a thin muslin handkerchief, so thin that I could feel its proportions without any difficulty.

It was concave on one side and convex on the other, and extended from the neck downwards, as far as the center of the stomach of a man of extraordinary size. It had four straps of the same material, for the purpose of fastening it to the breast, two of which ran back to go over the shoulders, and the other two were designed to fasten to the hips. They were just the width of two of my fingers (for I measured them), and they had holes in the end of them, to be convenient in fastening. After I had examined it, Joseph placed it in the chest with the Urim and Thummim.

Shortly before Elder Hinckley's death, his daughter, Afton, was with him in his home in Salt Lake City. The family had gone out. Everything was quiet, there was an indescribably sweet influence in the house. She supposed her father was asleep and after some little time she went to his room. When she appeared at the door, he said, "Come in, I have had a wonderful afternoon. Three heavenly messengers dressed in the robes of the Holy Priesthood have been my visitors." He spoke of them teaching him to sing a hymn. At that juncture, the family began to appear and he never mentioned the matter again.

Anointing--anitype of the anointing of Christ himself, "making every candidate as it were a Messiah (Savior). Elsewhere he describes this rite specifically as the anointing of the brow, face, ears, nose, breast, etc., which represents, he says, "the clothing of the candidate in the protective panoply (a fullsuit of armor or something forming a protective covering) which however does not hinder the initiate from receiving a REAL GARMENT ON THE OCCASION.

"The Jews once thought that when Michael and Gabriel led all the sinners 15. Statement by W. Cleon Anderson witnessed by Cyril L. Draney, Jr.; February 24, 1964.

I, W. Cleon Anderson, do hereby certify and declare that on the 21st day of February, 1964, at nine-thirty A.M. I met for about thirty minutes with President Joseph Fielding Smith, he gave me some instruction in answer to a letter written February 14, 1964. (i.e., Blessings and naming of children). I requested that he put these instructions on paper, initialing and signing those items in my presence, which he did. After President Smith finished going over the above subject with me, the following conversation ensued:

I asked President Smith, "Is it wrong to wear the string tie garments outside the temple?"

President Smith looked at me for several moments and then unbuttoning the third button in his shirt, brought out one of the ties on a pair of old style temple garments and said, "This is what we should be wearing---the Lord gave them to us, and so this is what I wear."

I said, "I have worn the old style garments for two years now and some of the ignorant brethren have accused me, so now I wear a tee shirt over them."

President Smith then said, "When the Lord gave the garments to us they had strings. I have never worn a button pair; however, I don't say those with buttons are not garments."

This conversation left me with the idea that it was altogether fitting and proper to wear the original style garment outside the temple.

I then presented President Smith with a letter which I wrote to him on January 28, 1961. After reading the letter, he said, "The Book of Mormon gives the correct account. There were three days of darkness on the earth, we don't read of it in the Bible, but it may have been dark over there, too. I don't know. The Savior's body did lie in the tomb during the three days of darkness on this hemisphere. The Book of Mormon is the correct book to follow. If you want, I can take you back into the library and show you an article which a brother wrote on this subject."

I said, "When was it written?"

President Smith answered, "A few years ago, it was published in the Improvement Era."

I said, "In 1915?"

President Smith answered, "It could have been that long ago."

I said, "I have read that article."

President Smith said, "The Savior's body was in the tomb for three days as the Book of Mormon tells us."

During the conversation Doctor Talmage's book, "Jesus the Christ," was not mentioned. I received a strong impression that I was right regarding the "Three days and three nights in the tomb."

16. The Third Thousand Years; W. Cleon Skousen; Copyright 1964, 1970 Edition, p. 307-308.

While Moses was in the mount the Lord showed him how the High Priest and his assistants should be dressed when they came to minister in the sanctuary. These vestments were to be "holy garments" and were to be "for glory and beauty." (H.C. 4:211.)

However, they were described as "holy" because they were for sacred rather than public use. And they were for the glory and beauty of God's sanctuary, not for the pompous parading of God's servants before the envious eyes of a multitude. The Lord has specifically identified the ostentatious public display of rich vestments as being a sign of apostasy. (Exodus 28:2)

These vestments were symbols of a calling, therefore they were in addition to the shirt, trousers and underclothing. The High Priest had six items, each of which is described minutely:

1. First, he would put on an EMBROIDERED COAT. (Ex. 28:4,39.) This was a short frock worn over the upper part of the body.

2. Then he put on the BLUE ROBE. (Ex. 28:4; 39:22-26) This was a solid piece of blue linen with a hole in the middle area to be slipped over the head. At the hem of the robe were embroidered blue, purple and scarlet pomegranates and in between each one was a golden bell which tinkled softly as the priest performed the service.

3. Next came the EPHOD. (Ex. 28:6-14) This was a waistcoat of "fine twined linen" and decorated with "cunning work." It was gold, blue, purple, and scarlet. On each of the shoulders was a large onyx stone set in a gold rosette. Each stone had engraved upon it six of the tribes of Israel. From these two onyx stones hung woven gold chains which held up the "breastplate."

4. About the waist the priest wore a linen GIRDLE (Ex. 28:4,8) which matched the ephod.

5. Then came the BREASTPLATE. (Ex. 28:15-30; 39:8-21) This was not metal but made of embroidered, jewel-covered linen. It was about nine inches square and woven of gold, blue, purple and scarlet like the ephod. On it were twelve stones, each representing one of the tribes of Israel. The breastplate was "double" (Ex. 39:9) meaning that it formed a pocket. In this pocket the High Priest placed the Urim and Thummim which facilitated the receiving of revelations. The breastplate had gold rings at the top and on the sides. The top rings were fastened by a woven chain to each of the onyx stones on the shoulders of the ephod. The side rings also had woven gold chains attached which connected to the ephod around the waist in order to hold it firm.

6. The High Priest wore a MITRE (Ex. 28:4; 39:28) or linen cap which had a shield in the front bearing the inscription: HOLINESS TO THE LORD. (Ex. 39:30-31)

It would appear that those who served with the High Priest (which in the case of Aaron were his sons) wore linen breeches (Ex. 28:42) and an embroidered linen coat with a girdle. (Ex. 29:8-9) On their heads they wore "bonnets." (Ex. 28:40) They did not wear a blue robe, an ephod, breast-plate or mitre, since these belonged exclusively to the office of the High Priest.

17. The Third Thousand Years; W. Cleon Skousen; pp. 337-338; 1964.

Moses personally supervised the anointing and consecrating of Aaron and his sons. All the congregation was called together to witness these important events.

First, there were the washings, (Leviticus 8:6) then Moses took Aaron and dressed him in his robes as the High Priest. This consisted of six vestments. He first put on the embroidered coat which was like a frock that covered the upper part of the body. (Exodus 28:4,39) Then came the blue robe which was a solid piece of blue linen with a hole in the middle which slipped over the head. At the hem of this robe were embroidered blue, purple and scarlet pomegranates and in between each one was a golden bell which tinkled softly as Aaron performed the various rites. (Exodus 28:33- 35; 39:22-25) Over the robe was worn the ephod which was a multi-colored waistcoat with onyx stones on the shoulders from which hung woven gold chains to fasten to the breastplate. (Exodus 28:6-14) A multi-colored girdle which matched the ephod was worn around the waist. (Exodus 28:4,8; 39:5) The breastplate was a colorful linen container about nine inches square. (Exodus 28:15-30; 39:8-21) On it were twelve stones which represented each one of the twelve tribes. Inside the pocket of the breastplate, Moses placed the famous transparent stones, the Urim and Thummim, which were used for revelation (Numbers 27:21), for the ascertaining of God's judgment in difficult cases (Exodus 28:30), and for the interpreting of ancient records. (D&C 10:1; Ether 3:23-24) Last of all, Moses placed upon Aaron's head the mitre or head covering which bore a shield declaring "Holiness to the Lord." (Exodus 28:4; 39:27-31)

18. The Third Thousand Years; W. Cleon Skousen; p. 403; 1964.

Whenever the sons of Aaron were ministering at the Tabernacle they were required to wear certain "holy garments" designed "for glory and for beauty." (Exodus 28:40) The priests wore much simpler clothing than the High Priest. Their vestments consisted of linen breeches and a "coat" or cassock of linen that came nearly to the feet. The cassock was held close to the body with a girdle. (Ibid.) Their linen bonnets were in the shape of a round, cup-shaped flower. (Ibid.)

This clothing was not to be worn outside the precincts of the Tabernacle or Temple: "And it shall come to pass, that when they enter in at the gates of the inner court, they shall be clothed with linen garments; and no wool [apparently because of the heat] shall come upon them, while they minister in the gates of the inner court within. They shall have linen bonnets upon their heads, and shall have linen breeches upon their loins; they shall not gird themselves with any thing that causeth sweat. And when they go forth into the utter [outer] court, even into the utter court of the people, they shall put off their garments wherein they ministered, and lay them in the holy chambers, and they shall put on other garments . . . ." (Ezekiel 44:17-19)

19. Woman and the Priesthood; Rodney Turner; p. 123-124; 2nd Printing, 1965.

Before man and woman left the Garden of Eden and entered this fallen state, the Lord clothed them in sacred garments - the wearing of which symbolized, among other things, submission to his will. This "coat of skins" stands in opposition to the fashions of the world. For this reason, the saints have been admonished to "come forth out of the fire, hating even the garments spotted with the flesh." (D&C 36:6) Those who do so are heirs of salvation: "He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels." (Revelation 3:5) The sum of those claimed by the Savior constitutes the assembly of the redeemed seen in vision by John the revelator. (Revelation 7:9)

In that vision, one of the twenty-four elders was heard to ask, "What are these which are arrayed in white robes? And whence come they?" The answer was "These are they which came out of the great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." (Revelation 7:13,14) Having rejected the world and its fashions and faithfully worn the "coat of skins" in time, they have the glorious robe of righteousness and salvation placed upon them in eternity. (See 2 Nephi 9:14; D&C 109:75,76)

(Al 46:22) - The people, arming themselves, come running to the standard, "rending their garments in token, or as a covenant." Note the emphasis on the symbolism of what is going on; the making of this covenant involves treading on their garments, calling down upon themselves an imprecation should they ever break their covenant. "May (He) cast us at the feet of our enemies, even as we have cast our garments at thy feet to be trodden underfoot, if we shall fall into transgression." (p. 713)

The "treading upon the Garments" an ancient practice attested in the newly discovered early Christian Coptic texts in which a person upon becoming a member of the Church would take off his garment and trample on it "in token" of having cast away an old way of life and also of the trampling of sin underfoot, and especially "with reference to the curse placed on the inciter." (p. 712)

Swaddling clothes were long strips of linen in which the child was bound so tightly that he could move neither arms nor legs. "This ancient custom was based on the belief that the child's limbs would not grow straight and strong unless they were bound so they could not move freely for at least six months." (Great People of the Bible . . . , p. 320) Correct or not, the custom could be viewed as a symbol of the loving arms of this "precious and chosen vessel" who would shape the character of her infant son that it too might be "straight and strong."

Dr. Edersheim speaks of the girdle of the priestly vestments as being a type of sash/apron/robe combination, adding that it was quite long, reaching "below the feet, and required to be thrown OVER THE SHOULDER during ministration. Hence its object must chiefly have been symbolical. In point of fact, it may be regarded as the most distinctive priestly vestment, since it was only put on during actual ministration, and put off immediately afterwards." (Alfred Edersheim, The Temple: Its Ministry & Services, p. 97.)

"And they crucified Him, and parted His garments, casting lots: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, They part my garments among them, and upon my vesture did they cast lots." (Matthew 27:35)

This prophecy, cited by Matthew, is from Psalm 22:18. Many of the Psalms written by David, are actually prophecies of his descendant, Jesus. (see and compare Psalm 45:6-7; Hebrews 1:8) The following is also a prophecy of the Christ, though referring to actual historical characters (ELIKIM means "God will set up," and HIKIAH means "the portion of Jehovah," both being, in a sense, titles of Christ).

"And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will call my servant Eliakim the son of Hilkiah: and I will clothe him with thy ROBE, and strengthen him with thy GIRDLE, and I will commit thy government into his hand: and he shall be a father to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and to the house of Judah. And the KEY OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID WILL I LAY UPON HIS SHOULDER: SO HE SHALL OPEN, AND NONE SHALL SHUT: AND HE SHALL SHUT, AND NONE SHALL OPEN! And I will fasten him AS A NAIL IN A SURE PLACE: and he shall be for a glorious throne to his father's house. And they shall hang upon him all the glory of his father's house, the offspring and the issue, all vessels . . . In that day, saith, the Lord of hosts, shall the NAIL THAT IS FASTENED IN THE SURE PLACE BE REMOVED, and be cut down and fail (crucified?) . . . . ." (Isaiah 22: 20-34; NOTE that Jesus holds the "key of David" - Revelation 3:7.)

We know that, in Gethsemane, Jesus sweat great drops of blood (Luke 22:44; D&C 19:18), which must have stained his garment red. Hence we read, regarding the scapegoat which was cursed with Israel's sins (see Leviticus 16:7-10): "And why was that which was accursed crowned? Because they shall see Christ in that day having a scarlet Garment about his body; and shall say: Is not this he whom we crucified; having despised Him, pierced Him, mocked Him? Certain, this is He, who then said, that He was the Son of God." (Epistle of Barnabas 6:11)

GARMENTS OF THE PRIESTHOOD IN ANCIENT ISRAEL

I. HOLY GARMENTS: Aaron's "garments" (high priest) would include eight pieces and his sons "garments" (ordinary priests) would be limited to four pieces. The "garment" pieces, listed in the order in which they would probably be put on, including Biblical references describing them, are as follows:

GARMENT FOR THE HIGH PRIEST		GARMENT OF THE ORDINARY PRIESTS
1. Linen breeches	(Exodus 28:2-5,42; 39:28)	Linen breeches
2. Broidered coat	(Exodus 28:2-5; 39:27)	Broidered coat
3. Girdle	(Exodus 28:2-5,8,40; 39:29	Girdle
4. Cap (bonnet)	(Exodus 28:2-5,40; 39:28)	Cap (bonnet)
5. Robe	(Exodus 28:2-5,31; 39:22-26)
6. Ephod	(Exodus 28:2-5,6ff; 39:2)
7. Breastplate

(Exodus 28:2-5,15ff,28-29; 39:8-21)

8. Mitre . . . . . .

(Exodus 28:2-5,36-38; 39:30-31)

GARMENTS OF HIGH PRIEST PASSED FROM FATHER TO SON] It is significant to note that not only did the office of high priest pass from father to firstborn son, but the special garments worn by the high priest were to be handed down from father to son, as well. The Lord's instructions were explicit:

And the holy garments of Aaron shall be his son's after him, to be anointed therein, and to be consecrated in them.

And that son that is priest in his stead shall put them on seven days, when he cometh into the tabernacle of the congregation to minister in the holy place. (Ex. 29:29-30)

II. CONSECRATION OF PRIESTHOOD HOLDERS:

And this is the thing that thou shalt do unto them to hallow them, to minister unto me in the priest's office; Take one young bullock, and two rams without blemish,

And unleavened bread, and cakes unleavened tempered with oil, and wafers unleavened anointed with oil: of wheaten flour shalt thou make them.

And thou shalt put them into one basket, and bring them in the basket, with the bullock and the two rams.

And Aaron and his sons thou shalt bring unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and shalt wash them with water.

And thou shalt put the mitre upon his head, and put the holy crown upon the mitre.

Then shalt thou take the anointing oil, and pour it upon his head, and anoint him.

And thou shalt bring his sons, and put coats upon them.

And thou shalt gird them with girdles, Aaron and his sons, and put the bonnets on them: and the priest's office shall be theirs for a perpetual statute: and thou shalt consecrate Aaron and his sons. (Ex. 29:1-9 ff)

THE CLOTHING OF THE PRIESTS: The Lord himself taught Moses the psychological value of buildings, vessels, and clothing, which were to be used only for sacred purposes and to be worn by men when in the service of the sacred house.

Let us look into the pages of the Pentateuch and discover there what the Lord had to say on these matters. During the forty days that Moses was on the Mount, he wrote out the most minute instructions, through the revelations of the Lord, for the building and equipping of his holy house and for the clothing of the priests who were to administer therein.

In the accounts given us by Moses in Exodus and Leviticus there are extremely detailed accounts of the clothing to be worn, especially of the outer garments, with which Aaron and his sons were to be clothed. It will be noted that not much description is given of the sacred inner garments, but the outer robe which is to cover these garments from the gaze of the multitude, is very minutely described. The symbolism of the ephod and the embroidered robe which is to cover the linen robe and garments, is both simple and beautiful.

Each tribe was represented in the Jewels of the crown which covered the linen bonnet and which adorned the breast-plate and ephod. On two onyx stones were engraven the names of the Tribes of Israel, six on one stone and six on another. These two stones were worn upon the shoulders as a sort of buckle fastening the chains of pure gold which held up the breast-plate.

In the ephod, or outer robe, which was made of gold, of blue, of purple, of scarlet, and of fine twined linen, were four rows of stones. A sardius, a topaz, and a carbuncle, on the first row. The second row contained an emerald, a sapphire, and a diamond. The third row, a ligure, an agate, and an amethyst; while the fourth row was set with a beryl, an onyx, and a jasper. These twelve stones were engraved with the names of the Twelve Tribes of Israel; and whenever Aaron put the breast-plate and ephod upon his shoulders, he represented symbolically the Twelve Tribes of Israel, as he appeared in the Holy Place. In the center of the breast-plate was the urim and thummim, which instrument gave out upon certain occasions the judgment of the Lord and his revelations to Moses and Aaron.

The ephod was a most magnificent robe of blue. It was woven all in one garment with an opening through which to insert the head of Aaron. Upon the hem of the ephod was embroidered pomegranates in rich blue, purple, and scarlet threads. The pomegranate flower is one of the most gorgeous blossoms of the Orient. As a fringe to the garment there were tiny golden bells whose musical tinkle was heard by the priests outside when Aaron when into the Holy Place to Minister.

The white linen bonnet worn by Aaron and the priests was covered with a golden crown. Across the piece that encircled the forehead was engraved "HOLINESS TO THE LORD." This symbolic crown constituted Aaron and the high priest who followed him, the vicarious minister for the people, making of him a symbolic servant of the Lord, thus typifying in a sense the office of the Savior who bears upon his shoulders, as we are taught by Paul, the sins of the world. The coat of fine linen, the mitre of fine linen, and the girdle of fine linen, and linen breeches, or garments which were worn by Aaron and his sons, were covered as we have noted, with OUTER COLORED ROBES richly embroidered and decorated as a symbol of the glory of the Lord.

We are taught also (Exodus, Chap. 39; Lev., Chap 8) that Aaron and his sons were taken by Moses in the door of the tabernacle and were washed with water, anointed with oil, and then clothed with the garments, the altar, and all their garments were sprinkled with the oil as a symbol and type.

There is given in the temple "Raiment Symbolic of being clothed in righteousness. God, not the raiment, protects and blesses those who keep their covenants." (William E. Berrett) It may also be thought of as a symbol serving as a personal reminder of our obligations and opportunities and also as a mark of distinction, honor, and achievement.

Here we will not only lay aside that clothing of the street, but the thoughts of the street, and will try not only to clothe our bodies in clean white linen but our minds in purity of thought. May we profit by the spoken word and, what is more lasting and more impressive, receive instruction from the spirit.

29. Temple Manifestations; Joseph Heinerman; pp. 153-154; 1974.

The last time Apostle Melvin J. Ballard attended an Alberta Stake Conference he was greeted by Mary Ann Wood and he replied, "I am glad to see you too, and you'll never see me again." Sister Wood, who was deaf but could read lips very well, wondered if she was going to die. In the temple the Apostle spoke for twenty minutes. Mrs. Wood heard every word and told him how wonderful it was to hear him speak. He answered, "That is very good, and you'll never hear me again." After the conference was over there was much contemplation as to the meaning of the Apostle's words to Mary Ann. Sometime later in the temple, President Wood said he saw in a vision a group of people in the Celestial Room. He asked, "Who are you waiting for?" They replied,

"Brother Ballard." "He is not here," replied the President. He said that as he then turned around, "Brother Ballard came through the veil in his temple robes." President Wood interpreted this vision to mean that Apostle Ballard's kindred dead were waiting in the temple for him to join them, for this happened on the day of Brother Ballard's death.

30. The Message of the Joseph Smith Papyri; Hugh Nibley; p. 243; 1975.

The embracing of the king by the god is the definitive consecration of the new king, who at that moment alone becomes fully consecrated, crowned, and sanctified. Before becoming a king, however, he must first become a priest, and for that also he must be "purified with divine water, receive a garment, be crowned and led into the sanctuary to receive the embrace of the god, the head of the Temple."

One of the most puzzling episodes in the Bible has always been the story of Jacob's wrestling with the Lord. When one considers that the word conventionally translated by "wrestled" can just as well mean "embrace," and that it was in this ritual embrace that Jacob received a new name and the bestowal of priestly and kingly power at sunrise (Gen 32:24ff), the parallel to the Egyptian coronation embrace becomes at once apparent.

31. The Message of the Joseph Smith Papyri; Hugh Nibley; p. 246; 1975.

There is a persistent tendency to compare the veil of the temple and the ritual garment, if not actually to identify them. Speaking of the rending of the Veil of the Temple, the Jewish-Christian Testament of Levi calls it "the garment of the Temple", and thereby introduces "us into a world of quite mysterious speculation", for here "the veil of the Temple is considered the personified garment of the sanctuary." . . . "the holy garment of the initiate and the veil of the temple have the same significance; they are both symbols of obedience, both representing that virtue which separates the initiate from the wicked even as it separates existence from nonexistence, the pure from the impure, the elect from all that contaminates and injures --- and the two actually follow the same design.

32. The Message of the Joseph Smith Papyri; Hugh Nibley; p. 247; 1975.

The classic robe of the initiate throughout the East has always been and still is the pure white wrap thrown over the shoulder, which also represents an embrace, everything should be white. The well-known shifting of garments from left to right in initiation ceremonies (e.g., of the tassel on the mortar-board at graduation) is a reminder, according to St. Hippolytus of Rome, that "nature consists of opposites, good and bad, even as right and left --- light and darkness, night and day, life and death".

33. The Message of the Joseph Smith Papyri; Hugh Nibley; p. 249; 1975.

The skin garment of resurrection has the same significance as the veil.

9. They removed from me the garment of light, which they had made for me in love.

The garment represents the preexistent glory of the candidate. When he leaves on his earthly mission, it is laid up for him in heaven to await his return. It thus serves as security and lends urgency and weight to the need for following righteous ways on earth. For if one fails here, one loses not only one's glorious future in the eternities to come, but also the whole accumulation of past deeds and accomplishments in the long ages of preexistence. (Nibley, Dialogue, 8, no. 3/4, p. 79.)

In some texts the garment is kept folded beneath the throne of God, awaiting the return of the owner. (II Baruch, liv, 13; Ginza, p. 281; D. Winston in History of Religions, 5 [1966], p. 212.)

10. And my purple (scarlet, Hennecke) robe, made exactly to fit me.

This outer garment is the garment of the high priest as depicted in the murals of Dura-Europos Synagogue: and in other sources . . . ; the two garments go together and make a unity, but the white undergarment is the proper preexistent glory of the wearer, while the other is the priesthood later added to it . . . . Note that the individual's garment fits him and no one else.

35. The Message of the Joseph Smith Papyri; Hugh Nibley; p. 269; 1975.

43. "Awake, arise from thy sleep! Heed this letter
44. remember that you are the son of a King, and take a good look at your present master!
45. Remember your mission -- to fetch the Pearl;
46. remember the garment and robe that are awaiting you.
47. so that you can put them on again, when your name is called out from the Book of Those Who Were Valiant,
48. and you become the heir to our Kingdom along with your Brother, the successor to our Throne.

36. The Message of the Joseph Smith Papyri; Hugh Nibley; p. 278; 1975.

And when Jesus had finished saying these things to his Disciples, he added, . . . Behold, I have put on my garment, and have been given all authority by virtue of the First Mystery. Yet a little while and I will tell you all the Mysteries . . . (The Key to the whole thing) is that mystery which lies beyond the world, for the sake of which the universe itself exists, ever mounting up, ever expanding . . . . Come to us, for we are your fellow-members, all of us identical with yourself; we are all one and you are one with us.

37. The Message of the Joseph Smith Papyri; Hugh Nibley; p. 280; 1975.

. . . immediately upon entering you removed your street clothes. And that was the image of putting off the old man and his works . . . the former man corrupted as he was by the desire for false (deceptive) things; and may that garment, once put off, never be put on again!

. . . After that (you were anointed) on the breast (. . . the seat of feeling, passion and thought," Liddell and Scott), that, clothed with the breastplate of righteousness, you may stand against the wiles of the Devil -- (countering the evil thoughts with good ones).

As Christ after his baptism . . . went forth to confront the Adversary, so you after your holy baptism and mystic anointing, were clothed in the armor of the Holy Ghost to stand against the opposing . . . power.

Having put off the old man's garment of sorrow, you now celebrate as you put on the garment of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Having been baptized in Christ and having put on Christ like a garment, you come to resemble . . . the Son of God. After you put off the old garments and put on those of spiritual white, you should keep them always thus spotless white. That is not to say that you must always go around in white clothes, but rather that you should be always clothed in what is really white and glorious, that you may say with the blessed Isaiah (61:10), "Let my soul exult in the Lord, for he hath clothed me in a robe of salvation and clothing of rejoicing." (The word here used for "clothe" is endyo, to place a garment on one, and is the ultimate source of our word "endowment," derived in the Oxford English Dictionary from both induere, to invest with a garment, and inducere, to lead into or initiate.)

38. The Message of the Joseph Smith Papyri; Hugh Nibley; p. 283; 1975.

(Baptism and garment identify one with Christ.) Being baptized and having "put on Christ," you have become of the same form as the Son of God. (So does anointing) "For God has foreordained you to be sons, and to share the form of the body of the glory of Christ; having become sharers with Christ, you are properly called Christs, and of you, God has said: "Do not touch my anointed ones (Christs)." (The Embrace has the same effect); (v. 3) . . . it is the sign of the mingling of spirits . . . (v. 4) . . . in that awesome hour one must have one's mind wholly on God.

The garment represents the preexistent glory of the candidate. When he leaves on his earthly mission, it is laid up for him in heaven to await his return. It thus serves as security and lends urgency and weight to the need for following righteous ways on earth. For if one fails here, one loses not only one's glorious future in the eternities to come, but also the whole accumulation of past deeds and accomplishments in the long ages of preexistence.

AN APOCRYPHA STORY] This second course is Cain's dominion. Satan, spitefully determined to destroy everything that God has commanded to live and multiply, began his earthly career by making war on the birds and fishes and systematically destroying the animals and trees. This, we are told, was because he was envious of the beautiful rapport that existed between Adam and the animals. Next, under the administration of his pupil Cain, all the forests of the earth rapidly disappeared, while that hero "wandered through the earth with his bow for 130 years, looking for anything to kill -- a human angel of death." While Noah refused Satan's plan to divide up the world and rule with an iron hand, his sons accepted it, each driving out from his property all the animals as trespassers, so that the beasts that had loved Noah began to fear and hate man. In particular, Ham organized secret combinations "to work iniquity and to shed blood . . . and after that, they sinned against the beasts and birds, and all that moves and walks on the earth." Next Ham's son Nimrod, the mighty hunter who boasted that no animal could escape his bow, turned that bow against men as well as animals and so subdued all things to his will, ruling all the earth with his inspired violence. He was the mortal enemy and rival of Abraham and whereas Abraham gave Adam's blessing to the beast. "Nimrod assembled all the animals and slaughtered them." This he was able to do through possession of the garment of the priesthood that had once belonged to Adam and that Ham had stolen from Noah. Seeing him in this garment, all creatures willingly came and submitted to him, mistaking the dominion of Cain for the dominion of Adam. From Nimrod, Esau, another hunter, inherited the garment but lost it to Jacob from whom it passed down to Moses, who when it wore out replaced it with a garment of cotton or hair rather than skins to avoid the shedding of animal blood.

fn. 5. Given that three days after this discourse the Prophet would administer the ordinances of the complete endowment for the first time (see History of the Church, 5:1-2, or Teachings, p. 137), Joseph Smith's comment that Moses received the endowment is fascinating -- particularly in light of a remarkable alteration to Exodus 34:1-2 in Joseph Smith's Translation. Undoubtedly, if, at this stage of Joseph Smith's thinking, he had been asked, "What was taken away when Moses died?" he would not have answered, "the Endowment ordinances as they were given in Kirtland." Those ordinances there administered were identical for the Aaronic and Melchizedek Priesthoods (again see History of the Church, 5:1-2 or Teachings, p. 137). Based on his 5

January 1841 response to this question, his answer probably would have been the Melchizedek Priesthood portion of the endowment that could have brought Israel to see God face to face was taken away, but the keys of the Aaronic portion of the endowment that brought the ministry of angels remained. Moreover, the sacred vestments of the priesthood shown by the pattern of God for the Levitical order of the temple service (Exodus 28, 39, and 40:1-33) were not restored in Kirtland, but were given in Nauvoo.

Robes of the Levitical Priesthood
(Ex. 28, 29, 39)

There were three divisions or offices in the Levitical Priesthood: Levite, priest, and high priest. Officers of these divisions wore special attire. These vestments are mentioned and sometimes described in the scriptures (see TG "Clothing," "Garment," "Robe," "Breastplate," and "Apparel") and in later rabbinical literature. The main items included:

1. Linen breeches and/or tunic, garment: white, short-sleeved, knee-length; worn by all officers. (See Lev. 6:10,11).
2. Linen robe: white, short or no sleeves, between knee and ankle length; worn by the priests and high priest.
3. Girdle or sash: white(?), wrapped around the robe at waist; worn by the priests and high priest.
4. Mitre or bonnet, cap: white (or blue?), bell or blossom shaped; worn by the priests and high priest.
5. Robe or coat: blue, seamless collar, near ankle length, gold bells and (embroidered?) pomegranates on hem; only worn by the high priest.
6. Ephod or apron, poncho: woven of (real) gold, blue, purple, and scarlet threads, hung from both shoulders, tied with girdle of similar fabric, two engraved stones set in the shoulders from which gold chains joined to breastplate; worn only by the high priest. (See BD "Ephod.")
7. Breastplate: woven fabric like the ephod folded over to make pouch (in which the Urim and Thummim were kept), twelve engraved stones in gold casings mounted on front, joined to ephod shoulders by gold chains and to ephod girdle-sash through gold rings at bottom; worn only by the high priest. (See BD "Breastplate.")
8. Golden plate: attached with blue thread to cap, engraved with "Holiness to the Lord"; worn only by the high priest.

After Adam and Eve's introduction to the knowledge of good and evil, they began to realize the consequences of their own transgression. Before, they had dared to stand in God's presence without fear or shame, for they knew no sin. Now, physically and spiritually, they felt exposed and naked before him, and they longed to hide from his all-seeing eye. Their first reaction was to cover themselves and hide (see Gen. 3:7-8). The Father understood their fear of appearing before him, and in mercy he provided for each of them a garment--a covering of skins (See Gen. 3:21) Presumably, such skins could not be obtained unless an animal was sacrificed. Was this covering of skins, given by God to man from the beginning of the earth, a typifying of Christ? Might it have been a witness that God himself would provide a covering for his children, all of whom would experience spiritual nakedness--that is, being exposed to his judgmental eye? For through the sacrifice made by Christ, our sins may be covered, if we repent.

Looked at this way, the symbolism of Adam and Eve's coat of skins teaches of Christ and helps us prepare spiritually, that eventually we may once again dare to stand in the presence of God unashamed.

The ancient texts make in perfectly clear that the candidate must be properly clothed and possess the _____ (yvo6ig), or the name of God, in order to pass through the last barrier to the presence of God. In many documents the prophet passes through seven heavens and must receive a garment of glory to enter into the highest heaven where God dwells. The garment becomes brighter as the prophet passes through each successive heaven. The prophet must also possess the proper identification or "passport" in order to enter each heaven. 48. What It Means to Know Christ; George W. Pace; (Council Press: Provo, Utah); pp. 91-92; 1981.

I had read many times before of how the Romans stripped the Savior of his clothes before girding him with a loin cloth, but that night I sensed deeply what the removal of his clothes must have meant in terms of embarrassment. He who would possess, as it were, an infinite sense of modesty, was subjected to such terrible indignity. That experience must have been in part the humiliation Paul the apostle spoke of (Acts 8:33). Again, I felt quite overwhelmed that the Savior would be willing to go through such humiliation for me.

The Romans had tried many different methods of putting people to death: boiling in oil, beheading, impalement with a spear, suffocation, and others. But none was so terrible, so effective as crucifixion, for that method, devised by the Phoenicians, extended the pain and suffering over a period of many days. The Romans were skilled in crucifying: when they finally subdued the slave rebellion led by Spartacus, they crucified 6,000 men in a single day.

Reading all I could find on the historical background of Roman crucifixion and then studying the accounts of that event in the New Testament, I sensed vividly the cruelty of the manner of the Savior's death. After arriving at Golgotha, the crosspiece was laid on the ground behind the Savior. Then a Roman centurion on either side would reach up, grab an arm, and pull him quickly to the ground. Spreading the palms of his hands on the crosspiece, the centurion would then drive a five to seven-inch square-ended nail through his palm. To assure that the hand would not pull free from the nail, another nail was driven through the wrist. Quickly moving to the other side, the centurion did the same to the other hand and wrist. Two centurions next took hold of the ends of the crosspiece, dragging the Savior over to the upright. Lifting the crosspiece to the top of the upright the soldiers fit it into the pre-cut notch and nailed it in place. Then, buckling his legs in order to put the soles of his feet flat on the upright, they drove large nails through the thick part of his feet.

Hanging in that unnatural position, the pectoral muscles along the sides of the chest soon knotted, making it almost impossible to breathe. The only way the Lord could have continued to breathe would have been to put all the weight of his body on the nails in his feet and push up, relieving the arm and chest muscles so that normal breathing could be restored. But the pain in his feet soon would have become so excessive that he would have to drop back down. The Savior, like others who were victims of the cross, would have been constantly writhing in pain.

The Jews, eager to honor their own Sabbath, demanded that Jesus and the thieves be killed and their bodies removed before the Sabbath commenced at sundown on Friday. The centurions assigned to that detail arrived at the scene having a large cudgel (stick or club) and a two or three foot, one inch thick board. Walking up to a thief on one side, a centurion held the board behind the big bone in the upper part of the leg while another centurion hit the bone and snapped it in two. The same was done to the other leg, and death would follow quickly.

After breaking the legs of both thieves, a centurion stood in front of the Redeemer. Recognizing that he was dead, he shoved his spear into the chest cavity (in fulfillment of prophecy, Psalms 22:16), then withdrew it. The gospel of John records that water and blood came forth from the wound (John 19:34). Elder James E. Talmage and others indicate that the watery serum separated from the blood because the Savior died of a ruptured cardiac, or in more common terms, a broken heart. His great heart literally burst as he offered himself, fully, a sacrifice for fallen man.

The color of Jesus' robe

At the time of scourging, prior to the crucifixion, the soldiers placed a robe on Jesus. The KJV has varying reports as to the color. Matthew 27:28 says it was scarlet; Mark 15:17 and John 19:2 declare that it was purple; and Luke 23:11 says, simply, that it was gorgeous. In the JST, Matthew (27:30) is corrected to say "purple," and Luke remains unchanged with "gorgeous."

The significance of this correction is perhaps two-fold. First, purple is the color of royalty, which befits Jesus' royal lineage as king of Israel. Second, it is impressive that the Prophet Joseph Smith would have such precise knowledge about the matter and that he felt it was important enough to be corrected.

THE PRACTICE OF PLURAL MARRIAGE
AMONG THE LATTER-DAY SAINTS
by Richard A. Ware

Historical Setting Of Plural Marriage

Section 132 of the Doctrine and Covenants is known in the Church as the revelation on Celestial and Plural Marriage. It was on July 12, 1843 that the Prophet Joseph instructed brother William Clayton to record on paper the revelation as we have it today. This took place in the old brick story office of Joseph's located in Nauvoo, Illinois. However, although it was recorded on this date, the revelation itself had been given to Joseph Smith as early as 1831, but had never been written down. Around the month of November of 1831 the Prophet was busily engaged in doing a revision of the Bible while staying at Hiram, Ohio, twenty eight miles south of Kirtland. He came across some passages of scripture in the old testament regarding the plural marriages of the ancient patriarchs which apparently caused him to enquire of the Lord:

Gospel Mysteries

> Verily, thus saith the Lord unto you, my servant Joseph, that inasmuch as you have inquired of my hand, to know and understand wherein I, the Lord, justified my servants Abraham, Isaac and Jacob: as also Moses, David and Solomon, my servants, as touching the principle and doctrine of their having many wives and concubines: behold! and lo, I am the Lord thy God, and will answer thee as touching this matter. (D&C 132:1-2)

The Lord then proceeded to explain to Joseph's understanding the principle of eternal marriage coupled with the principle of plural marriage, and how it was that he justified the ancient patriarchs in taking more than one wife. Apparently more was revealed to Joseph on the subject in 1831 than what was actually recorded several years later in Nauvoo. (See D&C 132:66; Also C.H.C., Vol 2:95) In a statement made by Pres. Joseph F. Smith in the Deseret News of May 20, 1886 and later recorded in the Historical Record, he states: "The great and glorious principle of plural marriage was first revealed to Joseph Smith in 1831, but being forbidden to make it public, or to teach it as a doctrine of the Gospel, at that time, he confided the facts to only a very few of his intimate associates. Among them were Oliver Cowdery and Lyman E. Johnson, the latter confiding the fact to his traveling companion, Elder Orson Pratt, in the year 1832. And this great principle remained concealed in the bosom of the Prophet Joseph Smith and the few to whom he revealed it, until he was commanded, about 1842, to instruct the leading members of the Priesthood, and those who were most faithful and intelligent, and best prepared to receive it.... While this doctrine was thus being taught by the Prophet to those whom he could trust ---those who had faith, righteousness and integrity, to believe and accept it, with all its consequences (which are no trifling things), it remained an 'unwritten law' and commandment of the Almighty to the faithful only of His Saints, designed to be enlarged as intelligence and fidelity to the laws of God increased, until the 12th day of July, 1843, when a portion of the revelation was written in the manner, and (at that time) for the purpose set forth in the statement of Elder Clayton,... 'And now, as pertaining to this law, verily, verily I say unto you, I will reveal more unto you hereafter, therefore let this suffice for the present.'" (H.R., Vol 6:219-220) Several other early Latter-day Saints also testified that the revelation on plural marriage was given as early as 1831.

When the Prophet Joseph actually entered into the principle of plural marriage after receiving the revelation is not exactly known. But apparently the Prophet knew ahead of time who some of the women were to whom he was to be married. At the funeral services of Elizabeth Ann Whitney, Joseph F. Smith stated that when the Prophet "received the revelation in relation to the eternity of the marriage covenant, which includes plural marriage, in 1831, the Lord showed him those women who were to engage with him in the establishment of that principle in the Church, and at that time some of these women were named and given to him, to become his wives when the time should come that this principle should be established." (Deseret Evening News, Feb 18, 1882)

Although the Prophet received the revelation, he waited upon the Lord for the command to enter the principle. But apparently Oliver Cowdery chose to go ahead on his own. George Q. Cannon commented that Joseph "was told that it was to obey God's will that His ancient servants had taken more wives than one; and he probably learned, also, that His servants in these days would be commanded to carry out this principle. The Prophet Joseph, however, took no license from this. He was content to await the pleasure and command of the Lord, knowing that it was as sinful to enter upon the practice of a principle like this before being commanded to do so, as it would be to disobey it when required to carry it into effect. Not so with Oliver Cowdery. He was eager to have another wife. Contrary to the remonstrances of Joseph, and in utter disregard of his warnings, he took a young woman and lived with her as a wife, in addition to his legal wife. Had Oliver Cowdery waited until the Lord commanded His people to obey this principle, he could have taken this young woman, had her sealed to him as his wife, and lived with her without condemnation. But taking her as he did was a grievous sin, and was doubtless the cause of his losing the Spirit of the Lord, and of being cut off from the Church." (Juvenile Instructor, XVI, No 18, Sept 15, 1881, p 206) Brigham Young is quoted as saying that "Oliver Cowdery took to wife Annie Lyman, cousin to George A. Smith. From that time he went into darkness and lost the spirit. Annie Lyman is still alive, a witness to these things." (Charles L. Walker Journal, VIII, p. 118, July 26, 1872)

On August 17, 1835, a General Assembly of the church was held at Kirtland, Ohio at which the new book of Doctrine and Covenants was accepted by vote of the church. Voted into the book was an article on marriage which had been written by Oliver Cowdery and which read in part: "Inasmuch as this church of Christ has been reproached with the crime of fornication, and polygamy: we declare that we believe, that one man should have one wife: and one woman, but one husband, except in case of death, when either is at liberty to marry again." Joseph Smith was not in attendance at this Conference as he was away visiting the saints in Michigan and did not return to Kirtland until August 23rd. Joseph never indicated his approval of the article. (See H.C. 2,246-253) Although the source is secondary, it is interesting to note a possible reason as to why the article on marriage was written: "Brigham on that occasion made the avowal that the Appendix (Article on Marriage) was written by Oliver Cowdery against Joseph's wishes, and was permitted to be published only after Cowdery's incessant teasing and Joseph's warning to him of the trouble which his course would create ....For he (Oliver) insisted, Brigham says, upon adding to his marital relations a young woman familiar with his family, and did hold the relation of husband to her. To silence the clamour and surmising that arose over this 'second wife', he [Oliver] wrote that Appendix...." (Stenhouse, Rocky Mountain Saints, p. 193)

It was during this time in Kirtland that Joseph Smith took another wife, by the name of Fanny Alger. In a letter to the Church Historian (George F. Gibbs) in 1903, Benjamin F. Johnson wrote that "Without doubt in my mind, Fanny Alger was, at Kirtland, the Prophet's first wife, in which, by right of his calling, he was justified of the Lord." (Letter, p. 14) It was during 1835 that B. F. Johnson became aware of the principle of plural marriage and noticed that "there lived then with his (Joseph's) family a neighbor's daughter, Fanny Alger, a very nice and comely young woman about my own age, toward whom not only myself, but every one seemed partial, for the amiability of her character: and it was whispered even then that Joseph loved her." (Letter, p. 11)

Apparently some of the brethren were trying to live plural marriage without the Prophet's sanction and it caused an apostasy in Kirtland. Benjamin F. Johnson goes on to say that "After this, there was some trouble with Jared Carter, and through Brother Sherman, I learned that 'as he had built himself another house, he wanted another wife', which Joseph would not permit. And there was some trouble with Oliver Cowdery, and whisper said it was relating to a girl then living in his (the Prophet's) family: and I was afterwards told by Warren Parish, that he himself and Oliver Cowdery did know that Joseph had Fannie Alger as wife, for they were spied upon and found together. And I can now see that at Nauvoo, so at Kirtland, that the suspicion or knowledge of the Prophet's plural relation was one of the causes of apostasy and disruption at Kirtland, although at the time there was little said publicly on the subject. * * * . . .Oliver Cowdery, Jared Carter, W. Parish or others were not justified in their criticisms upon the doings of the Prophet, or in their becoming a 'law unto themselves.' Thru darkness they lost the light of their calling and were left in darkness." (Letter, pp 11-12, 14)

In April of 1837 the Presidents of Seventy in Kirtland spoke out against any member guilty of plural marriage, and if anyone was guilty he would lose his fellowship with the quorum. (Messenger & Advocate, III, No 8, May, 1837, p 511) In the fall of 1837, the Elder's Journal carried the following question & answer: "Q: Do the Mormons believe in having more wives than one? A: No, not at the same time." (Elder's Journal I, No 2, November, 1837) It was during this same year that the charge of adulterous relations 'with a certain girl' was brought against the Prophet by Oliver Cowdery. (Far West Record, p. 117) In a letter written to his brother Warren Cowdery, on January 21, 1838, Oliver relates a conversation which took place between himself and Joseph during November of 1837 in which Oliver mentioned "a dirty, nasty, filthy affair of his [Joseph's] and Fanny Alger's". (BYU Special Collections Library) In spite of Oliver's endeavors to discredit the Prophet, Oliver himself was brought to trial at Far West and on April 11, 1838 was excommunicated from the church for having adulterous relations. (Far West Record, p 117: Also Elders Journal, July 1838, p. 45)
Another early saint, Warren Parrish "went into Kirtland, Ohio, and hired his boarding in the house of one Zerah Cole: he had not however been there but a short time, until Mr. Cole began to make a grievous complaint, about his taking unlawful freedom with his [Cole's] wife. Parrish was, accordingly, brought to an account, before the authorities of the church, for his crime. The fact was established that such unlawful conduct had actually taken place between them [Parrish and Cole's wife]. (Elder's Journal, I No 4, August, 1838, p 57, 59)
During the latter part of 1840 the Prophet moved ahead and began instructing several brethren of the priesthood in the principle of plural marriage and began teaching them that they must also enter into the order of plural marriage. At a quarterly stake conference at Centreville, Utah, on June 11, 1883, Elder Joseph B. Noble stated that the angel of the Lord had appeared to Joseph and had informed him that the time had fully come to establish the principle. "Elder Noble sealed his wife's sister [Louisa Beamon] to Joseph, that being the first plural marriage consummated [in Nauvoo]." (Historical Record (HR), 6,232-233) Fourteen years prior to this public announcement he made out a sworn statement in the which he said "that in the fall of 1840, Joseph Smith taught him the principle of celestial or plural marriage, or a plurality of wives, and that the said Joseph declared that he had received a revelation from God on the subJect, and that the angel of the Lord had commanded him [Joseph Smith] to move forward in the said order of marriage: and further, that the said Joseph Smith requested him (Joseph B. Noble) to step forward and assist him in carrying out the said principle. . ." (HR 6:221) Brother Noble relates how "the Prophet gave the form of the ceremony, Elder Noble repeating the words after him. Elder Noble bore testimony to the purity of character of his sister in law, who was a woman of irreproachable morality, who entered into the plural marriage relation on a deep seated conviction that the doctrine was from God." (HR 6:233)
One early day saint indicated that although God had revealed the law of polygamy that Joseph "delayed, as long as possible, to make this principle known, except to a few of the most faithful and humble of the Saints." (HR 6:230) Apparently Joseph's delaying longer than the Lord wanted caused severe consequences' ". . .an angel of God, with a drawn sword, stood before him and commanded that he should enter into the practice of that principle, or he should be utterly destroyed, or rejected, that he move forward to reveal and establish that doctrine." (Joseph F. Smith, J.D. 20:29) "An angel with a flaming sword descended from the courts of glory and confronting the Prophet, commanded him in the name of the Lord to establish the principle so long concealed from the knowledge of the Saints and of the world. That principle was the law of celestial or plural marriage." (Life of Heber C. Kimball, Whitney, p. 321) On June 17, 1883, Charles L. Walker, an early member of the church stated that he attended "the quarterly conference, this p.m. Pres. E. Snow spoke of the Angel of the Lord meeting Joseph with a drawn sword and of his going to slay him for his being neglectful in the discharge of his duties and of Joseph having to plead on his knees before the Angel for his life." (Charles L. Walker journal, p 39)

The first plural marriage in Nauvoo was on April 5th, 1841, when the Prophet took Louisa Beaman to wife. (HR 6:221) According to the Historical Record the Prophet also took two other women as plural wives this year: Prescindia L. Huntington on December 11, 1841, and Zina D. Huntington on December 27, 1841. Their brother Dimick B. Huntington officiated at both marriages. (HR 6:233) It was also during this year that the Prophet began teaching the principle to many of the Twelve and other leading priesthood holders.

Throughout 1842 the Prophet continued to teach the brethren and many sisters concerning the principle. Sarah M. Kimball commented that "Early in the year 1842, Joseph Smith taught me the principle of marriage for eternity, and the doctrine of plural marriage. He said that in teaching this he realized that he jeopardized his life: but God had revealed it to him many years before as a privilege with blessings, now God had revealed it again and instructed him to teach it with commandment, as the Church could travel (progress) no further without the introduction of this principle. I asked him to teach it to some one else. He looked at me reprovingly, and said, 'Will you tell me who to teach it to? God required me to teach it to you, and leave you with the responsibility of believing or disbelieving.' He said, 'I will not cease to pray for you, and if you will seek unto God in prayer, you will not be led into temptation.'" (HR 6:232) Emily Dow Partridge indicated that "the first intimation I had from Brother Joseph that there was a pure and holy order of plural marriage, was in the spring of 1842, but I was not married until 1843. I was married to him on the 11th of May, 1843, by Elder James Adams. Emma was present. She gave her free and full consent. She had always, up to this time, been very kind to me and my sister Eliza, who was also married to the Prophet Joseph with Emma's consent. Emma, about this time, gave her husband two other wives---Maria and Sarah Lawrence." (HR 6:223)

It was also during this year of 1842 that Elder Orson Pratt, a member of the Twelve, began having a great deal of trouble in regards to sustaining the Prophet because of stories which had been told him by his wife and Dr. Bennett. While Orson had been away to the English Mission during 1841, his wife Sarah had become very involved with Dr. Bennett. In fact, they had been found together on several occasions in very intimate circumstances. After returning from his mission, his wife and John C. Bennett told Orson that Joseph Smith had made several propositions to her while he was away, relating how Dr. Bennett would guard the doors of houses while Joseph would enter and commit sin, which of course, was not true. Never-the-less, Orson chose to believe his wife and Dr. Bennett above the testimonies of Joseph and the Twelve. On May 11, 1842 the Church authorities withdrew their fellowship from John C. Bennett---all except for Orson. On July 15th Orson was reported suddenly missing from Nauvoo, and an all out search turned him up 5 miles south of Nauvoo sitting on a rock on the banks of the Mississippi River. (The Return, Vol 2, No 11, Nov 1890) In a letter written to Parley P. Pratt (Orson's brother) who was then serving in England (the letter was dated two days after Orson's disappearance from Nauvoo, the l7th), Brigham Young stated that "Br. Orson Pratt is in trouble in consequence of his wife. His feelings are so wrought up that he does not know whether his wife is wrong, or whether Joseph's testimony and others are wrong, and do lie, and he deceived for 12 years or not; he is all but crazy about the matters." (O. Pratt Journals, pp. 177, 561) Five days after this letter a public meeting was held in Nauvoo at which it was resolved that Joseph Smith was a "good, moral, virtuous, peaceable and patriotic man..." Out of the 1,000 men who were in attendance only two or three voted in the negative. Orson was one of them. Although Orson admitted that he had no personal knowledge of any immoral acts which the Prophet may have committed, he still believed that such had happened. (Ibid, p 178) Then, the first part of August, 1842, Orson Pratt and his wife were excommunicated from the church after the Twelve had diligently worked with him for four days, trying to "get him to recall his sayings against Joseph & the Twelve", but Orson "persisted in his wicked course and would not recall any of his sayings which were made in public against Joseph & others, sayings which were unjust and untrue. The Twelve then rejected him as a member of their quorum and he was cut off from the church." (Ibid, pp 179-180) Amasa Lyman, who had been converted to the church many years prior by Orson Pratt, was then ordained in Orson's stead. It was also during these trying months that Joseph had married Eliza R. Snow (June 29, 1842 with Brigham Young officiating) and Sarah Ann Whitney (July 27, 1842 with Newel K. Whitney officiating). (HR 6:233-34)

Joseph would often have to go into hiding from men who were seeking his life. Two weeks after Orson was cut off, Joseph wrote a letter to Bro. & Sis. Whitney and his new bride Sarah Ann Whitney. He was apparently somewhat discouraged from all that had happened and that he had to be in hiding from men who were seeking his life, and said to them in part: "I know it is the will of God that you should comfort me now in this time of affliction. . .the only thing to be careful of, is to find out when Emma comes, then you can not be safe, but when she is not here there is the most perfect safety, only be careful to escape observation as much as possible.... I think Emma won't come tonight. If she don't, don't fail to come tonight." (Church Mss, Gerber, Vol 11:18, August 18, 1842) As will be shown later, Emma's reaction to plural marriage would change from one of humble acceptance to one of out-right opposition, and Joseph would have to take precautions against it.

By January Orson Pratt had had sufficient time for repentance and to think about what had happened and told the Twelve that he was deeply sorrowful of the wrongs which he had committed against Joseph and the Twelve. Therefore, on the 20th of January, 1843, Orson and his wife were re-baptized back into the Church, and Orson was ordained to the apostleship and his former standing in the quorum. Amasa Lyman was taken from the quorum and put into the First Presidency. (See Journals of Wilford Woodruff, Joseph Smith, and Orson Pratt under date) Many years later, in a public address, Orson "referred to his own trial in Nauvoo, and said it was because he got his information from a wicked source, from those disaffected, but as soon as he learned the truth he was satisfied." (HR 6:230)

During the spring months of 1843, Joseph Smith taught the principle to many of the faithful brethren and sisters of the church and assisted them in entering into the practice themselves. William Clayton was taught in February, Benjamin F. Johnson in April, and in April William Clayton took another wife. Erastus Snow was taught in April, Lorenzo Snow in April, John Benbow in the spring, Lucy Kimball was taught in April and married to Joseph May 1st, with two others being sealed to him on the 11th: Eliza M. Partridge and her sister Emily D. Partridge. (HR 6:223-229)

On May 16th and 17th, 1843, Joseph Smith in company with George Miller, William Clayton, J. M. Smith, and Eliza and Emily Partridge (wives of the Prophet) went to "Macedonia"(Ramus) "where he remained two days, lodging at my house (B. F. Johnson's) with my sister (Almera) as man and wife, and to my certain knowledge he occupied the same bed with her. This visit was on the 16th and 17th of May, 1843, returning to Nauvoo on the 18th." (HR 6:222; H.C. 5:393-394)

It was also sometime during the springtime of 1843 that Emma Smith became enraged at Eliza R. Snow becoming pregnant by Joseph, and took her and caused her to fall down the stairs of their home. The baby which Eliza was carrying was lost. She had been married to Joseph less than one year. This incident apparently prevented Eliza from ever bearing children.

The Revelation Is Written

The day finally arrived when the revelation on plural and celestial marriage (Sec 132) was written down---the same revelation which Joseph had received back in 1831. In the History of the Church, Joseph Smith records that on the 12th of July 1843 he "received the following revelation in the presence of my brother Hyrum and Elder William Clayton,---" (D&C 132 is then quoted; H.C. 5:500-507) William Clayton had been appointed "Temple Recorder" and private clerk to Joseph Smith on the 7th of October 1842. These appointments were made by Joseph himself. (HR 6:224-226) Brother Clayton was to keep minutes and write all revelations which Joseph had. Therefore he was the one who wrote down the revelation (132) as Joseph dictated it on July 12, 1843. (Two months prior to this revelation being written, Joseph had told brother Clayton that he had been sealed up to eternal life and that "nothing but the unpardonable sin can prevent you from inheriting eternal life for you are sealed up by the power of the Priesthood unto eternal life. . ." (H.C. 5:391-392, May 16, 1843) William Clayton's account of this historic day gives more information as to what transpired. On this morning Joseph and Hyrum Smith had been discussing the principle of plural marriage. Hyrum had convinced Joseph that if he would only write the revelation that he could take it to Emma and convince her of its purity and divine origin. Joseph didn't feel that Hyrum would be able to convince her, although he was willing to give it a try. So the revelation was written---"Hyrum then took the revelation to read to Emma. Joseph remained with me in the office until Hyrum returned. (In the History of the Church, Joseph merely mentions that "Hyrum took the revelation and read it to Emma" HC 5:507) When Hyrum came back, Joseph asked him how he had succeeded. Hyrum replied that he had never received a more severe talking to in his life, that Emma was very bitter and full of resentment and anger. Joseph quietly remarked, 'I told you you did not know Emma as well as I did.' Joseph then put the revelation in his pocket, and they both left the office." (HR 6:225-226) During the day the revelation was read "to several of the authorities". "Towards evening Bishop Newel K. Whitney asked Joseph if he had any objections to his taking a copy of the revelation: Joseph replied that he had not, and handed it to him. It was carefully copied the following day by Joseph C. Kingsbury" who also testified that he had made an exact duplicate of the revelation, being assisted by Bishop Whitney. The original copy was then given back to Hyrum and then to Joseph. Shortly thereafter the original was destroyed by Emma Smith. Joseph records that he was at home between the 13th and the 15th, and brother Clayton continues to record what happened: "Emma had so teased, and urgently entreated him for the privilege of destroying it, that he became so weary of her teasing, and to get rid of her annoyance, he told her she might destroy it, and she had done so, but he had consented to her wish in the matter to pacify her, realizing that he knew the revelation perfectly, and could rewrite it at any time if necessary." (HR 6:226) President Brigham Young later records that "Emma took that revelation, supposing she had all there was; but Joseph had wisdom enough to take care of it, and he had handed the revelation to Bishop Whitney, and he wrote it all off. After Joseph had been to Bishop Whitney's he went home, and Emma began teasing for the revelation. Said she---'Joseph, you promised me that revelation, and if you are a man of your word you will give it to me.' Joseph took it from his pocket and said---'Take it.' She went to the fireplace and put it in, and put the candle under it and burnt it, and she thought that was the end of it, and she will be damned as sure as she is a living woman. Joseph used to say that he would have her hereafter, if he had to go to hell for her, and he will have to go to hell for her as sure as he ever gets her." (J.D. 17:159) Brother Allen Stout was one of the Prophet's body guards at this time (July 1843) and testified "that while acting as one of the Prophet's body guard in the Nauvoo Mansion, only a single door separating him from the family, he listened to a conversation which took place between Joseph and Emma Smith, on the much vaunted subject of plural marriage. This impulsive woman from moments of passionate denunciation would subside into tearful repentance and acknowledge that her violent opposition to that principle was instigated by the power of darkness: that Satan was doing his utmost to destroy her. . ." (HR 6:230-31)

On the 22nd of July, Hyrum taught the principle of plural marriage to Howard Coray and wife, and married them for time and eternity. About this time the revelation was read to the High Council of Nauvoo by Hyrum Smith who testified of its truthfulness to them. All accepted the revelation except William Marks, Austin Cowles and Leonard Soby. (HR 6:227) Brother Thomas Grover who was also a member of that high council testified of the same things. (HR 6:227) After the revelation was read it was apparently given to Mercy R. Thompson who had previously been sealed to Hyrum Smith as a plural wife. (HR 6:229)

On the 19th of October Joseph Smith accompanied by William Clayton made a third trip to Ramus where Almera Johnson, one of Joseph's plural wives, was living with her brother Benjamin. He stayed again for two days, during which time he sealed a plural wife to Benjamin F. Johnson. (HR 6:222) During this same month of October Hyrum Smith read the revelation to several other saints including Bishop Samuel A. Woolley who accepted it and another woman present who said, "Brother Hyrum, don't read any more, I am full up to here," drawing her hand across her throat." (HR 6:231). On the 11th Hyrum taught Wilford Woodruff and his wife Phebe concerning the principle and "sealed the marriage covenant between me and my wife Phebe. . .for time and eternity and gave us the principle of it. . ." (Journal of Wilford Woodruff, Nov 11, 1843)

During this year, 1843, the following women had been sealed to the Prophet Joseph: Helen Mar Kimball, Eliza M. Partridge, Emily D. Partridge, Lucy Walker, Almera Johnson, Malissa Lott, Fanny Young, W. Lawrence, Sarah Lawrence, Rhoda Richards, Ruth V. Sayers, and Marinda Nancy Johnson.

Although the revelation on plural marriage had finally been written down it was still not announced publicly to the whole church as a principle of faith. It was still withheld from the general body of the saints, and would be until its announcement in Salt Lake City, Utah on August 29, 1852 by Elder Orson Pratt. (See J.D. 1:53) But in spite of its secrecy still there were rumors and some individuals ran before they were sent. On February 1, 1844 there appeared a statement in the Times & Seasons by Joseph and Hyrum saying that an Elder Brown had been preaching polygamy "and other false and corrupt doctrines" and that he had been cut off from the church and was asked to appear at the next conference of April to make answer to the charges. (T&S Vol 5:423) Another article appeared 6 weeks later by Hyrum Smith concerning a different group of saints in Hancock County who were saying that "a man having a certain priesthood, may have as many wives as he pleases, and that the doctrine is taught here (in Nauvoo)" Hyrum told them that whoever was teaching that "teaches false doctrine; for there is no such doctrine taught here; neither is there any such thing practised here". He said that anyone found teaching it privately or publicly would lose their membership. (T&S Vol 5:474)

Several years later Elder Charles W. Penrose explained that "that which Joseph and Hyrum denounced and for preaching which without authority an Elder (Brown) was cut off the Church in Nauvoo, was altogether different to the order of celestial marriage including a plurality of wives. So with that spiritual wife doctrine which lustful men attempted to promulgate at that period. Joseph the Prophet was just as much opposed to that false doctrine as anyone could be. It was a counterfeit. The true and divine order is another thing.* * * They were conscientious in their statements. Joseph and Hyrum were consistent in their action against the false doctrines of polygamy and spiritual infeism, instigated by the devil and advocated by men who did not comprehend sound doctrine nor the purity of the celestial marriage which God revealed for the holiest of purposes. Until the open enunciation of the doctrine of celestial marriage by the publication of the revelation on the subject in 1852, no Elder was authorized to announce it to the world. The Almighty has revealed things on many occasions which were for his servants and not for the world. Jesus enjoined his disciples on several occasions to keep to themselves principles that he made know to them. And his injunction "Cast not your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you," has become as familiar as a common proverb. In the rise of the Church the Lord had occasion to admonish her servants in regard to revelations that were afterwards permitted to be published. * * * Under these instructions Elders had no right to promulgate anything but that which they were authorized to teach. And when assailed by their enemies and accused of practising things which were really not countenanced in the Church, they were justified in denying those imputations and at the same time avoiding the avowal of such doctrines as were not yet intended for the world." (Deseret News, May 20, 1886, Thursday, C.W.Penrose, Editor) Elder John A. Widtsoe made the same comments concerning the apparent denials of polygamy in Nauvoo: "The apparent denials by Church leaders in Nauvoo days that the Church practised plural marriage were correct. At that time, the Church members as a whole had not heard the revelation, nor had they been given an opportunity to accept it. But many of the leaders know of it and were polygamists. The chaotic conditions of the years immediately following the Prophet's death, delayed the formal presentation of the revelation. Soon after the Church was established in the Great Salt Lake region, at the conference in 1852, the doctrine of celestial and plural marriage was accepted by the Church as a whole. During the intervening years, however, it was taught and practised." (Evidences & Reconciliations, p 344)

It was shortly after these apparent denials printed in the Times & Seasons that both Joseph and Hyrum were killed, which ended the historical setting of plural marriage.

14. Leviticus 13:47-59.

The garment also that the plague of leprosy is in, whether it be a woollen garment, or a linen garment;
Whether it be in the warp, or woof; of linen, or of woollen; whether in a skin, or in anything made of skin; And if the plague be greenish or reddish in the garment, or in the skin, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing of skin; it is a plague of leprosy, and shall be shewed unto the priest:
And the priest shall look upon the plague, and shut up it that hath the plague seven days:
And he shall look on the plague on the seventh day: if the plague be spread in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in a skin, or in any work that is made of skin; the plague is a fretting leprosy [HEB malignant leprosy]; it is unclean.
He shall therefore burn that garment, whether warp or woof, in woollen or in linen, or any thing of skin, wherein the plague is: for it is a fretting leprosy; it shall be burnt in the fire.
And if the priest shall look, and behold, the plague be not spread in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing of skin;
Then the priest shall command that they wash the thing wherein the plague is, and he shall shut it up seven days more [HEB quarantine it seven days the second time]:

And the priest shall look on the plague, after that it is washed: and behold, if the plague have not changed his colour, and the plague be not spread; it is unclean; thou shalt burn it in the fire; it is fret inward, whether it be bare within or without [HEB it is a decay, whether it be bald in the head thereof, or in the forehead thereof].
And if the priest look, and behold, the plague be somewhat dark after the washing of it; then he shall rend it out of the garment, or out of the skin, or out of the warp, or out of the woof:
And if it appear still in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing of skin; it is a spreading plague: thou shalt burn that wherein the plague is with fire.

This is the law of the plague of leprosy in a garment of woollen or linen, either in the warp, or woof, or any thing of skins, to pronounce it clean, or to pronounce it unclean.

Neither shall he go in to any dead body, nor defile himself for his father, or for his mother;

And it came to pass, when Joshua was by Jericho, that he lifted up his eyes and looked, and, behold, there stood a man over against him with his sword drawn in his hand: and Joshua went unto him, and said unto him, Art thou for us, or for our adversaries?

And he said, Nay: but as captain of the host of the LORD am I now come. And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and did worship, and said unto him, What saith my lord unto his servant?

In what place therefore ye hear the sound of the trumpet, resort ye thither unto us: our God shall fight for us.

So we laboured in the work: and half of them held the spears from the rising of the morning till the stars appeared.
Likewise at the same time said I unto the people, Let every one with his servant lodge within Jerusalem, that in the night they may be a guard to us, and labour on the day.
So neither I, nor my brethren, nor my servants, nor the men of the guard which followed me, none of us put off our clothes, saving that every one put them off for washing.

And I will clothe him with thy robe, and strengthen him with thy girdle, and I will commit thy government into his hand: and he shall be a father to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and to the house of Judah.
And the key of the house of David will I lay upon his shoulder; so he shall open, and none shall shut; and he shall shut, and none shall open.
And I will fasten him as a nail in a sure place; and he shall be for a glorious throne to his father's house.
And they shall hang upon him all the glory of his father's house, the offspring and the issue, all vessels of small quantity, from the vessels of cups, even to all the vessels of flagons.
In that day, saith the LORD of hosts, shall the nail that is fastened in the sure place be removed, and be cut down, and fall; and the burden that was upon it shall be cut of: for the LORD hath spoken it.

The Spirit of the Lord GOD [HEB Jehovah] is upon me; because the LORD hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound; To appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; that they might be called trees of righteousness, the planting of the LORD, that he might be glorified.
I will greatly rejoice in the LORD, my soul shall be joyful in my God; for he hath clothed me with the garments of salvation, he hath covered me with the robe of righteousness, as a bridegroom decketh himself with ornaments, and as a bride adorneth herself with her jewels.

35. Isaiah 63:1-3.

Who is this that cometh from Edom [IE the worldly nations; see cp. `Idumea' in D&C 1:36], with dyed garments from Bozrah? this that is glorious in his apparel, travelling in the greatness of his strength? I that speak in righteousness, mighty to save.
Wherefore art thou red in thine apparel, and thy garments like him that treadeth in the winefat? [HEB press; i.e. the winepress and the vat for collecting the juice of the grapes]

Take the girdle that thou hast got, which is upon thy loins, and arise, go to Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole of the rock.
So I went, and hid it by Euphrates, as the LORD commanded me.
And it came to pass after many days, that the LORD said unto me, Arise, go to Euphrates, and take the girdle from thence, which I commanded thee to hide there.
Then I went to Euphrates, and digged, and took the girdle from the place where I had hid it: and, behold, the girdle was marred, it was profittable for nothing.
Then the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,
Thus saith the LORD, After this manner will I mar the pride of Judah, and the great pride of Jerusalem.
This evil people, which refuse to hear my words, which walk in the imagination [HEB stubbornness] of their heart, and walk after other gods, to serve them, and to worship them, shall even be as this girdle, which is good for nothing.
For as the girdle cleaveth to the loins of a man, so have I caused to cleave unto me the whole house of Israel and the whole house of Judah, saith the LORD; that they might be unto me for a people, and for a name, and for a praise, and for a glory: but they would not hear.

Now Joshua was clothed with filthy garments, and stood before the angel.

And he answered and spake unto those that stood before him, saying, Take away the filthy garments from him. And unto him he said, Behold, I have caused thine iniquity to pass from thee, and I will clothe thee with change of raiment.

And I said, Let them set a fair mitre [HEB a clean (pure) cap] upon his head. So they set a fair mitre upon his head, and clothed him with garments. And the angel of the LORD stood by.

Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness;

And it came to pass that while my father tarried in the wilderness he spake unto us, saying: Behold, I have dreamed a dream; or, in other words, I have seen a vision.
And it came to pass that I saw a man, and he was dressed in a white robe; and he came and stood before me.
And it came to pass that he spake unto me, and bade me follow him.
And it came to pass that as I followed him I beheld myself that I was in a dark and dreary waste.
And after I had traveled for the space of many hours in darkness, I began to pray unto the Lord that he would have mercy on me, according to the multitude of his tender mercies.
And it came to pass after I had prayed unto the Lord I beheld a large and spacious field.
And it came to pass that I beheld a tree, whose fruit was desirable to make one happy.
And it came to pass that I did go forth and partake of the fruit thereof; and I beheld that it was most sweet, above all that I ever before tasted. Yea, and I beheld that the fruit thereof was white, to exceed all the whiteness that I had ever seen.
And as I partook of the fruit thereof it filled my soul with exceedingly great joy; wherefore, I began to be desirous that my family should partake of it also; for I knew that it was desirable above all other fruit.
And it came to pass that I beckoned unto them; and I also did say unto them with a loud voice that they should come unto me, and partake of the fruit, which was desirable above all other fruit.

And it came to pass that they did come unto me and partake of the fruit also.
And I beheld a rod of iron, and it extended along the bank of the river, and led to the tree by which I stood.
And I also beheld a strait and narrow path, which came along by the rod of iron, even to the tree by which I stood; and it also led by the head of the fountain, unto a large and spacious field, as if it had been a world. And it came to pass that I beheld others pressing forward, and they came forth and caught hold of the end of the rod of iron; and they did press forward through the mist of darkness, clinging to the rod of iron, even until they did come forth and partake of the fruit of the tree.

82. 1 Nephi 10:8.

Yea, even he should go forth and cry in the wilderness: Prepare ye the way of the Lord, and make his paths straight; for there standeth one among you whom ye know not; and he is mightier than I, whose shoe's latchet I am not worthy to unloose. And much spake my father concerning this thing.

83. 1 Nephi 12:10-11.

And these twelve ministers whom thou beholdest shall judge thy seed. And, behold, they are righteous forever; for because of their faith in the Lamb of God their garments are made white in his blood.
And the angel said unto me: Look! And I looked, and beheld three generations pass away in righteousness; and their garments were white even like unto the Lamb of God. And the angel said unto me: These are made white in the blood of the Lamb, because of their faith in him.

84. 1 Nephi 14:18-21.

And it came to pass that the angel spake unto me, saying: Look!
And I looked and beheld a man, and he was dressed in a white robe.
And the angel said unto me: Behold one of the twelve apostles of the Lamb.
Behold, he shall see and write the remainder of these things; yea, and also many things which have been.

85. 2 Nephi 8:24.

Awake, awake, put on thy strength, O Zion; put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem, the holy city; for henceforth there shall no more come into thee the uncircumcised and the unclean.

86. 2 Nephi 9:14.
Wherefore, we shall have a perfect knowledge of all our guilt, and our uncleanness, and our nakedness; and the righteous shall have a perfect knowledge of their enjoyment, and their rightousness, being clothed with purity, yea, even with the robe of righteousness.

87. Jacob 1:19.

And we did magnify our office unto the Lord, taking upon us the responsibility, answering the sins of the people upon our own heads if we did not teach them the word of God with all diligence; wherefore, by laboring with our might their blood might not come upon our garments; otherwise their blood would come upon our garments, and we would not be found spotless at the last day.

88. Jacob 2:2.

Now, my beloved brethren, I, Jacob, according to the responsibility which I am under to God, to magnify mine office with soberness, and that I might rid my garments of your sins, I come up into the temple this day that I might declare unto you the word of God.

89. Mosiah 2:28.

I say unto you that I have caused that ye should assemble yourselves together that I might rid my garments of your blood, at this period of time when I am about to go down to my grave, that I might go down in peace, and my immortal spirit may join the choirs above in singing the praises of a just God.

90. Mosiah 3:7.

And lo, he shall suffer temptations, and pain of body, hunger, thirst, and fatigue, even more than man can suffer, except it be unto death; for behold, blood cometh from every pore, so great shall be his anguish for the wickedness and the abominations of his people.

91. Alma 5:21–25, 27.

I say unto you, ye will know at that day that ye cannot be saved; for there can no man be saved except his garments are washed white; yea, his garments must be purified until they are cleansed from all stain, through the blood of him of whom it has been spoken by our fathers, who should come to redeem his people from their sins.

And now I ask of you, my brethren, how will any of you feel, if ye shall stand before the bar of God, having your garments stained with blood and all manner of filthiness? Behold, what will these things testify against you?

Behold will they not testify that ye are murderers, yea, and also that ye are guilty of all manner of wickedness?

Behold, my brethren, do you suppose that such an one can have a place to sit down in the kingdom of God, with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob, and also all the holy prophets, whose garments are cleansed and are spotless, pure and white?

(v. 27) Have ye walked, keeping yourselves blameless before God? Could ye say, if ye were called to die at this time, within yourselves, that ye have been sufficiently humble? That your garments have been cleansed and made white through the blood of Christ, who will come to redeem his people from their sins?

92. Alma 7:25.

And may the Lord bless you, and keep your garments spotless, that ye may at last be brought to sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and the holy prophets who have been ever since the world began, having your garments spotless even as their garments are spotless, in the kingdom of heaven to go no more out.

93. Alma 13:11-12.

Therefore they were called after this holy order, and were sanctified, and their garments were washed white through the blood of the Lamb.

Now they, after being sanctified by the Holy Ghost, having their garments made white, being pure and spotless before God, could not look upon sin save it were with abhorrence; and there were many, exceedingly great many, who were made pure and entered into the rest of the Lord their God.

94. Alma 34:36.

And this I know, because the Lord hath said he dwelleth not in unholy temples, but in the hearts of the righteous doth he dwell; yea, and he has also said that the righteous shall sit down in his kingdom, to go no more out; but their garments should be made white through the blood of the Lamb.

95. 3 Nephi 4:7.

. . . and they were girded about after the manner of robbers; and they had a lamb-skin about their loins, and they were dyed in blood, and their heads were shorn, and they had headplates upon them; . . . .

96. 3 Nephi 11:8.

And it came to pass, as they understood they cast their eyes up again towards heaven; and behold, they saw a Man descending out of heaven; and he was clothed in a white robe; and he came down and stood in the midst of them; . . . .

97. 3 Nephi 19:25.

And it came to pass that Jesus blessed them as they did pray unto him; and his countenance did smile upon them, and the light of his countenance did shine upon them, and behold they were as white as the countenance and also the garments of Jesus; and behold the whiteness thereof did exceed all the whiteness, yea, even there could be nothing upon earth so white as the whiteness thereof.

98. 3 Nephi 27:19.

And no unclean thing can enter into his kingdom; therefore nothing entereth into his rest save it be those who have washed their garments in my blood, because of their faith, and the repentance of all their sins, and their faithfulness unto the end.

99. Mormon 9:35.

And these things are written that we may rid our garments of the blood of our brethren, who have dwindled in unbelief.

100. Ether 12:37-39.

And it came to pass that the Lord said unto me: If they have not charity it mattereth not unto thee, thou hast been faithful; wherefore, thy garments shall be made clean. And because thou hast seen thy weakness thou shalt be made strong, even unto the sitting down in the place which I have prepared in the mansions of my Father.

And now I, Moroni, bid farewell unto the Gentiles, yea, and also unto my brethen whom I love, until we shall meet before the judgment-seat of Christ, where all men shall know that my garments are not spotted with your blood.

And then shall ye know that I have seen Jesus, and that he hath talked with me face to face, and that he told me in plain humility, even as a man telleth another in mine own language, concerning these things;

101. Ether 13:10.

And then cometh the New Jerusalem; and blessed are they who dwell therein, for it is they whose garments are white through the blood of the Lamb; and they are they who are numbered among the remnant of the seed of Joseph, who were of the house of Israel.

102. D&C 17:1; June 1829. [Promise made to Joseph Smith & Oliver Cowdery.]

Behold, I say unto you, that you must rely upon my word, which if you do with full purpose of heart, you shall have a view of the plates, and also of the breastplate, the sword of Laban, the Urim and Thummim, which were given to the brother of Jared upon the mount, when he talked with the Lord face to face, and the miraculous directors which were given to Lehi while in the wilderness, on the borders of the Red Sea.

103. D&C 20:5-8.

After it was truly manifested unto this first elder that he had received a remission of his sins, he was entangled again in the vanities of the world;

But after repenting, and humbling himself sincerely, through faith, God ministered unto him by an holy angel, whose countenance was as lightning, and whose garments were pure and white above all other whiteness;

And gave unto him commandments which inspired him;

And gave him power from on high, by the means which were before prepared, to translate the Book of Mormon;

. . . Save yourselves from this untoward generation, and come forth out of the fire, hating even the garments spotted with the flesh.

And this commandment shall be given unto the elders of my church, that every man which will embrace it with singleness of heart may be ordained and sent forth, even as I have spoken. I am Jesus Christ, the Son of God; wherefore, gird up your loins and I will suddenly come to my temple. Even so. Amen.

That when the trump shall sound for the dead, we shall be caught up in the cloud to meet thee, that we may ever be with the Lord;
That our garments may be pure, that we may be clothed upon with robes of righteousness, with palms in our hands, and crowns of glory upon our heads, and reap eternal joy for all our sufferings.

107. D&C 133:46-51.

And it shall be said: Who is this that cometh down from God in heaven with dyed garments; yea from the regions which are not known, clothed in his glorious apparel, traveling in the greatness of his strength?
And he shall say: I am he who spake in righteousness, mighty to save.
And the Lord shall be red in his apparel, and his garments like him that treadeth in the wine-vat.
And so great shall be the glory of his presence that the sun shall hide his face in shame, and the moon shall withhold its light, and the starts shall be hurled from their places.
And his voice shall be heard: I have trodden the wine-press alone, and have brought judgment upon all people; and none were with me;
And I have trampled them in my fury, and I did tread upon them in mine anger, and their blood have I sprinkled upon my garments, and stained all my raiment; for this was the day of vengeance which was in my heart.

THE CONSOLIDATED MEETING SCHEDULE
AND SABBATH DAY OBSERVANCE

1. Letter from the First Presidency, February 1, 1980; To be read in sacrament meeting; Sent to all General Authorities, Regional Representatives, Stake, Mission, and District Presidents, Bishops and Branch Presidents.

Dear Brethren:

In order to provide more time for giving attention to family life, individual study, self-improvement, and Christian service, The First Presidency and the Council of the Twelve have approved a consolidated schedule of Sunday meetings and weekday activities for members of the Church.

Our anticipation is that the consolidated meeting schedule will also support energy-saving efforts and assist members in reducing costs associated with travel to meetings and other activities. Energy use in Church buildings will should be reduced.

A greater responsibility will be placed upon the individual members and families for properly observing the Sabbath day. More time will be available for personal study of the scriptures and family-centered gospel study. Other appropriate Sabbath activities, such as strengthening family ties, visiting the sick and homebound, giving service to others, writing personal and family histories, genealogical work, and missionary work should be carefully planned and carried out.

It is expected that this new schedule of meetings and activities will result in greater spiritual growth for members of the Church. Every Latter-day Saint home should become a place where family members love to be, where they can enrich their lives and find mutual love, support, appreciation, and encouragement.

This schedule will also give more weekday time for family members, as citizens, to take part in improving their community and strengthening the processes by which people of integrity are elected to public office.

Special guidelines and suggestions have been prepared to assist parents and leaders of organizations to effectively carry out their responsibilities and programs under this new arrangement.
We trust that rich blessings will come to the members of the Church as this new schedule of meetings and activities becomes effective.

2. General Instructions for Stake Presidencies and Bishoprics; Consolidated schedule of Sunday Meetings, pages designated.

Purpose (p. 1)

The purpose of the consolidated meeting schedule is (1) to reemphasize personal and family responsibility for learning, living, and teaching the gospel and (2) to allow Church members more time for personal gospel study, service to others, and for meaningful activities. The major objectives of the new schedule are to---

1. Help every Latter-day Saint home become a place where family members love to be, where they can enrich their lives and find mutual love, support, appreciation, and encouragement.

2. Emphasize home-centered Sabbath activities.

3. Make more flexible a weekday activity program for all members.

4. Reduce the amount of travel by church members and provide opportunities for family members to travel together and participate together in Church activities.

5. Conserve energy resources and reduce the non-essential costs required for members to participate in Church activities.

Suggestions for Individual & Family Sabbath Day Activities (p. 5)

Because the new schedule will give families time together on Sundays, parents should plan activities for the Sabbath that will spiritually strengthen the family. They may wish to spend some time with the family each Sunday in gospel discussion and instruction, under the direction of the head of the household. They may use the scriptures, the most recent general conference talks, family home evening manuals, Church publications, and other publications as a resource.

Other appropriate Sunday activities include (1) writing personal and family journals, (2. holding family councils, (3) establishing and maintaining family organizations for the immediate and extended family, (4) personal interviews between parents and children, (5) writing to relatives and missionaries, (6) genealogy, (7) visiting relatives and those who are ill or lonely, (8) missionary work, (9) reading stories to children, and (10) singing Church hymns together.

Single adults should also spend their time on the Sabbath day in study and in such other activities as those suggested above. Under the direction of the ward single adult committee, they should also hold firesides, give service to the sick and elderly, and participate in other appropriate Sabbath day activities.

Many activities may not be appropriate on the Sabbath day, such as gardening, family parties, household projects, and other activities. Families may wish to plan family household and recreational activities for Saturday or other weekdays when parents are home with their children.

Program Overview (p. 6)

Monday night will continue to be reserved for family home evening. Local leaders should see that Church buildings and facilities are closed on Monday evenings.
Monday nights may be used appropriately for family recreational activities in addition to gospel instruction from the family home evening manuals, scriptures, general conference addresses, Church magazines, and other appropriate Church sources.

Administrative Meetings and Other Special Functions (p. 9)

The principles outlined below apply to the following administrative meetings and other special functions: firesides, bishopric meetings, stake presidency meetings, organization presidency meetings, stake and ward priesthood executive committee meetings, stake and ward correlation councils, choir practices, preparation meetings, priesthood leadership meetings, and so forth. It will be essential for stake presidencies and bishoprics to make effective use of priesthood executive committee meetings and meetings of the correlation council and welfare committee. Priesthood quorum presidency meetings will need to be effective for planning and administering quorum activities.

Principles
1. High priority should be given to individual and family needs and to those areas of service and activity that relate to the home.
2. Neither administrative and other meetings nor activities should prevent individuals and family members from caring for basic individual and family responsibilities.
3. Emphasis should be upon actual service with a minimum of time used in preparation for service.
Implementation of Principles
1. In scheduling administrative meetings and other special meetings, leaders should consider the following questions:
a. Does the schedule preserve an adequate block of time for all families and individuals on Sunday so they can give attention to gospel study, personal spiritual development, gospel teaching in the home, and appropriate acts of Christian service?
b. Are leaders able, as much as possible, to go to and return from the Sunday block of meetings with their wives and children?
2. Generally, ward administrative meetings should be held at one of the following times:
a. A designated weekday.
b. On Sunday, when it would least interfere with family travel and home-centered activities.

c. During the week when it would require the least special travel and a minimum of the leaders' time away from home and family.

Melchizedek Priesthood Quorums

Priesthood quorums should teach priesthood leaders, especially fathers, to plan and carry out appropriate Sabbath day activities for the family, which might include any of the following:

1. Personal and family scripture study
2. Studying and singing Church hymns
3. Family councils
4. Genealogy, including writing journals, personal and family histories, and so forth.
5. Visits to relatives
6. Visits to the sick, the aged, and the lonely.
7. Visits to neighbors who need to be spiritually strengthened
8. Letters to relatives and missionaries
9. Missionary work
10. Family study periods, using such resources as the scriptures, the family home evening manual, the Gospel Principles manual, and other approved Church curriculum materials.
11. Reading and discussing the counsel of the Brethren from conference reports and planning ways to follow that counsel
12. Personal interviews between parents and children
13. Reading appropriate good literature
14. Reading scripture stories to small children, including inspirational bedtime stories.

3. BULLETIN, Number 4: October 1980; Sunday Meeting Schedule.

The following explanations are designed to answer questions that have arisen from the implementation of the Sunday meeting schedule. They are supplemental to the general instructions for the Sunday meeting schedule previously distributed. In some instances, the original guidelines have been adjusted or added to. In such cases these instructions supersede those that were distributed earlier.
Priesthood leaders should follow Option A or Option B as outlined in the general instructions for the Sunday meeting schedule. No other pilot programs are approved, and there is no authorization for eliminating Sunday School or any of the other meetings provided in the original guidelines.
The purpose of the Sunday meeting schedule is to allow members more time for productive family life, individual and family study of the scriptures and the gospel, and self-initiated Christian service. Leaders should not use the additional available time provided by the new schedule for local meetings and programs, thus defeating the purpose of the Sunday schedule.
It is important that families have several hours together on the sabbath day for individuals and families to engage in study of the scriptures, gospel discussions, and other activities and service appropriate to the sabbath day. Many activities not appropriate on the sabbath day, such as gardening, family parties, household projects, and other activities, should be planned for Saturdays or other weekdays when parents can be with their children. Families should also take advantage of Saturday to plan and to prepare for the sabbath day.
Monday evenings are to be reserved for family recreation and activities, as well as for gospel study, as determined by heads of families.

Gospel Mysteries

4. BULLETIN, Number 12: June 1981; Family Home Evening.

The First Presidency frequently emphasizes the importance of weekly family home evenings as a prime opportunity for parents to teach and strengthen their families. In addition to family gospel study on Sundays, Monday nights are reserved for family home evening, which may include instruction in gospel principles, love, and harmony, and may include other family activities. The Family Home Evening manual should be available for every family. Priesthood leaders should emphasize the importance of family home evening in sacrament, leadership, and quorum meetings and should set the example by holding a weekly family home evening.

5. Letter from President Ezra Taft Benson, President of the Council of the Twelve; August 17, 1981; To all General Authorities, Regional Representatives, Stake, Mission and District Presidents, Bishops and Branch Presidents.

Dear Brethren:

Re: Administrative Meetings

Ward and stake leaders should hold administrative meetings either on Sunday, at times that interfere least with family and home-centered activities, or during the week at times that require the least travel.
If meetings are held on Sunday, the schedule should (1) preserve an adequate block of family and individual time for gospel study, personal spiritual development, gospel teaching in the home, and appropriate service; and (2) allow leaders, as often as possible, to travel with their wives and children to and from Sunday meetings.

6. BULLETIN, Number 20: February 1982; Sabbath Activities.

The Sabbath should not be used as a day to rehearse roadshows. Sunday should be a time for families to fulfill their Sunday duties, be together, and study the gospel.

7. BULLETIN, Number 4: February 1984; Sunday School.

Sunday School is not optional, but should be held each Sunday during the forty-minute period between sacrament meeting and priesthood and auxiliary meetings. Priesthood leaders should follow Option A or Option B as outlined in the general instructions for the Sunday meeting schedule. No pilot programs are approved, and there is no authority for eliminating Sunday School or any of the other meetings provided in the original guidelines.

8. BULLETIN, Number 5: March 1984; General Announcements.

Administrative Meetings

The Church instituted the consolidated Sunday meeting schedule in 1980 primarily to reemphasize personal and family responsibility to learn, live, and teach gospel principles. This schedule, when used as intended, will permit members to spend more time in personal and family gospel study, Christian service, and home-centered activities.
Stake and ward leaders can held members use their Sunday time as intended by avoiding excessive administrative meetings and other assemblies on the Sabbath that take members from their homes and families.

Local leaders should try to schedule administrative meetings on days other than Sunday and at times that require the least travel and the least time away from home and family. If such meetings are held on Sunday, they should not conflict with the ward Sunday meetings; also, they should be scheduled at times that interfere least with personal and family study, activities, and service. In unusual circumstances, such as when distances from homes to the meetinghouse are very long, local leaders may alter the frequency of administrative meetings to avoid unreasonable demands upon members' time and resources.
Members should continue to accept calls to Church service gratefully and should serve faithfully as the Lord has commanded (see Mosiah 2:17 and Matthew 25:34-40)

Family Time

Parents are to take the lead in planning Sunday family activities that strengthen the family spiritually. Families should spend time each Sunday discussing gospel principles; they should use the scriptures, general conference addresses, the Family Home Evening Resource Book, Church magazines, and other Church publications as source materials.
Monday nights should be reserved for family home evening and family activities. Saturdays, when possible, might be used for family projects and activities.

9. General Handbook of Instructions, 1984 edition, pp. 31-32.

The schedule for using the [baptismal] font should permit missionaries to baptize once a week or more often, if necessary. Fonts ordinarily should not be used on Sunday; however, they may be used on Sundays in unusual cases.

THE LAW OF SACRIFICE

1. Lectures On Faith, pp. 58-59; Prepared by the Prophet Joseph Smith during the winter of 1834-35 while at Kirtland, Ohio. Compiled by N. B. Lundwall.

(7). Let us here observe, that a religion that does not require the sacrifice of all things never has power sufficient to produce the faith necessary unto life and salvation; for, from the first existence of man, the faith necessary unto the enjoyment of life and salvation never could be obtained without the sacrifice of all earthly things. It was through this sacrifice, and this only, that God has ordained that men should enjoy eternal life; and it is through the medium of the sacrifice of all earthly things that men do actually know that they are doing the things that are well pleasing in the sight of God. When a man has offered in sacrifice all that he has for the truth's sake, not even withholding his life, and believing before God that he has been called to make this sacrifice because he seeks to do his will, he does know, most assuredly, that God does and will accept his sacrifice and offering, and that he has not, nor will not seek his face in vain. Under these circumstances, then, he can obtain the faith necessary for him to lay hold on eternal life.

Gospel Mysteries

(8). It is in vain for persons to fancy to themselves that they are heirs with those, or can be heirs with them, who have offered their all in sacrifice, and by this means obtain faith in God and favor with him so as to obtain eternal life, unless they, in like manner, offer unto him the same sacrifice, and through that offering obtain the knowledge that they are accepted of him.

(9). It was in offering sacrifices that Abel, the first martyr, obtained knowledge that he was accepted of God. And from the days of righteous Abel to the present time, the knowledge that men have that they are accepted in the sight of God is obtained by offering sacrifice. And in the last days, before the Lord comes, he is to gather together his saints who have made a covenant with him by sacrifice. Psalm 1:3,4,5: "Our God shall come, and shall not keep silence: a fire shall devour before him, and it shall be very tempestuous round about him. He shall call to the heavens from above, and to the earth, that he may judge his people. Gather my saints together unto me; those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice."

(10). Those, then, who make the sacrifice, will have the testimony that their course is pleasing in the sight of God; and those who have this testimony will have faith to lay hold on eternal life, and will be enabled, through faith, to endure unto the end, and receive the crown that is laid up for them that love the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ. But those who do not make the sacrifice cannot enJoy this faith, because men are dependent upon this sacrifice in order to obtain this faith: therefore, they cannot lay hold upon eternal life, because the revelations of God do not guarantee unto them the authority so to do, and without this guarantee faith could not exist.

(11). All the saints of whom we have account, in all the revelations of God which are extant, obtained the knowledge which they had of their acceptance in his sight through the sacrifice which they offered unto him; and through the knowledge thus obtained their faith became sufficiently strong to lay hold upon the promise of eternal life, and to endure as seeing him who is invisible; and were enabled, through faith, to combat the powers of darkness, contend against the wiles of the adversary, overcome the world, and obtain the end of their faith, even the salvation of their souls.

(12). But those who have not made this sacrifice to God do not know that the course which they pursue is well pleasing in his sight; for whatever may be their belief or their opinion, it is a matter of doubt and uncertainty in their mind; and where doubt and uncertainty are there faith is not, nor can it be. For doubt and faith do not exist in the same person at the same time; so that persons whose minds are under doubts and fears cannot have unshaken confidence; and where unshaken confidence is not there faith is weak; and where faith is weak the persons will not be able to contend against the opposition, tribulations, and afflictions which they have to encounter in order to be heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ Jesus; and they will grow weary in their minds, and the adversary will have power over them and destroy them.

2. J.D. 23:341-342; November 4, 1882; President Lorenzo Snow.

We have the same Priesthood that Jesus had, and we have got to do as He did, to make sacrifices of our own desires and feelings as He did, perhaps not to die martyrs as He did, but we have got to make sacrifices in order to carry out the purposes of God, or we shall not be worthy of this Holy Priesthood and be saviors of the world.

3. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon; Thursday, July 15, 1899; Remarks by Lorenzo Snow.

He says that if a man will place himself in a position where he is ready to sacrifice everything at the command of the Lord, he is then in a position to ask and receive Heavenly revelation.

4. The Way to Perfection, 1931; by Joseph Fielding Smith. Pages as indicated.

Candidates for eternal life . . . are expected to place all that they have on the altar, should it be required, for even then, and should they be required to lay down their lives for his cause, they could never pay him for the abundant blessings which are received. . . . (p. 23)
Moreover, he taught us that he who seeks to save his life shall lose it, but he who is willing to lose his life, or give it to his service even though it should bring death, shall find eternal life. We cannot expect to obtain all that has been promised us of glory, dominion, and might---to become sons of God and possess the glory of his kingdom---unless we are willing to consecrate all that we have unto the service of the Lord. (p. 273)

5. Gospel Truth, pp. 112-113; 1957; George Q. Cannon.

Those who have faith and who rise to the comprehension of the dignity and exaltation that God intends to bestow upon us will not hesitate to give everything they have to the Lord, but it requires faith. The Lord might require us to lay down our lives. That would require faith, would it not? Yes. But what is the promise? That we shall have eternal life and be exalted in His presence. Therefore, those who wish to attain to this exaltation must cherish sublimity of feeling, sublimity of self-sacrifice. They must not only be willing to give everything they have got on the earth---wives and children and everything else. If I cannot give up my wife and all my children, if required, if I cannot lay down my life, if necessary, God help me. I do not know what I might do, but God help me to do it if the test ever comes. But if I am not willing to do this, I cannot hope to attain to that exaltation and receive that fullness which the Lord has promised unto us, if we are faithful. In one sense of the word it is no sacrifice. We may call it so because it comes in contact with our selfishness and our unbelief; but it ought not to come in contact with our faith. . . .

6. The Improvement Era, December 1965, p. 1154; October General Conference, 1965; Harold B. Lee.

I bear witness that until a person has been willing to sacrifice all he possesses in the world, not even withholding his own life if it were necessary for the upbuilding of the kingdom, then only can he claim kinship to Him who gave His life that men might be. God make us worthy, willing to accept whatever He sees fit to inflict upon us, as a little child to its father.

7. Welfare Services Meeting, pp. 8-9; October 6. 1973; Pres. Harold B. Lee.

In another expression, the Prophet Joseph said: "Until a man has been willing to sacrifice all he possesses, not even withholding his life if required, for the building up of the kingdom of God, then only can he claim kinship to Him who gave His life that men might be." Now the Lord had a plan by which this was to be accomplished. We have. . .what we call 'the law of sacrifice,' and then we have another covenant which we call 'the Law of Consecration.' One obviously is the setting up exercise for that greater extension of consecration. . . .Now the law of sacrifice as it was given in our day was first a testing to see how far the Saints had come towards the living of that law of consecration. It was called the United Order.

8. The Ensign/May 1975, pp. 50-52; April General Conference, 1975; Bruce R. McConkie.

The law of sacrifice is a celestial law; so also is the law of consecration. Thus to gain that celestial reward which we so devoutly desire, we must be ABLE to live these two laws.
Sacrifice and consecration are inseparably intertwined. The law of consecration is that we consecrate our time, our talents, and our money and property to the cause of the Church; such are to be available to the extent they are needed to further the Lord's interests on earth.
The law of sacrifice is that we are willing to sacrifice all that we have for the truth's sake---our character and reputation; our honor and applause; our good name among men; our houses, lands, and families: all things, even our very lives if need be. * * *
But what the scriptural account means is that to gain celestial salvation we must be ABLE to live these laws to the full if we are called upon to do so.

9. The Message of the Joseph Smith Papyri, pp. 216-217; Hugh Nibley.

While the concept of the substitute sacrifice has been much studied in recent years, an important aspect of it, the arrested sacrifice, remains little known. It is clearly set forth in the case of Isaac, who allowed himself to be bound and offered, but whose sacrifice was arrested at the critical moment with the declaration, ". . .now I know that thou fearest God, seeing that thou hast not withheld," neither Abraham nor Isaac withholding what was dearest to them on earth (Gen. 22:12). When the one being tested has proven his faith to the limit, there is no point to continuing the sacrifice, since the price has already been paid by another, and a substitute (savior) has been provided. But in order to benefit by the ransom, the one thus delivered must prove his good faith by freely offering to forfeit his life, if necessary. * * *
In Judaeo-Christian tradition the first representative of the arrested sacrifice is Adam, who, as he was sacrificing on an altar, calling upon God with upraised hands, was accosted by Satan, who tried to sacrifice him, smiting him on the right side with a sharp stone. Adam fell upon the altar and Satan fled. While Eve attempted to raise up her husband, and just as he was at the point of death, God accepted his blood flowing upon the altar as a sacrifice, "and thus sent down his word and healed Adam". Thus, as in the cases of Abraham and Isaac, the sacrifice, though arrested, was no mere empty form, since it was clearly in the process of being carried out to the end in good faith.

IN THE WORLD, BUT NOT OF THE WORLD

An essential part of making one's calling and election sure is the ability to forsake the material and non-material things of the world. Material items would include money, real estate, personal belongings, etc. Non-material items would include fame, prestige, status and power. An individual must be able to come to the point in his life where nothing means more to him than doing what is necessary in order to gain the promise of eternal life. The waking moments of each day would be spent in contemplating the wonders and blessings of eternal life and how they might be obtained, rather than how much more of the worldly things can be obtained. The biggest problem people have is they are trying to be a part of the world and live the gospel in its fulness at the same time. They do not mesh well at all. And the standards and requirements of the gospel are that a person must forsake the world in favor of gaining the promise of eternal life. "Go and sell all that thou hast, and come follow me" the Savior said to the rich man. Only when we spend our time in pursuing the path that will bring us back to the Father will we spend our earthly time profitably and wisely, which means that we will have to give up the endless pursuit of more money and more power and more honor from the world. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God..." Once we have been able to acquire sufficient for our needs (as Peter indicated he had) then our time and labors should be spent in serving others (within our callings) to help them gain the commitment and blessings which the gospel has to offer those who desire it with all their heart, might, mind and strength.

25. Then said Jesus unto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me.
26. And now for a man to take up his cross, is to deny himself all.ungodliness, and every worldly lust, and keep my commandments.
27. Break not my commandments for to save your lives; for whosoever will save his life in this world, shall lose it in the world to come.
28. And whosoever will lose his life in this world, for my sake, shall find it in the world to come.
29. Therefore, forsake the world, and save your souls; for what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

THE MANNER IN WHICH SACRIFICES WERE OFFERED IN THE OLD TESTAMENT TIMES

1. The One Volume Commentary, J. R. Dummelow, p. 25.

Gen. 15:9 - God condescends to confirm the promise of the possession of the land by a visible sign. Abraham is directed to make the usual preparations observed in old times when two parties were about to make an important covenant. Certain animals and birds used in sacrifice were slain,1 and the bodies of the former divided in two parts: hence the expression to 'STRIKE' or 'CUT' a covenant.2 The two parties then passed between the two parts met in the middle, and took an oath of agreement, the position signifying that if they were false to the covenant they merited a similar fate to the animals. We must look a little closer into the manner of making a covenant in order to discover the connection of the different penalties . . . After an animal had been selected, his throat was cut across with one single blow, so as to divide the windpipe, arteries, and veins, without touching any bone.
The next ceremony was to bear the breast open and pluck out the heart, and if there were the least imperfection, the body would be considered unclean. The animal was then divided into two parts, and placed north and south, that the parties to the covenant may pass between them from east to west, and the carcass was then left as a prey to voracious animals. (Revised Duncan's Ritual, pp. 113-114, by Malcolm C. Duncan.)
2COVENANT - The Heb BERITH is by modern scholars derived from the Babylonian BIRITY, "Binding." It was formerly explained as "cutting," referring to the custom of cutting or dividing animals in two and passing between the parts in ratifying a covenant.

[These last two paragraphs are especially interesting in light of the temple endowment. Apparently such actions are symbolic of the Aaronic priesthood ordinances of sacrifice.]

Knowledge of Christ To Come By Revelation:

No matter what ability and talent a man may possess, all must come under this rule if they wish to know the Father and the Son. If knowledge of them is not obtained through revelation it cannot be obtained at all.... This principle alone can give the knowledge of God which is life eternal and the only power by which a man can stand unscathed in the trying hour. Those who possess this principle are one with Jesus Christ and one with the Father, as says Jesus, "That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they may be one in us:... that they may be one, even as we are one." (John 17:21-22.) They are baptized with the same baptism, they are baptized with the same Spirit; they are in possession of the same knowledge; and they knew God, whom to know is life everlasting. When built upon this rock the storms may blow, the rains may descend and beat upon the house, but it cannot fall because it is founded upon a rock. These are some of my reflections in relation to this ordiance of the sacrament of the Lord's supper. (JD, 10:115-117, February 22, 1863; The Gospel Kingdom, John Taylor, p. 112.)

(NewT:John 13:Heading-20)
Washing of feet is a gospel ordiance; it is a holy and sacred rite, one performed by the saints in the seclusion of the temple sanctuaries. It is not done before the world or for worldly people. For this day and dispensation Jesus instituted it in the upper room at the time of the Last Supper.

"Our Lord did two things in the performance of this ordinance: 1. He fulfilled the old law given to Moses; and 2. He instituted a sacred ordinance which should be performed by legal administrators among his true disciples from that day forward.

"As part of the restoration of all things, the ordinance of washing of feet has been restored in the dispensation of the fulness of times. In keeping with the standard pattern of revealing principles and practices line upon line and precept upon precept, the Lord revealed his will concerning the washing of feet little by little until the ful knowledge of the endowment and all temple ordinances had been given.

"December 27, 1832, this command was given to 'the firs laborers in the last kingdom': 'Sanctify yourselves; yea, purify your hearts, and cleanse your hands and your feet before me, that I may make you clean; That I may testify unto your father, and your God and my God, that you are clean from the blood of this wicked generation." (D. & C. 88:74-75.) On that same occasion the command came to organize the school of the prophets, with the express stipulation that 'ye shall not receive any among you into this school save he is clean from the blood of this generation ["is clean every whit: and ye are clean" (John 13:10); [The same would hold true to enter the Highest Degree in the Celestial Kingdom; all saints from the least to the greatest must be washed and pronounced clean ever whit that "I [Jesus Christ] may testify unto you Father, and you God, and my God, that you are clean from the blood of this wicked generation." (D. & C. 88:74-75)] And he shall be received by the ordiance of the washing of feet, for unto this end was the ordinance of the washing of feet instituted.' (D. & C. 88:127-141.)

"In the case of this school the ordinance is to be performed by the President of the Church. [This would indicate that others would receive this ordiance from the legal administrators appointed by the President of the Church or First Presidency.] In compliance with this revelaton the Prophet on January 23, 1833, washed the feet of the members of the school of the prophets. 'By the power of the Holy Ghost I pronounced them all clean from the blood of this generation," he recorded. (History of the Church, vol. 1, pp. 322-324; vol. 2, p. 287.)

"Later apostles were called and ordained, and on November 12, 1835, the Prophet addressed them, as pertaining to the washing of feet where they were concerned: 'The item to which I wish the more particularly to call your attention tonight is the ordinance of washing of feet. This we [meaning the Twelve] have not done as yet, but it is necessary now, as much as it was in the days of the Savior; and we must have a place prepared, that we may attend to this ordinance aside from the world.

"'We have not desired as much from the hand of the Lord through faith and obedience, as we ought to have done, yet we have enjoyed great blessings, and we are not so sensible of this as we should be.... We must have all things prepared, and call our solemn assembly as the Lord has commanded us, that we may be able to accomplish his great work, and it must be done in God's own way. The house of the Lord must be prepared, and the solemn assembly called and organized in it, according to the order of ht ehouse of God; and in it we mus attend to the ordance of washing of feet. It was never intended for any but official members. It is calculated to unite our hearts, that we may be one in feeling and sentiment, and that our faith may be strong, so the Satan cannot overthrow us, nor have any power over us here.

"'The endowment you are so anxious about, you cannot comprehend now, nor could Gabriel explain it to the understanding of your dark minds; but strive to be prepared in your hearts, be faithful in all things, that when we meet in the solemn assembly, that is, when such as God shall name out of all the official shall meet, we must be clean ever whit.... The order of the house of God has been, and ever will be, the same, even after Christ comes; and after the termination of the thousand years it will be the same; and we shall finally enter the celestial kingdom of God, and enjoy it forever.' (History of the Chruch, vol. 2, pp. 308-309.)

"On Sunday, March 27, 1836, as part of the dedicatory services fo the Kirtland Temple, the congregation sang the glorious hymn, 'The Spirit of God Like a Fire is Burning!' One verse, as then sung, was:

> "'We'll wash and be washed, and with oil be anointed,
> Withal not omittin the washing of feet;
> For he that receiveth his penny appointed
> Must surely be clean at the harvest of wheat.'

[In otherwords all saints who intend to enter the Lords Kingdom before he comes in glory must have this ordiance performed or done by proxie or they cannot enter the Lords Kingdom, "For no unclean thing can enter the kingdom of God", and again it must needs be that we must "not omitt the washing of feet" and "must be "clean [every whit] at the harvest of wheat." And again, the Lord has commanded 'Sanctify yourselves; yea, purify your hearts, and cleanse your hands and your feet before me, that I may make you clean; That I may testify unto your Father, and your God, and my God, that you are clean [every whit] from the blood of this wicked generation.' (D. & C. 88:74-75.)
"On March 29 and 30, 1836, the leading brethren, including the First Presidency, Council of the Twelve, bishoprics, and preidents of quorums, participated in the ordiance of washing of feet. (History of the Chruch, vol. 2, pp. 426, 430-431.)
"It should be remembered that the endowment given in the Kirtland Temple was only a partial endowment, and that the full endowment was not performed until the saints had established themselves in Nauvoo. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp 241-242.) The full endowment--referred to in the revelation dated January 19, 1841 (D. & C. 124:36-41)--including washings and anointings except under unusual circumstances, is designed to be administered in the temples of the Lord.
Thus the knowledge relative to the washing of feet has been revealed step by step in this day until a full knowledge is now in corporated in the revaled ordiances of the Lord's house. Obviously the apostate peoples of the world, being without revelation to guide them, cannot comply with our Lord's command given on the occasion of the last supper." (Mormon Doctrine, pp. 751-753.) D&C 132:19-24
Second Comforter
Calling and Election Sure, Comforter, Exaltation, Holy Ghost.
After a man so devotes himself to righteousness that his calling and election is made sure, "then it will be his privilege to receive the other Comforter," [the seal on what he has seen, Paul, Alma the younger] the Prophet says. "Now what is this other Comforter? It is no more nor less than the Lord Jesus Christ himself; and this is the sum and substance of the whole matter; that when any man obtains this last Comforter, he will have the personage of Jesus Christ to attend him, or appear unto him from time to time, and even he will manifest the Father unto him, and they will take up their abode with him, and the visions of the heavens will be opened unto him, and the Lord will teach him face to face, and he may have a perfect knowledge of the mysteries of the kingdom of God; and this is the state and place the ancient saints arrived at when they had such glorious visions--Isaiah, Ezekiel, John upon the Isle of Patmos, St. Paul in the three heavens, and all the saints who held communion with the general assembly and Church of the Firstborn." (Teachings, pp. 150-151; John 14:16-23; D. & C. 88:3-4; 130:3.) "The Holy Spirit of Promise is not the Second Comforter." (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 1, p. 55.)

Sons of God
The sons of God are members of his family and, hence, are joint-heirs with Christ, inheriting with him the fulness of the Father. (D. & C. 93:17-23.) Before gaining entrance to that glorious household, they must receive the higher priesthood (Moses 6:67-68), magnify their callings therein (D. & C. 84:33-41), enter into the new and everlasting covenant of marriage (D. & C. 131:1-4; 132), and be obedient in all things. (Doctrines of Salvation, vol. 2, pp. 8-9, 37-41, 59, 64-65.) Those who become the sons of God in this life (1 John 3:1-3) are the ones who by enduring in continued righteousness will be gods in eternity. (D. & C. 76:58.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 745.)

Jesus Discourses on the Two Comforters

These statements about the two Comforters climax and crown the teachings of the Son of God. We have no record of anything he ever said which can completely withdraw the curtain of eternity and open to the faithful a vision of the glories of God. Based on love, born of obedience, Jesus promises the saints that they can have, here and now in this life, the following:
(1) The gift and constant companionship of the Holy Ghost;

[a] the comfort and peace which it is the function of the Holy Spirit to bestow;

[b] the revelation and th sanctifying power which alone will prepare men for the companionship of gods and angels here after;

(2) Personal visitations from the Second Comforter, the Lord Jesus Christ

Gospel Mysteries

himself, the resurrected and perfected being who dwells with his Father in the mansions on high; and
(3) God the Father--mark it well Phillip!--shall

[a] visit man in person,

[b] take up his abode with him, as it were, and [c] reveal to him all the hidden mysteries of his kingdom.

Joseph Smith, as the Holy Ghost poured light and revelation into his soul, said this about the two Comforters: "There are two Comforters spoken of. One is the Holy Ghost, the same as given on the day of Pentecost, and that all Saints receive after faith, repentance, adn baptism. This first Comforter or Holy Ghost has no other effect than pure intelligence. It is more powerful in expanding the mind, enlightening the understanding, and storing the intellect with present knowledge, of a man who is of the literal seed of Abraham, than one that is a Gentile, though it may not have half as much visible effect upon the body; for as the Holy Ghost falls upon one of the literal seed of Abraham, it is calm and serene; and his whole soul and body are only exercised by the pure spirit of intelligence; while the effect of the Holy Ghost upon a Gentile, is to purge out the old blood, and make him actually of the seed of Abraham. That man that has none of the blood of Abraham (naturally) must have a new creation by the Holy Ghost. In such a case, there may be more of a powerful effect upon the body, and visible to the eye, than upon an Israelite, while the Israelite at first might be far before the Gentile in pure intelligence.
"The other Comforter spoken of is a subject of great interest, and perhaps understood by few of this generation. After a person has faith in Christ, repents of his sins, and is baptized for the remission of his sins and receives the Holy Ghost (by the laying on of hands), which is the first Comforter, then let him continue to humble himself before God, hungering and thirsting after righteousness, and living by every word of God, and the Lord will soon say unto him, Son, thou shalt be exalted. When the Lord has thoroughly proved him, and finds that the man is determined to serve him at all hazards, then the man will find his calling and his election made sure, then it will be his privilege to receive the other Comforter, which the Lord hath promised the saints, as is recorded in the testimony of St. John, in the 14th chapter, from the 12th to the 27the verses. Note the 16, 17, 18, 21, 23 verses....
"Now what is this other Comforter. It is no more nor less than the Lord Jesus Christ himself; and this is the sum and substance of the whole matter; that when any man obtains this last Comforter, he will have the personage of Jesus Christ to attend him, or appear unto him from time to time, and even he will manifest the Father unto him, and they will take up their abode with him, and the visions of the heavens will be opened unto him, and the Lord will teach him face to face, and he may have a perfect knowledge of the mysteries of the kingdom of God; and this is the state and place the ancient saints arrived at when they had such glorious visions--Isaiah, Ezekiel, John upon the Isle of Patmos, St. Paul in the three heavens, and all the saints who held communion with the general assembly and Church of the First Born." (Teachings, pp. 149-151.) (DNTC 1, p. 735-736.)

"Therefore it is given to abide in you; the record of heaven; the Comforter; the peaceable things of immortal glory; the truth of all things; that which quickeneth all things, which maketh alive all things; that which knoweth all things, and hath all power according to wisdom, mercy, truth, justice, and judgment." (Moses 6:61.)

Gospel Mysteries

The Lord Jesus Christ himself, the Second Comforter, will appear personally to the faithful. Mortal men have power while in this life to see God. "Verily, thus saith the Lord: It shall come to pass that every soul who forsaketh his sins and cometh unto me, and calleth on my name, and obeyeth my voice, and keepeth my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am." (D. & C. 92:1.) The Brother of Jared, among others, is one who complied with this law and thereby saw the Lord. "Because of the knowledge of this man," the record says, "he could not be kept from beholding within the viel; and he saw the finger of Jesus, which, when he saw, he fell with fear; for he knew, that it was the finger of the Lord; and he had faith no longer, for he knew, nothing doubting. Wherefore, having this perfect knowledge of God, he could not be kept from within the veil; therefore he saw Jesus; and he did minister unto him." (Ether 3:19-20.) (DNTC 1, p. 738.)

John 14:23
Jesus here announces the supreme earthly reward for personal righteousness--a personal visitation to man of the Father and the Son. "John 14:23--The appearing of the Father and the Son, in that verse, is a personal appearance; and the idea that the Father and the Son dwell in a man's heart is an old sectarian notion, and is false." (D. & C. 130:3.)

He shall teach you all things
All things? yes, all things; and all things means all things. "And by the power of the Holy Ghost ye may know the truth of all things." (Moro. 10:5.) The revealed word says God knows all things and has all thruth, which means there is nothing he does not know and no truth he does not possess. Consequently, now and hereafter, in time or eternity, the Holy Ghost shall teach all things to deserving and eligible students.

He shall testify of me (John 14:26)
Salvation centers in Christ. The Holy Ghost is Christ's revelator to bear witness of his divine Sonship and of the saving truths of his gospel. "The Holy Ghost," In Abraham's record this third member of the Godhead was called "God the third, the witness or Testator." (Teachings, p. 190.) As a Spirit personage, the Holy Spirit, by laws which are ordained, has power to speak to the spirit within man and to convey truth with absolute certainty. This revealed knowledge becomes a personal testimony to the recipient. By definition and testimony of the gospel is to know by personal revelation from the Holy Ghost that Jesus is the Christ through whom salvation comes; that Joseph Smith is the prophet who revealed anew to the world the saving truths of the gospel; and that the Chruch of Jesus Christ of Later-day Saints is the kingdom of God on earth.
[He seals, approves, ratifies, confirms, sanctifies and seals all blessings, truths, and ordiances of the gospel upon you.]

He shall glorify me
The Father and the Son, through their ministries, as Jesus has just announced, glorify each other. (John 13:31-32; 14:13.) Now Jesus says the Holy Ghost shall glorify the Son--a thing which comes to pass because men believe the testimony of the Holy Ghost, so live as to gain exaltation, and thereby add dominions and kingdoms to the endless domains of the Father and the Son. See John 13:31-35.

1 Cor 12:3
Wherefore I give you to understand, that no man speaking by the Spirit of God calleth Jesus accursed: and that no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost.

Two principles are here set forth: 1. Any man who has the Spirit praises Christ and testifies fo his goodness and mercy; and 2. Christ is and can be known by revelation from the Holy Ghost, and in no other way.
Revelation is the sole and only sure source of knowledge about God and Christ and gospel truths. A knowledge of these things does not and cannot come by reason, research, or rationalization. God stands revealed, or he remains forever unknown. In keeping with this principle, Joseph Smith said that the latter part of verse three should read: No man can know that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost." (Teachings, p. 223.) (DNTC 2, p. 365-367.)

Jesus taught that "the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things" (John 14:26), and the latter-day revelation on spiritual gifts says this about knowing of Christ's divinity by the power of the Spirit: "To some it is given by the Holy Ghost to know that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, and that he was crucified for the sins of the world. To others it is given to believe on their words, that they also might have eternal life if they continue faithful." [Parents to children][Abraham] (D. & C. 46:13-14.) (DNTC 2, p. 367-368.)

The word of God pierces the soul of man [The Holy Ghost]
The Holy Ghost is a personage of spirit, a spirit being ,a dn when he speaks to the spirit within man, knowledge and truth are conveyed with absolute surety. These wisperings of the Spirit are called the still small voice as is shown by the experience of Elijah on Mount Horeb. When the Prophet sought instructions from the Lord, "behold, the Lord passed by, and a great and strond wind rent the mountains, and brake in pieces the rocks before the Lord; but the Lord was not in the wind: and after the wind an earthquake; but the Lord was not in the earthquake: and after the earthquake a fire; but the Lord was not in the fire: and after the fire a still small voeice." (1Kings 19:11-12.) Then by the wisperings of the Spirit Elijah learned what the Lord wanted him to do. That these spiritual impressions can sink into the heart with a power transcending anything earthly is shown from Joseph Smith's statemrnt: "Thus saith the still small voice, which whispereth through and pierceth all things, and often times it maketh my bones to quake while it maketh mankfest." (D. & C. 85:6.) (DNTC 3, p. 152-153.)

"The priesthood is an everlasting principle, and exited with God form eternity, and will to eternity, without beginning of days or end of years.: (Teachings, p. 157.) Christ and others held the priesthood in pre-existence. Andam, the Prophet says, "obtained in in the creation, before the world was formed." (Teachings, p. 157.)

The "fulness of the gospel" refers to all of the laws and commandments of God. The Lord said that the scriptures were given for "the salvation of mine own elect; for they will hear my voice, and shall see me...." (D & C 35:20-21)

THE IMPORTANCE OF SEARCHING THE SCRIPTURES

I. Why should sisters study the scriptures?

1. The Lord has commanded all people to study his word.
2. A knowledge of what God expects of us is essential.
3. Will our children learn to love the scriptures if we do not teach from them and apply them in our lives?
4. They provide the daily uplift, inspiration and strength we need to enable us to go through each day.
5. Will the Lord give us additional scriptures if we have not read those which he has given us?
6. They help us to understand the plan of salvation better.
7. They will strengthen our testimony enabling us to stand independent, knowing for ourselves.

II. Things which prevent or impede us from having scriptural study:

1. We claim we have no time. All else is a priority.
2. We are tired of reading lst Nephi over and over again.
3. We find the scriptures very uninteresting.
4. It makes us uncomfortable to read the scriptures because they condemn sins which we want to keep.
5. I've already scanned them once.
6. Television programs.
7. Novels and other favorite magazines.

III. How to establish and maintain a scriptural study program

1. You must have a desire. You must want to read the scriptures more than some of the other daily priorities.
2. Read the scriptures with an objective in mind. Pick a topic and search out all the scriptures on that subject.
3. Set a goal to read one of the four standard works within a certain period of time. Then divide that time up into small sections, and concentrate on achieving all the small sections. Soon the whole goal will be reached.
4. Pick a time each day to read, and then make sure you read during that time. Remember, if you do not set aside some time each day, scripture reading will get lost in the pressures of life.
5. The Topical Guide will help you locate scriptures on a topic.
6. Commentaries on the scriptures will be of great value. Ask around to find out what the better commentaries are. 7. Try to learn something new each day from the scriptures. Keep a journal of the new thoughts or impressions which you get while reading. This will be of great benefit to you and to your posterity.

THE IMPORTANCE OF SCRIPTURES AND COMMENTARIES

1. Evidences & Reconciliations, pp. 117-18; Elder John A. Widtsoe, 1960 ed.

Errors in the translation of the Bible are due primarily to the fact that the original documents are lost. The manuscripts from which our Bible translations have been made are copies, perhaps copies of copies of the originals. Even in our day, with our many modern helps, it is practically impossible to secure a letter-perfect copy of a book, if done by hand. It is not a matter of dishonesty, but of human limitations. The wrong word may be written, or a word so written as to convey a false meaning; for example the accidental absence of a dot converts the Aramaic sign for rope into camel. Therefore we have long wrestled with the meaning of the Biblical statement, "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle," which really should read, "It is easier for a rope to go through the eye of a needle" (Matthew 19:24). Likewise, the statement, "Let the dead bury the dead" has been perplexing. The Aramaic word for dead is metta and for town, matta. It becomes likely, therefore, that the true saying was, "Let the town bury the dead," a very common practice in the days of Christ.
More serious are the evident attempts by ancient copyists to clarify or correct the text of the manuscripts by inserting personal comments, which, in course of time, have become parts of the sacred record. As an illustration, 1 John 5:7,8 reads, "For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost, and these three are one. And there are three that bear witness in earth, the spirit, and the water, and the blood; and these three agree in one." It is said that two hundred and fifty Greek manuscripts exist, containing this section of John's epistle, but do not contain the words in verses 7 and 8. Only four known manuscripts made after 1400 A.D. contain these words, and they are not found in any known manuscript before the seventh century after Christ. The words were evidently added by a scribe and have given rise to much religious misunderstanding.

2. Faith Precedes the Miracle, pp. 253-54; Pres. Spencer W. Kimball; 1972 ed.

I believe that the Ten Virgins represent the people of the Church of Jesus Christ and not the rank and file of the world. All of the virgins, wise and foolish, had accepted the invitation to the weeding supper; they had knowledge of the program and had been warned of the important day to come. They were not the gentiles or the heathens or the pagans, nor were they necessarily corrupt and reprobate, but they were knowing people who were foolishly unprepared for the vital happenings that were to affect their eternal lives. [Matt 25:1-13]

3. Teachings of the Prophet Joseph Smith, p. 149; Compiled by Joseph Fielding Smith; 1965 ed.

The Doctrine of Election. St. Paul exhorts us to make our calling and election sure. This is the sealing power spoken of by Paul in other places.
"13. In whom ye also trusted, that after ye heard the word of truth, the Gospel of your salvation: in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that Holy Spirit of promise.
"14. Which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of His glory, that we may be sealed up unto the day of redemption." Ephesians, lst chapter.
This principle ought (in its proper place) to be taught, for God hath not revealed anything to Joseph, but what He will make known unto the Twelve, and even the least Saint may know all things as fast as he is able to bear them, for the day must come when no man need say to his neighbor, Know ye the Lord; for all shall know Him (who remain) from the least to the greatest. How is this to be done? It is to be done by this sealing power, and the other Comforter spoken of, which will be manifest by revelation.

4. The Mediation and Atonement, pp. 85-87; Pres. John Taylor; 1882 ed.

The principle of [sealing] also over the varied creations of God, above spoken of, pertaining to the Holy Priesthood after the order of the Son of God, has, by faith, been manifested to the world in the lives and actions of numbers of the servants of the Most High. The power of Enoch, wherein he caused the earth to tremble, whilst mountains fled at his command, and rivers were turned out of their course, has already been referred to [I.V. Genesis 14]. By this power, exercised in mighty faith, Melchizedek stopped the mouths of lions and quenched the violence of fire [I.V. Genesis 14:26]; by it the waters of the Red Sea were divided by Moses, and the children of Israel passed through dry shod [Exodus 14:21]; by it Elijah [2 Kings 2:7-8] and Elisha [2 Kings 2:14] smote the waters of the Jordan and crossed on dry land; by it Daniel escaped the ferocity of the lions [Daniel 6:16-23]. and the three Hebrew children were delivered from the fiery furnace [Daniel, 3:19-27].

By this same power in the Messianic dispensation the Apostles were delivered from bonds and imprisonment; by it Paul shook off the viper that had fastened upon his hand [Acts 28:3-6]; by it Philip [Acts 8:39] was caught away by the Spirit of the Lord after he had baptized the Ethiopian eunuch; by it John was preserved when he was cast into a cauldron of boiling oil, that it did not hurt him; by it the dead were raised, the lepers cleansed, the sick healed, devils cast out, and other mighty works performed by Jesus and His disciples; and by it Christ broke the bands of death and became the resurrection and the life, the first fruits of them that slept, the conqueror of death, the Savior of the world and the Redeemer of mankind.

Again, on this continent, one of the Nephite Prophets, Jacob, the son of Lehi, records: "We truly can command in the name of Jesus, and the very trees obey us, or the mountains, or the waves of the sea." (Jacob 4:6). By faith the brother of Jared, who held this power, said unto the mountain Zerin, Remove; and it was removed [Ether 12:30]; by it Alma and Amulek caused the walls of the prison in Ammonihah to tumble to the ground [Alma 14:26-29]; by it Nephi and Lehi wrought the surpassing change upon the Lamanites that they were baptized with fire and the Holy Ghost [Helaman 5:43-49]; by it Ammon and his brethren wrought so great a miracle in the conversion of the Lamanites [Alma 17-27]; and by it also the disciples of Jesus who tarried amongst the Nephites showed forth the power spoken of in the following passage:

"Therefore they did exercise power and authority over the disciples of Jesus who did tarry with them, and they did cast them into prison: but by the power of the word of God, which was in them, the prisons were rent in twain, and they went forth doing mighty miracles among them. Nevertheless, and notwithstanding all these miracles, the people did harden their hearts, and did seek to kill them, even as the Jews at Jerusalem sought to kill Jesus, according to his word; and they did cast them into furnaces of fire, and they came forth receiving no harm; and they also cast them into dens of wild beasts, and they did play with the wild beasts even as a child with a lamb; and they did come forth from among them, receiving no harm." (4 Nephi 1:30-33)

This same power has also been abundantly manifested in these latter days in the midst of the Saints of God, in deliverances from evil, in escapes from enemies, in the quelling of mobs, in the stilling of the angry waves of the sea, in the healing of the sick, in the casting out of unclean spirits, and in many other miraculous manifestations of the power and goodness of God, and of the authority with which He has invested His servants who are endowed and clothed upon with the Priesthood, which is endless and after the order of the Son of God.

5. Teachings of the Prophet Joseph Smith, pp. 150-51; Compiled by Joseph Fielding Smith; 1965 ed.

The other Comforter spoken of is a subject of great interest, and perhaps understood by few of this generation. After a person has faith in Christ, repents of his sins, and is baptized for the remission of his sins and receives the Holy Ghost, (by the laying on of hands), which is the first Comforter, then let him continue to humble himself before God, hungering and thirsting after righteousness, and living by every word of God, and the Lord will soon say unto him, Son, thou shalt be exalted. When the Lord has thoroughly proved him, and finds that the man is determined to serve Him at all hazards, then the man will find his calling and his election made sure, then it will be his privilege to receive the other Comforter, which the Lord hath promised the Saints, as is recorded in the testimony of St. John, in the 14th chapter, from the 12th to the 27th verses.

Note the 16, 17, 18, 21, 23 verses:

[These verses are now quoted by the Prophet]

Now what is this other Comforter? It is no more nor less than the Lord Jesus Christ Himself; and this is the sum and substance of the whole matter; that when any man obtains this last Comforter, he will have the personage of Jesus Christ to attend him, or appear unto him from time to time, and even He will manifest the Father unto him, and they will take up their abode with him, and the visions of the heavens will be opened unto him, and the Lord will teach him face to face, and he may have a perfect knowledge of the mysteries of the Kingdom of God; and this is the state and place the ancient Saints arrived at when they had such glorious visions--Isaiah, Ezekiel, John upon the Isle of Patmos, St. Paul in the three heavens, and all the Saints who held communion with the general assembly and Church of the Firstborn.

Blessing ten: We have the power---and it is our privilege---so to live, that becoming pure in heart, we shall see the face of God while we yet dwell as mortals in a world of sin and sorrow.
This is the crowning blessing of mortality. It is offered by that God who is no respecter of persons to all the faithful in his kingdom.
"Verily, thus saith the Lord; It shall come to pass that every soul who forsaketh his sins and cometh unto me, and calleth on my name, and obeyeth my voice, and keepeth my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am." (D&C 93:1)

[Regarding Matt. 7:23:]

Jesus is saying: 'I never knew you as true disciples, for you never received the fulness of my gospel and came into my Church, and hence, Ye never knew me'; Or, 'Ye never knew me so fully as to be sealed up unto eternal life with your callings and elections made sure, and since you did not magnify your callings in the priesthood, you shall be cast out and be as though I never knew you.'

KEEPING A SECRET

1. TPJS, p. 195; Prophet Joseph Smith Jr.; December 19, 1841; H.C. 4:479.

The reason we do not have the secrets of the Lord revealed unto us, is because we do not keep them but reveal them; we do not keep our own secrets, but reveal our difficulties to the world, even to our enemies, then how would we keep the secrets of the Lord? I can keep a secret till Doomsday.

2. J.D. 4:287-89; Pres. Brigham Young; March 15, 1857; Tabernacle, Salt Lake.

Now I want to tell you that which, perhaps, many of you do not know. Should you receive a vision or revelation from the Almighty, one that the Lord gave you concerning yourselves, or this people, but which you are not to reveal on account of your not being the proper person, or because it ought not to be known by the people at present, you should shut it up and seal it as close, and lock it as tight as heaven is to you, and make it as secret at the grave. The Lord has no confidence in those who reveal secrets, for He cannot safely reveal Himself to such persons. It is as much as He can do to get a particle of sense into some of the best and most influential men in the Church, in regard to real confidence in themselves. They cannot keep things within their own bosoms. * * *

If a person understands God and godliness, the principles of heaven, the principle of integrity, and the Lord reveals anything to that individual, no matter what, unless He gives permission to disclose it, it is locked up in eternal silence. And when persons have proven to their messengers that their bosoms are like the lock-ups of eternity, then the Lord says, I can reveal anything to them, because they never will disclose it until I tell them to. Take persons of any other character, and they sap the foundation of the confidence they ought to have in themselves and in their God. * * *

If we are His friends, we will keep the secrets of the Almighty. We will lock them up, when He reveals them to us, so that no man on earth can have them, and no being from heaven, unless he brings the keys wherewith to get them legally. No person can get the things the Lord has given to me, unless by legal authority; then I have a right to reveal them, but not without. When we can keep our own secrets, when we can keep the secrets of the Almighty strictly, honestly, truly in our own bosoms, the Lord will have confidence in us. Will He before? No. Are we going to become secret keepers in any other way than by applying our lives to the religion we profess to believe? No.

3. J.D. 4:371-72; Pres. Brigham Young; June 28, 1857; Bowery, Great Salt Lake.

You often hear people desiring more of the knowledge of God, more of the wisdom of God, more of the power of God. They want more revelation, to know more about the kingdom of heaven, in heaven and on the earth, and they wish to learn and increase.

There is one principle that I wish the people would understand and lay to heart. Just as fast as you will prove before your God that you are worthy to receive the mysteries, if you please to call them so, of the kingdom of heaven--that you are full of confidence in God---that you will never betray a thing that God tells you---that you will never reveal to your neighbor that which ought not to be revealed, as quick as you prepare to be entrusted with the things of God, there is an eternity of them to bestow upon you. Instead of pleading with the Lord to bestow more upon you, plead with yourselves to have confidence in yourselves, to have integrity in yourselves, and know when to speak and what to speak, what to reveal, and how to carry yourselves and walk before the Lord. And just as fast as you prove to Him that you will preserve everything secret that ought to be---that you will deal out to your neighbors all which you ought, and no more, and learn how to dispense your knowledge to your families, friends, neighbors, and brethren, the Lord will bestow upon you, and give to you, and bestow upon you, until finally he will say to you, "You shall never fall; your salvation is sealed unto you; you are sealed up unto eternal life and salvation, through your integrity."

Let every person be the friend of God, that whatever He reveals to you, you can wisely handle without asking Him whether you shall tell your wife of it or not. You can recollect the back-handed blow I gave to some of the brethren last winter. They were in pain, because they knew something which they could not tell to their wives. I would not trust such men out of sight with my dinner. God will not trust the least thing to such persons. Sisters, if you are in pain, because you cannot tell your husbands everything, you had better take a little catnip tea, and get over it, if you can. What will God reveal to such persons? Just enough to keep them from the gulf of despair, and lead them along until they get a little sense. I say this that you may learn to reveal that which you ought, and to keep the rest to yourselves. By so doing you prove to God that you are His friends, and will keep His secrets.

The world may howl around you and plead for the secrets of the Lord which he has given you, but they will not get them. When the Lord has proved His children true to what He has given into their charge, and that they will do His bidding, He will tell such persons anything that they should know. A great many desire just enough of knowledge to damn them and it does damn a great many.

4. J.D. 22:72-73; Elder Charles W. Penrose; January 30, 1881; Tabernacle, SLC.

There is this difficulty sometimes in this Church, and the same difficulty existed in former times. If a person should happen to grow a little in the knowledge of the truth, and get something which others may not have received, he may become puffed up in the vanity of his heart, and think he should be exalted into a high position. For instance the Lord gives gifts to the Church---the gift of tongues, the gift of prophecy, the gift of healing, the gift of being healed, the gift of discernment of spirits, and a great many other gifts according to the faith, desires, and capacities of the Saints. A person may get a gift and rejoice very much in that gift, but just as soon as he becomes desirous of displaying it, and wishes to be considered great among men because of it, just at that moment he is in danger of being led by a false and delusive spirit, led out of the strait and narrow path that leads to lives eternal. All these gifts properly used are for the benefit of the Church. Above all, every member should enjoy the spirit of revelation.

5. That All May Be Edified, p. 337; Elder Boyd K. Packer; 1982 ed.

I heard President Romney once counsel mission presidents and their wives in Geneva. "I do not tell all I know. I have never told my wife all I know, for I found out that if I talked too lightly of sacred things, thereafter the Lord would not trust me."

SHARING MATERIAL WITH OTHERS

IMPORTANCE OF SHARING BY THE SPIRIT

Be sensitive about what you say to others. Some of these concepts are not commonly understood among the Latter-day Saints to any great depth. Each person is at a different location spiritually and knowledge-wise in their lives. It is therefore of great importance that we relate concepts as we are impressed to do by the spirit---not as we are impressed to do out of excitement.

SHARING EVERYTHING AT ONCE

Joseph Smith said it was not good for people to be given all knowledge all at once, but rather they should receive it line upon line, progressively increasing until they have all knowledge. This is the way our Heavenly Father deals with us. Individuals must be allowed time to digest new thoughts and concepts, even if they request more. We start out sharing concepts based upon where the person is at the moment.

HOW DESIROUS ARE THEY TO LEARN?
People are more desirous of food when they are hungry. If your head were held under water for some length of time, what would you want more than anything else? If you had been in a desert for a week without water, what would you desire above all things? Just so it must be with individuals in relationship to the gospel. They must desire to learn, and they must be willing to change present ideas for new ones. They must have within their hearts the ultimate desire to repent and reconcile themselves with God the Father, that they might be clean and pure enough so as to be enabled to re-enter his presence. After all, this is the end objective of the gospel. If people are not desirous of changing and growing, then your sharing with them gospel principles may fall on "deaf ears".

AVOID CONTENTIOUS DISCUSSIONS
Individuals learn best when the spirit of the Lord is in attendance. If, during your discussions with other individuals, the spirit of contention enters the room, no matter who may be at fault for bringing it in, it is better that the discussion be terminated. Contentious feelings cause more problems and more spiritual retardation than anything else. Contention creates feelings of alienation between the parties involved. Not only are these feelings the opposite of love, but the effect these feelings have upon individuals are the opposite of what love would produce. You stand nothing to gain, and everything to lose.

BE IN HARMONY WITH CHURCH LEADERS Alma taught that "it is given unto many to know the mysteries of God; nevertheless they are laid under a strict command that they shall not impart only according to the portion of his word which he doth grant unto the children of men, according to the heed and diligence which they give unto him." (Alma 12:9) The Lord decides what he wants taught to the "children of men" and these teachings are "according to the heed and diligence which they [the children of men] give unto him [God]." We are guided and directed as to what that "portion of his word" is through his priesthood leaders upon the earth. The prophet reveals to us the "portion of his word" that God wants us to have. And as the heed and diligence which we give unto God changes and improves, so will the portion of his word change and enlarge in scope that is given to us. We should always be in harmony with the Prophet's desires.

SHARING SACRED EXPERIENCES
As you live the principles of the gospel you will have come to you special spiritual experiences that are very meaningful to you. These experiences were given for your own personal edification and were not intended for the world at large. Occasionally, as you are prompted by the spirit, you may want to share an experience with someone else. However, by and large, you will want to guard these sacred experiences and record them in your journals for the benefit of your own posterity. Usually the sharing of experiences has the effect of lessening the specialness or sacredness of the experience to yourself and causing emotions in others that perhaps should not be there, such as envy, competition, and unbelief.

THE TEST OF TIME
The parable of the sower and the seed (Matthew 13:3-9;18-23) is a good illustration of how the gospel is accepted by individuals. Some receive the good news, but do not understand it, "then cometh the wicked one, and catcheth away that which was sown in his heart." Other individuals receive the gospel mysteries with joy in their hearts, and they even endure for a period of time, but when "tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, by and by he is offended," and consequently that which was sown is lost. Then there are others who receive the message gladly and may even continue in the message received, but after awhile "the care of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches choke the word, and he becometh unfruitful." Finally, there are those who receive the doctrines of the gospel and understand them. These individuals therefore strive to live the gospel more perfectly, and thereby bring forth good fruit. But even among those who bear fruit, some will bear "an hundredfold, some sixty, [and] some thirty." Only by the test of time can we really know how deeply a person has accepted the mysteries of God which have been given to him.

There have been examples of those in history who supposedly were converted, but who once having set their hand to the plow looked back, and preferred the old way. Lot's wife who disbelieved; Laman and Lemuel who cared not for the precious fruit; King David who rose high, and then fell; Judas who did not understand the mission of the Savior; and many in the days of Joseph Smith who were the cause of trials and tribulations for him. Likewise there were others who, once having received the glad message, continued faithful. As Alma was journeying from the land of Gideon southward, away to the land of Manti, just by chance he happened to meet the sons of Mosiah who were with Alma at the time the angel first appeared unto him, "therefore Alma did rejoice exceedingly to see his brethren; and what added more to his joy, they were still his brethren in the Lord; yea, and they had waxed strong in the knowledge of the truth; for they were men of sound understanding and they had searched the scriptures diligently, that they might know the word of God. BUT THIS IS NOT ALL; they had given themselves to much prayer, and fasting; therefore they had the spirit of prophecy, and the spirit of revelation, and when they taught, they taught with power and authority of God. And they had been teaching the word of God for the space of fourteen years." (Alma 17:2-4) They withstood the test of time.

MINUTES OF MEETINGS HELD IN ST. GEORGE

Minutes of a Semi-annual Conference of the Southern Mission held in the City of St George commencing on the 3" June 1870.

5th [of June 1870] 10 A.M. [Meeting]

President E. Snow felt that since he has been presiding here his mind has taken a very practical turn, but he did not feel to find fault with himself, as he believed that the Lord had directed (next page) him thus. "But we have appointed a president to this Stake of Zion--bro Jos. W. Young--who will help me in my labors; and will always be ready to given counsel and advice to those seeking for it, and I wish him to be sustained by the faith and prayers of the Saints as well as myself"

In speaking of the value of Constitutions to Societies he said the faith and prayers of the Saints are better than all the constitutions that can be adopted. Related an incident that occurred in the lifetime of the Prophet Joseph, in which the word of the Lord came, saying, "You are my constitution and I am your God, henceforth do as I command you."

...May 5th 1872 Conference held in the basement of the St. George Tabernacle Sunday 10 a.m. session Erastus Snow speaking:

...Dreams are often given by the Lord for our instruction and guidance but we must have the Spirit to be able to discern between dreams given of God and those which are the result of the poor state of our health or nervous derangement.--

Said that those who keep the commandments of God need not fear the influences of wicked spirits and the manifestations of spiritualists for they will have power in the name of Jesus Christ to rebuke all evil Spirits.--Said that faith is the gift of God and blessed is he that can believe without seeing and if we would only continue to exercise faith we would be filled with light to such and extent that we would be able to see through a ceiling or a stone wall and be able to hear the thoughts of men.

Sunday Jan 25th 1874...Prest Young next addressed the meeting said among other things: "when we wear out the prejudice which is now felt by the wicked world against the doctrine of polygamy-the honest will flock into the Church by thousands and by millions-and the only thing I am afraid of is the effect of popularity and riches on

He further dwelt on retrenchment

He referred to the war between the North and the South; the recent wars in Spain, the Franco Prussian War and other recent minor wars He then referred to the principle of (next page) of the organization and classification of labor

...advised that the revelations contained in the Doctrine and Covenants be read more in our public meetings. He referred to the letter which had been read form the Doctrine & Covenants [D & C 106 had been read] That letter is as much for our profit & instruction as it was (next page) intended to be to the Nauvoo saints to whom it was originally written. In referring to the difficulties experienced by those saints who were the last to leave Nauvoo he said those sufferings were caused chiefly by Almon W.Babbitt--who with two others was left as a committee to manage the affairs of the Saints after the Twelve left. One of the conditions expressly enjoined upon the committee was that they and the Saints were to have nothing to do with elections. Immediately after the Twelve left Babbitt began to stump politically in his own behalf. This brought on the troubles.

Elder Milo Andrus spoke. Referring to the time when the High Priesthood was introduced; at the meeting, where Joseph (sic, said the Kingdom had grown and it was God's will that men should be ordained to the High Priesthood. Emir (sic) Harris replied "Bro Joseph if we knew this was God's will we would be willing to do this." Bro Andrus exhorted all to put away their weaknesses and to accept the revelations of God through His servants. 32 minutes.

Sunday, March 15/74...

Prest Young gave a brief account of the recent trip he took up the river Held 17 meetings while absent 8 days-We understand what we practice better than we possibly can any abstract principle which we do not practice. If we had not practiced the simple ordinance of baptism for the remission of sins there would have appeared much more mystery than is now apparent. So it is in all the sciences and the arts; where theory alone is obtained it does not impart the certainty and power of knowledge. There are many of the institutions of Zion which we have not yet began to put into force and there (next page) is mystery attached to those institutions. The order of Enoch as it is called, will ever be mysterious to those who do not enter practically into this Holy Order. The more it is practiced in righteousness the more light, truth and knowledge will bestowed upon those who are thus practical. lt is time for the L.D.S. to enter into the practical obedience to this Holy Order of the Gospel. "I say it is time, we must either go backward or forward." "I am for going forward." "I say to the saints go forward. Be one." If we had been practicing this combined order for 20 or 25 years we would find it very much more difficult to commence and carry on business (next page) as separate individuals than (sic) we do now to enter into this combined order. There are many things which the Lord would have bestowed upon His people but they were not ready to receive them. He still wishes to do so and will just as soon as we prepare ourselves. 41 minutes--

Sunday March 22nd 1874...

Prest Young referred to the hardship that had been endured by the people of the south but he was constrained to state that those hardships had been brought upon the people by themselves. The elements of wealth and inde- (next page) pendence are here. If the people will be dictated in the use of their time and of the talents with which God has endowed them, we will increase in wealth and independence. He referred to the necessity of obeying true and holy principles. The Christian world, especially in republican formes of government considers that they must show their independence by daring to do evil, but to do good by obeying righteous principle is considered degrading.

Cut short your expenses by stopping the laying out of your means on imported goods. do not buy another imported hat or article that you can do without (next page) By this and similar means you will produce a fund by which you can secure what kings may be needed. If we will be prudent we can have all we in righteousness desire. I pray you my brethren and sisters to listen to and be obedient to counsel. (59 minutes)

Prest G.A. Smith--referred to the time when some of the saints lived in Adam ondi Ahman and when first organizing in the United Order. Prest. Jos. Smith said if the brethren would build him a house in that place he would stay there with them some of the time--It would take about 100 trees--a certain brother named Pack (Rufus Pack) had 160 acres of timber land, application was made to (next page) him for permission to cut the trees on his claim--No was his response--lt was urged that he would not want all the timber on his claim-Well said he if I do not, my children will." In about 3 weeks afterwards the mob came and drove him in common with the other saints from that part of the State.

St. George Hall. March 26th 1874, 7 p.m.
Meeting for Sisters who have entered their names as willing to combine their labors in the United Order...

Prest. Young we have of late been instructed in the first principles of the Order of Enoch. We have begun in St George and if the people are faithful the citizens of this city will have the honor of being the first to enter into the Holy Order of Enoch. We want a fund--now we do not call upon any member of the community to give one dollar to this fund but by the proper application of their time and by the curtailing of needless expenses create this fund. To create this fund I would rather take a number of men worth their thousands for in taking those who are willing to be dictated in the appli- (next page) cation of their labors and talents even though without a dollar to put into the fund to begin with-they can say after the result of their combined labors is manifest they will have the right application of our labors and by our prudence and economy.

I have contemplated this order for years, but never have I felt the spirit to indicate that the temple would receive it till the present time. You may say "What do you want of us?" I will tell you what is wanted. I want the sisters to take the lead in customs and fashions. We want the hearty cooperation of the sisters. I want to see a fund in this community so that we may send for machinery and other appliances to save the labor of the sisters--I will refer to the article of shoes. We expend altogether too much on the importation of shoes. They are so light and flimsy that they soon wear out. I recommended the wearing of weeden bottomed shoes. They are better for damp weather and also for hot weather when the ground and sand becomes intensely heated. By doing this you can save in St George alone from 10 to 15,000 dollars per annum. Now I refer to hats. Why not use our old pantaloons and make our caps out of them. Just as will wear them as to wear the hats we import for the men and boys. By making our own hats and caps we may save from 5 to 8000 dollars per ann- Take care of your fruit, can it up and send it off this will help to create a fund. Gather the grapes, have a few general places at (next page) which to make this wine. First by lightly pressing make white wine. Then give a heavier pressing make their colored wine. Then barrel up this wine and if any counsel is taken this wine will not be drank here but will be exported and thus increase the fund. Twenty thousand dollars may be saved right here in clothing and the same amount can be realized from our fruit & wine. Who goes with us in this? Those that do raise the right hand--A very general show of hands.

We want the sisters to use those most skilled in the canning of fruit.

He referred to the benefits resulting from a combined order in removing care from those who may be sent on missions who have heretofore had to be anxious about the families they left behind. (55minutes)

Prest. G.A. Smith. I wish simply to state that if the sisters discern that the teachings we give are from the Lord, and are preparatory to (sic) obedience to the law of consecration which will prepare us for the redemption of the centre Stake of Zion. The principle of economy will make us independent of our enemies.

Prest E. Snow said that a few years ago we wore straw hats, but the obtaining of a little means form Pioche and elsewhere we have nearly discarded not only straw hats but other articles of home manufacture. In Denmark it is common with all classes rich and poor to use wooden shoes. It is certainly an excellent idea to use wooden soled shoes. I like the combination of labor. I am satisfied that fully one third of our time has (next page) been unprofitably spent.

Benediction by Prest B. Young.

...He knew of no reason to bring the latter day Saints to the tops of the mountains but to learn of Gods ways that they might more completely walk in His paths. What is the duty of the Watchmen on the walls of Zion? To warn us of evil and to instruct us in the ways of life.

The destruction of Babylon will come, as sure as that the sun shines in the firmament. What is the tendency od the instructions of Prest Young the past winter to us? To guard us and to protect us from sharing in the calamity which must inevitably fall upon Babylon.

No man can ever rule in God's Kingdom until he first learns to serve (30 minutes)

Prest. B. Young. said if the people wanted the word of the Lord written he could give it to them in this way (next page) He had the feeling in his heart to avoid giving the will of God with a "Thus saith the Lord." In this latter case, the curse of God would the more directly and speedily come upon those who would not obey. Where God gives his law, and it is not observed, the penalty must be paid...When we are fully organized in the Order of Enoch and partake of its spirit we will bring everything we have on earth (next page) and deed it over to our Father who is in Heaven. Be one, that you may indeed be Saints of God. (33 minutes)

2 p.m.

Prest Young called for the reading of the Preamble and Resolutions of the United Order of the City of St George-After which Prest Young spoke (next page) of the organization of the Order. He spoke of our Constitutional right to organization or the Order. He spoke of our Constitutional right to organize ourselves for business and to patronize in our business relations whom we please. Have we the right to live and work like the Shaking Quakers? Yes. (sic) Are they obstructed (sic) in their course? No. Why then should a combination of Mormons be denied the same rights of combining their labors and their capital. He referred to the hatred manifested by the world to those who are striving to live according to the Revelations of God. It is the duty of the officers of this order to work in faithfulness (next page) just where he is directed to work by those over him.

Educate yourselves and your children, learn not only the common branches but all pertaining to the arts and sciences-observe the laws of health and life. All of those who feel to endorse the principles couched in the Preamble, Resolutions and Rules read here this afternoon manifest it by the uplifted hand. A general showing of hands was made. Take their names off the book--Disfellowship them? No. Let them serve the Lord as far as they may have capacity. They will, if they repent, dwindle in unbelief until they entirely lose the spirit of the Gospel and go out of the Church.

Elder Geo. Q. Cannon
...He briefly reviewed the efforts of Congress during the past 9 years to enact measures designed to oppose the liberty of the Saints in Utah. He concluded by stating that we need not be surprised at opposition; it must needs come. It was prophesied many years ago that the unlawful measures of townships and counties instituted against the Church of Latter Day. Saints, would be enacted by the General Government of the (s,c) nation.

Erastus Snow the next day at the 10 am meeting explains why the St. George United Order was not set up under legal documents: "lt has been better for the people to try the experiment of combination where they have been under the influence of moral suasion alone; than to have the strict letter of the law to govern them. The policy of government adopted and followed by Prest B Yo[ung] has been of that gentle easy kind which exhibits the father--...Prest Young (next page) had stated "we want the time and talent of all who enter this Holy Order--we do not ask for their property--still where the heart is there will the treasure be also. Genl Board of U.O. Meet Monday Sept 14th/74...2 p.m. meeting...

Elder Geo. Q. Cannon one prominent thing in the minds of some--is the giving out of stewardships--that is that a piece of land should be set off to them individually or that other individual control shall be conferred upon them as individuals-Doubtless this will take place to some extent--but we must guard against the feeling of dividing our labors and interests. The united testimony of those who (next page) have reported to day is to the effect that combination of labor is decidedly more profitable than individual exertion has been--We must cultivate among the people a higher sense of honor--of conscientiousness in the performance of duty--such as we find among our public men our bishops, and missionaries, and others who labor in carrying on the work of God without doing so for any fee or salary...

Prest. E. Snow--We should guard against the disposition manifest by some to set stakes to fence in the Lord and His Servants--Some have referred to Stewardships--What is said in the Doc & Covts is but little-given to a small branch of the Church--from Colesville and in Jackson Co but it forms but a part of the line upon line and precept upon precept. Prest E. Snow I will confess, as I have to the Presidency, I was the past winter slow, doubtful, hesitating in receiving the establishment of the United Order. This was not caused by the principle itself but as to whether the people could and would receive it and carry it out Notice was given that an election would be held in the basement @ 2 pm Sept 27 to elect 15 Directors for the United Order of St George "Christmas Assembly" in St George.

(p.2)...Prest. George A. Smith, on rising, said that Prest. Young sent his greeting and blessing to the people, add desired a continuation of the prayers and faith of the Saints, that his health might continue to improve. Bro. Smith said the passages which had been read from the Doctrine and Covenants had been selected as those best suited to the occasion of our coming together to talk of the building of Temples and of some of the all important work for the Saints to attend to therein. Those passages, he went on to say, give expression to ideas and words which cannot be equalled, unless by the same inspiration and spirit from on high. He made pertinent remarks on the Divine admonitions, rebukes, instructions and promises contained in the readings of the morning. He spoke of the Solemn Assembly which convened in Kirtland nearly forty years ago, and of (page 3) the great blessings poured out by the Lord on that occasion. He felt glad to see present here today perhaps forty witnesses of what then took place. He alluded to Solemn Assemblies (these last two words were blotted out in the original and the word) meetings with (substituted) the Twelve, had administered to Brigham Young what is known as the Second Anointing, and instructed him to administer in like manner to his brethren of the Twelve; which he did to the nine of the Twelve that at home. The Twelve were then instructed to administer in the Ordinances of the Gospel for the dead, beginning with baptism and the laying on of hands. This work was at once commenced. lt soon became apparent that some had long records of their dead, for whom they wished to administer. This was seen to be but the beginning of an immense work, and that to administer all the ordinances of the Gospel to the hosts of the dead was no light task. Some of (these last two words were added in pencil) The (p.4) Twelve asked Joseph if there could not be some shorter method of administering for so many. Joseph in effect replied: "The laws of the Lord are immutable; we must act in perfect compliance with what is revealed to us. We need not expect to do this vast work for the dead in a short time, I expect it will take at least a thousand years." President George A. (the last two words were added in pencil) in the foregoing recital incidentally remarked that Elder Sidney Rigdon had never received the Second Anointing nor the Keys pertaining to Baptism for the Dead.

The speaker warmly and most earnestly exhorted the people to energetically prosecute the work on the St George Temple so that Prest Young and the Twelve may have the opportunity of going therein to communicate the Keys of Knowledge and power which the Prophet Joseph had conferred upon them, and which can only be conferred on others in a Temple.

In compliance with invitation of Prest McAllister Elder Milo Andrus make statement of some remarks he had made some time ago in public Meeting in the St George Tabernacle Remarks as to what Milo Andrus did say were made by Elder Addison Everett, Bp. D.H. Cannon Prest Snow expressed his regret that Elder Andrus had made the remarks referred to ie that a mistake was committed in organizing a First Presy of the Church after the death of the Prophet Joseph--(p.5) such remarks tend to schism and not to unity-- . for one have never felt that I dare say as much as Milo Andrus has said here today." Mortal man though clothed with the Priesthood may as an individual err--but in concerted measures agreed upon by a quorum, the Lord had too much regard for His people to allow the Church to be led astray and intr[oduce] error-- Priesthood Meeting 6:30 pm--13 Dec 1879...

Prest Snow...The question may arise, in the absence of the Presidency of the Stake who shall preside in religious meetings? It does not necessarily follow that it must be a Bishop for as a Bishop only he has not the right to preside but by virtue of the High Priesthood, So far as St George is concerned, the Presidency of the Stake should appoint who shall (next page) preside in religious assemblies in the absence of the members of the Presidency. Declared that the Bp of each Ward should not fail to visit the members of his own ward in addition to the visits of those Priests, Teachers and Deacons who officiate in their respective wards...

Elder Charles Smith put following question--Is there any legal constituted authority to preside in a Stake in the absence of the presidency of the Stake-- Gave his view that the next authority is the High Council.

Can a Bishop preside over any part of the Melchizedek Priesthood, or what spiritual authority has he? "I hold that he has none simply as a Bishop" he said. Can a Bishop be tried before the High Council of a Stake of Zion-See Bk of Covenants Sec 68. (next page) Verse 22-New Edition

Prest McAllister said that in the absence of the Presidency of a Stake the High Council should appoint one of their own member (sic) to preside in sitting on a case.

A Bishop may preside over a part of the Melchizedek Priesthood by virtue of his High Priesthood--

A Bishop in his capacity as a Member may be tried before the High Council of the Stake in which he resided--

Prest Snow in speaking upon a Bishop only being tried before the First Presy of the Church--Said Bishops were supposed to be capable enough to act as Judges in Israel--that in order to understand the items of law in the Doc & Covts we should by study of the History of Joseph Smith understand the circumstances which called forth those revns [revelations] Referred to [in] the Epistle of Paul to Timothy and to Titus--receive not an accusation (next page) against an Elder unless it be by the mouth of two witnesses, The common Judge in Israel should show that decent respect to the Higher Priesthood not to accept an accusation by the mouth of one witness only.(sic) Now on the question Can a Bp be tried before the Presty of a Stake and the High Council of a Stake? He wished it distinctly understood that at the time of the Revelation quoted being given (Nov 1831), there was no stake organ in all the Church. The words are the Presidency of the Church." The expression First Presidency of the Church was not at that early day used and was not used till 1835--The Council of the Apostles have entertained the view that the Presty of a Stake and its High Council form competent authority to try a Bishop belonging to their Stake. (next page) In the case of the Pres Bp of the Church falling into transgression--he being a general and not a local authority would be tried before the First Presy of the Ch.

14 December 1879 Sunday 2 p.m. meeting...

Prest Snow I have requested Bro McA to read to you the Rules that have been read in your hear[in]g so often--The (?) has been askd me on the stand is What shall be done with those who have not yet been bapt[ize]d unto the U.O." and shall they be considered in good stan[din]g? My answer has been I would rather see a list of those who have been so baptd & who have not That I may be able to determine which live the Articles best-for I do not wish to add cot to Covt and have then broken-for the Lord hateth the Covt breaker--Blessed is he we (sic) sweareth to his hurt (next page) The honoring of our Covts in the Sp[iri]t world gave us our present privileges and the violation of the Covts then binding all made the Sons of Perdition. To honor our Covts and live the Celestial Law will bring honor glory and exaltation to the obedient. The motto on our nations escutcheon E Pluribus Unum--Many united in One--and another motto of the Fathers Und we Stand Div we fall--express the recognition of this principle of oneness--Of all people on the earth the LDS should be united--We as a people have not been yet scourged enough to bring us to the one-ness required by the Revs of God--For 30 years we have been developing the advantages of this mountain region--after having been driven by the ruthless hand of persecu[tio]n from their homes in the States. This in former years was done in Utah amid much hardship . The young portion (next page) of the community have not been subject to the severe discipline endured by their fathers & mothers. (sic) because of this lack of hardship the young people, and too many of the elder ones, covet and strive to obtain the so-called luxuries of Babylon.

We have some mothers in our community who say to their daughters and to their neighbors I would rather have my daughtr go to the mining camps and run their risks among adventurous .sic) wicked men--rather than have their daughters enter the marriage covt with an Elder in Israel in the polygamous relation. There are too many who, to-day, are standing on the brink of destruction because of this influence of their mothers--aided sometimes by the apathy and ignorance of their fathers This is not as applicable here as it is in some parts of the Terry--but the people here are not altogether exempt from this sin--There are some whose perception of right and wrong-virtue & vice is so dull that they do not know a Saint from a Devil.

Anecdote a proprietor of a Stage line wanted a driver-a great many applicants applied for the situation. Question how near can you drive to a precipice and not drive over it-first said I do not know but I can drive very near, the second said within the width of my wagon tie the third said I do not know I never tried for I always like to keep away as far as possible form the precipice--the last was employed-The wise keep away from and do not temporize

(sic) with temptation...

If the people comprehended the principles of the U.O. they would not waste their time and labor in the disgraceful manner (next page) they do--The L.D.S. have not as much union among them as have the outsiders who come in our midst.

We have tried at the U.O. we have tried Cooperation-Some think Coopn is the U.O. and some think not-- It depends upon the principles which actuate those who combine--as to whether it is U.O. or not--combining to dethrone Jehovah would not be the Holy U.O. but the combining to carry out the purposes of Heaven might be called the Holy Und Ordr-Our combinations of Cattle Horses and Sheep have been prodve of good--some failures have occurred but these have been because of the lack of competence of individuals and not because of the principle of union conveyed in the idea of cooperation--The greatest obstacle in the way of the establishment of Coopn is the ignorance (next page) of the people, who will not exercise their brains by helping to carry the burden of their own business. Referred forcibly to the habit of too many indulging in apathy of mind and not exercising their God given powers to decide what is right and good and follow thereafter Spoke of abuses in the government of Z.C.M.I. and other cooperation inst[itutio]ns in the land.

Shall we abandon Coopn or the Und Ord because of the inability or because of the shrewdness of a few--

Shall we live in the observance of the Rules of the United Order. I would rather see you do it, than simply say you will. They contain nothing more than we as L.D.S. have already covenanted to do.

We are indebted to Coopn as established by Prest Young and his co-laborers for the present low rates of merchandise in St George (next page) and in all other parts of the Territory.

I do not know when I shall address you again.

I know the counsels of Prest Brigham Young as del[ivere]d from this stand are binding upon this people and their true welfare and interests consist in a faithful observance of the principles of union which he taught.

We may maintain our individual habits in dress--in manners & customs but we should be one in all that pertains to the public welfare of Zion...

Elder Jacob Hamblin spoke of his administrations in this region some 25 years ago Had by appointments lived a Frontier life for 30 years. Had been engaged in founding the settlements of Tooele, Harmony, Santa Clara Pine Valley, Pinto, Mountain Meadows, and other settlements, Now has part of his family located on the Headwaters of the Little Colorado near the New Mexico line. He is now called to go into Mexico. Testified that the spirit of investigation is increasing among the Lamanites. Referred to the settling of Arizona by the L.D.S. on a table land--100 miles North & South--and 300 miles East & west--Referred to a saying of the Prophet Joseph in a discourse delivered in Nauvoo in 1843--(next page) referring to some of the teachings of the Prophet Daniel said when the Church should be forty five years old the angels of mercy would visit the House of Israel.

Bos. Jacob testified that in 1875 he was accosted by Five Lamanites chiefs one of whom declared he had received the administrations of a Heavenly messengers--Since that time a number of others had received similar ministrations

St George Stake Conference 13th March 1880 10 am...

Prest Snow...l will lay down as a general principle the fact that Lucifer is the prince of devils and that he has millions of spirits of his wicked cast and these prey upon the children of men--The time for the full execution of the penalty upon them of the Second death has not yet come and as they have the privilege of coming upon this earth they do so and afflict men We are all exposed to the influence of these evil ones, some in one way and some in another--till our bodies are worn out--These may derange our stomachs and bowels inflame the brain, until we yield, and our bodies go down to the grave as Bro Wm Pulsipher has done. All the sickness and affliction (next page) that comes upon mortality is the effect of evil spirits--The raving maniac is possessed or influenced by evil spirits--But so is the sick or diseased person but in a different manner--Evil spirits also inspire wicked acts from those mortals who though not sick in body, submit themselves to serve the evil one.

Now for the remedy. We must fortify our minds by faithfulness to the law of God and use the power of the Priesthood in the name of Jesus to drive those evil spirits out and even then some, as Jesus said goeth not out but by prayer and fasting.

Is there no way of forestalling these influences? There is no way by which we can escape death, for death has passed upon all men, but it is within the power of the L.D.S. to withstand the evils of these wicked spirit (sic) by watching unto prayer--walk in the line of duty before God and place an extra guard over the weak part of our nature--(next page) All disease is the result of evil spirits We must use all known remedies to fortify our bodies and our spirits against the incursions of these evil ones--

Bro Brigham at winter quarters had a visit from the Prophet Joseph who had been slain This he told to Bro Woodruff. Bro W asked what Joseph had said to him--Bro B--replied He told me to "get the Spirit of God." He (Bro. Prest McAllister Presiding (Priesthood Meeting)...

Prest Eyring [reported on]...Wednesday...Meetg of Prests of Stakes [following the General Conference in Salt Lake] [Prest Eyring said] Prest Jos. F. Smith said no person should be recommended to a Temple unless they are first baptized for the renewal of their covenants (next page) Persons who have just become members of the Church should not expect and should not be too seen admitted to Temple Ordinances they should at least spend a summer and a winter among us--then if approved as worthy they may be recommended--Young men recommended to Temples should be ordained Elders in their wards before going to the Temples and the names of those considered worthy to become Elders should be presented before and sanctioned by the Stake Priesthood Meeting---

9 November 1881 St George Stake Priesthood Meeting... Prest Woodruff said the nearer we get to the Lord--the better off we are--As a people we ought to draw near to the Lord--l read in the Revelations of God that the man who receives these Priesthoods (Aaronic & Melchizedek) (next page) and will honor them and abide by the law appertaining thereto that Jesus said "all that my father hath shall be given to him" --This law comprehends among other things the law of plural marriage-- which I regard as one of the highest Keys given to man--The first time I ever heard the Prophet Joseph Smith was 47 years ago last April--He then bore testimony that the priesthood had been placed on the earth to be no more taken from it for ever.

Apostle E[rastus] Snow. I heard the fullness of the gospel before I was 14 years old from the mouth of Bro Orson Pratt in my fathers house--and I felt the Holy Spirit accompanying his words [Orson Pratt had recently died]--and I felt that the work whereof he spoke was from Heaven. From that time forth I sought to avail myself of the gospel privileges taught--I was sometime before I got the consent of my parents to (next page) be baptized for the remission of my sins--and had to go 25 miles in State of Vermont in a Snow storm to get baptized --at the time of my starting I had the Scarlet fever--on arriving at my destination I got my Bro Wm_ to administer to me & went to bed and when I arose the next morning my scarlet fever had left me--& I asked my brother Wm to baptize me-which he did, having to cut a hole in the ice which was 3 feet thick 15 mins.

5 November 1881...Prest McAllister related some instructions received while in Salt Lake for attendance at General Conference

...All certificates for admission to the Temples for marriage single or plural must after being signed by the Bps be signed by the Prest of the Stake, and then be signed by Prest Taylor.

St George Tabernacle Sunday 20th Novr_ 1881
...2 pm [Meeting]

Prest Erastus Snow arose and read Par 12,13,14, & 15--of Sec 128 Book D.& C. He said the general features of the St George Temple are in conformity to those of the Kirtland Temple which was dedicated in April 1836. That Temple may be said to have been built to show forth the order of the Priesthoods Aaronic and Melchizedek--The priesthood there rec the ordinance of the washing of feet and the anointing of the head with oil--This was confined to those holding the Priesthood --There was no baptismal Font in the Temple at Kirtland for that (next page) ordinance had not been revealed to the people --By the time the Nauvoo Temple was being built the doctrine of the Baptism for the Dead was revealed and one of the first thing attended to there was the preparation of the Font for the Baptism of the Dead--It was revealed here in St George to the Prophet Brigham that there should be variations made in the Temples to be built--This was given unto the Prophet Brigham in answer to his question "Oh Lord show unto thy servants if we shall build all Temples after the same (next page) pattern?" The answer came "Do you all build your houses after the same pattern? Do you after increasing your families build after same pattern, (sic used when your family is small?" So shall the growth of the knowledge of the principles of the Gospel, among my people, cause diversity in the pattern of Temples.

Priesthood Meetg 9 a.m. Dec 18 1881
Prest McAllister Presiding...

Prest McAllister referred to some matter which had come to his ears--"lt is said a leading man in Israel had stated the ordinances administered in the Temple were of no avail"-"If he is here, let him make it known and let it be taught in this conference that he may be corrected"--"I have heard that an Elder has asserted and taught that Jesus Christ and Adam are one and the same person-- And another that the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost are one and the same body" Prest McAllister denounced these as false doctrines and enjoined that such things cease to be taught

Prest McAllister cited cases where parties had been married by Justices in addition to that of the Church officers-But such a course is declared wrong and it has been ruled that where parties wish (next page) to be married by Justices or Judges they must not expect also to have the matter attended to in the Temple--

Prest Eyring said the foregoing was the ruling of the Pres of the Church at the last October Conference

18 March 1882 12 noon meeting

...Prest McAllister gave instruction to Bps on reported cases of disfellowshipping persons who have been tried in the Bps Courts--the cases where the person has been disfellowshipped with a view to being further dealt with by cutting them off the Church, such persons should be reported to the High Council but not other cases of disfellowship need be reported to the High Council--In all cases of persons being disfellowshipped and where it is necessary for them to be rebaptized--when so rebaptized it is as a rule proper to simply confirm them as members of the church and let them prove themselves for a while Stake Priesthood Meetg 10 a.m. 6 May 1882

...Bp Marcus Funk asked a question relative to whether in administering the Sacrament we should raise our hands or not when we bow in offering the dedicatory prayer of bread & wine or water--

Prest Eyring answered he thought it proper to keep the hands down--

President Snow...Since the October Conference the Word of the Lord has been received and given to the Presidency and Apostles the Quorum of the "12" has been filled and the Quorum of the First Presidency of Seventies--and the revelation is to the effect that we are to set quorums in order families in order and to be prepared to carry on the work of the Lord among the House of Israel.

Prest Snow said David Whitmer and Oliver Cowdery were Brothers in law--The latter after being admitted a member of the Church at Council Bluffs visited Richmond where David Whitmer lived and there Oliver took sick and died. Oliver left certain papers with David and among the rest no doubt the Manuscript copy of the Book of Mormon which had been used by the printer--Oliver had been the proof-reader of the first edition of the Book of Mormon--

Joseph would not suffer the original manuscript of the Book (next page) of Mormon to go to the printers lest the wicked should use their influence to obtain it or to alter it.

Priesthood Meetg St George Tabernacle Saturday 4th Novr 1882 6 pm meeting...

President McAllister said he wished to read a copy of the Revelation given to Prest John Taylor 13 October 1882 to the Twelve & Priesthood and people of the Church. He read the Revelation and followed in a few remarks exhorting the brethren to live good and faithful lives before the Lord, setting ourselves in order by attending to our duties in family and in secret prayer and in obeying the whole law of God--

St Geo Tabernacle 26 Novr 1882 2 pm meeting...

Elder Charles Smith made some remarks referring in the course thereof to the Revn on Celestial Marriage--said in relation thereto that the Patriarch Hyrum Smith met with the Elders in Nauvoo in the winter of 1843-4 and there told them that the doctrine of Plurality of Wives (next page) had bothered him considerably and he felt constrained to ask wherein Abraham Moses, David & others could be justified before God in practicing this to him repugnant doctrine. He asked his brother the Prophet Joseph to ask this question of the Lord--Joseph did so and the Reveln given 12th July 1843 was the answer--

Such must repent or they will not be counted worthy to be numbered with the people of God--We must set ourselves in order. Funeral Service of Sister Artimesia Beaman Snow--who departed this life at 30 min after midnight yesterday 21st Decr_ 1882--

Sister Mary Ann Godfrey Baker played a requiem on the organ as the casket was being brought in.

Singing 185 "Creation Speaks With Awful Voice" prayer by Elder Adolphus R. Whitehead--singing 186 "The Mormong [Morning?] Flowers Display Their Sweet--"

Notes on the life of Sister Artimesia Beaman Snow--were handed in by the family--and read by Elder James G. Bleak--She was daughter of Alva Beaman and Sarah Burtts--born 3d Mch 1819 at Livonia, Livingston Co. New York She was baptized at an early date and moved with her parents to Kirtland Ohio where her father died in 1837. Her mother and two sisters Mary and Louisa moved to Mo. with the Saints and she there was married to Bro Erastus Snow at Far West 13 Dec. 1838 by Heber C. Kimball--she moved with her husband to [next page] Nauvoo Ill. where her mother died 28 Sept 1840-she officiated in the Temple at Nauvoo. She was the mother of 11 children: Sarah Lucina, James, Charles Henry, Mahonri M., Artimesia, Erastus Beaman, Franklin Richards, Mary Lucina, Maroni, Orson Pratt, and George Albert-she left Nauvoo in the first company FEB 1846 and drove a team across the Plains--She early gave her consent in 1844 for her husband to take another wife and they were companions on the plains."

President McAllister made some remarks on the virtues of the deceased as a Saint, wife [next page] and mother--He read from the Book of Mormon 2d Book of Nephi Chap. 6 beginning at 5th verse--
Sister Mary Snow Gates, sister-in-law of deceased asked permission to speak--said she had no [sic--known] Artimesia from her girlhood. The speaker had associated with the deceased more or less for more than 40 years and had never known the deceased to have given expression to an angry feeling-- Sister Margaret J. Snow bore testimony to the virtues of the deceased.
President Henry Eyring made a few remarks--
Elder Charles Smith referred to the deceased as Pre-eminent in her [next page] Saintlike [sic] course and conversation. He referred to the self sacrificing nature of Sister Artimesia in early days in Nauvoo in acting as a Sarah in giving a wife and companion to her companion. The deceased was a leading spirit in bearing the persecutions, trials and tribulations of the Saints in this dispensation--
President McArther said he took pleasure in stating that he had been acquainted with the deceased from the days of Kirtland until the present and had never heard anything derogatory to her character as a Saint--Wife or Mother--; but had heard many [next page] testimonies in her praise--
Bp. David H. Cannon bore testimony to the good things which had been spoken of the deceased. He had heard Brother Snow's other wives say that the deceased had been to them and to their children a mother in word and in deed-this was evinced [sic] in what was before us to-day here are children who on hearing of the expected departure of Sister Artimesia hastened from the Northern part of the Territory to see her before her demise--
Sister Minerva W. Snow bore testimony to the truth of what has been averred in this meeting--[next page] "Sister Artimesia has been to me a Mother, a Sister and a Companion--for 40 years. She has been a wise counsellor to me and to my children--I do not now bear this testimony because she has departed--I have born it for 40 years--Her example and precepts have been noble and self-sacrificing. I do not know how they could have been more so." I feel exhorted, and believe every member of our family feel to emulate the life and virtues of my departed sister and companion." Sing 184 "Sister, Thou Wast Wild and Lovely" Benediction by Elder James G. Bleak--

Prest. Erastus Snow with us having arrived Wednesday 17th.
Prest. Snow expressed his sympathy for the people of St. George and vicinity and the affliction and many deaths which had occurred since he last met with us--affliction through grievances while being endured yields the sanctifying power of God unto us--[next page] He referred to the death of his wife Artimesia which has occurred since he was last with us--felt to recognize the hand of the Lord in this as in all his other providences-- .

President Snow being present asked Brother Bleak to read the Circular to the Seventies, signed by Wilford Woodruff in behalf of the Twelve Apostles and by Henry Harriman in behalf of the Seven Presidents of the Seventies--Also the Revelation given through Prest John Taylor 14th. of April 1883--. . .

Sunday 17 June 1883 10 a.m. . . .

Apostle Snow said when a vacancy occurs in any of the offices of the wards and Bishops make selection of such as hold office in the Elder's Quorums that such selection be submitted for the approval of the presy of the Stake --and if selection be made of Seventies that the approval also of the Presidency of Seventies be obtained previous to submitting such names to the people for their sanction--[next page]

2 p.m. . . .

Prest. McAllister . . . Read from the "Deseret News" the Discourse of Prest. John Taylor delivered at Manti on the 19th of May 1883--Also, he read a synopsis of Some of the proceedings of the Davis Stake Conference on 9th & lOth June--relating to Celestial Marriage.

Apostle Erastus Snow said I have also a testimony to bear which I do not [next page] wish to go in at one ear & out of the other; before I proceed with my testimony I wish to read a few things relating to Celestial Marriage--God has appointed and revealed [this] law unto this people and they are required to obey it or they shall be damned:--God revealed to the disciples of Christ 1800 years ago that the time of the restitution of all things since the world began should be in the last days at the time of the coming of the Son of Man. And he has also pointed that those who receive this law should receive their Crowns as Kings and as Priests unto the Most High God--to reign on the earth with the King of Kings & Lord of Lords-[next page] Now we say unto you L.D.S. you young Bros & Sisters that the new & everlast[in]g Cov[enan]t of Marriage for time and all eternity is for the perpetuation of the lives for ever and ever--those who are not found obedient to this law can never become Kings & pr[iests] unto God & the lamb to reign for ever & ever--but will be angels to administer [to] those who are worthy to enter into the higher and holier condition--

I had thought to read to you the Revelation of the Eternity of the Marriage Cov[enan]t it is long and you have it in your [next page] houses--and I exhort you to read it and read it to your children faithfully & prayerfully This law has not been in force at all former periods of the history of man--but now that God has revealed it, it is our imperative duty to obey it--All parents know in their own administration of family government that at times they will prohibit and at other times enjoin the practice of the very things previously forbidden--Now in the final, or last days, in the time of the restitution of all things--it is but reasonable [next page] to expect the word & will of God restoring the items of His law--The new & Everl[asting] Cov[enan]t of M[arriage]-is that by which Woman is Sealed to Man Children to Parents & Family to Family and by which the chain of the generations of Man from Adam down to the latest generation are united and bound together as the One family of Man, including all but those who have sinned against the Holy Ghost or have shed innocent blood--

This eternity of the M. Cov[enan]t is the Keystone of the arch of our salvation and wo unto that man [next page] or that woman who rejects this Covenant where they reject the only means of their own full & complete salvation--

He then read from the Book of Mormon the words of Jacob relating to the Nephites having but one wife--

He referred to the doings of David & Solomon--showing that David received from God the wives of Apostate Saul to be his wife and through the mouth of the Prophet Nathan was told that if he had asked for more the Lord would have imparted--but he had wilfully & wickedly sinned with Uriahs wife & caused Uriah to be put in a position to lose his life-Solomon had [next page] sinned in contracting alliances with the Gentile nations and thus pol[l]uting his posterity so that it could not receive the priesthood--

Jacob intimated very plainly that the Lord reserved unto himself the right to command His people when he wished to raise up a righteous seed unto himself.

When a man obeys this law in the spirit thereof he shall be blessed. But when a man out of the lusts of his own heart takes unto himself the daughters of Eves [sic] in unrighteousness--he shall lose that which he seemeth [next page] to have and will go down to the perdition of ungodly men--God will see that no virtuous woman will be dragged down to perdition by the wickedness of an ungodly man--

Now in relation to the man who feels to evade this law because of its responsibility--in providing and taking care of a large family--the one wife he flatters himself he has will be taken from him and given to the more worthy--

In relation to the faithful man who has received this law in his heart but whose circumstances have prevented his moving for--[next page] in obedience to this holy law His way is opened to go on after he is dead--

Brother Snow read Paragraph 26 of the Revelation on the Eternity of the Marriage Covenant also Paragraphs 27 to 44 inclusive.

I want to leave my testimony that what Young Joseph Smith and his brothers are declaring about the doctrine of Plural Marriage not being revealed and taught by the Prophet Joseph--is the blackness of darkness--being utterly untrue and from the Evil One-- [next page]

I doubt not that those children thro' the teachings of their mother may have believed their father did not teach & practice this order.

I remember Thomas Grover--Vincent Knight & Joseph B. Noble in 1835 in Kirtland--

I married Artimesia Beaman--Joseph B. Noble married an older sister-Mary Beaman and Joseph Smith the Prophet had sealed to him as a plural wife Louisa Beaman all of these being daughters of Alvah Beman [sic]--Joseph B. Noble officiating in the ceremony in Nauvoo--He bore testimony of the purity of life of Louisa Beaman--130 received the keys of the endowments and were taught this doctrine [next page] by the Prophet Joseph himself in Nauvoo before his martyrdom--
In April 1843 I went to Nauvoo I learned definitely what I had but heard rumored At that time the Prophet Joseph personally taught me the doctrine on the banks of the Mississippi--and showed me several of those who had been sealed to him--The Prophet had said to him "that the law of the Lord concerning these things was exceedingly strict--and many of the Elders would do things because they saw him do them but many by this means would fall--[next page] He had seen the fulfillment of this in too many instances. The Prophet Joseph had said to him also "I had not been obedient enough to this holy law and the Lord was angry with me--and an Angel met me with a drawn sword but I plead with the Lord to forgive me and he did so & I made the sacrifice required at my hand and by the help of the Lord I will obey his Holy Law"--"I know that I went to the Prophet Joseph Smith and he approved my receiving in this Holy Covenant my wife Minerva, my second wife who is with me here to day--and that he sent his Brother Hyrum to perform the ceremony by which we became [next page] husband & wife" . . .

Minutes of 16 September 1883 St. George Stake Conference Meeting
President McAllister spoke of the sacredness of the sign we have made in voting for the authorities--everything we have to do with as saints should be regarded as most sacred before God--. . .

Tabernacle St. George Sunday Dec. 2, 1883 2 p.m. meeting with President McAllister visiting Henry Eyring presiding . . .

Elder Steven Martindale Farnsworth from . . . Arizona said that his mind was chiefly occupied with the signs of the times. Referred to his acquaintance with the Prophet Joseph and alluded to his testing the Twelve with considerable scrutiny. Said the time for the redemption of Zion was approaching but prior to that event the people would have to be tested. He said the Lord had shown him the condition of the people and their spirit after the redemption of Zion and said he could not describe with language the calm God-like spirit among them. Alluded to his vision which showed him the moving of the people to the mountains and also the trying scenes, through which the people would have to pass. An angel had conversed with him in broad daylight on this subject and told him that the people must be tested in order to separate from us those who are unworthy. Felt to rejoice to see the opposition near made manifested by [next page] the world for it was a sign that the darkness which is to surround this people was coming. A darkness like that of Egypt is to come over the people and it will appear as though there would be no chance for escape. Alluded to the united order and our failures and consequence of a lack of just appreciation of its peer principles. Said the Lord had commanded through his servant John Taylor to be and for the Presidency of the church to be one and that the Twelve to be one with the Presidency and all the priesthood be one with the Twelve. Said the time would come when only those who trust in God will be able to stand. H. Eyring related a dream he had about 18 years ago showing that a test will come unto this people . . .

Conference St. George Tabernacle Saturday 15 Dec. 1883 10 a.m. President McAllister presiding present of the Apostles President Woodruff, Erastus Snow, Francis M. Lyman and George Teasdale--President Henry Heriman of the presidency of the Seventy was there also . . .

Apostle F.M. Lyman--referred to the Revelation given to Prest. John Taylor on 13th October 1882--in which the First Presidency of the Church, the Twelve Apostles the Presidencies of stakes and all the people were required to set themselves in order and to be one--A year after, the first presy twelve &c met and held a Solemn Council and found the obedience to this revealed will of God had not be [sic] sufficiently manifest--and it is now being necessary that response to the spirit of this revelation [next page] shall be more complete. It is enjoined upon the Presidency of the Church, the Twelve first seven presidents of seventies, all general and all local authorities to be able to preach the whole law of God--. . .

Tabernacle Sunday morning 16th December 1883 10 o'clock meeting . . .

Prest. Woodruff . . . perhaps the Doctrine of Plural Marriage has caused more suffering than any revelation ever given by God to man--and this because it is the way to greater and higher blessings than any one law that has ever been revealed--. . .

St. George Tabernacle Saturday 26th April 1884 10 a.m. meeting present as visitors Presidents John Taylor George Q. Cannon Apostles Erastus Snow and Moses Thatcher. Presiding Bishop William B. Preston and his counselor Robert Burton Elder L John Nuttal, John Ervan, William Jennings, Elias Morris, also President Angus M. Cannon of the Salt Lake Stake. . .

Prest. Cannon in compliance with the re- [next page] quest of Prest. Taylor--read the revelation on tithing--

Prest. Taylor dwelt upon the Revelation briefly.-stating that the people this day are among the best tithing payers in the Church--this he spoke in praise of the people--but said they ought to be, they are nearest the temple and have opportunities to learn what pertains to a temple which have not been within the reach of many others--it is for us to obey the law of God, be upright, and faithful--. . .

Priesthood meeting 7 p.m. 26 April 1884 . . .

Prest. George Q. Cannon it is 54 years since the Church was organized--during this time we have had a flood of light from heaven--by the inspiration of the Spirit--and by the revelations thro' the prophets--Joseph, Brigham & John is it too much to ask at this date that men shall not be drunkards adulterers, thieves, or other evil doers. The time has come when these evils must no longer be tolerated.

Spoke of the doctrine of plurality of wives--and said men who had not obeyed this doctrine should not preside or hold prominent positions [next page] Those who had neglected their opportunities to enter this holy order will never enter upon their exaltation. Do not deceive yourselves for those who pass on heedless of their duty in this respect will awake in the morning of the resurrection will wake without wife or child--

[Now for an example of an unfortunate synopsis of a discourse]
Apostle Moses Thatcher said President Cannon has touched upon a subject which has been to me of much interest for years--this is unlawful intercourse-[this is all there is to the synopsis of Moses Thatcher's talk . . .]

Prest. Taylor--. . . Bishops sometimes think they have the right to condone the sins of men--now we have no right to condone the sins of men The law of God must be complied with--God holds his priesthood responsible to see that his laws are not ignored [next page] if Bishops or other officers condone the sins of men they do it on their own responsibilities--" We are desirous of entering into the blessings of the kingdom; if we do so--we must obey the law of the Lord--. . .
Sunday 22 April 1884 10 a.m. . . .

President George Q. Cannon read (28 after 10) from the writings of Moses in Pearl of G. P. commencing at the account of the Creation--beginning at the Sixth day's labor--to "and man saw that it was good for food--"
We should be very grateful for the revelations which God in His infinite goodness has vouchsafed [sic] to us in this generation--Dwelt upon the spirit of infidelity prevalent in the world. It is of the greatest importance that we parents and children should definitely understand and realize that God is of a verity our father, the father of all the generations of men--Our children are in fact our brothers and sisters having the same Father in the spirit, as ourselves--We shall be held accountable for the rearing of them in the ways of the Lord--
There is another fact which we as a people should realize. There are a great multitude of spirits in the spirit world from the same father waiting to come and take earthly tabernacles--This [next page] thought should cause the greatest sexual purity to exist in the relations of man and wife--
How is man created spiritually? Refer to the revelation of the Savior to the Brother of Jared Said the spirit is in the likeness of our natural bodies.
I suppose there is scarcely a Christian sect that entertains the idea that the procreative power continues after death; it is by this principle of procreation that we were begotten in the spirit world. We had a father we had a mother in the spirit world--
Read further from the P. of G. Price the words of Abraham relating to the eternity of the creations of God--read from the 132 sec of Doc. & Cov. Sec's 1, 2, 3, Read from the Bk of M. the words of Jacob on the practices of David & Solomon. He enjoined upon men the necessity of obedience to this law of God relating to the New and Everlasting Covenant of marriage [next page] he enjoined upon women the necessity of obedience to the same law. He exhorted mothers to teach their daughters the doctrine of Plural Marriage--
He concluded by bearing testimony to the truth of the Doctrine of the Eternity of the Marriage Covenant including the Plurality of Wives--9 to 12 = 81 minutes--. . .

At the 2 p.m. meeting . . .

Apostle Snow turning to the Lamanites said we have heard their words and their works and have entered into our hearts we have prayed for them for many days and years that our past--and for all the Lamanites--and we shall continue to do so--exhorted them to study the Spanish works of the Bible, Book of Mormon, Voice of Warning and to teach their children [next page] and people the precious principles therein contained. He said by taking this course their children would begin to be a white and delightsome people--and the time would come when they would enter into our cities to become residents therein and would help to build up cities and towns to the Most High God--. . . [next page] he then turned to the brethren and sisters in the body of the tabernacle and dwelt upon the marvelous work & wonder in which we are engaged-He dwelt further on the teaching of the Book of Mormon setting forth the landing of Mulek--and the finding of Corintumr--thus causing the fulfillment of the prophecy of Ether that Corintumr should only be spared to see that the Lord would bring another people to occupy the land--It is a source of joy to see this dawning of a brighter day and the fulfillment of the promises of the Lord to the remnants of His people--but it is grievous to find the Gentiles who have been so highly favored in this land, dwindling in [next page] unbelief

St. George Stake Conference Saturday 14th June 1884 10 a.m. session . . .

Apostle Erastus Snow spoke on the subject of the class of reading matter used by the Latter-day Saints--Suggested the propriety of reading the word of God at family prayer time also singing hymns. This practice will be productive of good results in the family and in the community . . .

2 p.m. session . . .

Apostle John W. Taylor--being introduced by President Eyring--Drew a parallel between the effects which attended the preaching of the gospel 18 centuries ago and in this generation What have you done that the peaceful relations with the government are disturbed--Why are your names cast out as evil? Why are elders who go out on missions persecuted--I have walked through your [next page] street. I have heard no profanity--I have not seen a person intoxicated--is there a house of ill fame? (answer of No, sir.) Have you a saloon or dram Shop or groggery? No. Now all these good characteristics go to prove you to be morally good citizens--Now it must be your religion that is so offensive to the world who combine to speak ill of you--He quoted from the epistle to the Galatians, "though we or an angel from heaven preach any other gospel than that which ye have received let him be a cursed--" It becomes us then to inquire what gospel was taught by Christ and his apostles--he referred to the 4th Chap of Ephe [next page] sians so far as the officers of the Church of Christ is concerned Latter-Day Saints have you then Officers in your Church"? Yes--I know you have--Then refer to Faith in Jesus--repentance--baptism by emersion and the reception of the Holy Ghost. Examine the fruits of the spirit as enjoyed anciently and asked do these fruits exist in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints--I have heard that the great cause, the cry of the world against you is that some of you have more than one wife--let us examine this principle-"To the law & to the testimony, if they speak not according to this word it is because there is no light in [next page] them--(refer to the 12 Genesis-Abraham then was a son of the 2d wife of Terah--then followed the course of Abraham and the promises made to him--. .

10 a.m. session of Stake Conference Sunday 15th June 1884 . . .

Gospel Mysteries

Elder Samuel W. Richards of Salt Lake City--spoke of his pleasure at meeting for the first time in St. George with so very many old acquaintances-he felt very grateful for the blessings of the Lord 40 years ago the past winter I was one of the 25 Young men appointed by the Prophet Joseph Smith in Nauvoo to go to California to seek a resting gathering place [next page] for the Latter Day Saints-.the following summer the Prophet Joseph Smith and his brother Hyrum were martyred for the testimony of Jesus which they bore--. . .

St. George Tabernacle 2 p.m. 29th June 1884 . . .

Elder Moses F. Farnsworth said the same opposition--the same spirit of persecution which followed the early saints follow us today--He read that part of the 5th Chap. of Ether which the Patriarch Hyrum Smith read just before going to his martyrdom--and after referring to the liberty destroying provisions contained in the recently passed Edmunds--Hoar Bill--he spoke of the promised guidance and [next page] protection promised by God in the October 1882 Revelation given to President John Taylor--. . .

Stake Priesthood meeting. 10 a.m. 2nd Augt 1884. President McAllister presiding. . . .

Bro. McAllister hoped the bishops and those who represent wards would have no books in which to enter the items of instruction given at Priesthood meetings & conferences--He said when elders are called upon to administer to the Sick--let one be [next page] mouth and while those who join with him in the laying on of hands should follow his words in their hearts they should be entirely silent, not whisper the words spoken by the one who is mouth--. . .

Sunday meeting St. George Tabernacle September 14th 1884 10 a.m.
President Henry Eyring . . . discoursed on the word of wisdom gave as an illustration that as a church we have advanced the present instruction that those who commit adultery and have received their endowments shall be cut off the church--whereas a few years ago such could be forgiven by confessing & asking forgiveness and renewing their covenants by baptism--Again--some years ago the Word of Wisdom was given not by commandment nor by constraint and now it is given by way of commandment as much so as Baptism--partaking of [next page] the sacrament &c The speaker gave it as his opinion that the time is fast approaching when those desiring to receive blessings in the Temples of God will be required to be observers of the Word of Wisdom. . . . Further the observance of the laws revealed by Heavenly Beings prepare us in body and spirit to dwell with those Heavenly Beings . . .

St. George Stake Conference session of priesthood meeting 13 December 1884 5:30 p.m. . . .

Bp. Chas. N. Smith asked at what age it would be advisable to recommend young people to the temple--or if any young people may be recommended?
Prest. McAllister answered the question by saying President Taylor had not definitely ruled, but had said that, young people should be about 20--but in cases of marriage--when they get ready for this ordinance they may be recommended if worthy.
Apostle Snow--said in addition that parents and bishops must exercise [words are lost from the bottom of this page because of tearing away] [next page] in giving endowments [word or words mission because of tear away of page] at per cases at an earlier age [than] 20--it is better not to crow(d) children or young people in too early a bearing of the grave responsibilities of the ordinances of the House of the Lord-- Apostle Lyman in referring to recommending of the young to the temple-said we ought not to hurry the years of either sex into the covenants and obligations of the House of God--He would not urge his own children to enter into these [next page] these covenants before obtaining 21 years--except in cases of marriage--

St. George Tabernacle 2 p.m. meeting 25 January 1885 . . .

Apostle Woodruff--when I realized that the Latter-Day Saints a handful of people in the midst of the present generation of one thousand four hundred millions of people, are the only ones to whom the word of God is sweet and precious--are the only ones who receive the word of God as revealed from Heaven I am struck with astonishment--We belong to a church which will never be again taken from the earth--nor be given to another people--God has raised up a Kingdom of Priests--a thing never done to the same extent from the same number of people so far as we have any record--Faith is the first principle of the gospel; and instanced the power and blessing of faith as set forth in the 11th Chap. of Hebrews. The law of plural marriage is the highest law ever given to men. What does the world, who oppose us, care about how many wives we have got--I say to you the day is near when Officers Judges, Lawyers and Priests will have something else to do than to be hunting the Elders of Israel for obeying the Law [next page] of God--men labor for the destruction of this people but I would much rather be the man sent to prison for obeying the law of God than to be the one who thus persecutes the righteous--You saints have but one life to live and I say unto you be faithful to God to your wives and children and to yourselves-I have never read of any generation in which God empowered his people to build a half a dozen temples--until the present [next page] it is an important day Judgment is abroad in the land--spoke of the parable of the Sower as set forth in the Doctrine & Covenants given some 50 years ago--I want to say to you Elders and Sisters go into your secret places and ask his blessings and protection upon His Priesthood and Kingdom--I want our brethren to go before the Lord and make your wants known to him--42 min . . .

Priesthood Meeting St. George Tabernacle basement Saturday 7th February 1885 . . .

Prest. McAllister said at the present threatening time we should be careful and prudent according to the Counsel given--It is being prudent that our plural wives move from their usual places of residence--particularly in cases where they alone live in a house and are the ones to answer any knock that may be made at the door--We are to walk by faith and that for ourselves. These are not the days to walk by sight [next page] Prest. McAllister read from the "Deseret News" proceedings and remarks by Prest. Erastus Snow and Prest. John Taylor on Sunday lst February 1885. Brother McAllister continued: "I greet you my brethren this morning"--as the Servants, the Sons of God, having charge of the Souls of man--feed the lambs of the flock of Christ committed to your care--feed them the bread of life--

Tabernacle Sunday 8th February 1885 President McAllister presiding present also Apostle Erastus Snow who with Bishop David H. Cannon had Just returned from Salt Lake City . . .

Apostle Snow read from the lOth Chap. of Matthew--beginning at the lOth verse:--These words were spoken [next page] by our Saviour as illustrative of the spirit of persecution which was to attend the preaching of the gospel--This was applicable anciently to the publication of the Word and Will of God--and is applicable at the present day and has been since the first revelation given to the Prophet Joseph Smith--and such opposition has been manifest in every age of the world when the word was revealed to man--he reviewed the persecutions and drivings of New York--Ohio, Missouri and Illinois. "It fell to my lot when 14 years of age to enter this church and at 16 to go out and preach the gospel [next page] He said he had, since leaving here 6 weeks ago, traveled [sic] with Prest--John Taylor and others to Colorado, thenst to Arizona--and New Mexico, thenst to the Mexican State of Sinora--went to Hermosillo--the capital--visited Governor Torres and other State government officials, thenst to Guaymas, a seaport on the Gulf of California--afterwards went back to St. David's and Mesa--thenst to Maricopia Wells which were dug by the Mormon Battalion in the Deseret in 1846--afterward went to Fort Yuma visited the Brethren Flake and Skousen found them treated with much kindness--then the party traveled [next page] to San Francisco thenst home--to Salt Lake City--
On referring to the present anti-Mormon crusade--he said the Prosecuting Attorney of Arizona has stated that the National Government had placed $50,000.00 at his disposal to prosecute Polygamy Cases in that territory--It has been intimated that double this amount has been placed at the disposal of the U.S. Prosecuting Attorney of Utah--and that a sum similarly appropriated to prosecute such cases in Idaho--
Let us all protect ourselves as best we can being wise a servant as Ser--[next page] pents and harmless as dove--bend before the storm rather than break--after the Storm cometh sunshine--We'll wait til the clouds roll by--then giving his blessing to the people he concluded by saying Amen--which was hardily re--echoed by the people--

Stake Conference St. George Stake Saturday 14th March 1885 2 p.m. session . . .

Apostle Erastus Snow spoke . . . of the habit of some to speak too much about others business.--He quoted some teaching of the Prophet Joseph given in the Kirtland Temple--who said "for God's sake brethren and sisters never write your feelings when angry or under excitement." "Do not talk in anger nor under excitement--but keep your tongues still til the anger or excitement passes away."

Sunday . . . March 1885 9 a.m. Priesthood Meeting. . .

Gospel Mysteries

Is it the duty of every elder in Israel to take a second wife if he can get her?
[President Erastus Snow] I will say there are some that ought not to have one wife and in the resurrection will not have one--it is the duty of every L.D.S. to enter into the New and Everlasting Covenant revealed by the Lord to Joseph Smith but there are times and circumstances governing these things-men should not be too forward in this matter--[next page] Bishops should exercise judgment for the brethren in this behalf and where needed restrain the brethren--and where the brethren are not successful in governing their family advised the brethren to wait a while; and if this be the case with the second wife, how much more so with the third or fourth wife--The prime responsibility of family matters rest upon the man--but sometimes women give way to evil spirits, for they have their agency, as well as men--and they make shipwreck of their faith in the gospel [next page] young men should in faith and purity of thought seek companionship and marriage with the daughters of Israel--Men should not be too greedy or covetous in taking to wife the daughters of Eve--be wise and prudent in all these things . . .

Stake Priesthood Meeting Saturday 2 May 1885 10 a.m. President J. T. McAllister presiding . . .

President McAllister . . . advised that Ward Record Books be kept in a safe place a place that our enemies cannot get them--. . . read today's telegraphic dispatches to the meeting--"Salt Lake Saturday 2nd May 1885 in court yesterday Claudius V. Spencer [next page] indited for unlawful cohabitation pleaded Guilty to the Charge and begged the Court to be easy with him as he had not lived with but one wife since passage of Edmund's Law and had paid second wife wages same as hired help in house. Promised to live within law in future and advise others to do the same. With this understanding Judge suspended sentence and said he would give him chance to prove his sincerity--"
Prest. McArthur spoke of the value of preserving ourselves in faithfulness and in not proving to be traitors to the sacred trust reposed in us--[next page] . . .

Spoke of the second exhibition of weakness on the part of Orson P.--[next page] Arnold and of Claudius B. Apostle Hyrum M. Smith then addressed the people saying first that he desired the spirit of the Lord to ectuate[?] him and asked all to join him in this, saying that where a congregation fell to obtain proper instruction it was because they withheld their prayers. . . .

Priesthood Meeting held Friday March 14, 1902 at 2 p.m. present Stake Presidency, President B. H. Roberts . . .

President B. H. Roberts said that his coming was no doubt do to the lack of time at the disposal of the apostles, and he came instead. [next page]
He said in time it would be impossible for them to attend as the stakes would so increase that where land would be filled with the descendants of Joseph, then the local priesthood would have to take care of their stakes.
The Church has two supreme duties first to care for its members second then to give the gospel to the world.
The quorum of seventy are organized in order that the apostles may be aided in giving the gospel to the world, as the apostles of themselves could not reach all the world. The presidents of stakes high council have jurisdiction in the stake and to them alone take care of the members at home. The bishop is supreme in the ward.
Quoting from Doctrine and Covenants Section 46 explain that he would not hesitate to follow council from bishop and even keep some things from their councilors when a man was required to whom one could go with supreme confidence.
Said all priesthood was Melchizedek and was from God, and should & must be honored by all, and ready obedience rendered.

Saturday March 15, 1902 conference convened at 10 a.m. President Stake Presidency, President B.H. Roberts and large attendance at priesthood and people . . .

Prest. B. H. Roberts then addressed the congregation saying that before leaving from here he called on the First Presidency and was told that no particular was to be presented to the people except that he was to say that they loved the people here and sent their blessings, and prayed God would bless them.
Remarked how strange would be the feelings of an Orthodox Christian when hearing such an admixture of temporal and spiritual things as were given in the reports of the bishop and missionaries; and gloried in the fact that one with such a religion dealing with all phases of life.
Spoke of the burdens born by the people in performance of their multitudinous labors both spiritual & temporal.
Said that these burdens were [next page] light or heavy according to the strength of the one who bore them, and that God gave strength as required, and instanced the rejoicing of the people expatriated from their homes and settling in these valleys, their strength being equal to the burden imposed.

Said the payment of tithing was the thermometer by which to judge the people.

President B.H. Roberts then addressed the saints saying that they had a very capable presidency and he felt they were all men of experience and he felt assured they had the spirit of God in their labors.

He then turned his attention to the magnitude of this work quoting from the Book of Mormon (Bk. of Nephi) where it was prophesied that after the coming forth of the Book of Mormon many should believe its testimony, and also that Jews should begin to gather into Judea. Said the Jews were awakening to the fact that Christ was a divine being and their opinions were reverential of him cited the fact of [unreadable word] neglect as to colonization in past years and the impetuous in this direction now. This he said indicated that all the spirits necessary to come [next page] of them was about completed. Quoting from the Doctrine and Covenants said now was the time to come on all nations--said how wars were to come on all nations and showed how that God had other instruments besides the saints but said the saints have the title role. . . .

Jackson County would not be settled until the people were prepared to return there. Then the temple would be built. Many were now donating large sums of money to the defraying of the expense of purchase of land there and the temple.

FILE:#35 SUCCESSION

William Smith, brother to the Prophet Joseph, testified of his own ordination and also the ordination of others:

I was present with Joseph at the last council that was held previous to the Twelve and others going on their electioneering campaign to the east and various other parts of the United States; it was at this time that I received my initiation into the highest priesthood lodge, was washed and anointed, and clad with the sacerdotal robe of pure white, and ordained to be priest and king, and invested with all the power that any man on earth ever did possess; power entitling me to preach the gospel, to bind up the Kingdom of God on earth, among all nations, and people of every tongue. In consequence of these endowments and ordination received from under the hands of Joseph, I hold as much power and as many keys to seal and bind on earth, as can possibly belong to Brigham Young; the power was conferred equally on all the Twelve, and not therefore bestowed on one. (William Smith's letter to the Warsaw Signal, Jan. 7, 1846)

Joseph Smith bestowed these ordinations on others, as George Miller and William Smith testified:

Many of the Apostles and Elders having returned from England, Joseph washed and anointed as Kings and Priests to God, and over the House of Israel, the following named persons, as he said was commanded of God, viz: James Adams (of Springfield), William Law, William Marks, Willard Richards, Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, Newel K. Whitney, Hyrum Smith, and myself; and conferred on us Patriarchal Priesthood. This took place on the 5th and 6th of May, 1842. Sees the Lord

THE SACRAMENT -- AND THE SACRIFICE

I pray for your faith and prayers that my utterances will be received and understood "by the Spirit of truth" and that my expressions will be given "by the Spirit of truth" sot that we might all be "edified and rejoice together." (See D&C 50:21-22.)

As I stand here today--a well man--words of gratitude and acknowledgement of divine intervention are so very inadequate in expressing the feelings in my soul.

Six months ago at the April general conference, I was excused from speaking as I was convalescing from a serious operation. My life has been spared, and I now have the pleasant opportunity of acknowledging the blessings, comfort, and ready aid of my Brethren in the First Presidency and Quorum of the Twelve, and other wonderful associates and friends to whom I owe so much and who surrounded my dear wife, Ruby, and my family with their time, attention, and prayers. For the inspired doctors and thoughtful nurses I express my deepest gratitude, and for the thoughtful letters and messages of faith and hope received from many places in the world, many expressing "You have been in our prayers" or "We have been asking our Heavenly Father to spare your life." Your prayers and mine, thankfully, have been answered.

One unusual card caused me to ponder upon the majesty of it all. It is an original painting by Arta Romney Ballif of the heavens at night with its myriad golden stars. Her caption, taken from Psalms, reads:

"Praise ye the Lord:...

"He healeth the broken in heart, and bindeth up the wounds.

"He telleth the number of the stars; he calleth them all by their names.

"...his understanding is infinite." (Ps. 147:1, 3-5.)

As I lay in the hospital bed, I meditated upon all that had happened to me and studied the contemplative painting by President Marion G. Romney's sister and the lines from Psalms: "He telleth the numbers of the stars; he calleth them all by their names." I was then--and continue to be--awed by the goodness and majesty of the Creator, who knows not only the names of the stars but knows your name and my name--each of us as His sons and daughters.

The psalmist, David, wrote:

"When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained;

"What is man, that thou are mindful of him?...

"For thou hast mad him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honor." (Ps. 8:3-5.)

To be remembered in a wonderful thing.

The evening of my health crisis, I knew something very serious had happened to me. Events happened so swiftly--the pain striking with such intensity, my dear Ruby phoning the doctor and our family, and I on my knees leaning over the bathtub for support and some comfort and hoped relief from the pain. I was pleading to my Heavenly Father to spare my life a while longer to give me a little more time to do His work, if it was His will.

While still praying, I began to lose consciousness. The siren of the paramedic truck was the last that I remembered before unconsciousness overtook me, which would last for the next several days.

The terrible pain and commotion of people ceased. I was now in a calm, peaceful setting; all was serene and quiet. I was conscious of two persons in the distance on a hillside, one standing on a higher level than the other. Detailed features were not discernible. The person on the higher level was pointing to something I could not see.

I heard no voices but was conscious of being in a holy prescience and atmosphere. During the hours and days that followed, there was impressed again and again upon my mind the eternal mission and exalted position of the Son of Man. I witness to you that He is Jesus the Christ, the Son of God, Savior to all, Redeemer of all mankind, Bestower of infinite live, mercy, and forgiveness, the Light and Life of the world. I knew this truth before--I had never doubted nor wondered. But now I knew, because of the impressions of the Spirit upon my heart and soul, these divine truths in a most unusual way.

I was shown a panoramic view of His earthly ministry: His baptism, His teaching, His healing the sick and lame, the mock trial, His crucifixion, His resurrection and ascension. There followed scenes of His earthly ministry to my mind in impressive detail, confirming scriptural eyewitness accounts. I was being taught, and the eyes of my understanding were opened by the Holy Spirit of God so as to behold many things.

The first scene was of the Savior and His Apostles in the upper chamber on the eve of His betrayal. Following the Passover supper, He instructed and prepared the sacrament of the Lord's Supper for His dearest friends as a remembrance of His coming sacrifice. It was so impressively portrayed to me--the overwhelming love of the Savior for each. I witnessed His thoughtful concern for significant details--the washing of the dusty feet of each Apostle, His breaking and blessing of the loaf of dark bread and blessing of the wine, then His dreadful disclosure that one would betray Him.

He explained Judas's departure and told the others of the events soon to take place.

Then followed the Savior's solemn discourse when He said to the Eleven: "These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." (John 16:33.)

Our Savior prayed to His Father and acknowledged the Father as the source of His authority and power--even to the extending of eternal life to all who are worthy.

He prayed, "And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent."

Jesus then reverently added:

"I have glorified thee on the earth: I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do. "And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was." (John 17:3-5.)

He pled not only for the disciples called out from the world who had been true to their testimony of Him, "but for them also which shall believe on me through their words." (John 17:20.)

When they had sung a hymn, Jesus and the Eleven went out to the Mount of Olives. There, in the garden, in some manner beyond our comprehension, the Savior took upon Himself the burden of the sins of mankind from Adam to the end of the world. His agony in the garden, Luke tells, us, was so intense "his sweat was as...great drops of blood falling... to the ground." (Luke 22:44.) He suffered an agony and a burden the like of which no human person would be able to bear. In that hour of anguish our Savior overcame all the power of Satan.

The glorified Lord revealed to Joseph Smith this admonition to all mankind:

"Therefore I command you to repent...

"For...I, God,... suffered...for all, that they might not suffer if they would repent;...

"Which suffering caused myself, even God, the greatest of all, to tremble because of pain, and to bleed at every pore,...

"Wherefore, I command you again to repent, lest I humble you with my almighty power; and that you confess your sins, lest you suffer these punishments." (D&C 19:15-16, 18, 20.)

During those days of unconsciousness I was given, by the gift and power of the Holy Ghost, a more perfect knowledge of His mission. I was also given a more complete understanding of what it means to exercise, in His name, the authority to unlock the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven for the salvation of all who are faithful. My soul was taught over and over again the events of the betrayal, the mock trial, the scourging of the flesh of even one of the Godhead. I witnessed His struggling up the hill in His weakened condition carrying the cross and His being stretched upon in as it lay on the ground, that the crude spikes could be driven with a mallet into His hands and wrists and feet to secure His body as it hung on the cross for public display.

Crucifixion--the horrible and painful death which He suffered--was chosen from the beginning. By that excruciating death, He descended below all things, as is recorded, that through His resurrection He would ascend above all things. (See D&C 88:6.)

Jesus Christ died in the literal sense in which we will all die. He body lay in the tomb. The immortal spirit of Jesus, chosen as the Savior of mankind, went to those myriads of spirits who had departed mortal life with varying degrees of righteousness to God's laws. He taught them the "glorious tidings of redemption from the bondage of death, and of possible salvation,... [which was] part of [our] Savior's foreappointed and unique service to the human family." (James E. Talmage, Jesus the Christ, Salt Lake City: Deseret Book Co., 1977, p. 671.)

I cannot begin to convey to you the deep impact that these scenes have confirmed upon my soul. I sense their eternal meaning and realize that "nothing in the entire plan of salvation compares in any way in importance with that most transcendent of all events, the atoning sacrifice of our Lord. It is the most important single thing that has ever occurred in the entire history of created things; it is the rock foundation upon which the gospel and all other things rest," as has been declared. (Bruce R. McConkie, Mormon Doctrine, Salt Lake City: Bookcraft, 1966, p. 60.)

Father Lehi taught his son Jacob and us today:

"Wherefore, redemption cometh in and through the Holy Messiah; for he is full of grace and truth.

"Behold, he offereth himself a sacrifice for sin, to answer the ends of the law, unto all those who have a broken heart and a contrite spirit; and unto none else can the ends of the law be answered.

"Wherefore, how great the importance to make these things known unto the inhabitants of the earth, that they may know that there is no flesh that can dwell in the presence of God, save it be through the merits, and mercy, and grace of the Holy Messiah, who layeth down his life according to the flesh, and taketh it again by the power of the Spirit, that he may bring to pass the resurrection of the dead, being the first that should rise.

"Wherefore, he is the firstfruits unto God, inasmuch as he shall make intercession for all the children of men; and they that believe in him shall be saved." (2 Ne. 2:6-9.)

Our most valuable worship experience in the sacrament meeting is the sacred ordinance of the sacrament, for it provides the opportunity to focus our minds and hearts upon the Savior and His sacrifice.

The Apostle Paul warned the early Saints against eating the bread and drinking this cup of the Lord unworthily. (See 1 Cor. 11:27-30.)

Our Savior Himself instructed the Nephites, "Whoso eateth and drinketh my flesh and blood unworthily [brings] damnation to his soul." (3Ne. 18:29.)

Worthy partakers of the sacrament are in harmony with the Lord and put themselves under covenant with Him to always remember His sacrifice for the sins of the world, to take upon them the name of Christ and to always remember Him, and to keep His commandments. The Savior covenants that we who do so shall have His spirit to be with us and that, if faithful to the end, we may inherit eternal life.

Our Lord revealed to Joseph Smith that "there is no gift greater than the gift of salvation," which plan included the ordinance of the sacrament as a continuous reminder of the Savior's atoning sacrifice. He gave instructions that "it is expedient that the church meet together often to partake of bread and wine in the remembrance of the Lord Jesus." (D&C 6:13; 20:75.)

Immortality comes to us all as a free gift by the grace of God alone, without works of righteousness. Eternal life, however, is the reward for obedience to the laws and ordinances of His gospel.

I testify to all of you that our Heavenly Father does answer our righteous pleadings. The added knowledge which has come to me has made a great impact upon my life. The gift of the Holy Ghost is a priceless possession and opens the door to our ongoing knowledge of God and eternal joy. Of this I bear witness, in the holy name of Jesus Christ, amen. (David B. Haight, The Ensign/November 1989, pp. 59-61.)

Seeing the Savior

It is true that some have actually seen the Savior, but when one consults the dictionary, he learns that there are many other meanings of the word see, such as coming to know Him, discerning Him, recognizing Him and His work, perceiving His importance, or coming to understand Him.

Such heavenly enlightenment and blessing are available to each of us. (David B. Haight, The Ensign/November 1990, pp. 61.)

20 January 1920

A HEAVENLY MANIFESTATION

By Heber Q. Hale, President of the Boise Stake of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints

It is with very humble and grateful spirit that I attempt to relate on this occasion, by request, a personal experience which is very sacred to me. I must of necessity be brief, furthermore, there were certain things made known to me which I do not feel at Liberty to relate here. Let me say by way of preface that between the hours of 12 and 7:30 in the night of January 20, 1920, while alone in a room at the home of my friend, W. F Rawson in Carey, Idaho, this glorious manifestation was vouchsafed to me.

I was not conscious of anything that transpired during the hours mentioned, except what I experienced in this manifestation. I did not turn over in bed, nor was I disturbed by any sound, which indeed, is unusual for me. Whether it be called a dream an apparition, a vision, or a pilgrimage of my spirit into the world of spirits, I know [not], I care not. I know that I actually saw and experienced the thing related in this Heavenly Manifestation, and that they are as real to me as any experience in my life. For me, at least, that is sufficient.

Of all the doctrines and practices of the Church, the vicarious work for the dead has been the most difficult for me to comprehend and whole-heatedly accept. I consider this vision is the Lord's answer to the prayer of my soul on this and certain other questions.

I passed but a short distance from my body through a film in to the world of spirits. This was my first experience after going to sleep. I seemed to realize that I had passed through the change called "death", and I so referred to it in my conversation with the immortal beings with whom I came immediately into contact, I readily observed their displeasure at our use of the word "death" and the fear which we attach to it. They use another word in referring to the transition from mortality. Which word I do not recall, and I can only approach its meaning as the impression was felt upon my mind, be calling it a "New Birth".

My first visual impression was the nearness of the world of spirit to the world of mortality. The vastness of this heavenly sphere was bewildering to the eyes of a spirit-novice. Many enjoyed unrestricted freedom as to both vision and action. The vegetation and landscape were beautiful, beyond description. Not all green, as here, but gold with varying shades of pink, orange and lavender as the rainbow. A sweet calmness pervaded everything. The people I met there I did not think of as spirits, but as men and women, self-thinking and self-acting individuals, going about important business in a most orderly manner. There was perfect order there and everybody had something to do and seemed to be about their business.

That the inhabitants of the spirit world are classified according to their lives of purity and their subserviency to the Father's will was subsequently made apparent. Particularly was it observed that the wicked and unrepentant are confined to a certain district by themselves, the confines of which are as definitely determined and impassable as the line marking the division of the physical from the spirit world a mere film but impassable until the person himself has changed. The world of spirit is the temporary abode of all spirits pending the resurrection from the dead and the judgment. There was much activity within the different spheres and appointed ministers of salvation were seen coming from the higher to the lower spheres in pursuit of their missionary appointments.

I had a very pronounced desire to meet certain of my kinsfolk and my friends but I was at once impressed with the fact that I had entered a world more numerously inhabited. I could be in only one place at a time and accordingly it would require many years to search out and converse with all those I had known and to those whom I desired to meet me, unless they were especially summoned to meet me. All worthy men and women were appointed to special and regular services under a well organized plan of action, directed principally toward preaching the gospel to the unconverted, teaching those who seek knowledge, and establishing family relationships and gathering genealogies for the use and benefit of mortal survivors of their respective families that the work of baptism and the sealing ordinances may be vicariously performed for the departed in the Temples for spirits have access to our Temple records and are kept fully advised of the work done therein, but the vicarious work done here does not become automatically effective there.

The recipients must first believe, repent and accept baptism and confirmation, then certain consummating ordinances are performed effectualizing these saving principles in the lives of these regenerated beings. And so the great work is going on; they doing a work there which we cannot do here, and we doing a work here which they cannot do there -- both necessary -- each the complement of the other -- thus bringing about the salvation of all of God's children who will be saved.

Gospel Mysteries

I was surprised to find there no babies in arms. I met the infant son of Orson W. Rawlins, my first counselor. I immediately recognized him as the baby who died a few years ago, and yet he seemed to have the intelligence and in certain respects, the appearance of an adult, and was engaged in matters pertaining to his family and its genealogy. My mind was quite contented on the point that mother will again receive into their arms, their children who died in infancy and be fully satisfied; but the fact remains that entrance into the world of spirit is not [an] inhabitation of growth, but the greatest opportunity for development. Babies are adult spirits in infant bodies.

I presently beheld a mighty multitude of men, the largest I have ever seen gathered in one place, who I immediately recognized as soldiers, the millions who had been slaughtered and rushed so savagely into the world of spirit during the great war.

Among them moved calmly and majestically the great General in supreme command. As I drew nearer I received the kindly smile and generous welcome of that great loving man, General Richard W. Young. then came the positive conviction of my soul that all men, living or dead, there is not one who is so perfectly fitted for the great mission unto which he had been called. He commands immediately the attention and respect of all the soldiers, he is at once a great general and a great High Priest of God. No earthly field of labor to which he could have been assigned can compare with it in importance and extent. I passed from this scene to return later when I found General Young had this vast army of men completely organized with officers over successive divisions and all where seated and he was perching the gospel in great earnestness to them.

As I passed on I soon met my beloved Mother. She greeted me most affectionately and expressed surprise at seeing me there and reminded me that I had not completed my allotted mission on earth. She seemed to be going somewhere and was in a hurry and accordingly took her leave with saying that she would see me again.

I moved forward covering an appreciable distance and consuming considerable time viewing the wonderful sights of landscape, parks, trees, flowers and meeting people, some of whom I knew, but many thousands of whom I did not recognize as acquaintances.

I presently approached a small group of men standing in a path lined with spacious stretches of flowers, grasses and shrubbery -- all of a golden hue -- marking the approach to a beautiful building. This group was engaged in earnest conversation. One of their number parted from the rest and came walking down the path. I at once recognized my esteemed President Joseph F. Smith. He embraced me as a father would his son and after a few words of greeting quietly remarked, "you have not come to stay," for which I understood more as a declaration than an interrogation. For the first time I became fully conscious of my uncompleted mission on earth and as much as I would have liked to remain, I at once asked Pres. Smith if I might return. "you have expressed a righteous desire" he replied, and I shall take the matter up with the authorities and let you know later."

We then returned and he led me toward a little group of men from whom he had just separated. I immediately recognized President Brigham Young and the Prophet Joseph Smith. I was surprised to find the former a shorter and heavier built man that I had expected. On the other hand I found the latter to be taller than I had expected to find him. Both they and Pres. Smith were possessed of a calm and holy majesty which was at once kind and kingly [Second Anointing]. Pres. Smith introduced me to the other who greeted me warmly. We then returned our steps and President Smith took his leave saying he would see me again.

From a certain point of vantage I was permitted to view this earth and what was going on. There were no limitations to my vision and I was astounded at this. I saw permitted to view this earth and what was going on. There were no limitations to my vision and I was astounded at this. I saw my wife and children at home. I saw President Heber J. Grant at the head of this great Church and Kingdom of God [Heber J. Grant, as the Proxy King of Kings, and Lord of lords, for the Lord] and felt the divine power that radiated from God giving it correct principles and designated to endure, and beset by evil and sinister forces that seek to lead men astray, and thwart the purposes of God. I saw towns and cities; the sins and wickedness of men and women; I saw vessels sailing upon the oceans and scanned the battle carried fields of France and Belgium.

In a word, I beheld the whole world as if it were but a panorama passing before my eyes. Then there came to me the unmistakable impression that this earth and scenes and persons upon it are open to the vision of the spirits only when special permission is given or when they are assigned to special service here. This [is] particularly true of the righteous who are busily engaged in the service of the Lord and who cannot be engaged in two fields of activity at the same time. The wicked and unrepentant spirits having still, like all the rest, their free agency, and applying themselves to no useful or wholesome undertaking seek pleasure about their old haunts and exalt in the sins and wretchedness of degenerate humanity. To this extent they are still the tools of Satan. It is these idle mischievous and deceptive spirits who appear as miserable counterfeits at spiritualistic scenes, table dancing, and ouija board operations. The noble and great ones do not respond to the call of the medium and to every curious group of meddlesome inquires. They would not do it in mortality, certainly they would not do it in their increased state of knowledge in the world of immortality. These wicked and unrepentant spirits are allies of Satan and his hosts, operating through willing mediums in the flesh, these three forces constitute an unholy trinity upon the earth and are responsible for all the sins, wickedness, distrust and misery among men and nations.

I moved forward feasting my eyes upon the beauties of everything about me and glorifying in the indescribable peace and happiness that abound in everybody and through everything. The farther I went, the more glorious things appeared. While standing at a certain vintage, I beheld a short distance away a wonderful beautiful temple, capped with a golden dome, from which emerged a small group of men dressed in white robes who parsed for a brief conversation. These were the first I had seen thus clad. The millions that I had previously seen were dressed, of course, but dressed variously. the soldiers, for instance, were in uniform. In this little group of men my eyes rested upon one more splendorous and holy than the rest. While I thus gazed, President Joseph F. Smith parted from the others and came to my side. "Do you know HIM?" he inquired. I quickly answered, "Yes, I know HIM." My eyes beheld my Lord and Savior. "It is true," said President Joseph F. Smith and how my soul thrilled with rapture unmistakable joy filled my soul. President Smith informed me that I had been given permission to return to complete my mission upon the earth which the Lord had appointed me to fill and with his hand upon my shoulder uttered these memorable and significant words: "Brother Heber [Hale], you have a great work to do. Go forth with a Prayerful heart and you shall be blessed in your ministry from this time on. Never doubt that God lives, that Jesus Christ is His Son, the Savior of the world, that the Holy Ghost is a God of spirit, and the messenger of the Father and the Son. Never doubt the resurrection of the dead, and the immortality of the soul, that the mission of the Latter-Day Saints is to all the world, all mankind both living and the dead, and that the great work in the Holy Temple for the Salvation of the dead has only begun."

"Know this, that Joseph Smith was sent of God to usher in the gospel dispensation of the fullness of times, which is at this time the recognized and ordained head of the Church of Jesus Christ upon the earth. Give him your confidence and support. Much you have seen and heard here you will not be permitted to repeat when you return."

Quite a distance through various scenes and passing innumerable people, I traveled before I reached this sphere which I had first entered. On my way I was greeted by many friends and relatives certain of whom sent words of greeting and counsel to their dear ones here. My mother being one of them. The other I will mention. I met Brother John Adamson, his wife, his son, James, and daughter Isabelle, all of whom were killed by the hand of a foul assassin in Carey, Idaho, in the evening of October 29, 1915. They immediately said (Brother Adamson speaking), "Tell the children that we are very happy and that they should not mourn our departure nor worry their minds over the manner by which we were taken. There is a purpose in it and we have a work here to do which requires our collective efforts and which we could not do individually. I was at once made to know that the work referred to was that of genealogy on which they were working in England and Scotland.

One of the grandest and most sacred things of heaven is family relationship. The establishment of a complete change without any broken links, brings a fullness of joy. Links wholly bad will be dropped out and other new links put in our two adjoining links welded together. Men and women throughout the world are moved upon by their dead ancestors to gather genealogy. These are the links for the chain. The ordinances of baptism, endowments and sealing performed in the temple of God by the living for the dead are the welding of the links. Ordinances are performed in the spirit world effectualizing in the individual recipients and saving principles of the gospel vicariously performed here. As I was approaching the place were I had entered my attention was attracted to a small group of women preparing what appeared to be wearing apparel. Observing my inquiring countenance one of the women remarked. "We are preparing to receive Brother Philip Worthington". (He died Jan. 22, 1920. Pres. Hale was advised by telegram, returned to Boise and presided over his funeral January 23.) As I gasped his name in repetition I was admonished. "If you knew the joy and glorious mission that awaits him here you would not ask to have him detained on earth." Then flooding through consciousness came this awful truth that the will of the Lord can be done on earth as it is in Heaven, only when we resign completely to His will and let his will be done in us and through us. On account of the selfishness of men or assertion of the personal will as against the will of God, many persons who might have otherwise been taken in innocence and peace have been permitted to live and have passed a life of suffering and misery or debauchery and crime and have lived to their own peril. Men and women and children are often called to missions of great importance to the other side and some respond gladly while others refuse to go and their loved ones will not give them up. Also many die because they have not faith to be healed, others, yet live alone and pass out of the world of mortals without any special manifestations or action of the divine will. When a man is stricken ill, the question of prime importance is not "Is he going to live or die." What matters whether he lives or dies so long as the will of the Father in done? Surely we can trust him with God. Herein lies the special duty and privilege of administration by the Holy priesthood, namely, it is given the elders of the Church to divine the will of the Father concerning the ones upon whose heard their hands are laid. If for any reason they are unable to presage the Father's will, they should continue to pray in faith for the afflicted one humbly conceding supremacy to the will of God, that his will be done, in earth as it is in heaven ["The Lord's Prayer" is Prophetic! We should pray for the earth to become heaven]. To a righteous person birth into the world of spirit is a glorious privilege and blessing. The greatest spirits in the family of the Father have not usually been permitted to tarry longer int he spirit world where the field is greater and the workers fewer. This earth career therefore, may be longer or shorter as the Father wills.

I passed quietly out where I had entered the world of spirit and immediately my body quickened and I arose to ponder over and record the many wonderful things I had seen and heard. Let me here and now declare to the world that irrespective of what others may think and say, I do know of my own positive knowledge and from my own personal experience that God is the Father of all the spirits of men and that he lives, that Jesus Christ is his Son and the Savior of the world [D&C 132:24 "This is eternal lives--to know the only wise and true God, and Jesus Christ, whom he hath sent." & D&C 130:3 "John 14:23--The appearing of the Father and the Son, in that verse, is a personal appearance"], that the spirit of man does not die but survives this change called death, and goes to the world of spirit -- that the world of spirit is upon this earth, that man's individuality is not lost by death, nor his progress inhibited, that the spirits will literally take up their bodies again in the resurrection, that the principles are now being taught to the spirits and the great work of saving the Father's family among the living and the dead is in progress and that but comparatively few will be lost, that the gospel of Jesus Christ has again been established upon the earth with all keys, powers, authority, and blessings through the instrumentality of the Prophet Joseph Smith, that this is not only the power which will save and exalt everyone obedient, but will ultimately save the world [Ordinances of the Fulness of the Priesthood ultimately will save the World], that the burden of our mission is to save souls unto God [Saving Souls Unto God is the burden of our mission--That means D&C 76:21, saving "Sons and Daughters Unto God--through the Fulness of the Priesthood...When we are ultimately Anointed Kings & Priests Unto the Most High God & His Father--This is the burden of our mission], and that the work for the dead is no less important than the work for the living. (Typescript in possession of Author.)

Taken from the Lambert collection in the University of Utah Library:

A note regarding the one-time existence of a "second anointing", or Second blessing in the Mormon temple.

Riding in an automobile the evening of June 28, 1966, with (1) a former student of mine, Dr. John Fitzgerald, (2) Juanita Brooks, and (3) Heber Q. Hale, who was once "high up" in Mormon Church circles and a very believing person who, up in Boise, Idaho, in the 1920's saw visions and heard voices and saw great spiritual manifestations, the topic of the "Second Endowments" in the Mormon temple ceremonies came up. Fitzgerald had never heard of it. Mrs. Brooks said John D. Lee's recitals said something about "second anointings" or something. I [Asael C. Lambert,] had once asked the President of the Idaho Falls temple if they had built any special upper room for "Second endowments" and he dodged and answer because he probably didn't know what the term meant. Heber Hale's who is now in his eighties and pretty liberally alert said he recently asked Howard McDonald, President of the Salt Lake Temple, if They had any "second blessing" nowadays and McDonald had said loudly and emphatically that there "is no such thing" "and never was". Hale said he chided McDonald for his ignorance and abruptness, and told him that he, Hales, had had his "Second Blessings", or using my phrase, "Second Endowments." Hale then told us that years ago he and his wife had been asked by President Joseph F. Smith to come to [the] Salt Lake Temple and receive their "Second Blessings", which they did. I asked if the ceremony was given for a company or group, and Hales said, "Oh No. Only for the man and his wife who are asked and chosen by the President of the Church. Not even the Apostles can select persons for that blessing." I asked "Did they have a special room for it?" He said, "No. We were taken up into the sealing room with its altar. We knelt on opposite sides of the altar my wife and I, with hands clasped across the altar, and President Smith at the end who gave us our second blessings." He stressed the word blessings," but didn't recite what was said. He said it was all for special recognition for faithfulness and worthiness [and] for encouragement and reward."

Mrs Brooks, who has for years gone through the St. George temple rather regularly didn't say whether she or anyone she knew had received their "Second Anointing," but she suggested it would probably include some further confirmations of power the man had and was to have over his wife or wives--always one concern of the temple "endowment". She said there was (is) a small upper room in the St. George temple,--"a small prayer room." (Asael C. And this we bear record with words of soberness, that the said Smith has shown unto us, for we have seen and hefted, and know of a surety that the said Smith has got the plates of which we have spoken. And we give our names unto the

I have actually seen a vision; and who am I that I can withstand God, or why does the world think to make me deny what I have actually seen? for I had seen a vision; I knew it, and I knew that God knew it, and I could not deny it, neither dared I do it; at least I knew that by so doing I would offend God, and come under condemnation.

FILE:#16 FIRST AND SECOND ANOINTING

The "holy anointing" was part of a complex of sanctifying ordiances intended to prepare the brethern to receive a spiritual outpouring known in Kirtland as "an endowment of power."

Purification" was one of the ordiances which prepared the brethren for the "endowment." It consisted of having one's body washed and bathed with cinnamon-perfumed whiskey and later washing one's own body with pure water and perfume. Cf. D&C 89:7. (Kirtland Elders' Quorum Record, 25 January 1836, footnotes.)

The Prophet's remarks refer to a second solemn assembly planned for the 6th of April, 1837. Worthy brethren who were unable to attend to solemn assembly the previous year were invited to participate in certain purifying ordinances preparatory to receiving a spiritual endowment of power. These ordinances consisted of (1) washing "head to foot" in soap and water, (2) washing in clear water and perfumed whiskey, (3) having one's head anointed with consecrated oil and receiving a blessing by the spirit of prophecy, (4) having the anointing blessing sealed with uplifted hands (solemn prayer, a sealing prayer, and the hosannah shout), and (5) washing of faces and feet and partaking of the Lord's Supper. (26 Jan 1836, footnote.)

Elect Lady
An elect lady is a female member of the Church who has already received, or who through obedience is qualified to receive, the fulness of gospel blessings. This includes [1] temple endowments, [2] celestial marriage, and [3] the fulness of the sealing power. She is one who has been elected or chosen by faithfulness as a daughter of God in this life, and heir of God, a member of his household. Her position is comparable to that of the elders who magnify their callings in the preisthood and thereby receive all that the Father hath. (D. & C. 84:38.)
In the early days of this dispensation Emma Smith, the Prophet's wife, was in such complete harmony with the Lord's porgram that he forgave her of her sins and addressed her as an elect lady. (D. & C. 25:1-3; History of the Chruch, vol. 4, p. 552.) John the Beloved used a similar salutation to certain chosen women in his day. (2 John 1, 13.) Just as it is possible for the very elect to be deceived, and to fall from grace through disobedience, so an elect lady, by failing to endure to the end, can lose her chosen status. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 217).

Life
Alma said: "this life is the time for men to prepare to meet God." (Alma 34:32) [This means they prepare to meet God by receiving all the laws and ordiances of the Gospel from the least to the Greatest in the house of the lord.... and that they receive the Holy Ghost and have sealed upon them all the acts of the ordiances and perfomances which has occured in the house of the lord and otherwise in this life... The Holy Ghost is a God and we have a God dwelling within our tabernacles...

The Apostle Orson Hyde describes the course these elect must follow to become Gods:

> The chosen vessels unto God are the kings and priests that are placed at the head of these kingdoms. These have received their washings and anointings in the time of god on this earth; they have been chosen, ordained, and anointed kings and priests, to reign as such in the resurrection of the just. Such as have not received the fulness of the > priesthood, and have not been anointed an ordained in the temple of the Most High, may obtain salvation in the celestial kingdom, but not a celestial crown. Many are called to enjoy a celestial glory, yet few are chosen to wear a celestial crown or rather, to be rulers in the celestial kingdom. (Mill. Star 9:23-24)

There was a proclamation made during the time that the foundation of the Temple was laid to that effect, and there are provisions made until the work is completed, so that men may receive their endowments and be made kings and priests unto the Most High God,... (TPJS, p. 362)

Alvin R. Dyer describes the endowment and the promises connected therewith:

> I call your attention now to the washing and anointing that you received in the Temple.... When you went into the washing and anointing room, where you were washed and anointed with water and oil, you were given a new name, and you were promised that some day you would be called up to be a king and priest, or a queen and priestess. (From speech "For What Propose", March 18, 1961)

No 15: To BY: Lucy An (sic) Young, Harriet Elizabeth Young, Emmeline, Margaret Maria Young, Emily Dow Young Smith, Louisa Young Smith [the last two anointed to BY (for time) and Jos. Smith for eternity], 14 J by HCK.
[This is interesting, these last two were anointed a Queen and Priestess unto their Husband Brigham Young for time, and a Queen and Priestess unto their Husband Joseph Smith for all eternity.

A couple of interesting thoughts:
1. The Second anointing is for [a] time and for
[b] all eternity

2. This coresponds helps us to understand D&C 132:41 where a wife, in it's highest form of marriage, is "appointed unto her (husband) by the holy anointing..."

Circular Letter of the First Presidency:

Gospel Mysteries

Salt Lake City, Utah, April 14th 1900.

Prest. David H. Cannon, St. George

Dear Brother:
During the lifetime of the late President Wilford Woodruff a rule was established by him not to permit a woman to be anointed to a man unless she had lived with him as a wife. This was a restriction of the rule in such cases which obtained during the lifetime of Presidents Brigham Young and John Taylor. After considering the matter we have concluded to restore the practice as expressed in the following, and which will govern in such cases in the future:
Any woman, who has been sealed to a man in life or by proxy, whether she has lived with him or not, shall have the privilege of being anointed to him [D&C 132:41] inasmuch as he shall have had his second blessings.

Joseph F. Smith

(Messages of the First Presidency, Vol. III, James R. C.ark.

It was from him (Prophet Joseph) that I learned that the Highest dignity of womanhood was to stand as a queen and priestess to her husband, and to reign for ever and ever as the queen mother of her numerous and still increasing offspring. (Parley P. Pratt, Autobiography, 1st ed., 329-330.)

He then (Brigham Young) anointed Sister Vilate Kimble a Queen & Priestess unto her Husband (H.C. Kimble) in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Days Saints & in Iseral. & pronounced all the blessings upon her head in common with her husband. (Book of Anointings p. 4 of Original, LDS Church Archives.)

Husband and wife receive these blessings together or not at all:

He then (Brigham Young) anointed Sister Vilate Kimble a Queen & Priestess unto her Husband (H.C. Kimble) in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Days Saints & in Iseral. & pronounced all the blessings upon her head in common with her husband.

In "Book of Anointings" men are ordained and sealed Kings and Priests to the Most high God without a wife.

Joseph Smith Sealed one of the twelve and told him he needed a wife.

Wilford Woodruff Gave George Washington and Thomas Jefferson theirs I don't know who he would have had them sealed to ....

It looks like the Lord Can Give this ordiance to worthy men and probly we Amen.

> (D&C: Section 88:133)
> The Holy Greeting is given with hands lifted towards heaven by the Chief Officiator, the recipients then return the greeting in a like manner. It may be repeated by the recipient or may just say Amen. Then the washing of the feet is given. (purpose found in D&C 88:138-9).

|v138 And ye shall not receive any among you into this school save he is clean from the blood of this generation;
|v139 And he shall be received by the ordinance of the washing of feet, for unto this end was the ordinance of the washing of feet instituted. (D&C: Section 88:138-139)

Washing of feet is Administered by President of the Church. (Pattern given in John 13).
|c13|v0 Jesus washes the feet of the Twelve--He identifies Judas as his betrayer--He commands them to love one another.

|v1 Now before the feast of the passover, when Jesus knew that his hour was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end.
|v2 And supper being ended, the devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray him;
|v3 Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was come from God, and went to God;
|v4 He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself.
|v5 After that he poureth water into a bason, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded.
|v6 Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and Peter saith unto him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet?
|v7 Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter.
|v8 Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me.
|v9 Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head.
|v10 Jesus saith to him, He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and ye are clean, but not all.
|v11 For he knew who should betray him; therefore said he, Ye are not all clean.
|v12 So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you?
|v13 Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am.
|v14 If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet.
|v15 For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.
|v16 Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him.
|v17 If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.

|v18 I speak not of you all: I know whom I have chosen: but that the scripture may be fulfilled, He that eateth bread with me hath lifted up his heel against me.
|v19 Now I tell you before it come, that, when it is come to pass, ye may believe that I am he.
|v20 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that receiveth whomsoever I send receiveth me; and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me.
|v21 When Jesus had thus said, he was troubled in spirit, and testified, and said, Verily, verily, I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me.
|v22 Then the disciples looked one on another, doubting of whom he spake.
|v23 Now there was leaning on Jesus' bosom one of his disciples, whom Jesus loved.

|v24 Simon Peter therefore beckoned to him, that he should ask who it should be of whom he spake.
|v25 He then lying on Jesus' breast saith unto him, Lord, who is it?
|v26 Jesus answered, He it is, to whom I shall give a sop, when I have dipped it. And when he had dipped the sop, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon.
|v27 And after the sop Satan entered into him. Then said Jesus unto him, That thou doest, do quickly.
|v28 Now no man at the table knew for what intent he spake this unto him.
|v29 For some of them thought, because Judas had the bag, that Jesus had said unto him, Buy those things that we have need of against the feast; or, that he should give something to the poor.
|v30 He then having received the sop went immediately out: and it was night.

|v32 If God be glorified in him, God shall also glorify him in himself, and shall straightway glorify him.
|v33 Little children, yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me: and as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go, ye cannot come; so now I say to you.
|v34 A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.
|v35 By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.

|v37 Peter said unto him, Lord, why cannot I follow thee now? I will lay down my life for thy sake.
|v38 Jesus answered him, Wilt thou lay down thy life for my sake? Verily, verily, I say unto thee, The cock shall not crow, till thou hast denied me thrice.
(NewT:John 13:Heading-38)

Ordinance preformed in the name of Jesus Christ and by the Authority of the Holy Priesthood, Example: "I wash your feet in accordance with the pattern set by our Lord Jesus Christ when he washed his disciples feet, and also according to the pattern given by the prophet Joseph Smith as an introductory ordinance to the School of Prophets." "I pronounce you clean from the blood of this generation and say unto you, your sins are forgiven, and I seal upon you every blessing, gift, right, and authority pertaining to this Holy Ordinance, and I do it in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen. The Sacrament of the Lords Supper is then given.
THE ANOINTING: Pure Olive Oil. In the 1st anointing men and women were promised, if they were faithful to the covenants made in the temple, the time would come when they actually would be anointed Kings, and Priests, Queens and Priestesses, Where as in the 1st Anointings they were only promised to become such. Obviously then, there is another Anointing, which fulfills the contingent blessings made in the 1st Anointing itself. Hence, The 2nd Anointing. In the Anointing itself, oil is poured on the head of the Candidate and is Ordained a King and Priest to the most High God, to all eternity, or a Queen and Priestess to all eternity. Priestly Authority: Power over all things, controls the laws of nature and exercises jurisdiction over all elements.

Kingly Authority: Controls men only, and administers just and righteous laws. At the time of the Anointing the Patriarchal Priesthood is conferred upon you. This Priesthood is the Priesthood that is held in the heavens. After ordained to Patriarchal Priesthood, there is no branch of the Priesthood so low that they can not officiate therein, nor so high, that they can not reach forth the arm of power and act in the most exalted capacity.
The recipients are given the blessings of Abraham, Issac, and Jacob. Which are; Sit upon thrones, have crown, posterity as numerous as the stars, Kingdoms, principalities, powers, dominions, and come forth in the morning of the first resurrection.
The anointing may then be sealed by the HOLY SPIRIT OF PROMISE (Jesus Christ) the anointing may be sealed immediately or at some other time. When the recipient is sealed it will result in a direct visit from Christ. Those that are sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise may commit any transgression, except murder, yet they shall receive their exaltation. The consequences of transgressions are 1. They shall be destroyed in the flesh. 2. Shall be delivered unto the buffetings of Satan until the day or redemption. 3. They must atone for there own sins. (Journal of discourses 2 pg. 260).

> ...the Saint who has been sealed unto eternal life and falls into transgression and does not repent, but dies in his sins, will be afflicted and tormented after he leaves this vale of tears until the day of redemption; but having been sealed with the spirit of promise through the ordinances of the house of God, those things which have been sealed upon his head will be realized by him in the morning of the resurrection.

> At the time of the Second Anointing the candidate is given the blessing of Godhood, but to those who are faithful even weightier blessings can be bestowed. Blessings of The Godhead can also be given. While some are anointed and sealed to Godhood, others may receive the assurance of even greater blessings, even that of the Godhead. There is a distinction between anointings to the Godhead and godhood. Individuals ordained to the Godhead are blessed to "act as the Savior to a world or worlds". While others may be blessed to act in trinities, or presidencies of worlds. (Notes taken form the Nauvoo Temple record of Anointings) (opinion of author. Those who receive the 2nd Anointing will eventually will be blessed by a visit from the Savior. "When any man obtains the last comforter, he will have the personage of Jesus Christ appear to him from time to time, and he will even manifest the Father unto him, and they will take up their abode with him, and the visions of heavens will be opened unto him, and the Lord will teach him face to face, and he may have a perfect knowledge of the mysteries of the Kingdom of God". (Teachings of the Prophet Joseph Smith pg. 151).

After the anointing, the husband then anoints his wife or wives Queens and Priestess to him. When a man has more than one wife, the women are anointed in the order of their marriages. the washing and anointing is then sealed over the alter, with the man at the right, and the wife or wives on the left hand.
Garments: After the anointing the marks on the garments are then changed. Following the ordinances, the Chief Officiator gives instructions to the male candidate and his wife, concerning the 2nd part of the ceremony. The ordinance of washing of the feet is explained, and the meeting is closed with prayer.
Last Anointing: or second part of the ceremony, takes place with only the husband and wife present. Following the instructions given in the temple during the 2nd anointing. ceremonies the couple meet to attend "to the Last Anointings, that of the feet." The meeting is begun with prayer by the wife, opening song, converso over duties to each other and children, then they read

John 12:1-8, and also the 132 Section of the D&C, they then dedicate the room for purpose of meeting.

|v1 Then Jesus six days before the passover came to Bethany, where Lazarus was which had been dead, whom he raised from the dead.
|v2 There they made him a supper; and Martha served: but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him.
|v3 Then took Mary a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair: and the house was filled with the odour of the ointment.
|v4 Then saith one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, which should betray him,
|v5 Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence, and given to the poor?
|v6 This he said, not that he cared for the poor; but because he was a thief, and had the bag, and bare what was put therein.
|v7 Then said Jesus, Let her alone: against the day of my burying hath she kept this.
|v8 For the poor always ye have with you; but me ye have not always. (NewT:John 12:1-8)

v0 Revelation given through Joseph Smith the Prophet, at Nauvoo, Illinois, recorded July 12, 1843, relating to the new and everlasting covenant, including the eternity of the marriage covenant, as also plurality of wives. HC 5:501-507. Although the revelation was recorded in 1843, it is evident from the historical records that the doctrines and principles involved in this revelation had been known by the Prophet since 1831.

1- 6, Exaltation is gained through the new and everlasting covenant;
7-14, The terms and condition of that covenant are set forth;
15-20, Celestial marriage and a continuation of the family unit enable men to become gods;
21-25, The strait and narrow way that leads to eternal lives;
26-27, Law given relative to blasphemy against the Holy Ghost;
28-39, Promises of eternal increase and exaltation made to prophets and saints in all ages;
40-47, Joseph Smith is given the power to bind and seal on earth and in heaven;
48-50, The Lord seals upon him his exaltation;
51-57, Emma Smith is counseled to be faithful and true;
58-66, Laws governing the plurality of wives are set forth.

|v1 Verily, thus saith the Lord unto you my servant Joseph, that inasmuch as you have inquired of my hand to know and understand wherein I, the Lord, justified my servants Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, as also Moses, David and Solomon, my servants, as touching the principle and doctrine of their having many wives and concubines--
|v2 Behold, and lo, I am the Lord thy God, and will answer thee as touching this matter.
|v3 Therefore, prepare thy heart to receive and obey the instructions which I am about to give unto you; for all those who have this law revealed unto them must obey the same.
|v4 For behold, I reveal unto you a new and an everlasting covenant; and if ye abide not that covenant, then are ye damned; for no one can reject this covenant and be permitted to enter into my glory.
|v5 For all who will have a blessing at my hands shall abide the law which was appointed for that blessing, and the conditions thereof, as were instituted from before the foundation of the world.
|v6 And as pertaining to the new and everlasting covenant, it was instituted for the fulness of my glory; and he that receiveth a fulness thereof must and shall abide the law, or he shall be damned, saith the Lord God.

|v7 And verily I say unto you, that the conditions of this law are these: All covenants, contracts, bonds, obligations, oaths, vows, performances, connections, associations, or expectations, that are not made and entered into and sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, of him who is anointed, both as well for time and for all eternity, and that too most holy, by revelation and commandment through the medium of mine anointed, whom I have appointed on the earth to hold this power (and I have appointed unto my servant Joseph to hold this power in the last days, and there is never but one on the earth at a time on whom this power and the keys of this priesthood are conferred), are of no efficacy, virtue, or force in and after the resurrection from the dead; for all contracts that are not made unto this end have an end when men are dead.
|v8 Behold, mine house is a house of order, saith the Lord God, and not a house of confusion.
|v9 Will I accept of an offering, saith the Lord, that is not made in my name?
|v10 Or will I receive at your hands that which I have not appointed?
|v11 And will I appoint unto you, saith the Lord, except it be by law, even as I and my Father ordained unto you, before the world was?
|v12 I am the Lord thy God; and I give unto you this commandment--that no man shall come unto the Father but by me or by my word, which is my law, saith the Lord.
|v13 And everything that is in the world, whether it be ordained of men, by thrones, or principalities, or powers, or things of name, whatsoever they may be, that are not by me or by my word, saith the Lord, shall be thrown down, and shall not remain after men are dead, neither in nor after the resurrection, saith the Lord your God.
|v14 For whatsoever things remain are by me; and whatsoever things are not by me shall be shaken and destroyed.
|v15 Therefore, if a man marry him a wife in the world, and he marry her not by me nor by my word, and he covenant with her so long as he is in the world and she with him, their covenant and marriage are not of force when they are dead, and when they are out of the world; therefore, they are not bound by any law when they are out of the world.
|v16 Therefore, when they are out of the world they neither marry nor are given in marriage; but are appointed angels in heaven, which angels are ministering servants, to minister for those who are worthy of a far more, and an exceeding, and an eternal weight of glory.
|v17 For these angels did not abide my law; therefore, they cannot be enlarged, but remain separately and singly, without exaltation, in their saved condition, to all eternity; and from henceforth are not gods, but are angels of God forever and ever.
|v18 And again, verily I say unto you, if a man marry a wife, and make a covenant with her for time and for all eternity, if that covenant is not by me or by my word, which is my law, and is not sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, through him whom I have anointed and appointed unto this power, then it is not valid neither of force when they are out of the world, because they are not joined by me, saith the Lord, neither by my word; when they are out of the world it cannot be received there, because the angels and the gods are appointed there, by whom they cannot pass; they cannot, therefore, inherit my glory; for my house is a house of order, saith the Lord God.
|v19 And again, verily I say unto you, if a man marry a wife by my word, which is my law, and by the new and everlasting covenant, and it is sealed unto them by the Holy Spirit of promise, by him who is anointed, unto whom I have appointed this power and the keys of this priesthood; and it shall be said unto them--Ye shall come forth in the first resurrection; and if it be after the first resurrection, in the next resurrection; and shall inherit thrones, kingdoms, principalities, and powers, dominions, all heights and depths--then shall it be written in the Lamb's Book of Life, that he shall commit no murder whereby to shed innocent blood, and if ye abide in my covenant, and commit no murder whereby to shed innocent blood, it shall be done unto them in all things whatsoever my servant hath put upon them, in time, and through all eternity; and shall be of full force when they are out of the world; and they shall pass by the angels, and the gods, which are set there, to their exaltation and glory in all things, as hath been sealed upon their heads, which glory shall be a fulness and a continuation of the seeds forever and ever.

|v20 Then shall they be gods, because they have no end; therefore shall they be from everlasting to everlasting, because they continue; then shall they be above all, because all things are subject unto them. Then shall they be gods, because they have all power, and the angels are subject unto them.

|v21 Verily, verily, I say unto you, except ye abide my law ye cannot attain to this glory.

|v22 For strait is the gate, and narrow the way that leadeth unto the exaltation and continuation of the lives, and few there be that find it, because ye receive me not in the world neither do ye know me.

|v23 But if ye receive me in the world, then shall ye know me, and shall receive your exaltation; that where I am ye shall be also.

|v24 This is eternal lives--to know the only wise and true God, and Jesus Christ, whom he hath sent. I am he. Receive ye, therefore, my law.

|v25 Broad is the gate, and wide the way that leadeth to the deaths; and many there are that go in thereat, because they receive me not, neither do they abide in my law.

|v26 Verily, verily, I say unto you, if a man marry a wife according to my word, and they are sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, according to mine appointment, and he or she shall commit any sin or transgression of the new and everlasting covenant whatever, and all manner of blasphemies, and if they commit no murder wherein they shed innocent blood, yet they shall come forth in the first resurrection, and enter into their exaltation; but they shall be destroyed in the flesh, and shall be delivered unto the buffetings of Satan unto the day of redemption, saith the Lord God.

|v27 The blasphemy against the Holy Ghost, which shall not be forgiven in the world nor out of the world, is in that ye commit murder wherein ye shed innocent blood, and assent unto my death, after ye have received my new and everlasting covenant, saith the Lord God; and he that abideth not this law can in nowise enter into my glory, but shall be damned, saith the Lord.

|v28 I am the Lord thy God, and will give unto thee the law of my Holy Priesthood, as was ordained by me and my Father before the world was.

|v29 Abraham received all things, whatsoever he received, by revelation and commandment, by my word, saith the Lord, and hath entered into his exaltation and sitteth upon his throne.

|v30 Abraham received promises concerning his seed, and of the fruit of his loins--from whose loins ye are, namely, my servant Joseph--which were to continue so long as they were in the world; and as touching Abraham and his seed, out of the world they should continue; both in the world and out of the world should they continue as innumerable as the stars; or, if ye were to count the sand upon the seashore ye could not number them.

|v31 This promise is yours also, because ye are of Abraham, and the promise was made unto Abraham; and by this law is the continuation of the works of my Father, wherein he glorifieth himself.
|v32 Go ye, therefore, and do the works of Abraham; enter ye into my law and ye shall be saved.
|v33 But if ye enter not into my law ye cannot receive the promise of my Father, which he made unto Abraham.
|v34 God commanded Abraham, and Sarah gave Hagar to Abraham to wife. And why did she do it? Because this was the law; and from Hagar sprang many people. This, therefore, was fulfilling, among other things, the promises.
|v35 Was Abraham, therefore, under condemnation? Verily I say unto you, Nay; for I, the Lord, commanded it.
|v36 Abraham was commanded to offer his son Isaac; nevertheless, it was written: Thou shalt not kill. Abraham, however, did not refuse, and it was accounted unto him for righteousness.
|v37 Abraham received concubines, and they bore him children; and it was accounted unto him for righteousness, because they were given unto him, and he abode in my law; as Isaac also and Jacob did none other things than that which they were commanded; and because they did none other things than that which they were commanded, they have entered into their exaltation, according to the promises, and sit upon thrones, and are not angels but are gods.
|v38 David also received many wives and concubines, and also Solomon and Moses my servants, as also many others of my servants, from the beginning of creation until this time; and in nothing did they sin save in those things which they received not of me.
|v39 David's wives and concubines were given unto him of me, by the hand of Nathan, my servant, and others of the prophets who had the keys of this power; and in none of these things did he sin against me save in the case of Uriah and his wife; and, therefore he hath fallen from his exaltation, and received his portion; and he shall not inherit them out of the world, for I gave them unto another, saith the Lord. |v40 I am the Lord thy God, and I gave unto thee, my servant Joseph, an appointment, and restore all things. Ask what ye will, and it shall be given unto you according to my word.
|v41 And as ye have asked concerning adultery, verily, verily, I say unto you, if a man receiveth a wife in the new and everlasting covenant, and if she be with another man, and I have not appointed unto her by the holy anointing, she hath committed adultery and shall be destroyed.
|v42 If she be not in the new and everlasting covenant, and she be with another man, she has committed adultery.
|v43 And if her husband be with another woman, and he was under a vow, he hath broken his vow and hath committed adultery.
|v44 And if she hath not committed adultery, but is innocent and hath not broken her vow, and she knoweth it, and I reveal it unto you, my servant Joseph, then shall you have power, by the power of my Holy Priesthood, to take her and give her unto him that hath not committed adultery but hath been faithful; for he shall be made ruler over many.
|v45 For I have conferred upon you the keys and power of the priesthood, wherein I restore all things, and make known unto you all things in due time.
|v46 And verily, verily, I say unto you, that whatsoever you seal on earth shall be sealed in heaven; and whatsoever you bind on earth, in my name and by my word, saith the Lord, it shall be eternally bound in the heavens; and whosesoever sins you remit on earth shall be remitted eternally in the heavens; and whosesoever sins you retain on earth shall be retained in heaven.

|v47 And again, verily I say, whomsoever you bless I will bless, and whomsoever you curse I will curse, saith the Lord; for I, the Lord, am thy God.
|v48 And again, verily I say unto you, my servant Joseph, that whatsoever you give on earth, and to whomsoever you give any one on earth, by my word and according to my law, it shall be visited with blessings and not cursings, and with my power, saith the Lord, and shall be without condemnation on earth and in heaven.
|v49 For I am the Lord thy God, and will be with thee even unto the end of the world, and through all eternity; for verily I seal upon you your exaltation, and prepare a throne for you in the kingdom of my Father, with Abraham your father.
|v50 Behold, I have seen your sacrifices, and will forgive all your sins; I have seen your sacrifices in obedience to that which I have told you. Go, therefore, and I make a way for your escape, as I accepted the offering of Abraham of his son Isaac. |v51 Verily, I say unto you: A commandment I give unto mine handmaid, Emma Smith, your wife, whom I have given unto you, that she stay herself and partake not of that which I commanded you to offer unto her; for I did it, saith the Lord, to prove you all, as I did Abraham, and that I might require an offering at your hand, by covenant and sacrifice.
|v52 And let mine handmaid, Emma Smith, receive all those that have been given unto my servant Joseph, and who are virtuous and pure before me; and those who are not pure, and have said they were pure, shall be destroyed, saith the Lord God.
|v53 For I am the Lord thy God, and ye shall obey my voice; and I give unto my servant Joseph that he shall be made ruler over many things; for he hath been faithful over a few things, and from henceforth I will strengthen him.
|v54 And I command mine handmaid, Emma Smith, to abide and cleave unto my servant Joseph, and to none else. But if she will not abide this commandment she shall be destroyed, saith the Lord; for I am the Lord thy God, and will destroy her if she abide not in my law.
|v55 But if she will not abide this commandment, then shall my servant Joseph do all things for her, even as he hath said; and I will bless him and multiply him and give unto him an hundred-fold in this world, of fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, houses and lands, wives and children, and crowns of eternal lives in the eternal worlds.
|v56 And again, verily I say, let mine handmaid forgive my servant Joseph his trespasses; and then shall she be forgiven her trespasses, wherein she has trespassed against me; and I, the Lord thy God, will bless her, and multiply her, and make her heart to rejoice.
|v57 And again, I say, let not my servant Joseph put his property out of his hands, lest an enemy come and destroy him; for Satan seeketh to destroy; for I am the Lord thy God, and he is my servant; and behold, and lo, I am with him, as I was with Abraham, thy father, even unto his exaltation and glory.
|v58 Now, as touching the law of the priesthood, there are many things pertaining thereunto.
|v59 Verily, if a man be called of my Father, as was Aaron, by mine own voice, and by the voice of him that sent me, and I have endowed him with the keys of the power of this priesthood, if he do anything in my name, and according to my law and by my word, he will not commit sin, and I will justify him.
|v60 Let no one, therefore, set on my servant Joseph; for I will justify him; for he shall do the sacrifice which I require at his hands for his transgressions, saith the Lord your God.
|v61 And again, as pertaining to the law of the priesthood--if any man espouse a virgin, and desire to espouse another, and the first give her consent, and if he espouse the second, and they are virgins, and have vowed to no other man, then is he justified; he cannot commit adultery for they are given unto him; for he cannot commit adultery with that that belongeth unto him and to no one else.

|v62 And if he have ten virgins given unto him by this law, he cannot commit adultery, for they belong to him, and they are given unto him; therefore is he justified.
|v63 But if one or either of the ten virgins, after she is espoused, shall be with another man, she has committed adultery, and shall be destroyed; for they are given unto him to multiply and replenish the earth, according to my commandment, and to fulfil the promise which was given by my Father before the foundation of the world, and for their exaltation in the eternal worlds, that they may bear the souls of men; for herein is the work of my Father continued, that he may be glorified.
|v64 And again, verily, verily, I say unto you, if any man have a wife, who holds the keys of this power, and he teaches unto her the law of my priesthood, as pertaining to these things, then shall she believe and administer unto him, or she shall be destroyed, saith the Lord your God; for I will destroy her; for I will magnify my name upon all those who receive and abide in my law.
|v65 Therefore, it shall be lawful in me, if she receive not this law, for him to receive all things whatsoever I, the Lord his God, will give unto him, because she did not believe and administer unto him according to my word; and she then becomes the transgressor; and he is exempt from the law of Sarah, who administered unto Abraham according to the law when I commanded Abraham to take Hagar to wife.
|v66 And now, as pertaining to this law, verily, verily, I say unto you, I will reveal more unto you, hereafter; therefore, let this suffice for the present. Behold, I am Alpha and Omega. Amen.

The Husband then receives washing of feet and is anointed by the wife for burial, (The feet, head,a dn stomach are anointed, with the hair of the wife) they then have a closing prayer, dedicatory prayer.

If one lives worthy of The Higher Blessings and does not receive them in this life, the ordinance may be preformed by proxy.
Note: The wife anoints Husband so that she may have claim on him in the resurrection. (as Mary did Jesus).

Elect Lady

An elect lady is a female member of the Church who has already received, or who through obedience is qualified to receive, the fulness of gospel blessings. This includes [1] temple endowments, [2] celestial marriage, and [3] the fulness of the sealing power. She is one who has been elected or chosen by faithfulness as a daughter of God in this life, and heir of God, a member of his household. Her position is comparable to that of the elders who magnify their callings in the preisthood and thereby receive all that the Father hath. (D. & C. 84:38.)

In the early days of this dispensation Emma Smith, the Prophet's wife, was in such complete harmony with the Lord's porgram that he forgave her of her sins and addressed her as an elect lady. (D. & C. 25:1-3; History of the Chruch, vol. 4, p. 552.) John the Beloved used a similar salutation to certain chosen women in his day. (2 John 1, 13.) Just as it is possible for the very elect to be deceived, and to fall from grace through disobedience, so an elect lady, by failing to endure to the end, can lose her chosen status. (Mormon Doctrine, p. 217).

...Those women who go on to thir exaltation, ruling and reigning with husbands who are kings and priests, will themselves be queens and priestes. They will hold positions of power, authority, and perferment in eternity. (Gospel Kingdom, pp. 221-222, 229.) (Mormon Doctrine, p. 596.)

The Washing of the Apostles' Feet:

Now before the feast of the passover, when Jesus knew that his hour was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end. And supper being ended, the devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray him; Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was come from God, and went to God; He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself. After that he poureth water into a basin, and he began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded. Then cometh he to Simon Peter; and Peter saith unto him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet? Jesus answered and said unto him, what I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter. Peter saith unto him, Thou needest not to wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me. Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord not my feet only, but also my hands and my head. Jesus saith to him, He that has washed his hands and his head, needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit; and ye are clean, but not all. Now this was the custom of the Jews under their law; wherefore, Jesus did this that the law might be fulfilled. For he knew who should betray him; therefore said he, Ye are not all clean. So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you? Ye call me Master and Lord; [p. 2] and ye say well; for so I am. If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed you feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you. Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him. If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.

Anointing and Sealing:

Calling and Election--Sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise:

In whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation; in whom also, after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that Holy Spirit of Promise, which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory. Knowing Christ:

Brethren, this is the testimony which we give of that which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes. which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled, of the [p. 3] Word of life; (For the life was manifested, and we have seen it, and bear witness, and show unto you that eternal life, which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us;) that which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us; and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ.

Kings and Priests unto God in Eternity:

Therefore, I, John, the faithful witness, bear record of the things which were delivered me of the angel, and from Jesus Christ the first begotten of the dead, and the prince of the kings of the earth. And unto him who loved us, be glory; who washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God, his Father. To him be glory and dominion, for ever and ever. Amen.
I.V. Revelation 1: 5, 6.

Thou (Christ) art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof; for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; and hast made us unto our God kings and priests; and we shall reign on the earth.

Holy Spirit of Promise--Church of the Firstborn--Heirs of All Things Priests and Kings--ln Life are Gods:

And again we bear record--for we saw and heard, and this is the testimony of the gospel of Christ concerning them who shall come forth in the resurrection of the just--They are they who received the testimony of Jesus, and believed on his name and were baptized after the manner of his burial, being buried in the water in his name, and this according to the commandment which he has given--that by keeping the commandments they might be washed and cleansed from all their sins, and receive the Holy Spirit by the laying on of the hands of him who is ordained and sealed unto this power; and who overcome by faith, and are sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, which the Father sheds forth upon all those who are just and true. They are they who are the church of the Firstborn. They are they into whose hands the Father has given all things--they are they who are priests and kings, who have received of his fulness, and of his glory; and are priests of the Most High, after the order of Melchizedek, which was after the order of Enoch, which was after the order of the Only Begotten Son. Wherefore, as it is written, they are gods, even the sons of God.

Initiation Rites For the School of the Prophets: [p. 5]

And again, the order of the house prepared for the presidency of the school of the prophets, established for their instruction in all things that are expedient for them, even for all the officers of the church, or in other words, those who are called to the ministry in the church, beginning at the high priests, even down to the deacons--and this shall be the order of the house of the presidency of the school; He that is appointed to be president, or teacher, shall be found standing in his place, in the house which shall be prepared for him. Therefore, he shall be first in the house of God, in a place that the congregation in the house may hear his words carefully and distinctly. not with loud speech. And when he cometh into the house of God, for he should be first in the house--behold, this is beautiful, that he may be an example--let him offer himself in prayer upon his knees before God, in token or remembrance of the everlasting covenant. And when any shall come in after him, let the teacher arise, and, with uplifted hands to heaven, yea, even directly, salute his brother or brethren with these words: Art thou a brother or brethren? I salute you in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, in token or remembrance of the everlasting covenant, in which covenant I receive you to fellowship, in a determination that is fixed, immovable, and unchangeable, to be your friend and brother through the grace of God in the bonds of love, to walk in all the commandments of God blameless, in thanksgiving, forever and ever. Amen. * And ye shall not receive any among you into this school save he is clean from the blood of this generation; and he shall be received by the ordinance of the washing of feet, for unto this end was the ordinance of the washing of feet instituted. [p. 6] And again, the ordinance of washing feet is to be administered by the president, or presiding elder of the church. lt is to be commenced with prayer; and after partaking of bread and wine, he is to gird himself according to the pattern given in the thirteenth chapter of John's testimony concerning me. Amen.

Gospel Mysteries

On the 23rd, we again assembled in conference; when, after much speaking, singing, praying, and praising God, all in tongues, we proceeded to the washing of feet (according to the practice recorded in the 13th chapter of John's Gospel), as commanded of the Lord. Each Elder washed his own feet first, after which I girded myself with a towel and washed the feet of all of them, wiping them with the towel with which I was girded. Among the number, my father presented himself, but before I washed his feet, I asked of him a father's blessing, which he granted by laying his hands upon my head, in the name of Jesus Christ, and declaring that I should continue in the Priest's office until Christ comes. At the close of the scene, Brother Fredrick G. Williams, being moved upon by the Holy Ghost, washed my feet in token of his fixed determination to be with me in suffering, or in journeying, in life or in death, and to be continually on my right hand; in which I accepted him in the name of the Lord.
I then said to the Elders, As I have done so do ye; wash ye, therefore, one another's feet; and by the power of the Holy Ghost I pronounced them all clean from the blood of this generation; but if any of them should sin wilfully after they were thus cleansed, and sealed up unto eternal [p. 7] life, they should be given over unto the buffetings of Satan until the day or redemption. Having continued all day in fasting, and prayer, and ordinances, we closed by partaking of the Lord's supper. I blessed the bread and wine in the name of the Lord, when we all ate and drank, and were filled; then we sung a hymn, and the meeting adjourned. History of the Church, Vol. 1: 323, 324.

Those Who Are To Be Crowned Kings Must Make Their Calling and Election Sure:

In the 22nd chapter of Luke's account of the Messiah, we find the kingdom of heaven likened unto a king who made a marriage for his son. That this son was the Messiah will not be disputed, since it was the kingdom of heaven that was represented in the parable; and that the Saints, or those who are found faithful to the Lord, are the individuals who will be found worthy to inherit a seat at the marriage supper, is evident from the sayinqs of John in the Revelation where he represents the sound which he heard in heaven to be like a great multitude, or like the voice of mighty thunderings, saying, the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth. Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honor to Him; for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and His wife hath made herself ready. And to her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white: for the fine linen is the righteousness of the Saints (Rev. 19).
That those who keep the commandments of the Lord and walk in His statutes to the end, are the only individuals permitted to sit at this glorious feast, is evident from the following items in Paul's [p. 8] last letter to Timothy, which was written just previous to his death--he says: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love His appearing." No one who believes the account, will doubt for a moment this assertion of Paul which was made, as he knew, just before he was to take his leave of this world. Though he once, according to his own word, persecuted the Church of God and wasted it, yet after embracing the faith, his labors were unceasing to spread the glorious news: and like a faithful soldier, when called to give his life in the cause which he had espoused, he laid it down, as he says, with an assurance of an eternal crown. Follow the labors of this Apostle from the time of his conversion to the time of his death, and you will have a fair sample of industry and patience in promulgating the Gospel of Christ. Derided, whipped, and stoned, the moment he escaped the hands of his persecutors he as zealously as ever proclaimed the doctrine of the Savior. And all may know that he did not embrace the faith for honor in this life, nor for the gain of earthly goods. What, then, could have induced him to undergo all this toil? It was, as he said, that he might obtain the crown of righteousness from the hand of God. No one, we presume, will doubt the faithfulness of Paul to the end. None will say that he did not keep the faith, that he did not fight the good fight, that he did not preach and persuade to the last. And what was he to receive? A crown of righteousness. And what shall others receive who do not labor faithfully, and continue to the end? We [p. 9] leave such to search out their own promises if any they have; and if they have any they are welcome to them, on our part, for the Lord says that every man is to receive according to his works. Reflect for a moment, brethren, and enquire, whether you would consider yourselves worthy a seat at the marriage feast with Paul and others like him, if you had been unfaithful? Had you not fought the good fight, and kept the faith, could you expect to receive? Have you a promise of receiving a crown of righteousness from the hand of the Lord, with the Church of the Firstborn? Here then, we understand, that Paul rested his hope in Christ, because he had kept the faith, and loved His appearing and from His hand he had a promise of receiving a crown of righteousness.

The Righteous Saints Will Be Crowned Kings For Eternity:

If the Saints are not to reign, for what purpose are they crowned? In an exhortation of the Lord to a certain Church in Asia, which was built up in the days of the Apostles, unto whom He communicated His word on that occasion by His servant John, He says, Behold, I come quickly: hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown." And again, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with Me in My throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with My Father in His Throne" (see Rev. 3). And again, it is written, "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when He shall appear, we shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is. And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as He is pure." (1 John 3: 2, 3). How is it that these old Apostles should say so much on the subject of the coming of Christ? [p. 10] He certainly had once come; but Paul says, To all who love His appearing, shall be given the crown: and John says, When He shall appear, we shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is. Can we mistake such language as this? Do we not offer violence to our own good judgment when we deny the second coming of the Messiah? When has He partaken of the fruit of the vine new with His ancient Apostles in His Father's kingdom, as He promised He would just before he was crucified? In Paul's epistle to the Philippians (3:20,21) he says: "For our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ: who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto His glorious body, according to the working whereby He is able even to subdue all things unto Himself." We find another promise to individuals living in the Church at Sardis who had not defiled their garments: "And they shall walk with me in white: for they are worthy. He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before His angels." John represents the sound which he heard from heaven, as giving thanks and glory to God, saying that the Lamb was worthy to take the book and to open its seals; because he was slain, and had made them kings and priests unto God: and they should reign on the earth (see Rev. 5). In the 20th chapter we find a length of time specified, during which Satan is to be confined in his own place, and the Saints reign in peace, all these promises and blessings we find contained in the law of the Lord, which the righteous are to enjoy: and we might enumerate many more places [p. 11] where the same or similar promises are made to the faithful, but we do not deem it of importance to rehearse them here, as this epistle is now lengthy; and our brethren, no doubt, are familiar with them all.

Most assuredly it is, however, that the ancients, though persecuted and afflicted by men, obtained from God promises of such weight and glory, that our hearts are often filled with gratitude that we are even permitted to look upon them while we contemplate that there is no respect of persons in His sight, and that in every nation, he that feareth God and worketh righteousness, is acceptable with Him. But from the few items previously quoted we can draw the conclusion that there is to be a day when all will be judged of their works, and rewarded according to the same; that those who have kept the faith will be crowned with a crown of righteousness; be clothed in white raiment; be admitted to the marriage feast; be free from every affliction, and reign with Christ on the earth, where, according to the ancient promise, they will partake of the fruit of the vine new in the glorious kingdom with Him; at least we find such promises were made to the ancient Saints. And though we cannot claim these promises which were made to the ancients for they are not our property, merely because they were made to the ancient Saints, yet if we are the children of the Most High, and are called with the same calling with which they were called, and embrace the same covenant that they embraced, and are faithful to the testimony of our Lord as they were, we can approach the Father in the name of Christ as they approached Him, and for ourselves obtain the same promises. These promises, when obtained, if ever by us, will not be because peter, John, and the [p. 12] other Apostles, with the churches at Sardis, Pergamos, Philadelphia, and elsewhere, walked in the fear of God, and had power and faith to prevail and obtain them; but it will be because we, ourselves, have faith and approach God in the name of His Son Jesus Christ, even as they did; and when these promises are obtained, they will be promises directly to us, or they will do us no good. They will be communicated for our benefit, being our own property (through the gift of God), earned by our own diligence in keeping His commandments and walking uprightly before Him. If not, to what end serves the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, and why was it ever communicated to us? Teachings of the Prophet Joseph Smith, pp. 63-66.

The Prophets Discourse on the Ordinance of the Washing of the Feet: * This evening, at 6 o'clock, met with the Council of the Twelve, by their request. Nine of them were present. Council opened by singing and prayer. And I made some remarks as follows--
I am happy in the enjoyment of this opportunity of meeting with this Council on this occasion. I am satisfied that the Spirit of the Lord is here, and I am satisfied with all the brethren present; and I need not say that you have my utmost confidence, and that I intend to uphold you to the uttermost, for I am well aware that you have to sustain my character against the vile calumnies and reproaches of this ungodly generation, and that you delight in so doing. Darkness prevails at this time as it did at the time Jesus Christ was about to be crucified. The powers of darkness strove to [p. 13] obscure the glorious Son of righteousness, that began to dawn upon the world, and was soon to burst in great blessings upon the heads of the faithful; and let me tell you, brethren, that great blessings await us at this time, and will soon be poured out upon us, if we are faithful in all things, for we are even entitled to greater spiritual blessings than they were, because they had Christ in person with them, to instruct them in the great plan of salvation. His personal presence we have not, therefore we have need of greater faith, on account of our peculiar circumstances; and I am determined to do all that I can to uphold you, although I may do many things inadvertently that are not right in the sight of God.

You want to know many things that are before you, that you may know how to prepare yourselves for the great things that God is about to bring to pass. But there is one great deficiency or obstruction in the way, that deprives us of the greater blessings; and in order to make the foundation of this Church complete and permanent, we must remove this obstruction, which is, to attend to certain duties that we have not as yet attended to. I supposed I had established this Church on a permanent foundation when I went to Missouri, and indeed I did so, for if I had been taken away, it would have been enough, but I yet live, and therefore God requires more at my hands. The item to which I wish the more particularly to call your attention to-night, is the ordinance of washing of feet. This we have not done as yet, but it is necessary now. as much as it was in the days of the Savior; and we must have a place prepared, that we may attend to this ordinance aside from the world. [p. 14]
We have not desired as much from the hand of the Lord through faith and obedience, as we ought to have done, yet we have enjoyed great blessings, and we are not so sensible of this as we should be. When or where has God suffered one of the witnesses or first Elders of this Church to fall? Never, and nowhere. Amidst all the calamities and judgments that have befallen the inhabitants of the earth, His almighty arm has sustained us, men and devils have raged and spent their malice in vain. We must have all things prepared, and call our solemn assembly as the Lord has commanded us, that we may be able to accomplish His great work, and it must be done in God's own way. The house of the Lord must be prepared, and the solemn assembly called and organized in it, according to the order of the house of God; and in it we must attend to the ordinance of washing of feet. It was never intended for any but official members. It is calculated to unite our hearts, that we may be one in feeling and sentiment, and that our faith may be strong, so that Satan cannot overthrow us, nor have any power over us here.
The endowment you are so anxious about you cannot comprehend now, nor could Gabriel explain it to the understanding of your dark minds; but strive to be prepared in your hearts, be faithful in all things, that when we meet in the solemn assembly, that is, when such as God shall name out of all the official members shall meet, we must be clean every whit. Let us be faithful and silent, brethren, and if God gives you a manifestation, keep it to yourselves; be watchful and prayerful, and you shall have a prelude of those joys that God will pour out on that day. Do not watch for iniquity in each other, if you do you will not get an endowment, for God will not bestow it on such. But if we are faithful, and live by [p. 15] every word that proceeds forth from the mouth of God, I will venture to prophesy that we shall get a blessing that will be worth remembering, if we should live as long as John the Revelator; our blessings will be such as we have not realized before, nor received in this generation. The order of the house of God has been, and ever will be, the same, even after Christ comes; and after the termination of the thousand years it will be the same; and we shall finally enter into the celestial kingdom of God, and enjoy it forever.
You need an endowment, brethren, in order that you may be prepared and able to overcome all things; and those that reject your testimony will be damned. The sick will be healed, the lame made to walk, the deaf to hear, and the blind to see, through your instrumentality. But let me tell you, that you will not have power, after the endowment to heal those that have not faith, nor to benefit them, for you might as well expect to benefit a devil in hell as such as are possessed of his spirit, and are willing to keep it: for they are habitations for devils, and only fit for his society. But when you are endowed and prepared to preach the Gospel to all nations, kindreds, and tongues, in their own languages, you must faithfully warn all, and bind up the testimony, and seal up the law, and the destroying angel will follow close at your heels, and exercise his tremendous mission upon the children of disobedience; and destroy the workers of iniquity, while the Saints will be gathered out from among them, and stand in holy places ready to meet the Bridegroom when he comes.

I feel disposed to speak a few words more to you, my brethren, concerning the endowment: All who are prepared and are sufficiently pure to abide the presence of the Savior, will see Him in the solemn assembly. [p. 16] The brethren expressed their gratification for the instruction I had given them. We then closed by prayer, when I returned home and retired to rest.

The Spirit of God like a fire is burning!
The latter-day glory begins to come forth;
The visions and blessings of old are returning,
The angels are coming to visit the earth.
We'll sing and we'll shout with the armies of heaven-Hosanna, hosanna to God and the Lamb!
Let glory to them in the highest be given,
Henceforth and forever: amen and amen.
The Lord is extending the Saints' understanding,
Restoring their judges and all as at first;
The knowledge and power of God are expanding;
The veil o'ver the earth is beginning to burst.
We'll sing and we'll shou (sic), etc. [p. 17]
We'll call in our solemn assemblies in spirit,
To spread forth the kingdom of heaven abroad,
That we through our faith may begin to inherit
The visions and blessings and glories of God.
We'll sing and we'll shout, etc.
We'll wash and be washed, and with oil be anointed,
Withal not omitting the washing of feet;
For he that receiveth his penny appointed
Must surely be clean at the harvest of wheat.
We'll sing and we'll shout, etc.

Blessings Poured Out as a Consequence of Obedience to Attending Ordinances:

Soon after this, the word of the Lord came, through President Joseph Smith, Jun., that those who had entered the holy place, must not leave the house until morning, but send for such things as were necessary, and also, during our stay, we must cleanse our feet and partake of the Sacrament that we might be made holy before Him, and thereby be qualified to officiate in our calling, upon the morrow, in washing the feet of the Elders.
Accordingly we proceeded to cleanse our faces and our feet, and then proceeded to wash one another's feet. President Sidney Rigdon first washed President Joseph Smith, Junior's feet, and then, in turn, was washed by him; after which President Rigdon washed President Joseph Smith, Sen., and Hyrum Smith. President Joseph Smith, Jun., washed President Frederick G. Williams, and then President Hyrum Smith washed President David Whitmer's [p. 18] and President Oliver Cowdery's feet. Then President David Whitmer washed President William W. Phelps' feet, and in turn President Phelps washed President John Whitmer's feet. The Bishops and their Counselors were then washed, after which we partook of the bread and wine. The Holy Spirit rested down upon us, and we continued in the Lord's House all night, prophesying and giving glory to God.

Wednesday, 30.--At eight o'clock, according to appointment, the Presidency, the Twelve, the Seventies, the High Council, the Bishops and their entire quorums, the Elders and all the official members in this stake of Zion, amounting to about three hundred, met in the Temple of the Lord to attend to the ordinance of washing of feet. I ascended the pulpit, and remarked to the congregation that we had passed through many trials and afflictions since the organization of the Church, and that this is a year of jubilee to us, and a time of rejoicing, and that it was expedient for us to prepare bread and wine sufficient to make our hearts glad, as we should not, probably, leave this house until morning; to this end we should call on the brethren to make a contribution. The stewards passed round and took up a liberal contribution, and messengers were dispatched for bread and wine.
Tubs, water, and towels were prepared, and I called the house to order, and the Presidency proceeded to wash the feet of the Twelve, pronouncing many prophecies and blessings upon them in the name of the Lord Jesus; and then the Twelve proceeded to wash the feet of the Presidents of the several quorums. The brethren began to prophesy upon each other's heads, and upon the enemies of Christ, who inhabited Jackson county, Missouri; and continued prophesying, and blessing, and sealing them with [p. 19] hosanna and amen, until nearly seven o'clock in the evening.
The bread and the wine were then brought in, and I observed that we had fasted all the day, and lest we faint, as the Savior did so shall we do on this occasion; we shall bless the bread, and give it to the Twelve, and they to the multitude.

To Say One Knows God One Must Have Handled Something in the 'Holiest of Holies':

Sunday, May 1, 1842.--I preached in the grove, on the keys of the kingdom, charity, &c. The keys are certain signs and words by which [p. 20] false spirits and personages may be detected from true, which cannot be revealed to the Elders till the Temple is completed. The rich can only get them in the Temple, the poor may get them on the mountain top as did Moses. The rich cannot be saved without charity, giving to feed the poor when and how God requires, as well as building. There are signs in heaven, earth and hell; the Elders must know them all, to be endowed with power, to finish their work and prevent imposition. The devil knows many signs, but does not know the sign of the Son of Man, or Jesus. No one can truly say he knows God until he has handled something, and this can only be in the holiest of holies.

Highest Order of the Priesthood Revealed--Patriarchs, Priests and Kings:

Wednesday, 4.--I spent the day in the upper part of the store, that is in my private officein council with General James Adams, of Springfield, Patriarch Hyrum Smith, Bishops Newel K. Whitney and George Miller, and President Brigham Young and Elders Heber C. Kimball and Willard Richards, instructing them in the principles and order of the Priesthood, attending to washings, anointings, endowments and the communication of keys pertaining to the Aaronic Priesthood, and so on to the highest order of the Melchizedek Priesthood, setting forth the order pertaining to the Ancient of Days, and all those plans and principles by which any one is enabled to secure the fullness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the Firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of the Eloheim in the eternal worlds. In this council was instituted the ancient order of things for the first time in these last days. And the communications [p. 21] I made to this council were of things spiritual, and to be received only by the spiritual minded: and there was nothing made known to these men but what will be made known to all the Saints of the last days, so soon as they are prepared to receive, and a proper place is prepared to communicate them, even to the weakest of the Saints; therefore let the Saints be diligent in building the Temple, and all houses which they have been, or shall hereafter be, commanded of God to build; and wait their time with patience in all meekness faith, perseverance unto the end, knowing assuredly that all these things referred to in this council are always governed by the principle of revelation.

The Prophet Joseph Smith's Poetic Rendition of the Vision Concerning The Requirements for Exaltation in the Celestial Kingdom of Glory: [p. 22]

And again I bear record of heavenly things,
Where virtue's the value above all that is priz'd,
Of the truth of the gospel concerning the just,
That rise in the first resurrection of Christ.

Who receiv'd, and believ'd, and repented likewise,
And then were baptiz'd, as a man always was,
Who ask'd and receiv'd a remission of sin,
And honoured the kingdom by keeping its laws.

Being buried in water, as Jesus had been,
And keeping the whole of his holy commands,
They received the gift of the spirit of truth,
By the ordinance truly of laying on hands.

For these overcome, by their faith and their works,
Being tried in their life-time, as purified gold,
And seal'd by the spirit of promise to life,
By men called of God, as was Aaron of old.

They are they, of the church of the first-born of God,
And unto whose hands he committeth all things;
For they hold the keys of the kingdom of heav'n,
And reign with the Saviour, as priests and as kings.

They're priests of the order of Melchisedec,
Like Jesus (from whom is this highest reward),
Receiving a fulness of glory and light;
As written--they're God's, even sons of the Lord.

Salvation in Knowing You Are Sealed Up To Eternal Life:

Consider This In Light of the Fact That the 2nd Anointing is the Highest Ordinance of the Temple: [p. 23]

Gospel Mysteries

What was the object of gathering the Jews, or the people of God in any age of the world?  The main object was to build unto the Lord a house whereby He could reveal unto His people the ordinances of His house and the glories of His kingdom, and teach the people the way of salvation; for there are certain ordinances and principles that, when they are taught and practiced, must be done in a place or house built for that purpose.
It was the design of the councils of heaven before the world was, that the principles and laws of the priesthood should be predicated upon the gathering of the people in every age of the world. Jesus did everything to gather the people, and they would not be gathered, and He therefore poured out curses upon them. Ordinances instituted in the heavens before the foundation of the world, in the priesthood, for the salvation of men, are not to be altered or changed. All must be saved on the same principles.
It is for the same purpose that God gathers together His people in the last days, to build unto the Lord a house to prepare them for the ordinances and endowments, washings and anointings, etc. One of the ordinances of the house of the Lord is baptism for the dead. God decreed before the foundation of the world that that ordinance should be administered in a font prepared for that purpose in the house of the Lord. "This is only your opinion, sir," says the sectarian. ****
If a man gets a fullness of the priesthood of God he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordinances of the house of the Lord. * [p. 24]
There are a great many wise men and women too in our midst who are too wise to be taught; therefore they must die in their ignorance, and in the resurrection they will find their mistake. Many seal up the door of heaven by saying, So far God may reveal and I will believe.
All men who become heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordinances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordinances will come short of the fullness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole. ****
A man of God should be endowed with wisdom, knowledge, and understanding, in order to teach and lead the people of God. ***
In the resurrection, some are raised to be angels, others are raised to become Gods.
These things are revealed in the most holy places in a Temple prepared for that purpose. Many of the sects cry out, "Oh, I have the testimony of Jesus; I have the spirit of God; but away with Joe Smith; he says he is a prophet; but there are to be no prophets or revelators in the last days." Stop, sir! The Revelator says that the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy; so by your own mouth you are condemned. But to the text. Why gather the people together in this place? For the same purpose that Jesus wanted to gather the Jews--to receive the ordinances, the blessings, and glories that God has in store for His Saints.

The Conditions of the New and Everlasting Covenant: (commentary)

The expectation of exaltation must be sealed unto you by the Holy Spirit of Promise--that most holy ordinance: the 2nd Anointing must be sealed unto you by revelation and commandment through the medium of the One Anointed---Though you marry a wife in the Temple and the Marriage is sealed, yet it is not said unto you by the Anointed One: "Ye Shall Come Forth In the First Resurrection"--You will not in the Resurrection be Prophets, Priests, Patriarchs, Kings or Gods--But if you know Christ in this world (mortality or the Spirit World), then from then on nothing but the Unpardonable Sin can keep you from exaltation. To sin against the Holy Ghost after receiving this Second Anointing, whereby you are sealed up unto Eternal Lives, is to shed innocent blood or assent unto the death of one of Christ's innocent ones, whom he had bought with a price.....

You Must Have Your Second Anointings To Reign on Celestial Thrones in the Eternities:

The declaration this morning is, that as soon as the Temple and baptismal font are prepared, we calculate to give the Elders of Israel their [p. 28] washings and anointings, and attend to those last and more impressive ordinances, without which we cannot obtain celestial thrones. But there must be a holy place prepared for that purpose. There was a proclamation made during the time that the foundation of the Temple was laid to that effect, and there are provisions made until the work is completed, so that men may receive their endowments and be made kings and priests unto the Most High God, having nothing to do with temporal things, but their whole time will be taken up with things pertaining to the house of God. There must, however, be a place built expressly for that purpose, and for men to be baptized for their dead. It must be built in this central place; for every man who wishes to save his father, mother brothers, sisters and friends, must go through all the ordinances for each one of them separately, the same as for himself, from baptism to ordination, washing and anointings, and receive all the keys and powers of the Priesthood, the same as for himself.

The Sealing Ordinances (including The Second Anointing) Conferred Upon the President of the Church are the Most Sacred of All:

This great and good man (Joseph Smith) was led, before his death, to call the Twelve together, from time to time, and to instruct them in all things pertaining to the kingdom, ordinances, and government of God. * Said he,"I know not why; but for some reason I am constrained to hasten my preparations, and to confer upon the Twelve all the ordinances, keys, covenants, endowments, and sealing ordinances of the priesthood, and so set before them a pattern in all things pertaining to the sanctuary and the endowment therein."  He proceeded to confer on elder Young, the President of the Twelve, the keys of the sealing power, as conferred in the last days by the spirit and power of Elijah, in order to seal the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the hearts of the children to the fathers, lest the whole earth should be smitten with a curse.
This last key of the priesthood is the most sacred of all, and pertains exclusively to the first presidency of the church, without whose sanction and approval or authority, no sealing blessing shall be administered pertaining to things of the resurrection and the life to come.

Full Redemption of the Lamanites Will Include Them Receiving Their Second Anointings in the Temple of the New Jerusalem:

To this city (New Jerusalem), and to its several branches or stakes, shall the Gentiles seek, as to a standard of light and knowledge; yea, the nations and their kings and nobles shall say--Come, and let us go up to the [p. 30] Mount Zion, and to the temple of the Lord, where His holy Priesthood stand to minister more fully, and receive the ordinances of remission, and of sanctification, and redemption, and thus be adopted into the family of Israel, and identified in the same covenants of promise.
The despised and degraded son of the forest, who has wandered in dejection and sorrow, and suffered reproach, shall then drop his disguise and stand forth in manly dignity, and exclaim to the Gentiles who have envied and sold him--"I am

Joseph; does my father yet live?" or, in other words, I am a descendant of that Joseph who was sold into Egypt. You have hated me, and sold me, and thought I was dead; but lo! I live and am heir to the inheritance, titles, honours, priesthood, sceptre, crown, throne, and eternal life and dignity of my fathers, who live for evermore.
He shall then be ordained, washed, anointed with holy oil, and arrayed in fine linen, even in the glorious and beautiful garments and royal robes of the high priesthood, which is after the order of the Son of God; and shall enter into the Holy of Holies, there to be crowned with authority and power which shall never end.
The spirit of the Lord shall then descend upon him like the dew upon the mountains of Hermon, and like refreshing showers of rain upon the flowers of Paradise.
His heart shall expand with knowledge, wide as eternity, and his mind shall comprehend the vast creations of his God, and his eternal purpose of redemption, glory, and exaltation, which was devised in heaven before the worlds were organized; but made manifest in these last days, for the fulness of the Gentiles, and for the exaltation of Israel.
He shall also behold his Redeemer, and be filled with His presence, while the cloud of His glory shall be seen in His temple. [p. 31]

Crowns in Eternity:

The next thing we will speak of will be the reward that will be bestowed upon the resurrected Saints. This is something upon which all inspired men have spoken and written; and it is a theme that rejoices the hearts of the Saints while contemplating it.
The Saints will not receive their crowns of glory until after their resurrection. When the curse in part shall be removed from the world; when wickedness and abomination shall be known no more in the land, then will the Saints come forth clothed with immortality, and be crowned with power and glory as a reward for all their labors. No person will be crowned with power in the eternal word, (we are to be kings and priests to God to all eternity,) unless they have been ordained thereto in this life, previous to their death, or by some friend acting as proxy for them afterwards, and receiving it for them. What is it to be kings and priests? It is to have honor, authority and dominion, having kingdoms to preside over, and subjects to govern, and possessing the ability ever to increase their authority and glory, and extend their dominion.

I was among the first to receive my washings and anointings, and even received my second anointing, which made me an equal in the order of the Priesthood, with the right and authority to build up the kingdom in all the earth, and power to fill any vacancy that might occur. I have officiated in all the different branches, from the highest to the lowest. There were about forty men who attained to that order in the Priesthood, including the twelve Apostles and the first presidency, and to them was intrusted the keeping of the records. I was the head clerk; Franklin D. Richards was my assistant clerk. My office was in room number one, at President Young's apartments. I kept a record of all the sealings, anointings, marriages and adoptions.  In the Temple I took three more wives--Martha Berry, Polly Ann Workman and Delethea Morris, and had all my family sealed to me over the altar, in the Temple, and six of them received their second anointings, that is, the first six wives did, but the last three we had not time to attend to.

Letter Extract of the First Presidency:

Think not, 0 ye Elders of Israel! that your eternal heirship is won, and immutably secured, because you have attained to a portion of the Holy Priesthood, and a few of its initiating ordinances, while as yet your life and security of all your great and glorious blessings in hope and prospect, are as a vapour before the sun; as yet depending wholly on your meekness, faithfulness, and perseverance to the end, in everything good. Think not that you are legally entitled to even one wife, while you live on this earth unless you are sealed up to everlasting lives, by the will and decree of the Eternal Father, and a knowledge of the fact has been communicated to you, through the proper source, and not direct, to you in person. And consider that the blessings you have [p. 35] hitherto received, through the mercies of Him who loveth you, even your Father in heaven,will all be wrested from you, like David's of old, should you err like him. ******

Second Anointings in Nauvoo:

Friday, Dec. 18
Some of the Brethren inquired upon Pres. Young to make inquiries upon certain teachings of Joseph concerning the endowments. Elder Geo. A. Smith said that Joseph taught that but one king and priest could be anointed at one meeting in a private room dedicated by permission to anoint in, and but one person could be anointed in a day, but in the Temple several could be anointed in a day, but at each anointing the meeting was dismissed and then came together again. Pres. Young said that Joseph taught him to take the quorum and anoint them kings and priests to God, and when he got through with that begin at the beginning again to administer for the dead. When the Temple is finished and a place duly prepared we should not be confined to any particular number in sealing and anointing. The rooms next to the east pulpit, or over it will be the place to attend to the second anointings. Under the pulpit in the west end will be the place to offer sacrifices; there will be an altar prepared for that purpose so that when any sacrifices are to be offered they should be offered there.

The Saints to Adopt Joseph Smith as their God:

Some may think what I have said concerning Adam strange, but the period will come when the people will be willing to adopt Joseph Smith as their Prophet, Seer, Revelator and God, but not the Father of their spirits, for that was our Father Adam.

Prest. (George A.) Brother George A. Smith, in the foregoing recital, incidentally remarked that Elder Sidney Rigdon had never received the Second Anointing, [p. 37] nor the keys pertaining to baptism for the dead.

I also wish to know if the sealing of My Mother to Mr John M Burk, in Nauvoo can be changed. As she did not wish to be Sealed to him--But Brother Young told her to let it be so for the present, and it could be changed afterward, (or words to that effect).
Must her sealing remain as it was in Nauvoo? Or she be sealed to Joseph--For that is our Desire Henry desires to be adopted into Josephs Kingdom--

61. Henry Eyring Initiated Into The School of the Prophets, 1883:

Oct 11th we were invited to the endowment house, where we were told that a school of the Prophets would be organized and that only those who are willing to observe the word of wisdom and observe all other laws, God has given us, could be admitted. We were told to come again the next day, fasting and with our bodies washed clean. Oct 12th 1883 was a day to be long remembered by all who partook of the [p. 40] blessings that were then bestowed upon us. Patriarch Zebedee Coltrin, who was the only surviving member of the school of the Prophets organized by the Prophet Joseph Smith at Kirtland washed the feet of President John Taylor and Prest Taylor in turn washed the feet of Zebedee Coltrin and then the feet of his Counselors, then of ten of the Apostles (Elders C C Rich and John H. Smith being absent the former sick, the later presiding in England) then the feet of Counselor D H. Wells (J W Young absent).
after that the remaining brethren were seated according to age and Prest Taylor washed the feet of twenty of the Presidents of Stakes, of Jno. B. Maiben Counselor to Prest Canute Peterson, of myself and of Geo Reynold private Secretary to Prest Taylor. The ceremony used by Prest Taylor was about as follows: "In the name of Jesus and by the authority of the holy priesthood I wash your feet in accordance with the pattern set by our Lord Jesus Christ when he washed his disciples feet and told them to wash each-others' feet, and also according to the pattern given by the Prophet Joseph Smith as an introductory ordinance to the School of the Prophets.
I pronounce you clean from the blood of this generation and say unto you, your sins are forgiven you and I seal upon you every blessing, gift, right and authority pertaining to this holy ordinance and I do it in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."
After the washing of feet the Sacrament was administered, consisting of bread and wine. Of the latter we partook about one third of a Tumbler full each and of the former as much as our appetite would prompt us. After the sacrament we retired to a lower room and on returning were saluted [p. 41] by Pres't Taylor with the words prescribed in Section VII of the D. & C. Pres't Geo Q. Cannon in behalf of the members answered the salutation, We were then dismissed by prayer. ****

Circular Letter of the First Presidency:

Dear Brethren:

It has been decided that it is no longer necessary for those going to the Temples to attend to ordinances therein to send their recommends to President Woodruff to be by him endorsed. The signatures of the Bishop and Stake President will be all that is required.
This decision applies to all ordinances attended to in the House of the Lord, except Second Anointings, which last named will still require the approval of the President of the Church before they can be administered. This being the decision, Bishops of Wards and Presidents of Stakes will see the increased necessity for care, so that no unworthy person will be recommended for ordinances in the Temples.

Abraham H. Cannon and His Wives Receive their Second Anointings:

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 7th, 1893. I spent the most of the day at the office where I found plenty to do in attending to the regular business which came to my attention. I went down home to dinner and thought I would try to do this every day, as I have no appetite to eat from a dinner basket on these warm days.---At 6 o'clock I went to the Temple where I met my folks, we having received permission from Pres. Woodruff to receive our second anointings. Father was there to perform the ceremony. Bro. Lyman was also there to be with his wife Susan D. Callister Lyman as she received this blessing. Father anointed and spoke the words, John D. T. McAllister held the horn, and Lorenzo Snow and John R. Winder were the witnesses. Sister Lyman was first anointed in the presence of us all, she thus being the first to receive this blessing in this building. I [p. 47] then received mine, and my wives followed in the order of their marriages. I felt very much pleased to be thus favored. The ordinance of the washing of feet was explained by Bro. McAllister, after the anointings had been given.---I went to the President's office and spent a short time with Father talking business, and then took John Q. to his home before I went to my home. I was engaged in reading in the evening til time to retire.

President Lorenzo Snow On Second Anointings:
The whole earth is the Lord's. The time will come when it will be translated and be filled with the spirit and power of God. The atmosphere around it will be the spirit of the Almighty. We will breathe that Spirit instead of the atmosphere that we now breathe. But now it is for us to make the preparation, that we may be worthy to be called into the house of the Lord and receive our second blessings. I do not want the presidents of Stakes to send any person to our Temples to receive the highest blessings that have ever been bestowed upon man since the world began, until it can be said of him, "He pays his full tithing." When you find an honest, faithful Latter-day Saint who is worthy of receiving His blessings, send him along. I do not care how fast they come. The time is now at hand when the Latter-day Saints can be greatly and abundantly blessed, so that they can make the preparation in its fulness. Prest. David H. Cannon, St. George.

Dear Brother:

During the lifetime of the late President Wilford Woodruff a rule was established by him not to permit a woman to be anointed to a man unless she had lived with him as a wife. This was a restriction of the rule in such cases which obtained during the lifetime of Presidents Brigham Young and John Taylor. After considering the matter we have concluded to restore the practice as expressed in the following, and which will govern in such cases in the future:
Any woman, who has been sealed to a man in life or by proxy, whether she has lived with him or not, shall have the privilege of being anointed to him inasmuch as he shall have had his second blessings.

Conference Meeting For Priesthood Leadership:

 After the opening exercises Prest Lorenzo Snow spoke upon the Subject of the giving of Second Anointings. He said that this blessing brought a person to a greater knowledge of the things pertaining to God and his purposes in the earth, that the glorious things of the kingdom were made clear to the understanding of man. Therefore it would be a very serious thing for a man to apostatize after he had received this great blessing. He warned the Presidents of Stakes that they should exercise great care when giving recommends to those of his stake to receive these great blessings and should know by their work their integrity and devotion to the cause of the Gospel, for the responsibility would rest upon them if any were recommended unworthily or that apostatized.  Prest. Jos. F. Smith then made a few remarks on the Subject of the Second Anointing. He said that it was the crowning blessing of and the highest gift to conferred by the Melchesidek Priesthood. Elders should do something to be worthy to receive this great blessing and their (sic) are many ways out of the ordinary routine duties by which a man could earn the good will of God to the obtaining of this blessing. Every man should be determined to place every thing on the altar even to the laying down of life itself for the gospel sake in order to be truly worthy of this blessing. Journal of Thomas A. Do Not Boast of Second Blessings:

We cannot speak too emphatically on this subject to our brethren who are on missions, by way of caution against the infraction of their covenants, and in condemnation of those who do this for the purpose of impressing others with their self-importance when they boast of having received "the highest blessings," conveying the idea that they are more advanced in those things than some of their fellow laborers. "The secrets of the Lord are with them that fear him," and they who do not "fear him" sufficiently to keep to themselves that which was only intended for them and which they are forbidden to make known to others, prove themselves unworthy to receive the fulfillment of the promise of God, to "crown them with honor, immortality, and eternal life."

From Joseph Fielding Smith's Way To Perfection:

Each person baptized into the Church is under obligation to keep the commandments of the Lord. He is under covenant, for baptism is a "new and an everlasting covenant." (D.C. 22: 1.) When he has proved himself by a worthy life, having been faithful in all things required of him, then it is his privilege to receive other covenants and to take upon himself other obligations which will make of him an heir, and he will become a member of the "Church of the Firstborn." Into his hands "the Father has given all things." He will be a priest and a king, receiving of the Father's fulness and of his glory. Is this worth having? It cannot be obtained without some effort. It cannot be obtained without knowledge of the things of God.  And the fulness of these blessings can only be obtained in the temple of the Lord!

Letter of John D. T. McAllister to Alonzo H. Russell:

Elder Alonzo H. Russell Grafton

Dear Bro.,
Yourself and wives are approved for Second Annointing.
Etc.

Taken From A Fundamentalist Magazine With Source Unnamed:
There are in the Church two Priesthoods, namely, the Melchisedek and the Aaronic, including the Levitical Priesthood (D&C 107:1). But there is additional Priesthood that has never been delegated to the Church. The Lord Himself handles this Priesthood and gives it to whom and when He pleases. Man does not call another man to this order, neither does man secure it by the request or selection of any man on earth. The call comes by messenger from heaven requesting designated individuals into the House of God (and is what is known to Latter-day Saints as the second anointing), preparatory to receiving the second comforter, which completes this ordination. Sometimes this Second Comforter is given while in the Temple. Often it does not come until years after, even just at death. But they who have had their second anointings can see the face of the Lord and live, even though being in the flesh, as one sees and talks to another.

3. c1965

 Brother Robert Bushman questioned Elder Harold B. Lee at a B.Y.U. faculty meeting (sometime before 1965) about second endowment and Elder Lee said there was no tie in with that and seeing Jesus. The second endowment is being done (inferred he had been called up to it). Pres. McKay called some up. He refused to associate the second endowment with seeing Jesus. He refused to comment on it.

4. December 8, 1966

In an interview with Elder Theodore Burton on December 8, 1966 he told Kenneth W. Godfrey that the complete Nauvoo temple book was in the Salt Lake Temple. He further stated that in this book was the full ceremony relative to giving second endowments. This ceremony is confidential and only given to a person when called by the First Presidency of the Church. He also stated that temple work is done differently today than it was then in that not as many people receive their second endowments. He further stated that he had not had his second endowment as yet but that his father and mother had had theirs before their deaths.

Statistics:

Paul F. Royall, general secretary of the Genealogical Society, across whose desk record of all temple endowments and other ordinances must pass, stated that 13 second anointings were done last year (1970).

> |v133 Art thou a brother or brethren? I salute you in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, in token or remembrance of the everlasting covenant, in which covenant I receive you to fellowship, in a determination that is fixed, immovable, and unchangeable, to be your friend and brother through the grace of God in the bonds of love, to walk in all the commandments of God blameless, in thanksgiving, forever and ever. Amen.

(D&C: Section 88:133)

The Holy Greeting is given with hands lifted towards heaven by the Chief Officiator, the recipients then return the greeting in a like manner. It may be repeated by the recipient or may just say Amen. Then the washing of the feet is given. (purpose found in D&C 88:138-9).

|v138 And ye shall not receive any among you into this school save he is clean from the blood of this generation;
(D&C: Section 88:138-139)

Washing of feet is Administered by President of the Church. (Pattern given in John 13).
|c13|v0 Jesus washes the feet of the Twelve--He identifies Judas as his betrayer--He commands them to love one another.

|v1 Now before the feast of the passover, when Jesus knew that his hour was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end.
|v2 And supper being ended, the devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray him;
|v3 Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was come from God, and went to God;
|v4 He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself.
|v5 After that he poureth water into a bason, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded.
|v6 Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and Peter saith unto him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet?
|v7 Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter.
|v8 Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me.
|v9 Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head.
|v10 Jesus saith to him, He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and ye are clean, but not all.
|v11 For he knew who should betray him; therefore said he, Ye are not all clean.
|v12 So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you?
|v13 Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am.
|v14 If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet.
|v15 For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.
|v16 Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him.

|v17 If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.

|v18 I speak not of you all: I know whom I have chosen: but that the scripture may be fulfilled, He that eateth bread with me hath lifted up his heel against me.
|v19 Now I tell you before it come, that, when it is come to pass, ye may believe that I am he.
|v20 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that receiveth whomsoever I send receiveth me; and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me.
|v21 When Jesus had thus said, he was troubled in spirit, and testified, and said, Verily, verily, I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me.
|v22 Then the disciples looked one on another, doubting of whom he spake.
|v23 Now there was leaning on Jesus' bosom one of his disciples, whom Jesus loved.
|v24 Simon Peter therefore beckoned to him, that he should ask who it should be of whom he spake.
|v25 He then lying on Jesus' breast saith unto him, Lord, who is it?
|v26 Jesus answered, He it is, to whom I shall give a sop, when I have dipped it. And when he had dipped the sop, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon.
|v27 And after the sop Satan entered into him. Then said Jesus unto him, That thou doest, do quickly.
|v28 Now no man at the table knew for what intent he spake this unto him.
|v29 For some of them thought, because Judas had the bag, that Jesus had said unto him, Buy those things that we have need of against the feast; or, that he should give something to the poor.
|v30 He then having received the sop went immediately out: and it was night.

|v31 Therefore, when he was gone out, Jesus said, Now is the Son of man glorified, and God is glorified in him.
|v32 If God be glorified in him, God shall also glorify him in himself, and shall straightway glorify him.
|v33 Little children, yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me: and as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go, ye cannot come; so now I say to you.
|v34 A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.
|v35 By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.

|v36 Simon Peter said unto him, Lord, whither goest thou? Jesus answered him, Whither I go, thou canst not follow me now; but thou shalt follow me afterwards.
|v37 Peter said unto him, Lord, why cannot I follow thee now? I will lay down my life for thy sake. |v38 Jesus answered him, Wilt thou lay down thy life for my sake? Verily, verily, I say unto thee, The cock shall not crow, till thou hast denied me thrice. (NewT:John 13:Heading-38)

Ordinance preformed in the name of Jesus Christ and by the Authority of the Holy Priesthood, Example: "I wash your feet in accordance with the pattern set by our Lord Jesus Christ when he washed his disciples feet, and also according to the pattern given by the prophet Joseph Smith as an introductory ordinance to the School of Prophets." "I pronounce you clean from the blood of this generation and say unto you, your sins are forgiven, and I seal upon you every blessing, gift, right, and authority pertaining to this Holy Ordinance, and I do it in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen. The Sacrament of the Lords Supper is then given.

THE ANOINTING: Pure Olive Oil. In the 1st anointing men and women were promised, if they were faithful to the covenants made in the temple, the time would come when they actually would be anointed Kings, and Priests, Queens and Priestesses, Where as in the 1st Anointings they were only promised to become such. Obviously then, there is another Anointing, which fulfills the contingent blessings made in the 1st Anointing itself. Hence, The 2nd Anointing. In the Anointing itself, oil is poured on the head of the Candidate and is Ordained a King and Priest to the most High God, to all eternity, or a Queen and Priestess to all eternity. Priestly Authority: Power over all things, controls the laws of nature and exercises jurisdiction over all elements.

Kingly Authority: Controls men only, and administers just and righteous laws. At the time of the Anointing the Patriarchal Priesthood is conferred upon you. This Priesthood is the Priesthood that is held in the heavens. After ordained to Patriarchal Priesthood, there is no branch of the Priesthood so low that they can not officiate therein, nor so high, that they can not reach forth the arm of power and act in the most exalted capacity.

The recipients are given the blessings of Abraham, Issac, and Jacob. Which are; Sit upon thrones, have crown, posterity as numerous as the stars, Kingdoms, principalities, powers, dominions, and come forth in the morning of the first resurrection.

The anointing may then be sealed by the HOLY SPIRIT OF PROMISE (Jesus Christ) the anointing may be sealed immediately or at some other time. When the recipient is sealed it will result in a direct visit from Christ. Those that are sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise may commit any transgression, except murder, yet they shall receive their exaltation. The consequences of transgressions are 1. They shall be destroyed in the flesh. 2. Shall be delivered unto the buffetings of Satan until the day or redemption. 3. They must atone for there own sins. (Journal of discourses 2 pg. 260).

> ...the Saint who has been sealed unto eternal life and falls into transgression and does not repent, but dies in his sins, will be afflicted and tormented after he leaves this vale of tears until the day of redemption; but having been sealed with the spirit of promise through the ordinances of the house of God, those things which have been sealed upon his head will be realized by him in the morning of the resurrection.

> At the time of the Second Anointing the candidate is given the blessing of Godhood, but to those who are faithful even weightier blessings can be bestowed. Blessings of The Godhead can also be given. While some are anointed and sealed to Godhood, others may receive the assurance of even greater blessings, even that of the Godhead. There is a distinction between anointings to the Godhead and godhood. Individuals ordained to the Godhead are blessed to "act as the Savior to a world or worlds". While others may be blessed to act in trinities, or presidencies of worlds. (Notes taken form the Nauvoo Temple record of Anointings) (opinion of author. Those who receive the 2nd Anointing will eventually will be blessed by a visit from the Savior. "When any man obtains the last comforter, he will have the personage of Jesus Christ appear to him from time to time, and he will even manifest the Father unto him, and they will take up their abode with him, and the visions of heavens will be opened unto him, and the Lord will teach him face to face, and he may have a perfect knowledge of the mysteries of the Kingdom of God". (Teachings of the Prophet Joseph Smith pg. 151).

After the anointing, the husband then anoints his wife or wives Queens and Priestess to him. When a man has more than one wife, the women are anointed in the order of their marriages. the washing and anointing is then sealed over the alter, with the man at the right, and the wife or wives on the left hand.

Garments: After the anointing the marks on the garments are then changed. Following the ordinances, the Chief Officiator gives instructions to the male candidate and his wife, concerning the 2nd part of the ceremony. The ordinance of washing of the feet is explained, and the meeting is closed with prayer. Last Anointing: or second part of the ceremony, takes place with only the husband and wife present. Following the instructions given in the temple during the 2nd anointing. ceremonies the couple meet to attend "to the Last Anointings, that of the feet." The meeting is begun with prayer by the wife, opening song, converso over duties to each other and children, then they read John 12:1-8, and also the 132 Section of the D&C, they then dedicate the room for purpose of meeting.

|v1 Then Jesus six days before the passover came to Bethany, where Lazarus was which had been dead, whom he raised from the dead.
|v2 There they made him a supper; and Martha served: but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him.
|v3 Then took Mary a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair: and the house was filled with the odour of the ointment.
|v4 Then saith one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, which should betray him,
|v5 Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence, and given to the poor?
|v6 This he said, not that he cared for the poor; but because he was a thief, and had the bag, and bare what was put therein.
|v7 Then said Jesus, Let her alone: against the day of my burying hath she kept this.
|v8 For the poor always ye have with you; but me ye have not always. (NewT:John 12:1-8)

v0 Revelation given through Joseph Smith the Prophet, at Nauvoo, Illinois, recorded July 12, 1843, relating to the new and everlasting covenant, including the eternity of the marriage covenant, as also plurality of wives. HC 5:501-507. Although the revelation was recorded in 1843, it is evident from the historical records that the doctrines and principles involved in this revelation had been known by the Prophet since 1831.

1- 6, Exaltation is gained through the new and everlasting covenant;

7-14, The terms and condition of that covenant are set forth;

15-20, Celestial marriage and a continuation of the family unit enable men to become gods;

21-25, The strait and narrow way that leads to eternal lives;

26-27, Law given relative to blasphemy against the Holy Ghost;

28-39, Promises of eternal increase and exaltation made to prophets and saints in all ages;

40-47, Joseph Smith is given the power to bind and seal on earth and in heaven;

48–50, The Lord seals upon him his exaltation;
51–57, Emma Smith is counseled to be faithful and true;
58–66, Laws governing the plurality of wives are set forth.

|v1 Verily, thus saith the Lord unto you my servant Joseph, that inasmuch as you have inquired of my hand to know and understand wherein I, the Lord, justified my servants Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, as also Moses, David and Solomon, my servants, as touching the principle and doctrine of their having many wives and concubines--
|v2 Behold, and lo, I am the Lord thy God, and will answer thee as touching this matter.
|v3 Therefore, prepare thy heart to receive and obey the instructions which I am about to give unto you; for all those who have this law revealed unto them must obey the same.
|v4 For behold, I reveal unto you a new and an everlasting covenant; and if ye abide not that covenant, then are ye damned; for no one can reject this covenant and be permitted to enter into my glory.
|v5 For all who will have a blessing at my hands shall abide the law which was appointed for that blessing, and the conditions thereof, as were instituted from before the foundation of the world.
|v6 And as pertaining to the new and everlasting covenant, it was instituted for the fulness of my glory; and he that receiveth a fulness thereof must and shall abide the law, or he shall be damned, saith the Lord God.
|v7 And verily I say unto you, that the conditions of this law are these: All covenants, contracts, bonds, obligations, oaths, vows, performances, connections, associations, or expectations, that are not made and entered into and sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, of him who is anointed, both as well for time and for all eternity, and that too most holy, by revelation and commandment through the medium of mine anointed, whom I have appointed on the earth to hold this power (and I have appointed unto my servant Joseph to hold this power in the last days, and there is never but one on the earth at a time on whom this power and the keys of this priesthood are conferred), are of no efficacy, virtue, or force in and after the resurrection from the dead; for all contracts that are not made unto this end have an end when men are dead.
|v8 Behold, mine house is a house of order, saith the Lord God, and not a house of confusion.
|v9 Will I accept of an offering, saith the Lord, that is not made in my name?
|v10 Or will I receive at your hands that which I have not appointed?
|v11 And will I appoint unto you, saith the Lord, except it be by law, even as I and my Father ordained unto you, before the world was?
|v12 I am the Lord thy God; and I give unto you this commandment--that no man shall come unto the Father but by me or by my word, which is my law, saith the Lord.
|v13 And everything that is in the world, whether it be ordained of men, by thrones, or principalities, or powers, or things of name, whatsoever they may be, that are not by me or by my word, saith the Lord, shall be thrown down, and shall not remain after men are dead, neither in nor after the resurrection, saith the Lord your God.
|v14 For whatsoever things remain are by me; and whatsoever things are not by me shall be shaken and destroyed.

|v15 Therefore, if a man marry him a wife in the world, and he marry her not by me nor by my word, and he covenant with her so long as he is in the world and she with him, their covenant and marriage are not of force when they are dead, and when they are out of the world; therefore, they are not bound by any law when they are out of the world.
|v16 Therefore, when they are out of the world they neither marry nor are given in marriage; but are appointed angels in heaven, which angels are ministering servants, to minister for those who are worthy of a far more, and an exceeding, and an eternal weight of glory.
|v17 For these angels did not abide my law; therefore, they cannot be enlarged, but remain separately and singly, without exaltation, in their saved condition, to all eternity; and from henceforth are not gods, but are angels of God forever and ever.
|v18 And again, verily I say unto you, if a man marry a wife, and make a covenant with her for time and for all eternity, if that covenant is not by me or by my word, which is my law, and is not sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, through him whom I have anointed and appointed unto this power, then it is not valid neither of force when they are out of the world, because they are not joined by me, saith the Lord, neither by my word; when they are out of the world it cannot be received there, because the angels and the gods are appointed there, by whom they cannot pass; they cannot, therefore, inherit my glory; for my house is a house of order, saith the Lord God.
|v19 And again, verily I say unto you, if a man marry a wife by my word, which is my law, and by the new and everlasting covenant, and it is sealed unto them by the Holy Spirit of promise, by him who is anointed, unto whom I have appointed this power and the keys of this priesthood; and it shall be said unto them--Ye shall come forth in the first resurrection; and if it be after the first resurrection, in the next resurrection; and shall inherit thrones, kingdoms, principalities, and powers, dominions, all heights and depths--then shall it be written in the Lamb's Book of Life, that he shall commit no murder whereby to shed innocent blood, and if ye abide in my covenant, and commit no murder whereby to shed innocent blood, it shall be done unto them in all things whatsoever my servant hath put upon them, in time, and through all eternity; and shall be of full force when they are out of the world; and they shall pass by the angels, and the gods, which are set there, to their exaltation and glory in all things, as hath been sealed upon their heads, which glory shall be a fulness and a continuation of the seeds forever and ever.
|v20 Then shall they be gods, because they have no end; therefore shall they be from everlasting to everlasting, because they continue; then shall they be above all, because all things are subject unto them. Then shall they be gods, because they have all power, and the angels are subject unto them.
|v21 Verily, verily, I say unto you, except ye abide my law ye cannot attain to this glory.
|v22 For strait is the gate, and narrow the way that leadeth unto the exaltation and continuation of the lives, and few there be that find it, because ye receive me not in the world neither do ye know me.
|v23 But if ye receive me in the world, then shall ye know me, and shall receive your exaltation; that where I am ye shall be also.
|v24 This is eternal lives--to know the only wise and true God, and Jesus Christ, whom he hath sent. I am he. Receive ye, therefore, my law.

|v25 Broad is the gate, and wide the way that leadeth to the deaths; and many there are that go in thereat, because they receive me not, neither do they abide in my law.
|v26 Verily, verily, I say unto you, if a man marry a wife according to my word, and they are sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, according to mine appointment, and he or she shall commit any sin or transgression of the new and everlasting covenant whatever, and all manner of blasphemies, and if they commit no murder wherein they shed innocent blood, yet they shall come forth in the first resurrection, and enter into their exaltation; but they shall be destroyed in the flesh, and shall be delivered unto the buffetings of Satan unto the day of redemption, saith the Lord God.
|v27 The blasphemy against the Holy Ghost, which shall not be forgiven in the world nor out of the world, is in that ye commit murder wherein ye shed innocent blood, and assent unto my death, after ye have received my new and everlasting covenant, saith the Lord God; and he that abideth not this law can in nowise enter into my glory, but shall be damned, saith the Lord.
|v28 I am the Lord thy God, and will give unto thee the law of my Holy Priesthood, as was ordained by me and my Father before the world was.
|v29 Abraham received all things, whatsoever he received, by revelation and commandment, by my word, saith the Lord, and hath entered into his exaltation and sitteth upon his throne.
|v30 Abraham received promises concerning his seed, and of the fruit of his loins--from whose loins ye are, namely, my servant Joseph--which were to continue so long as they were in the world; and as touching Abraham and his seed, out of the world they should continue; both in the world and out of the world should they continue as innumerable as the stars; or, if ye were to count the sand upon the seashore ye could not number them.
|v31 This promise is yours also, because ye are of Abraham, and the promise was made unto Abraham; and by this law is the continuation of the works of my Father, wherein he glorifieth himself.
|v32 Go ye, therefore, and do the works of Abraham; enter ye into my law and ye shall be saved.
|v33 But if ye enter not into my law ye cannot receive the promise of my Father, which he made unto Abraham.
|v34 God commanded Abraham, and Sarah gave Hagar to Abraham to wife. And why did she do it? Because this was the law; and from Hagar sprang many people. This, therefore, was fulfilling, among other things, the promises.
|v35 Was Abraham, therefore, under condemnation? Verily I say unto you, Nay; for I, the Lord, commanded it.
|v36 Abraham was commanded to offer his son Isaac; nevertheless, it was written: Thou shalt not kill. Abraham, however, did not refuse, and it was accounted unto him for righteousness.
|v37 Abraham received concubines, and they bore him children; and it was accounted unto him for righteousness, because they were given unto him, and he abode in my law; as Isaac also and Jacob did none other things than that which they were commanded; and because they did none other things than that which they were commanded, they have entered into their exaltation, according to the promises, and sit upon thrones, and are not angels but are gods.
|v38 David also received many wives and concubines, and also Solomon and Moses my servants, as also many others of my servants, from the beginning of creation until this time; and in nothing did they sin save in those things which they received not of me.

|v39 David's wives and concubines were given unto him of me, by the hand of Nathan, my servant, and others of the prophets who had the keys of this power; and in none of these things did he sin against me save in the case of Uriah and his wife; and, therefore he hath fallen from his exaltation, and received his portion; and he shall not inherit them out of the world, for I gave them unto another, saith the Lord.
|v40 I am the Lord thy God, and I gave unto thee, my servant Joseph, an appointment, and restore all things. Ask what ye will, and it shall be given unto you according to my word.
|v41 And as ye have asked concerning adultery, verily, verily, I say unto you, if a man receiveth a wife in the new and everlasting covenant, and if she be with another man, and I have not appointed unto her by the holy anointing, she hath committed adultery and shall be destroyed.
|v42 If she be not in the new and everlasting covenant, and she be with another man, she has committed adultery.
|v43 And if her husband be with another woman, and he was under a vow, he hath broken his vow and hath committed adultery.
|v44 And if she hath not committed adultery, but is innocent and hath not broken her vow, and she knoweth it, and I reveal it unto you, my servant Joseph, then shall you have power, by the power of my Holy Priesthood, to take her and give her unto him that hath not committed adultery but hath been faithful; for he shall be made ruler over many.
|v45 For I have conferred upon you the keys and power of the priesthood, wherein I restore all things, and make known unto you all things in due time.
|v46 And verily, verily, I say unto you, that whatsoever you seal on earth shall be sealed in heaven; and whatsoever you bind on earth, in my name and by my word, saith the Lord, it shall be eternally bound in the heavens; and whosesoever sins you remit on earth shall be remitted eternally in the heavens; and whosesoever sins you retain on earth shall be retained in heaven.
|v47 And again, verily I say, whomsoever you bless I will bless, and whomsoever you curse I will curse, saith the Lord; for I, the Lord, am thy God.
|v48 And again, verily I say unto you, my servant Joseph, that whatsoever you give on earth, and to whomsoever you give any one on earth, by my word and according to my law, it shall be visited with blessings and not cursings, and with my power, saith the Lord, and shall be without condemnation on earth and in heaven.
|v49 For I am the Lord thy God, and will be with thee even unto the end of the world, and through all eternity; for verily I seal upon you your exaltation, and prepare a throne for you in the kingdom of my Father, with Abraham your father.
|v50 Behold, I have seen your sacrifices, and will forgive all your sins; I have seen your sacrifices in obedience to that which I have told you. Go, therefore, and I make a way for your escape, as I accepted the offering of Abraham of his son Isaac.
|v51 Verily, I say unto you: A commandment I give unto mine handmaid, Emma Smith, your wife, whom I have given unto you, that she stay herself and partake not of that which I commanded you to offer unto her; for I did it, saith the Lord, to prove you all, as I did Abraham, and that I might require an offering at your hand, by covenant and sacrifice.

|v52 And let mine handmaid, Emma Smith, receive all those that have been given unto my servant Joseph, and who are virtuous and pure before me; and those who are not pure, and have said they were pure, shall be destroyed, saith the Lord God.
|v53 For I am the Lord thy God, and ye shall obey my voice; and I give unto my servant Joseph that he shall be made ruler over many things; for he hath been faithful over a few things, and from henceforth I will strengthen him.
|v54 And I command mine handmaid, Emma Smith, to abide and cleave unto my servant Joseph, and to none else. But if she will not abide this commandment she shall be destroyed, saith the Lord; for I am the Lord thy God, and will destroy her if she abide not in my law.
|v55 But if she will not abide this commandment, then shall my servant Joseph do all things for her, even as he hath said; and I will bless him and multiply him and give unto him an hundred-fold in this world, of fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, houses and lands, wives and children, and crowns of eternal lives in the eternal worlds.
|v56 And again, verily I say, let mine handmaid forgive my servant Joseph his trespasses; and then shall she be forgiven her trespasses, wherein she has trespassed against me; and I, the Lord thy God, will bless her, and multiply her, and make her heart to rejoice.
|v57 And again, I say, let not my servant Joseph put his property out of his hands, lest an enemy come and destroy him; for Satan seeketh to destroy; for I am the Lord thy God, and he is my servant; and behold, and lo, I am with him, as I was with Abraham, thy father, even unto his exaltation and glory.
|v58 Now, as touching the law of the priesthood, there are many things pertaining thereunto.
|v59 Verily, if a man be called of my Father, as was Aaron, by mine own voice, and by the voice of him that sent me, and I have endowed him with the keys of the power of this priesthood, if he do anything in my name, and according to my law and by my word, he will not commit sin, and I will justify him.
|v60 Let no one, therefore, set on my servant Joseph; for I will justify him; for he shall do the sacrifice which I require at his hands for his transgressions, saith the Lord your God.
|v61 And again, as pertaining to the law of the priesthood--if any man espouse a virgin, and desire to espouse another, and the first give her consent, and if he espouse the second, and they are virgins, and have vowed to no other man, then is he justified; he cannot commit adultery for they are given unto him; for he cannot commit adultery with that that belongeth unto him and to no one else.
|v62 And if he have ten virgins given unto him by this law, he cannot commit adultery, for they belong to him, and they are given unto him; therefore is he justified.
|v63 But if one or either of the ten virgins, after she is espoused, shall be with another man, she has committed adultery, and shall be destroyed; for they are given unto him to multiply and replenish the earth, according to my commandment, and to fulfil the promise which was given by my Father before the foundation of the world, and for their exaltation in the eternal worlds, that they may bear the souls of men; for herein is the work of my Father continued, that he may be glorified.
|v64 And again, verily, verily, I say unto you, if any man have a wife, who holds the keys of this power, and he teaches unto her the law of my priesthood, as pertaining to these things, then shall she believe and administer unto him, or she shall be destroyed, saith the Lord your God; for I will destroy her; for I will magnify my name upon all those who receive and abide in my law.

|v65 Therefore, it shall be lawful in me, if she receive not this law, for him to receive all things whatsoever I, the Lord his God, will give unto him, because she did not believe and administer unto him according to my word; and she then becomes the transgressor; and he is exempt from the law of Sarah, who administered unto Abraham according to the law when I commanded Abraham to take Hagar to wife.

|v66 And now, as pertaining to this law, verily, verily, I say unto you, I will reveal more unto you, hereafter; therefore, let this suffice for the present. Behold, I am Alpha and Omega. Amen.

The Husband then receives washing of feet and is anointed by the wife for burial, (The feet, head,a dn stomach are anointed, with the hair of the wife) they then have a closing prayer, dedicatory prayer.

If one lives worthy of The Higher Blessings and does not receive them in this life, the ordinance may be preformed by proxy.
Note: The wife anoints Husband so that she may have claim on him in the resurrection. (as Mary did Jesus).

No 15: To BY: Lucy An (sic) Young, Harriet Elizabeth Young, Emmeline, Margaret Maria Young, Emily Dow Young Smith, Louisa Young Smith [the last two anointed to BY (for time) and Jos. Smith for eternity], 14 J by HCK.
[This is interesting, these last two were anointed a Queen and Priestess unto their Husband Brigham Young for time, and a Queen and Priestess unto their Husband Joseph Smith for all eternity.

A couple of interesting thoughts:
1. The Second anointing is for
[a] time and for
[b] all eternity

2. This coresponds helps us to understand D&C 132:41 where a wife, in it's highest form of marriage, is "appointed unto her (husband) by the holy anointing..."

Circular Letter of the First Presidency:

Salt Lake City, Utah, April 14th 1900.

Prest. David H. Cannon, St. George

Dear Brother:
During the lifetime of the late President Wilford Woodruff a rule was established by him not to permit a woman to be anointed to a man unless she had lived with him as a wife. This was a restriction of the rule in such cases which obtained during the lifetime of Presidents Brigham Young and John Taylor. After considering the matter we have concluded to restore the practice as expressed in the following, and which will govern in such cases in the future:
Any woman, who has been sealed to a man in life or by proxy, whether she has lived with him or not, shall have the privilege of being anointed to him [D&C 132:41] inasmuch as he shall have had his second blessings.

It was from him (Prophet Joseph) that I learned that the Highest dignity of womanhood was to stand as a queen and priestess to her husband, and to reign for ever and ever as the queen mother of her numerous and still increasing offspring. (Parley P. Pratt, Autobiography, 1st ed., 329-330.)

He then (Brigham Young) anointed Sister Vilate Kimble a Queen & Priestess unto her Husband (H.C. It looks like the Lord Can Give this ordiance to worthy men and probly we should to do thir work that far and seal them to a wife etc when we get more information???????????

Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, Willard Richards, and George Miller and others Anointed Kings and Priest to God by Joseph Smith--Also the anointing of Kings and Priests is the Patriarchal Priesthood:

Joseph washed and anointed [us] as Kings and Priests to God, and over the House of Israel,... [because] he was commanded of God, [to do so]... and [thereby] conferred on us Patriarchal Priesthood. Brigham's description of the nature of the ordinances and ceremonies at Nauvoo:

[W]hen we got our washings and anointings under the hands of the Prophet Joseph at Nauvoo we had only one room to work in with the exception of a little side room or office. [In this side office] we were washed and anointed, and had our garments placed upon us and [we] received our New Name.... [After this] we went into the large room... Joseph divided up the room the best that he could. [He] hung the veil... Then as we passed along from one department to another, [he] gav[e] us [the] signs, tokens, penalties with the Key words. 1843-1844

Joseph Smith says to Brigham about the Ordinances:

...this is not arranged right, but, we have done the best we could under the circumstances in which we are placed, and I wish all these ceremonies.... [We preformed the ordinances under Joseph's supervision numerous times] and each time I got some thing more so that when we went through the Temple at Nauvoo I understood and knew how to place them there. We had our ceremonies pretty correct. (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 28; L. 12 December 1845

Joseph Fielding, one who received the endowment ordinances form Joseph Smith on 9 December 1843 and witnessed the administration of these ordinances in the Nauvoo Temple, evaluated just how well Brigham and the Twelve apostles did in carrying out Joseph's precise instructions:

4 May 1842

Willard Richards expansion of the Prophet's journal entry for the above date--anyone enabled to secure the fulness of the highest order in the Melchisedec Priesthood:

4 Wednesday May 4- I spent the day in the upper part of the Store (IE.) in my private office (so called, because in that room I kept my sacred writings, translated ancient records, and received revelations) and in my general business office, or Lodge room (IE) were the Masonic fraternity met occasionally for want of a better place), in council with Gen James Adams, of Springfield, Patriarch Hyrum Smith, Bishops Newel K. Whitney, & Geo. Miller, ... & Priests Brigham Young Heber C. Kimball & Willard Richards, instructing them in the principles and order of the priesthood, attending to washings & anointings & endowments, and the communications of keys, pertaining to the Aaronic Priesthood, and so on to the highest order of the Melchisedec Priesthood, setting forth the order pertaining to the Ancient of days & all those plans & principles by which any one is enabled to secure the fulness of those blessings which has been prepared for the church of the firstborn, and come up and abide in the presence of God in the [last two words blotted out] Eloheim in the eternal worlds. In this council was instituted the Ancient order of things for the first time in these last days. And the communications I made to [this] Council were of things spiritual, and to be received only by the spiritual minded: and there was nothing made known to these men but will be made known to all Saints, of the last days, so soon as they are prepared to receive, and a proper place is prepared to communicate them, even to the weakest of the Saints: therefore let the Saints be diligent in building the temple and all houses which they have been or shall hereafter be commanded of god to build, and wait their time with patience, in all meekness and faith, & perseverance unto the end. knowing assuredly that all these things referred to in this council are always governed by the principles of Revelation. Heber C. Kimball--Records Brigham Youngs remarks of the faithful to be ordained Kings and Priests:

[T]hose who...come in here [the Nauvoo Temple] and have received their washing & anointing will, be ordained Kings & Priests, and will then have received the fulness of the Priesthood, all that can be given on earth. For Brother Joseph said he had given us all that could be given to man on the earth. (Heber C. Kimball, Journal, 26 December 1845; italics added; Joseph Smith's Introduction

New Era for the Quorum of Anointed:

Joseph Smith Washed & Anointed His Wife Emma--She would later Wash and Anoint the other women of the Quorum:

It was during this period of calm that Joseph [Smith] administered to Emma the washing and anointing ordinances making her the first woman member of the Quorum. The exact date of this event is at present unknown; however, it was on or before 28 September 1843. (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 94.) [Note: in the Patriarchal priesthood, it is possible, the father, being the King and Priest, would wash his sons, and the mother would wash her daughters or someone in authority of the same sex. Since the priesthood had been lost and there was no one present to represent the opposite sex in Emma's Case, Emma's husband and Prophet, Priest and King, Washed her. Later Other Women would be given the keys to wash women in the place of Mothers. Other examples would be obvious--that is Adam would have most likely received his ordinances from God or his messengers-then he like Joseph Smith in all virtue would have washed his wife Eve as the Father would not have overstepped His bounds--My house is a house of Order saith God. God named his son Adam, then told Adam to name his wife. The Lord or his servant administers the ordinances and Keys to Adam and takes him through the Veil, and Adam administers these same keys and ordinances to his wife and takes her through the Veil--Likewise, in this order Father Adam would wash and anoint his sons and Eve her daughters and then the Daughter's would be given away by the father to the Sons at the Veil of the Temple. Lehi and Sarah would have done the same to their children.]

On this day two meetings of the Quorum were held. At the morning meeting, John Taylor, John M. Bernhisel, Lucien Woodworth, John Smith, and Amasa Lyman received their washings and anointings form under the hands of Hyrum Smith, Newell K. Whitney and George Miller. (Joseph Smith Diary, under date given.) These five men were the first male initiates into the Quorum since its May 1842 organization. After their initiatory ordinances, Joseph in the upper room of the Brick Store conducted them through the remainder of the endowment. That evening all the above men, plus Emma Smith, Willard Richards, William Law and William Marks met in the front upper room of the Mansion House at 7 p.m. First, Joseph was "by common consent, and unanimous voice [was] chosen president of the quorum." (Joseph Smith, Diary 28 September 1843.) His appointment to be head of the Quorum, while voted upon, was, as he said, by command of God. The Prophet led the group in the true order of prayer [this being a prerequisite, the husband always leads in the prayer circle giving all the signs and tokens of the priesthood--See the Second anointings given in the Nauvoo temple] after which, Hyrum smith and william Marks at his dictation "anointed and ord[ained Joseph] to the highest and holiest order of the priesthood, viz., a king and priest unto [the Most High] God [and His Father]. After this, Emma was anointed and ordained a queen and priestess unto her husband. (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. 21 December 1845

Instructions given to the Quorum of Anointed by George A. Smith, Heber C. Kimball, and Amasa M. Lyman--In 1880, Helen Mar Whitney, daughter of Heber C. Kimball, edited her father's journal containing these official minutes and published them:
"Sunday, December 21st [1845]," writes his clerk [William Clayton], According to appointment on Sunday last a meeting was held in the east room. * * Seventy five persons were present, Elder H C. Kimball presiding." After mentioning the names of the brethren and sisters, he says, "At five minutes before eleven brethren and sisters, he says, "At five minutes before eleven the song, "Glorious things of thee are spoken" was sung-father John Smith then made a few remarks--blessed the bread and it was handed round by Bishop George Miller--The wine was blessed by Bishop Miller and handed round [sic] by him. While the wine was passing around Elder George A. Smith arose and addressed the congregation. He thanked God for the privileges this day enjoyed, [sic] and spike of the difficulties under which the church had labored to attain to the blessings we now enjoy. Another thing he thanked God for--Already [we have] had more than five hundred persons through [the Temple Endowment ceremonies], and therefore, if half of them should be like the foolish virgins and turn away from the truth, the principles of the Holy Priesthood [still] would be beyond the reach of mobs and the assaults of the adversaries of the Chruch. Order was one of the laws of heaven. When we come together * * and unite our hearts and act as one mind, the Lord will hear us and will answer our prayers. He related an instance of some children being healed and cured of the whooping cough in one night through the prayers of himself and Elder Woodruff in Michigan, while they were there on a mission [in June 1844 before the death of the Prophet Joseph]. Said that whenever they could get an opportunity they retired to the wilderness or to an upper room, they did so [and prayed after the Holy Order] * * and were always answered. It would be a good thing for us * * and were always answered. It would be a good thing for us * * every day [to] pray to God and in private circles. * * * We are different form what we were before we entered into the quorum [of anointed]--Speedy vengeance will now overtake the transgressor. When a man and wife are united in feeling, and act in union, I believe that they can hold their children by prayer and faith [See, Mosiah Chapter 27-particularly verses 14 & 22-23:

> And again, the angel said: Behold, the Lord hath heard the prayers of his people, and also the prayers of his servant, Alma, who is thy father; for he has prayed with much faith concerning thee that thou mightest be brought to the knowledge of the truth; therefore, for this purpose hive I come to convince thee of the power and authority of God, that the prayers of his servants might be answered according to their faith.
> And he [Alma-the-Elder] caused the priests should assemble themselves together; and they began to fast, and to pray to the Lord their God that he would open the mouth of Alma[-the-Younger] that he might speak, and also that his limbs might receive their strength--that the eyes of the people might be opened to see and know of the goodness and glory of God.
> And it came to pass after they had fasted and prayed for the space of two days and two nights, the limbs of Alma received their strength, and he stood up and began to speak unto them, bidding them to be of good comfort:], > and will not be obliged to give them up to death until they are fourscore years old. Sometimes men trifle and destroy the confidence which each ought to have in each other, this prevents a union of faith and feeling. The apostasy of Thos. B. Marsh was caused by so small a thing as a pint of striplings--and his oaths brought the exterminating order which drove us all out of Missouri.

"The woman ought to be in subjection to the man-be careful to guard against laud laughter--against levity and talebearing. He expressed his unfeigned love for the brethren and his confidence in their endeavors to keep these rules. "The Spirit of God" was then sung. Elder Kimball next addressed the meeting. He concurred in all that had been said, the observation of these things is most essential. About four years ago next May [Which would have been May 4, 1842 to be exact] nine persons were admitted into the Holy order--five are now living, B. Young. W. Richards, George Miller, N. K. Whitney and H. C. Kimball, tow are dead [James Adams, d. 11 August 1843 and Hyrum Smith, d. 27 June 1844], and two are worse than dead [meaning William Law and William Marks]. You have not got all you will have if you are faithful [Meaning the second anointing, the anointing of Kings and Queens and Priests and Priestesses, which would commence a few days later in January]. He spoke of the necessity of women being in subjection to their husbands "I am subject to my God [since men are anointed as Kings and Priests unto the Most High God and His Father and receives revelation for his posterity from this great Patriarchal chain], my wife is subject to me and will reverence me in my place, and I will try to make her happy [since men's wives are anointed as Queens and Priestesses to their husbands and receive all the blessings in the fulness of the priesthood jointly with them]. I do not want her to step forward and dictate to me any more than I dictate to President Young. In his absence I take his place according to his request [Possibly meaning that when the husband is absent, then, the wife acting as the Queen and Priestess in their kingdom would step forward and lead in family prayer and etc]. Shall we cease from loud laughter? * * Will you never slander your brother and sister [We covenant not to speak evil of the Lord's Anointed--which are other members of the Quorum of Anointed]? I will refer your minds to the covenants you have made by an observance of these things you will have dreams and visions. * * * We shall not be with you long. We cannot rest day or night until we put you in possession of the Priesthood. * * If we have made you clean every whit, go now to work and make others clean." [People are going to be made clean every whit in the next few days as they receive the washing of feet and receive the fulness of the Priesthood making them Kings and Priests unto the Most High God and their wives Queens and Priestess unto them.] There are from seven to twelve persons who have met together every day to pray [in a Prayer Circle] ever since Joseph's death, and the people have been sustained upon this principle [the true order of prayer.] Here is Brother Turley [; he] has been liberated by the power of God and not of man [--according to faith and prayer in the true order of prayer]. Elder Cahoon bore testimony of the importance of those things which had been spoken, and rejoiced in the idea that the things he was taught in the beginning were the same things now taught and remembered, and it is so because they are eternal things.

The assembly was then formed for prayer [most probably in the True Order of Prayer formed in the Prayer Circle], and Elder John Taylor being mouth the whole congregation united with him in prayer [the Congregation probably repeating the prayer after Elder Taylor, as is done today, in our own Prayer Circles]. * * At ten minutes past two the meeting was dismissed and another congregation met in the same room.

At three o'clock sang, "Hosanna"--prayer by Orson Hyde, after which by invitation of Elder kimball who presided (President Young not having been at the Temple today, and the duty of presiding having devolved upon Elder Kimball as the next in successiou [sic]) Amasa Lyman addressed the assembly, he said, "Doubtless with most of the present assembly it is the beginning of a new era in their lives--they have come to a time they never saw before--they have come to the commencement of a knowledge of things, and it is necessary that they should be riveted on their minds. One important thing to be understood is this, that those portions of the priesthood which you have receive are all essential matters.

It is not merely that you may see these things, but it is a matter of fact, a matter that has to do directly with your salvation, for which you have talked and labored many years. It is not for amusement you are brought to receive these things, but to put you in possession of the means of salvation, and be brought into a proper relationship to God--hence a man becomes responsible for his own conduct and that of his wife, if he has one. It is not designed that the things that are presented today should be forgotton [sic] tomorrow, but be remembered and practiced [sic] through all life-Hence it is a stepstone to approach to the favor of God. Having descended to the lowest state of degradation, it is the beginning of a homeward journey: it is like a man lost in a wilderness, and the means with which we are invested here to direct us in our homeward journey. You then see the reason why you are required to be sober, to be honest, that you could ask and receive, knock and it should be opened, and that when you sought for things you would find them. ["It is putting you in possession of those keys by which you can ask for things you need and obtain them--this is the key by which to obtain all the glory and felicity of eternal life..."] It is the key by which you approach God. No impression which you receive here should be lost. It was to rivet the recollections of these things in your memory, like a nail in a sure place never to be forgotton [sic]. The scenery through which you have passed is actually laying before you a picture a map, by which you are to travel through life, and obtain an entrance into the celestial [sic] Kingdom hereafter. If you are tempted in regard to these things here [in the Temple], you will be tempted when you approach the presence of God hereafter. You have, by being faithful, been brought to this point, by maintaining these things which have been entrusted to you. * * * It is not merely for the sake of taking over these things that they are given to you, but for your benefit and for your triumph over the powers of darkness hereafter. We want the man to remember that he has covenanted to keep the law of God, and the woman to obey her husband, and if you keep your covenants you will not be guilty of transgression. The line that is drawn is for you to maintain your covenants, and you will always be found in the path of obedience, after that which is virtuous and holy and good, and will never be swallowed up by unhallowed feelings and passions. If you are found worthy and maintain your integrity, and do not run away and think you have got all your endowment [this statement is made because Elder Lyman having been made a King and Priest unto God and his Wife a Queen and Priestess unto him knew the saints needed this ordiance to receive the fulness of the priesthood which would commence in the Nauvoo Temple a few day's thereafter], you will be found worthy after a while, which will make you honorable with God. You have not yet been ordained to anything, but will be by and by. You have received these things because of your compliance with all the requisitions of the law, and if faithful you will receive more. You have now learned how to pray [in the True Order of Prayer]. You have been taught how to approach God and be recognized [again in the True Order of Prayer or the Prayer Circle]. This is the principle by which the church has been kept together, and [it has] not [been by] the power of arms. A few individuals have asked for your preservation, and their prayers have been heard, and it is this which has preserved you from being scattered to the four winds. Those who have learned to approach God and receive these blessings, are they better than you? The only difference is they have been permitted to have these things revealed unto them. The principles which have been opened to you are the things which ought to occupy your attention all your lives. They are not second to anything; you have the key by which, if you are faithful, you will claim on your posterity all the blessings of the Priesthood."

Elder H. C. Kimball Said, "The ideas advanced by Brother Lyman are good and true. * * * God is like one of us, for He created us in his own image. Every man that ever came upon this earth, or any other earth, will take the course we have taken--Another thing, it is to bring us to an organization, and just as quick as we can get into that order and government, we have the celestial [sic] Kingdom here. You have got to know your brethren or you never can honor God. The man was created, and God gave him dominion over the whole earth, but he saw that he never could multiply and replenish the earth without woman; and He made one and gave her to him. He did not make the man for the woman but the woman for the man. * * But if a man does not use a woman well and take good care of her, God will take her away from him and give her to another. Perfect order and consistency makes heaven, but we are now deranged, and the tail has become the head. * * * One reason why we bring our wives with us is that they may make a covenant with us to keep these things sacred. * * You can't sin so cheap now as you could before you came to this order [viz. received the ordinances of the Endowment]. It is not for us to reproach the Lord's anointed, nor to speak evil of him; all have covenanted not to do it." * * *

Elder George A. Smith made a few remarks; he spoke principally in relation to the importance of keeping sacred those principles which we had received. * * He was followed by Elder orson Hyde. * * The congregation was dismissed by prayer by Elder John Taylor [probably in the same manner as the morning session]. (Helen Mar Whitney, "Scenes in Nauvoo, and Incidents from H.C. Kimball's Journal," The Woman's Exponent 12 (1 and 15 August 1883): 26, 34; Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 113-117.)

October 1843

Quorum [of Anointed] Meetings:

One of the key meetings of the Quorum that would establish the role the Quorum would have in succession after Joseph Smith's death was the 1 October 1843 meeting. At this meeting, all who participated in the Quorum meeting the previous Thursday met in the Mansion. In addition, Jane Law, Rosannah Marks, Elizabeth Durfee and Mary Fielding Smith (who received their washings and anointings from Emma before the start of the meeting) were added to the Quorum. Joseph Smith then proceeded to anoint as counselors in the First Presidency, William Law and Amasa Lyman. While Law's anointing was in accordance with a revelation (D&C 124:91), the reason for Lyman's anointing was not made clear in the brief Joseph Smith Diary entry. But in light of the division existing between Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon, first counselor in the First Presidency, this anointing of Lyman takes on great importance. On Sunday, 13 August 1843, Joseph Smith during his public sermon "showed that Sidney Rigdon had bound himself by an oath...to deliver J[oseph] into the hands of the Missourians." (Ehat and Coo, Words of Joseph Smith, p. 243.) Joseph then "in the name of the Lord withdrew the hand of fellowship for [Sidney Rigdon] and put it to the vote of the people. He was cut off by an unanimous vote and orders [were given] to demand his [ministerial] licence." (Ehat and Cook, Words of Joseph, p. 243.) The following Sunday, Sidney denied these charges. But on the Sunday after that, Joseph produced a letter for Thomas Carlin that he felt was so evasive it clouded Sidney's case. By acclamation, the Saints decided the problem should be resolved at the October 1843 general conference of the Church. (D.H.C. 5:538, and 553-56.) But Joseph had so little confidence in Rigdon's loyalty that the week before the conference trial Joseph, during the 1 October 1843 Quorum meeting, "re-anointed" Law and Lyman counselors in the Presidency. When Joseph was questioned about doing this in advance of Sidney's fall, he gave this trese answer that was more than metaphor, "Why, (said he), by the same rule that Samuel anointed David to be King over Israel while Saul was yet crowned." (Jedediah M. Grant, A collection of Facts Relative to the Course Taken by Elder Sidney Rigdon, in the States of Ohio, Missouri, Illinois and Pennsylvania (Philadelphia: Brown, Bicking & Guilbert, Printer, 1844), p. 15.) Jedediah M. Grant who overheard this explanation said that though the Prophet's answer was cryptic it "Proved a quieter to all their rising conjectures." (Ibid.) Neither William Law nor Amasa Lyman received the fulness of the priesthood on this occasion, however. In fact, neither man received these blessings during the lifetime of Joseph Smith. So while William Law received the anointing referred to in D&C 124:91, yet he was not given the fulness of the oracles of God.

The meeting adjourned with the expectation that the Quorum would meet the following Wednesday evening, 4 October 1843, when Hyrum Smith would receive the fulness of the priesthood ordinances. (Joseph Smith, Diary, 1 October 1843.) The "council of the quorum" met briefly and found, however, that Hyrum was too sick to attend. (Ibid., 4 October 1843.) Consequently, they adjourned until after the general conference. The following Sunday evening (8 October 1843) the Quorum met at Joseph's home. Harriet Adams, James Adams's widow (he had died in August); Elizabeth Ann Whitney, wife of Newell k.; Clarissa Smith, John Smith's wife; and Lucy Mack Smith, widow to Joseph Smith, Sr., and mother of the Prophet, were received into the Quorum [of Anointed]. They then witnessed the conferral of the fulness of the priesthood ordinances upon Hyrum and Mary Fielding Smith [that is of anointing them a King and Queen, Priest and Priestess]. (Ibid., 8 October 1843.)

In like manner, meetings were held through October. New members of the Quorum were added while senior members of the Quorum received the fulness of the priesthood [that is of anointing them a Kings and Queens, Priests and Priestesses]. For example, on 22 October 1843, while twenty-four witnessed, "William Marks and wife were anointed [a King and Queen, Priest and Priestess]."; and on 27 October 1843, "Bishop Whitney and wife were anointed [a King and Queen, Priest and Priestess]." (Ibid., 22 and 27 October 1843).

The Twelve Apostles and the Quorum [of Anointed]:

When the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles returned to Nauvoo in late October 1843, following their summer missions, preparations began for the remainder of the Twelve then residing in Nauvoo to receive their endowment. Since late spring the apostles had been on missions in the East "collecting means to build the Temple and the Nauvoo House," (Ibid, 28 May 1843.), and Brigham Young and Heber C. Kimball had not met with the Quorum [of Anointed] since the eternal marriage meetings in May. However, when Brigham and Heber arrived in Nauvoo on 22 October 1843, less than two hour before the next of the regularly scheduled prayer meetings, they spent very little time at home resting or visiting with their families--for they left their homes and immediately went to the Quorum [of Anointed] meeting. Brigham put it matter-of-factly: "went in to counsel with the Brethern in the afternoon." (Brigham Young, Diary, 22 October 1843, Brigham Young Collection, Church Archives.) A little over a week later, these wives were rewarded for their patience. On Wednesday, 1 November 1843, the wives of the four apostles already members of the Quorum [of Anointed] received their admittance to the Quorum [of Anointed]. Brigham Young's wife, Mary Ann; Heber Kimball's wife, Vilate; Willard Richard's wife, Jennetta; and John Taylor's wife, Leonora, received their washings and anointings form Emma in the Mansion House. (Joseph Smith, Diary, and Brigham Young, Diary, both for 1 November 1843; Heber C. Kimball, 1840-45 Journal ["Book 91"], unnumbered p. 114, entry incorrectly dated January 1844; and Helen M. Whitney, Plural Marriage as Taught by the Prophet Joseph Smith, p. 14.) Willard Richards had prepared the room in Joseph's Brick Store for conferring endowments, but for some reason they met for only a prayer meeting in the Mansion. (Joseph Smith, Diary, 1 November 1843.) The following Sunday, however, Joseph, having tried of the inconvenience of administering the endowment in such small quarters, requested schoolmaster Mr. Cole to "find some other Room for his school,: "as the room [was] needed for councils." (Ibid., 5 November 1843.) So Willard Richards again prepared the store room as on the first and that evening the women received the endowment.

Two and one-half weeks later Brigham Young, President of the Quorum of the Twelve, was the first of the apostles to receive the fulness of the priesthood. The evening of 22 November 1843, at Joseph's "old house B[righam] Young was anointed [a King and a Priest unto the Most High God] and his wife [Mary, a Queen and a Priestess unto her husband]. (Ibid., 22 November 1843.) Brigham and Mary Ann received the ceremony under the hands of Joseph and Hyrum Smith. (George A. Smith, Address, 25 December 1874, The Millennial Star 37 (2 February 1875:66.) After it was over, Joseph charged Brigham "to take the quorum [of the Twelve] and anoint them king and priest to God. (Ibid.)

However, five members of the Twelve then in Nauvoo had not as yet received the first anointings. When Brigham received the anointing as king and priest, apostles George A. Smith and Wilford Woodruff, who were the last of the members of the Twelve then residing in Nauvoo who had not previously been initiated to the principles of eternal and plural marriage, were only recent converts to these principles. George A. Smith, who arrived with Brigham and Heber on 22 October, was met at the boat landing by Hyrum Smith. On their way to his home, Apostle Smith later recalled, Hyrum "recited the most of the Revelation of Patriarchal Marriage, and invited me to his home to receive further instructions." (George A. Smith to Joseph Smith III, 9 October 1869; and Joseph Smith, Diary, 22 October 1843.) The following day, George A. Smith met with the Prophet who "gave [him] additional views on the subject, and spoke of the results of the same in the eternal worlds." (Joseph Smith, Diary, 23 October 1843.) Hyrum Smith was equally punctual in teaching these things to Wilford Woodruff upon his arrival in Nauvoo on 4 November 1843. Wilford had to attend to some unpleasant business regarding his unfinished home the first week after arriving. (Wilford Woodruff, Journal, 4-10 November 1843.) However, on 11 November 1843, he and his wife Phoebe spent the evening in conversation at John Taylor's home. Apostle Woodruff recorded in his daily diary that "Br Hiram Smith was...with us & presented som [sic] ideas of much interest to me concerning Baptism for the dead, the resurrection redemption & exaltation in the new & everlasting covenant that reacheth into the eternal world. He sealed the marriage covenants between me & my wife Phebe W Carter for time & eternity & gave us the principle of it which was interesting to us. (Ibid., 11 November 1843.) Thus the final preparations had been made. At the first meeting of the Quorum after Brigham Young received the fulness of the priesthood, apostles Parley P. Pratt, Orson Hyde, Wilford Woodruff and George A. Smith received their "anointing preparatory for further Blessings." Ibid., 2 December 1843.) Three weeks later, 23 December 1843, Orson Pratt also received his endowment. (Ibid., 23 December 1843; and both the Joseph Smith, Diary, and the Willard Richards, Diary, for the same date.) By this time nine members of the Quorum of the Twelve had received the endowment ordinances. (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 118-123.)

Succession 1844

Wilford Woodruff reflecting on the Succession of the Priesthood:

Joseph Smith was what he professed to be, a prophet of God, a seer and revelator. He laid the foundation of this Church and kingdom, and lived long enough to deliver the keys of the kingdom to the Elders of Israel, unto the Twelve Apostles. He spent the last winter of his life, some three or four months, with the Quorum of the Twelve, teaching them. It was not merely a few hours ministering to them the ordinances of the Gospel; but he spent day after day, week after week and month after month, teaching them and a few others the things of the kingdom of God. Said he, during that period, "I now rejoice. I have lived until I have seen this burden, which has rested on my shoulders, rolled on to the shoulders of other men; now the keys of the kingdom are planted on the earth to be taken away no more for ever." But until he had dome this, they remained with him; and had he been taken away they would have had to be testored by messengers out of heaven. But he lived until every key, power and principle of the holy Priesthood was sealed on the Twelve and on President Young, as their President. He told us that he was going away to leave us, going away to rest. Said he, "YOu have to round up your shoulders to bear up the kingdom. No matter what becomes to me. I have desired to see that Temple built, but I shall not live to see it. You will; you are called upon to bear off this kingdom." This language was plain enough, but we did not understand it any more than the disciples of Jesus when he told them he was going away, and that if he went not the Comforter would not come. it was just so with Joseph. He said this time after time to the Twelve and to the Female Relief Societies and in his public discourses; but none of us seemed to understand that he was going to seal his testimony with his blood, but so it was. (Journal of Discourses 13:164.)

The Martyrdom and the Garments of Priesthood:

Returning to Nauvoo to give themselves up and go to Carthage:

Joseph and Hyrum, however, decided it would be best to return to Nauvoo and give themselves up. (D.H.C., 6:548-50.) That evening they made preparations to leave for Carthage. It is very unlikely the Quorum [of Anointed] met that Sunday evening; nevertheless, joseph instructed those of the Quorum [of Anointed] who where going to accompany him to remove their sacred garments before going to Carthage. (Heber C. Kimball, Journal, 21 December 1845, and Oliver B. Huntington, Journal, 22 April 1897.) * * * Not only was provision made to protect the sacred clothing of the Anointed Quorum, but Joseph took precautions to protect the Council of Fifty. William Clayton, before Joseph crossed the river, mentioned in his diary the concern the Prophet had for the records of the Kingdom. "Joseph whispered to me either to put the r. or K. into the hands of some faithful man and send them away, or burn them, or bury them. I concluded to bury them, which I did immediately on my return home." (William Clayton, Journal, 22 June 1844, cited in Ehat, "The Constitution of the Kingdom of God," p. 268.) * * * In the announcement of the Martyrdom, published in the 1844 Doctrine and Covenants, Willard Richards's faith in Joseph's promise he received when he was given his garment was also canonized: for Willard Richards was the only one in the jail who "through the providence of God, escaped, without even a hole in his robe." (D&C 111 (1844 edition): 135 (present LDS edition). But without his robe, john Taylor, too, was miraculously preserved and would later say that the brethren did not remove their garments because of fears, as some had misrepresented, but so they would not expose the sacred clothing to the gaze of unbelievers. (Heber C. Kimball, Journal, 21 December 1845.) (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 184-187.)

Notice that in John's testimony, before Jesus went to the Mt. of Olives he lay aside his garments and when he took his garments it does not say that he put them on again. There could possibly be a correlation between why John's account only says that Jesus took his garments rather than saying put them on again and what the Prophet Joseph Smith did:

|v4 He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself.
|v5 After that he poureth water into a bason, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded.
|v6 Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and Peter saith unto him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet?
|v7 Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter.
|v8 Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me.
|v9 Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head.
|v10 Jesus saith to him, He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and ye are clean, but not all.
|v11 For he knew who should betray him; therefore said he, Ye are not all clean.
|v12 So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you?
|v13 Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am.
|v14 If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet.
|v15 For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.
|v17 If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them. (NewT:John 13:4-17)

8 August 1844

Wilford Woodruff quoting Brigham Youngs comments--right of King and Priest:

The Prophet Joseph has lade the foundation for a great work, and we will build upon it.... Let those who hold the keys of the kingdom of God build it up in all the world. If... he is a king and priest, let him go and build up a kingdom this is his right, and it is the right of many here but who is the head? The Twelve.... Now if you want Rigdon, Lyman or Law to lead you or any body else, you may have them, but I tel you in the name of the Lord, that no man can put another between the Twelve and the Prophet Joseph. Why? Because Joseph was their file leader and he has committed into their hands the keys of the Kingdom for all the world. (Wilford Woodruff, Journal, 8 Aug 1844; (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 202.)

August 1844
Samuel W. Richards to Franklin D. Richards:

Orson Hyde told... that they were in Council with Joseph so much last spring[.] He said that Joseph was preparing them for the work that they have now got to do which is to hold the keys and build up this kingdom in all the world. Joseph committed unto them all the keys of the Priesthood otherwise the fulness would not have been upon the Earth now [that] he is taken away. He also took them through all the ordinances which is necessary for the Salvation of Man, that they having experienced them all, by passing through them, might be prepared to lead the People in the path which they had trod when he had finished his work ordained and anointed the twelve to lead this people and build upon the foundation which he had laid he was filled with joy & says he it is now but little matter what becomest of me....he has gone to minister not only on earth but in heaven, and under the earth. (Samuel W. Richards to Franklin D. Richards, 23-26 August 1844, Church Archives; Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 184-187.)

Joseph Fielding thoughts upon Joseph death:

[M]y Consolation in the midst of this Affair was that all had been done[.] Joseph and Hyram had done all that they could have done and the Foundation of the great Work of the last Days was laid so that it could be finished by the 12 Appostles [sic] who had been instructed in all things pertaining to the Kingdom of God on the Earth, some also beside the 12 had received their Endowment, which was expected at the completion of the Temple. I myself and my Wife had had this Privilege granted us in part, [Joseph and his wife would be anointed a King and Priest and Queen and Priestess when the Nauvoo temple was completed a few months later], I also believed that as Joseph was the only one that had the Keys of the Priesthood of [the] Kingdom of God on the Earth since the Days of Peter and the other Apostles, he must not only minister the same on Earth but also to the whole World of Spirits who departed from this Life in the time of the Broken Covenant, even as Jesus did to those before him to the Flood [1 Peter 3:18-20; 4:6; Isaiah 61:1; D&C 76: 73-74; and , Moses 7: 38-40 (23-45), 55-47)], that those who had died without the Priesthood must remain so until it should be restored to the Earth, but it is necessary that they as well as we who are now alive should be made acquainted with the Ordinances, Signs and Tokens of the Priesthood and the Turms [sic] of Admission into the kingdom in Order that they may come forth with those who have received it here, so that Joseph was as much needed there as here, and perhaps more so, these Reflections in a great measure took off the edge of the Grief that I might else have felt, for I thought that [he] had so fulfilled his own Purposes, and I felt willing to say amen to it. (Ehat, "Nauvoo Journal of Joseph Fielding," pp. 153-54; Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 210.)

27 September 1844

John S. Fullmer to "Uncle John" on the Prophets death and succession:

[John S. Fullmer writing to his Uncle John testified that the modern apostles were] equal [in] authority with ["Peter, james, & John or Paul"]... Men who have power to bind on earth & it shall [be] bound in Heaven. & to Loose on earth & it shall be loosed in Heaven.... Now I expect these things will choke you pretty near, but...I tell you these things are reasonable; & were these powers & authority are not held, then you will not find the fulness of the everlasting Gospel, nor the fulness of the priesthood....

Perhaps you may think that be cause [sic] our leaders are gone [Joseph and Hyrum] we are the same as broken up, but let me tell you that ... to our joy, the Prophet succeeded before his death in completely organizing the Church conferring Keys, authority and enduements upon the Apostles & others, so that the work can go on as well as when he alone was propelling it; and better, because there are more now to push it, each holding all the power which he held in the priestly office. We are rushing the Temple ahead, faster since his death than before. In it, all who shall be found worthy, have promised their enduement. We expect to finish it before a year form now. What would you give to share in such a blessing? (John S. Fullmer to "Uncle John,: 27 September 1844, Church Archives.; Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 210.)

Introduction to the Book of Anointings:

Brigham Young and the Twelve were Zealous in fulfilling Joseph's intentions for the Nauvoo Temple when ordinance work began in December 1845. In less than sixty days, over 5,000 persons received the endowment, 2,420 living individuals received eternal marriage sealings, 369 persons participated in proxy marriage ordinances, 71 children were sealed, 130 adoptions were preformed, and 591 received the anointings of the fulness of the priesthood [and were made Kings and Queens, Priests and Priestesses unto the Most High God.] (Joseph Smith's Introduction of Temple Ordinances and the 1844 Mormon Succession Question, A Thesis by Andrew F. Ehat 1981, BYU Special Collections, p. 240.)

|v8 The Melchizedek Priesthood holds the right of presidency, and has power and authority over all the offices in the church in all ages of the world, to administer in spiritual things.

|v9 The Presidency of the High Priesthood, after the order of Melchizedek, have a right to officiate in all the offices in the church.

|v10 High priests after the order of the Melchizedek Priesthood have a right to officiate in their own standing, under the direction of the presidency, in administering spiritual things, and also in the office of an elder, priest (of the Levitical order), teacher, deacon, and member.

|v11 An elder has a right to officiate in his stead when the high priest is not present.

|v12 The high priest and elder are to administer in spiritual things, agreeable to the covenants and commandments of the church; and they have a right to officiate in all these offices of the church when there are no higher authorities present.

|v13 The second priesthood is called the Priesthood of Aaron, because it was conferred upon Aaron and his seed, throughout all their generations.
|v14 Why it is called the lesser priesthood is because it is an appendage to the greater, or the Melchizedek Priesthood, and has power in administering outward ordinances.
|v15 The bishopric is the presidency of this priesthood, and holds the keys or authority of the same.

Juvenile Instructor, Vol 15:111
Article entitled: "Temples"
Daniel Tyler
15 May 1880

In my last [article in this series of articles on the temple] I showed you how particular the Lord was about having everything [ordinance-wise performed in a temple] recorded and witnessed. This strictness is not confined to those two items, but the Lord has always been very particular to have things done "according to the pattern" He has given. In a revelation given on the 19th of January, 1841, He says:

> For there is not a place found on earth that he may come and restore again that which was lost unto you, or which he hath taken away, even the fullness of the priesthood.

Perhaps some of my young readers may enquire if Joseph Smith previous to the giving of this revelation was not an Apostle, which is the highest grade of priesthood in the Church, as well as Prophet, Seer and Revelator, and if there were not a quorum of Twelve Apostles, a Patriarch and a quorum of Seventies as well as Elders, Priests, Teachers and Deacons.
Yes, my young friends, all these authorities were in the Church; yea, more, they had received endowments in the Kirtland Temple, where cloven tongues as of fire sat upon many, and they spoke with the power of God, and saw many marvelous things, brief mention of which has heretofore been made. While Joseph Smith was an Apostle he was also the chief of the Apostles, and presided over the Apostles and over the whole Church, as is stated in the Doctrine and Covenants, sec. cvii., par. 91-92. The question then arises, What is meant by the fullness of the priesthood?
It does not mean any special office above that of Apostles, but that there were powers belonging to the different grades of priesthood which had not been conferred. They had no temple, no baptismal font, no administration for the dead, no endowments, no place to "reveal ordinances which had been hid from before the world was." As a faint illustration, I will speak of the patriarchal priesthood, and say that every faithful Elder in Israel who has received a patriarchal blessing by a legally authorized father in Israel, is, himself, by virtue of his blessing, a patriarch to his children, and without such blessing is not a recognized patriarch. This doctrine may be new to some of you, but whether or not, it is true.

But all faithful patriarchs have not the fullness of that priesthood. By virtue of a patriarchal blessing the patriarch thus created receives power to renew unto his posterity the rights conferred upon him; but he cannot confer patriarchal blessings outside his own lineage or rather beyond his immediate descendants; while those especially ordained to bless the people may bless all kindreds of the earth, and the Patriarch to the Church is recognized as the Patriarch of all Patriarchs.

In like manner men may be ordained to other grades of priesthood without obtaining a fullness thereof. The Lord informed the prophet that the temples were the places to receive "the fullness of the priesthood." He said: "for a baptismal font there is not upon the earth, that my Saints may be baptized for those who are dead; for this ordinance belongeth to my house," (a temple) "and cannot be acceptable to me, only in the days of your poverty, wherein ye are not able to build a house unto me."

These additional powers include all of the keys that belong to the holy priesthood on the earth, or were ever revealed to man in any dispensation, and which admit men and women within the veil. They enable them to pass by the angels and the gods, until they get into the presence of the Father and the Son. They make of them kings and priests, queens and priestesses to God, to rule and reign as such over their posterity and those who may be given to them by adoption, in the great jubilee of rest which is near at hand. It gives them the right to the tree of life, and the "seal of the living God in their foreheads," spoken of by John the revelator. No marvel, then, that the Lord requires sacred places for such great and glorious things-"the fullness of the holy priesthood" to be restored.

THE CONCEPT OF GATHERING TO ZION FOR THE FULNESS OF THE PRIESTHOOD

Richard A. Ware
22 October 1981

The concept of the gathering of the saints to Zion is a subject that is closely intertwined with whether or not a person receives the highest blessings of the temple: the fulness of the priesthood.

In several statements made by the First Presidency between 1902 and 1922, it was very apparent that the fulness of the priesthood, with few exceptions, was only administered to those who had united with the body of the Church.

In 1902 President Joseph F. Smith recorded in his letterbook that the fulness of the priesthood ordinances are given "to those who have gathered to Zion."1 In 1905 the First Presidency of the Church, composed of Joseph F. Smith, John R. Winder and Anthon H. Lund, stated that the fulness ordinances "are administered only to people who have gathered with the body of the Church."2 Additional statements made by the First Presidency are as follows:

14 March 1907

Gospel Mysteries

And indeed, so particular have the Presidencies been at administering second anointings, that they drew the line between faithful members of the Church who died without gathering with the Church, and faithful members who gathered with the body of the Church and remained faithful afterwards, leaving the faithful people who have died in a scattered condition to be dealt with by the authority on the other side of the veil.3

22 May 1908

People who are not members of the Church during their lifetime are not eligible to receive second blessings. They should not only have been members of the Church, but their faithfulness and worthiness to receive these blessings should be unquestioned, and besides the line has been drawn in favor of those who have either gathered with the body of the Church or died on their way to the gathering place, all others are left to be dealt with by the authority on the other side of the veil.4

22 May 1908

We have just informed President Stole that a rule of the temple forbids deceased women who were not members of the Church prior to their demise, or who did not gather with the body of the Church, being anointed to men, therefore, we could not endorse the recommends of the sisters referred to.5

16 February 1909

The general rule adopted by the First Presidency in regard to the second anointing, is in effect that those blessings should be confined to the faithful members of the Church who have gathered with the body of the Church, or who died on the way in an effort to do so.6

18 March 1922

Referring to yours of the 15th inst. we would say that President Woodruff's instructions to Stake Presidents on the subject of recommending for second anointing limited them to persons who had gathered with the Church, whether dead or alive, and this was the policy adopted by President Snow, although he may have made exceptions to it. And it is our mind that faithful men who have gathered with the Church, who can be recommended as worthy to receive these higher blessings, but who through death were deprived of them, should receive them by proxy.

Apparently the concept of "gathering to Zion" or gathering "with the Church" never did mean "gathering to Utah", because several individuals were given the fulness of the priesthood who lived outside of Utah.8 Rather it meant "gathering to the stakes of Zion." wherever they might be found.
In the early days of the Church there were very few stakes in existence, and those who lived in the mission fields of the Church were not considered to be a part of "Zion" unless the branch or ward was a part of a stake. Therefore all the saints who desired to receive their full temple blessings had to gather to a stake of Zion.
During the time of the Prophet Joseph Smith, the stakes of Zion were located in Kirtland, Missouri and Nauvoo. When the saints moved west and settled in the Utah Basin, the Salt Lake stake was organized to which all the saints were to gather. Later, President Brigham Young organized new settlements from upper Idaho, through Utah, and south to Mesa, Arizona. Each of these settlements became a stake, and any individual who gathered to one of these stakes fulfilled the rule that he must gather to Zion in order to be worthy to receive the full temple blessings.

Eventually the stakes of the Church spread out into other states and to other continents so that today stakes are located around the world, and members of the Church are strongly counseled everywhere to not gather to Utah, but rather to gather to the stakes within their own lands.9 If they are faithful and meet all the requirements necessary, they can receive the fulness ordinances without moving to Utah.
With this concept in mind, it becomes easier to understand what Joseph Smith was saying in his discourse on the gathering of the saints, when he addressed a large assembly of saints at the Temple stand on June 11, 1843:

This subject [Matt 23:37] was presented to me since I came to the stand. What was the object of the gathering the Jews, or the people of God in any age of the world? * * *
The main object was to build unto the Lord a house whereby He could reveal unto His people the ordinances of His house and the glories of His kingdom, and teach the people the way of salvation; for there are certain ordinances and principles that, when they are taught and practiced, must be done in a place or house built for that purpose. * * *
It was the design of the councils of heaven before the world was, that the principles and laws of the priesthood should be predicated upon the gathering of the people in every age of the world. Jesus did everything to gather the people, and they would not be gathered, and He therefore poured out curses upon them. * * *
It is for the same purpose that God gathers together His people in the last days, to build unto the Lord a house to prepare them for the ordinances and endowments, washings and anointings, etc. * * *
If a man gets a fulness of the priesthood of God he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordinances of the house of the Lord. * * *
All men who become heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordinances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordinances will come short of the fullness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole. * * *
Why gather the people together in this place? For the same purpose that Jesus wanted to gather the Jews---to receive the ordinances, the blessings, and glories that God has in store for His Saints.10

Then, six months before the Prophet was martyred, he urged the saints to gather so that they could be sealed and saved:

The Saints have not too much time to save and redeem their dead, and gather together their living relatives, that they may be saved also, before the earth will be smitten, and the consumption decreed falls upon the world.
I would advise all the Saints to go with their might and gather together all their living relatives to this place, that they may be sealed and saved, that they may be prepared against the day that the destroying angel goes forth. . .and my only trouble at the present time is concerning ourselves, that the Saints will be divided, broken up, and scattered, before we get our salvation secure. . . .11

Joseph Smith was concerned that the saints gather to Nauvoo so that they could receive the fulness of the temple blessings before the destroying angel was sent forth. Many of the saints did gather to Nauvoo, and hundreds of the faithful saints received the fulness of the priesthood blessings for themselves, and thus they were able to "secure their salvation."

Since the days of Nauvoo there have been tens of thousands who have received the fulness of the priesthood blessings. With stakes being located world-wide now, it is easier to fulfill the requirement to gather to Zion.

PERSONAL NOTE

For many years I had read statements by the Prophet Joseph and others regarding the importance of the scattering and gathering of Israel, but had only thought of the gathering as being important in terms of giving them the gospel message. Later, during the latter 70's I began reading several statements by the First Presidency concerning the relationship of the gathering and the fulness of the priesthood. Still, I did not understand how it all related to each other. Finally, one evening I took time to re-read the statements by the First Presidency on this subject (which are herein quoted) to see if I could understand the subject any better. Not having anything come to me I retired to my bed for the night. My entire being was filled with the desire to know the meaning of it all as I knelt to say my personal prayers. Suddenly, before I could even utter the feelings of my soul I saw before me the concepts of the scattering and the gathering, and I saw how all the different pieces of these concepts fit together in perfect beauty, and I saw all the quotations that I had been reading over the years and what they really meant in terms of this subject. It filled my entire soul with joy to see and understand it. I jumped up immediately and went to my desk and described everything I saw in my mind's eye on paper so that I would not forget it. I then retired to bed very grateful for the Lord's blessings. The next morning I wrote the paper as is herein given. This paper is the substance of what I saw. (This note was written May 15, 1984.)

20 January 1920

A HEAVENLY MANIFESTATION

By Heber Q. Hale, President of the Boise Stake of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints

It is with very humble and grateful spirit that I attempt to relate on this occasion, by request, a personal experience which is very sacred to me. I must of necessity be brief, furthermore, there were certain things made known to me which I do not feel at Liberty to relate here. Let me say by way of preface that between the hours of 12 and 7:30 in the night of January 20, 1920, while alone in a room at the home of my friend, W. F Rawson in Carey, Idaho, this glorious manifestation was vouchsafed to me.

I was not conscious of anything that transpired during the hours mentioned, except what I experienced in this manifestation. I did not turn over in bed, nor was I disturbed by any sound, which indeed, is unusual for me. Whether it be called a dream an apparition, a vision, or a pilgrimage of my spirit into the world of spirits, I know [not], I care not. I know that I actually saw and experienced the thing related in this Heavenly Manifestation, and that they are as real to me as any experience in my life. For me, at least, that is sufficient.

Of all the doctrines and practices of the Church, the vicarious work for the dead has been the most difficult for me to comprehend and whole-heatedly accept. I consider this vision is the Lord's answer to the prayer of my soul on this and certain other questions.

I passed but a short distance from my body through a film in to the world of spirits. This was my first experience after going to sleep. I seemed to realize that I had passed through the change called "death", and I so referred to it in my conversation with the immortal beings with whom I came immediately into contact, I readily observed their displeasure at our use of the word "death" and the fear which we attach to it. They use another word in referring to the transition from mortality. Which word I do not recall, and I can only approach its meaning as the impression was felt upon my mind, be calling it a "New Birth".

My first visual impression was the nearness of the world of spirit to the world of mortality. The vastness of this heavenly sphere was bewildering to the eyes of a spirit-novice. Many enjoyed unrestricted freedom as to both vision and action. The vegetation and landscape were beautiful, beyond description. Not all green, as here, but gold with varying shades of pink, orange and lavender as the rainbow. A sweet calmness pervaded everything. The people I met there I did not think of as spirits, but as men and women, self-thinking and self-acting individuals, going about important business in a most orderly manner. There was perfect order there and everybody had something to do and seemed to be about their business.

That the inhabitants of the spirit world are classified according to their lives of purity and their subserviency to the Father's will was subsequently made apparent. Particularly was it observed that the wicked and unrepentant are confined to a certain district by themselves, the confines of which are as definitely determined and impassable as the line marking the division of the physical from the spirit world a mere film but impassable until the person himself has changed. The world of spirit is the temporary abode of all spirits pending the resurrection from the dead and the judgment. There was much activity within the different spheres and appointed ministers of salvation were seen coming from the higher to the lower spheres in pursuit of their missionary appointments.

I had a very pronounced desire to meet certain of my kinsfolk and my friends but I was at once impressed with the fact that I had entered a world more numerously inhabited. I could be in only one place at a time and accordingly it would require many years to search out and converse with all those I had known and to those whom I desired to meet me, unless they were especially summoned to meet me. All worthy men and women were appointed to special and regular services under a well organized plan of action, directed principally toward preaching the gospel to the unconverted, teaching those who seek knowledge, and establishing family relationships and gathering genealogies for the use and benefit of mortal survivors of their respective families that the work of baptism and the sealing ordinances may be vicariously performed for the departed in the Temples for spirits have access to our Temple records and are kept fully advised of the work done therein, but the vicarious work done here does not become automatically effective there.

The recipients must first believe, repent and accept baptism and confirmation, then certain consummating ordinances are performed effectualizing these saving principles in the lives of these regenerated beings. And so the great work is going on; they doing a work there which we cannot do here, and we doing a work here which they cannot do there -- both necessary -- each the complement of the other -- thus bringing about the salvation of all of God's children who will be saved.

I was surprised to find there no babies in arms. I met the infant son of Orson W. Rawlins, my first counselor. I immediately recognized him as the baby who died a few years ago, and yet he seemed to have the intelligence and in certain respects, the appearance of an adult, and was engaged in matters pertaining to his family and its genealogy. My mind was quite contented on the point that mother will again receive into their arms, their children who died in infancy and be fully satisfied; but the fact remains that entrance into the world of spirit is not [an] inhabitation of growth, but the greatest opportunity for development. Babies are adult spirits in infant bodies.

I presently beheld a mighty multitude of men, the largest I have ever seen gathered in one place, who I immediately recognized as soldiers, the millions who had been slaughtered and rushed so savagely into the world of spirit during the great war.

Among them moved calmly and majestically the great General in supreme command. As I drew nearer I received the kindly smile and generous welcome of that great loving man, General Richard W. Young. then came the positive conviction of my soul that all men, living or dead, there is not one who is so perfectly fitted for the great mission unto which he had been called. He commands immediately the attention and respect of all the soldiers, he is at once a great general and a great High Priest of God. No earthly field of labor to which he could have been assigned can compare with it in importance and extent. I passed from this scene to return later when I found General Young had this vast army of men completely organized with officers over successive divisions and all where seated and he was perching the gospel in great earnestness to them.

As I passed on I soon met my beloved Mother. She greeted me most affectionately and expressed surprise at seeing me there and reminded me that I had not completed my allotted mission on earth. She seemed to be going somewhere and was in a hurry and accordingly took her leave with saying that she would see me again.

I moved forward covering an appreciable distance and consuming considerable time viewing the wonderful sights of landscape, parks, trees, flowers and meeting people, some of whom I knew, but many thousands of whom I did not recognize as acquaintances.

I presently approached a small group of men standing in a path lined with spacious stretches of flowers, grasses and shrubbery -- all of a golden hue -- marking the approach to a beautiful building. This group was engaged in earnest conversation. One of their number parted from the rest and came walking down the path. I at once recognized my esteemed President Joseph F. Smith. He embraced me as a father would his son and after a few words of greeting quietly remarked, "you have not come to stay," for which I understood more as a declaration than an interrogation. For the first time I became fully conscious of my uncompleted mission on earth and as much as I would have liked to remain, I at once asked Pres. Smith if I might return. "you have expressed a righteous desire" he replied, and I shall take the matter up with the authorities and let you know later."

We then returned and he led me toward a little group of men from whom he had just separated. I immediately recognized President Brigham Young and the Prophet Joseph Smith. I was surprised to find the former a shorter and heavier built man that I had expected. On the other hand I found the latter to be taller than I had expected to find him. Both they and Pres. Smith were possessed of a calm and holy majesty which was at once kind and kingly [Second Anointing]. Pres. Smith introduced me to the other who greeted me warmly. We then returned our steps and President Smith took his leave saying he would see me again.

From a certain point of vantage I was permitted to view this earth and what was going on. There were no limitations to my vision and I was astounded at this. I saw permitted to view this earth and what was going on. There were no limitations to my vision and I was astounded at this. I saw my wife and children at home. I saw President Heber J. Grant at the head of this great Church and Kingdom of God [Heber J. Grant, as the Proxy King of Kings, and Lord of lords, for the Lord] and felt the divine power that radiated from God giving it correct principles and designated to endure, and beset by evil and sinister forces that seek to lead men astray, and thwart the purposes of God. I saw towns and cities; the sins and wickedness of men and women; I saw vessels sailing upon the oceans and scanned the battle carried fields of France and Belgium.

In a word, I beheld the whole world as if it were but a panorama passing before my eyes. Then there came to me the unmistakable impression that this earth and scenes and persons upon it are open to the vision of the spirits only when special permission is given or when they are assigned to special service here. This [is] particularly true of the righteous who are busily engaged in the service of the Lord and who cannot be engaged in two fields of activity at the same time. The wicked and unrepentant spirits having still, like all the rest, their free agency, and applying themselves to no useful or wholesome undertaking seek pleasure about their old haunts and exalt in the sins and wretchedness of degenerate humanity. To this extent they are still the tools of Satan. It is these idle mischievous and deceptive spirits who appear as miserable counterfeits at spiritualistic scenes, table dancing, and ouija board operations. The noble and great ones do not respond to the call of the medium and to every curious group of meddlesome inquires. They would not do it in mortality, certainly they would not do it in their increased state of knowledge in the world of immortality. These wicked and unrepentant spirits are allies of Satan and his hosts, operating through willing mediums in the flesh, these three forces constitute an unholy trinity upon the earth and are responsible for all the sins, wickedness, distrust and misery among men and nations.

I moved forward feasting my eyes upon the beauties of everything about me and glorifying in the indescribable peace and happiness that abound in everybody and through everything. The farther I went, the more glorious things appeared. While standing at a certain vintage, I beheld a short distance away a wonderful beautiful temple, capped with a golden dome, from which emerged a small group of men dressed in white robes who parsed for a brief conversation. These were the first I had seen thus clad. The millions that I had previously seen were dressed, of course, but dressed variously. the soldiers, for instance, were in uniform. In this little group of men my eyes rested upon one more splendorous and holy than the rest. While I thus gazed, President Joseph F. Smith parted from the others and came to my side. "Do you know HIM?" he inquired. I quickly answered, "Yes, I know HIM." My eyes beheld my Lord and Savior. "It is true," said President Joseph F. Smith and how my soul thrilled with rapture unmistakable joy filled my soul. President Smith informed me that I had been given permission to return to complete my mission upon the earth which the Lord had appointed me to fill and with his hand upon my shoulder uttered these memorable and significant words: "Brother Heber [Hale], you have a great work to do. Go forth with a Prayerful heart and you shall be blessed in your ministry from this time on. Never doubt that God lives, that Jesus Christ is His Son, the Savior of the world, that the Holy Ghost is a God of spirit, and the messenger of the Father and the Son. Never doubt the resurrection of the dead, and the immortality of the soul, that the mission of the Latter-Day Saints is to all the world, all mankind both living and the dead, and that the great work in the Holy Temple for the Salvation of the dead has only begun."

"Know this, that Joseph Smith was sent of God to usher in the gospel dispensation of the fullness of times, which is at this time the recognized and ordained head of the Church of Jesus Christ upon the earth. Give him your confidence and support. Much you have seen and heard here you will not be permitted to repeat when you return."

Quite a distance through various scenes and passing innumerable people, I traveled before I reached this sphere which I had first entered. On my way I was greeted by many friends and relatives certain of whom sent words of greeting and counsel to their dear ones here. My mother being one of them. The other I will mention. I met Brother John Adamson, his wife, his son, James, and daughter Isabelle, all of whom were killed by the hand of a foul assassin in Carey, Idaho, in the evening of October 29, 1915. They immediately said (Brother Adamson speaking), "Tell the children that we are very happy and that they should not mourn our departure nor worry their minds over the manner by which we were taken. There is a purpose in it and we have a work here to do which requires our collective efforts and which we could not do individually. I was at once made to know that the work referred to was that of genealogy on which they were working in England and Scotland.

One of the grandest and most sacred things of heaven is family relationship. The establishment of a complete change without any broken links, brings a fullness of joy. Links wholly bad will be dropped out and other new links put in our two adjoining links welded together. Men and women throughout the world are moved upon by their dead ancestors to gather genealogy. These are the links for the chain. The ordinances of baptism, endowments and sealing performed in the temple of God by the living for the dead are the welding of the links. Ordinances are performed in the spirit world effectualizing in the individual recipients and saving principles of the gospel vicariously performed here. As I was approaching the place were I had entered my attention was attracted to a small group of women preparing what appeared to be wearing apparel. Observing my inquiring countenance one of the women remarked. "We are preparing to receive Brother Philip Worthington". (He died Jan. 22, 1920. Pres. Hale was advised by telegram, returned to Boise and presided over his funeral January 23.) As I gasped his name in repetition I was admonished. "If you knew the joy and glorious mission that awaits him here you would not ask to have him detained on earth." Then flooding through consciousness came this awful truth that the will of the Lord can be done on earth as it is in Heaven, only when we resign completely to His will and let his will be done in us and through us. On account of the selfishness of men or assertion of the personal will as against the will of God, many persons who might have otherwise been taken in innocence and peace have been permitted to live and have passed a life of suffering and misery or debauchery and crime and have lived to their own peril. Men and women and children are often called to missions of great importance to the other side and some respond gladly while others refuse to go and their loved ones will not give them up. Also many die because they have not faith to be healed, others, yet live alone and pass out of the world of mortals without any special manifestations or action of the divine will. When a man is stricken ill, the question of prime importance is not "Is he going to live or die." What matters whether he lives or dies so long as the will of the Father in done? Surely we can trust him with God. Herein lies the special duty and privilege of administration by the Holy priesthood, namely, it is given the elders of the Church to divine the will of the Father concerning the ones upon whose heard their hands are laid. If for any reason they are unable to presage the Father's will, they should continue to pray in faith for the afflicted one humbly conceding supremacy to the will of God, that his will be done, in earth as it is in heaven ["The Lord's Prayer" is Prophetic! We should pray for the earth to become heaven]. To a righteous person birth into the world of spirit is a glorious privilege and blessing. The greatest spirits in the family of the Father have not usually been permitted to tarry longer int he spirit world where the field is greater and the workers fewer. This earth career therefore, may be longer or shorter as the Father wills.

I passed quietly out where I had entered the world of spirit and immediately my body quickened and I arose to ponder over and record the many wonderful things I had seen and heard. Let me here and now declare to the world that irrespective of what others may think and say, I do know of my own positive knowledge and from my own personal experience that God is the Father of all the spirits of men and that he lives, that Jesus Christ is his Son and the Savior of the world [D&C 132:24 "This is eternal lives--to know the only wise and true God, and Jesus Christ, whom he hath sent." & D&C 130:3 "John 14:23--The appearing of the Father and the Son, in that verse, is a personal appearance"], that the spirit of man does not die but survives this change called death, and goes to the world of spirit -- that the world of spirit is upon this earth, that man's individuality is not lost by death, nor his progress inhibited, that the spirits will literally take up their bodies again in the resurrection, that the principles are now being taught to the spirits and the great work of saving the Father's family among the living and the dead is in progress and that but comparatively few will be lost, that the gospel of Jesus Christ has again been established upon the earth with all keys, powers, authority, and blessings through the instrumentality of the Prophet Joseph Smith, that this is not only the power which will save and exalt everyone obedient, but will ultimately save the world [Ordinances of the Fulness of the Priesthood ultimately will save the World], that the burden of our mission is to save souls unto God [Saving Souls Unto God is the burden of our mission--That means D&C 76:21, saving "Sons and Daughters Unto God--through the Fulness of the Priesthood...When we are ultimately Anointed Kings & Priests Unto the Most High God & His Father--This is the burden of our mission], and that the work for the dead is no less important than the work for the living. (Typescript in possession of Author.)

SECOND ANOINTING

Gospel Mysteries

Heber Hale's Second Anointing:

Taken from the Lambert collection in the University of Utah Library:

A note regarding the one-time existence of a "second anointing", or Second blessing in the Mormon temple.

Riding in an automobile the evening of June 28, 1966, with (1) a former student of mine, Dr. John Fitzgerald, (2) Juanita Brooks, and (3) Heber Q. Hale, who was once "high up" in Mormon Church circles and a very believing person who, up in Boise, Idaho, in the 1920's saw visions and heard voices and saw great spiritual manifestations, the topic of the "Second Endowments" in the Mormon temple ceremonies came up. Fitzgerald had never heard of it. Mrs. Brooks said John D. Lee's recitals said something about "second anointings" or something. I [Asael C. Lambert,] had once asked the President of the Idaho Falls temple if they had built any special upper room for "Second endowments" and he dodged and answer because he probably didn't know what the term meant. Heber Hale's who is now in his eighties and pretty liberally alert said he recently asked Howard McDonald, President of the Salt Lake Temple, if They had any "second blessing" nowadays and McDonald had said loudly and emphatically that there "is no such thing" "and never was". Hale said he chided McDonald for his ignorance and abruptness, and told him that he, Hales, had had his "Second Blessings", or using my phrase, "Second Endowments." Hale then told us that years ago he and his wife had been asked by President Joseph F. Smith to come to [the] Salt Lake Temple and receive their "Second Blessings", which they did. I asked if the ceremony was given for a company or group, and Hales said, "Oh No. Only for the man and his wife who are asked and chosen by the President of the Church. Not even the Apostles can select persons for that blessing." I asked "Did they have a special room for it?" He said, "No. We were taken up into the sealing room with its altar. We knelt on opposite sides of the altar my wife and I, with hands clasped across the altar, and President Smith at the end who gave us our second blessings." He stressed the word blessings," but didn't recite what was said. He said it was all for special recognition for faithfulness and worthiness [and] for encouragement and reward."
Mrs Brooks, who has for years gone through the St. George temple rather regularly didn't say whether she or anyone she knew had received their "Second Anointing," but she suggested it would probably include some further confirmations of power the man had and was to have over his wife or wives--always one concern of the temple "endowment". She said there was (is) a small upper room in the St. George temple,--"a small prayer room." (Asael C. Lambert, Papers, University of Utah Libraries, "Notebook on Mormon Temple Ceremonies," Box 26, Book 3.)

"A Diagram of the Kingdom of God."
Elder Orson Hyde
Millennial Star, IX,2 (January 15, 1847), pp. 23-4.

The above diagram shows the order and unity of the kingdom of God. The eternal Father sits at the head, crowned King of kings and Lord of lords. Wherever the other lines meet, there sits a king and a priest unto God, bearing rule, authority, and dominion under the Father. He is one with the Father, because his kingdom is joined to his Father's and becomes part of it.

The most eminent and distinguished prophets who have laid down their lives for their testimony (Jesus among the rest), will be crowned at the head of the largest kingdoms under the Father, and will be one with Christ as Christ is one with his Father; for their kingdoms are all joined together, and such as do the will of the Father, the same are his mothers: sisters, and brothers. He that has been faithful over a few things, will be made ruler over many things; he that has been faithful over ten talents, shall have dominion over ten cities, and he that has been faithful over five talents, shall have dominion over five cities, and to every man will be given a kingdom and a dominion, according to his merit, powers, and abilities to govern and control. It will be seen by the above diagram that there are kingdoms of all sizes, an infinite variety to suit all grades of merit and ability. The chosen vessels unto God are the kings and priests that are placed at the head of these kingdoms. These have received their washings and anointings in the temple of God on this earth; they have been chosen, ordained, and anointed kings and priests, to reign as such in the resurrection of the just. Such as have not received the fulness of the priesthood, (for the fulness of the priesthood includes the authority of both king and priest) and have not been anointed and ordained in the temple of the Most High, may obtain salvation in the celestial kingdom. but not a celestial crown. Many are called to enjoy a celestial glory, yet few are chosen to wear a celestial crown, or rather, to be rulers in the celestial kingdom.

While this portion of eternity that we now live in, called time, continues, and while the other portions of eternity that we may hereafter dwell in, continue, those lines in the foregoing diagram, representing kingdoms, will continue to extend and be lengthened out; and thus, the increase of our kingdoms will increase the kingdom of our God, even as Daniel hath said:"Of the increase of his kingdom and government there shall be no end." All these kingdoms are one kingdom, and there is a King over kings, and a Lord over lords. There are Lords many, and Gods many, for they are called Gods to whom the word of God comes, and the word of God comes to all these kings and priests. But to our branch of the kingdom there is but one God, to whom we all owe the most perfect submission and loyalty; yet our God is just as subject to still higher intelligences, as we should be to him.

The great fault of all nations has been, that they would worship more Gods than one. They well knew that there was more than one God, and vainly sought to worship all they imagined. We well know that there are more sovereigns than one over the kingdoms of this world, but would it not be folly in the extreme for an Englishman to attempt to serve other kings and rulers, while a subject of her Majesty, and living within her dominions? Most certainly it would: his Queen would be jealous of him, but if there was no other power to serve, she never would be jealous; there would be no room for fear or suspicion. If there was only one man on earth, that one man would never be jealous of his wife. Our God says that he is a jealous God; but how could he be jealous if he were the only God? These kingdoms, which are one kingdom, are designed to extend till they not only embrace this world, but every other planet that rolls in the blue vault of heaven. Thus will all things be gathered in one during the dispensation of the fulness of times, and the Saints will not only possess the earth, but all things else, for, says Paul, "All things are yours, whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours, and ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's."

Wherever the other lines meet, there sits a king and a priest unto God, bearing rule, authority, and dominion under the Father. He is one with the Father, because his kingdom is joined to his Father's and becomes part of it.

The most eminent and distinguished prophets who have laid down their lives for their testimony (Jesus among the rest), will be crowned at the head of the largest kingdoms under the Father, and will be one with Christ as Christ is one with his Father; for their kingdoms are all joined together, and such as do the will of the Father, the same are his mothers: sisters, and brothers. He that has been faithful over a few things, will be made ruler over many things; he that has been faithful over ten talents, shall have dominion over ten cities, and he that has been faithful over five talents, shall have dominion over five cities, and to every man will be given a kingdom and a dominion, according to his merit, powers, and abilities to govern and control. It will be seen by the above diagram that there are kingdoms of all sizes, an infinite variety to suit all grades of merit and ability. The chosen vessels unto God are the kings and priests that are placed at the head of these kingdoms. These have received their washings and anointings in the temple of God on this earth; they have been chosen, ordained, and anointed kings and priests, to reign as such in the resurrection of the just. Such as have not received the fulness of the priesthood, (for the fulness of the priesthood includes the authority of both king and priest) and have not been anointed and ordained in the temple of the Most High, may obtain salvation in the celestial kingdom. but not a celestial crown. Many are called to enjoy a celestial glory, yet few are chosen to wear a celestial crown, or rather, to be rulers in the celestial kingdom.

While this portion of eternity that we now live in, called time, continues, and while the other portions of eternity that we may hereafter dwell in, continue, those lines in the foregoing diagram, representing kingdoms, will continue to extend and be lengthened out; and thus, the increase of our kingdoms will increase the kingdom of our God, even as Daniel hath said:"Of the increase of his kingdom and government there shall be no end." All these kingdoms are one kingdom, and there is a King over kings, and a Lord over lords. There are Lords many, and Gods many, for they are called Gods to whom the word of God comes, and the word of God comes to all these kings and priests. But to our branch of the kingdom there is but one God, to whom we all owe the most perfect submission and loyalty; yet our God is just as subject to still higher intelligences, as we should be to him.

The great fault of all nations has been, that they would worship more Gods than one. They well knew that there was more than one God, and vainly sought to worship all they imagined. We well know that there are more sovereigns than one over the kingdoms of this world, but would it not be folly in the extreme for an Englishman to attempt to serve other kings and rulers, while a subject of her Majesty, and living within her dominions? Most certainly it would: his Queen would be jealous of him, but if there was no other power to serve, she never would be jealous; there would be no room for fear or suspicion. If there was only one man on earth, that one man would never be jealous of his wife. Our God says that he is a jealous God; but how could he be jealous if he were the only God? These kingdoms, which are one kingdom, are designed to extend till they not only embrace this world, but every other planet that rolls in the blue vault of heaven. Thus will all things be gathered in one during the dispensation of the fulness of times, and the Saints will not only possess the earth, but all things else, for, says Paul, "All things are yours, whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours, and ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's."

|v22 Who hath also sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts.
(NewT:2 Corinthians 1:22)

|v13 In whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation: in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise,
|v14 Which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory.
(NewT:Ephesians 1:13-14)

|v30 And grieve not the holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption.
(NewT:Ephesians 4:30)

|v11 And they shall not teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for all shall know me, from the least to the greatest.
(NewT:Hebrews 8:11)

|v34 And they shall teach no more every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the LORD: for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the LORD; for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more.
(OldT:Jeremiah 31:34)

|v98 Until all shall know me, who remain, even from the least unto the greatest, and shall be filled with the knowledge of the Lord, and shall see eye to eye, and shall lift up their voice, and with the voice together sing this new song, saying:
(D&C: Section 84:98)

|c17|v0 Elijah seals the heavens, and is fed by the ravens--At his command the barrel of meal and the cruse of oil of the widow of Zarephath fail not--He raises her son from death.

|v1 And Elijah the Tishbite, who was of the inhabitants of Gilead, said unto Ahab, As the LORD God of Israel liveth, before whom I stand, there shall not be dew nor rain these years, but according to my word.

|v2 And the word of the LORD came unto him, saying,
|v3 Get thee hence, and turn thee eastward, and hide thyself by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan.
|v4 And it shall be, that thou shalt drink of the brook; and I have commanded the ravens to feed thee there. |v5 So he went and did according unto the word of the LORD: for he went and dwelt by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan.
|v6 And the ravens brought him bread and flesh in the morning, and bread and flesh in the evening; and he drank of the brook.
|v7 And it came to pass after a while, that the brook dried up, because there had been no rain in the land.

|v8 And the word of the LORD came unto him, saying,
|v9 Arise, get thee to Zarephath, which belongeth to Zidon, and dwell there: behold, I have commanded a widow woman there to sustain thee.
|v10 So he arose and went to Zarephath. And when he came to the gate of the city, behold, the widow woman was there gathering of sticks: and he called to her, and said, Fetch me, I pray thee, a little water in a vessel, that I may drink.
|v11 And as she was going to fetch it, he called to her, and said, Bring me, I pray thee, a morsel of bread in thine hand.
|v12 And she said, As the LORD thy God liveth, I have not a cake, but an handful of meal in a barrel, and a little oil in a cruse: and, behold, I am gathering two sticks, that I may go in and dress it for me and my son, that we may eat it, and die.
|v13 And Elijah said unto her, Fear not; go and do as thou hast said: but make me thereof a little cake first, and bring it unto me, and after make for thee and for thy son.
|v14 For thus saith the LORD God of Israel, The barrel of meal shall not waste, neither shall the cruse of oil fail, until the day that the LORD sendeth rain upon the earth.
|v15 And she went and did according to the saying of Elijah: and she, and he, and her house, did eat many days.
|v16 And the barrel of meal wasted not, neither did the cruse of oil fail, according to the word of the LORD, which he spake by Elijah.

|v17 And it came to pass after these things, that the son of the woman, the mistress of the house, fell sick; and his sickness was so sore, that there was no breath left in him.
|v18 And she said unto Elijah, What have I to do with thee, O thou man of God? art thou come unto me to call my sin to remembrance, and to slay my son?
|v19 And he said unto her, Give me thy son. And he took him out of her bosom, and carried him up into a loft, where he abode, and laid him upon his own bed.
|v20 And he cried unto the LORD, and said, O LORD my God, hast thou also brought evil upon the widow with whom I sojourn, by slaying her son?
|v21 And he stretched himself upon the child three times, and cried unto the LORD, and said, O LORD my God, I pray thee, let this child's soul come into him again.
|v22 And the LORD heard the voice of Elijah; and the soul of the child came into him again, and he revived.
|v23 And Elijah took the child, and brought him down out of the chamber into the house, and delivered him unto his mother: and Elijah said, See, thy son liveth.
  |v24 And the woman said to Elijah, Now by this I know that thou art a man of God, and that the word of the LORD in thy mouth is truth.
(OldT:1 Kings 17:Heading-24)

Gospel Mysteries

|v30 And it came to pass when they heard this voice, and beheld that it was not a voice of thunder, neither was it a voice of a great tumultuous noise, but behold, it was a still voice of perfect mildness, as if it had been a whisper, and it did pierce even to the very soul--
(BofM:Helaman 5:30)

|v11 And he said, Go forth, and stand upon the mount before the LORD. And, behold, the LORD passed by, and a great and strong wind rent the mountains, and brake in pieces the rocks before the LORD; but the LORD was not in the wind: and after the wind an earthquake; but the LORD was not in the earthquake:
|v12 And after the earthquake a fire; but the LORD was not in the fire: and after the fire a still small voice.
(OldT:1 Kings 19:11-12)

|c14|v0 Jesus speaks of many mansions; says he is the way, the truth, and the life; that to see him is to see the Father--He promises the first and second Comforters.

|v1 Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me.
|v2 In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you.
|v3 And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also.
|v4 And whither I go ye know, and the way ye know.
|v5 Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest; and how can we know the way?
|v6 Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me.
|v7 If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also: and from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him.
|v8 Philip saith unto him, Lord, shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us.
|v9 Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father?
|v10 Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? the words that I speak unto you I speak not of myself: but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works.
|v11 Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: or else believe me for the very works' sake.
|v12 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father.
|v13 And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son.
|v14 If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it.

|v15 If ye love me, keep my commandments.
|v16 And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever;
|v17 Even the Spirit of truth; whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you.
|v18 I will not leave you comfortless: I will come to you.

|v19 Yet a little while, and the world seeth me no more; but ye see me: because I live, ye shall live also.
|v20 At that day ye shall know that I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in you.
|v21 He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him.
|v22 Judas saith unto him, not Iscariot, Lord, how is it that thou wilt manifest thyself unto us, and not unto the world?
|v23 Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him.
|v24 He that loveth me not keepeth not my sayings: and the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's which sent me.
|v25 These things have I spoken unto you, being yet present with you.
|v26 But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you.
|v27 Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.
|v28 Ye have heard how I said unto you, I go away, and come again unto you. If ye loved me, ye would rejoice, because I said, I go unto the Father: for my Father is greater than I.
|v29 And now I have told you before it come to pass, that, when it is come to pass, ye might believe.
|v30 Hereafter I will not talk much with you: for the prince of this world cometh, and hath nothing in me.
|v31 But that the world may know that I love the Father; and as the Father gave me commandment, even so I do. Arise, let us go hence.
(NewT:John 14:Heading-31)

|v17 And Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Barjona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven.
|v18 And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. |v19 And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven.
(NewT:Matthew 16:17-19)

|v29 And he saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am? And Peter answereth and saith unto him, Thou art the Christ.
(NewT:Mark 8:29)

|v20 He said unto them, But whom say ye that I am? Peter answering said, The Christ of God.
(NewT:Luke 9:20)

|v67 Then said Jesus unto the twelve, Will ye also go away?
|v68 Then Simon Peter answered him, Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life.
|v69 And we believe and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God.

|v70 Jesus answered them, Have not I chosen you twelve, and one of you is a devil?
|v71 He spake of Judas Iscariot the son of Simon: for he it was that should betray him, being one of the twelve.
(NewT:John 6:67-71)

|v22 And when he had said this, he breathed on them, and saith unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghost:
|v23 Whose soever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them; and whose soever sins ye retain, they are retained.
(NewT:John 20:22-23)

|v4 And it came to pass that I saw among the nations of the Gentiles the formation of a great church.
|v5 And the angel said unto me: Behold the formation of a church which is most abominable above all other churches, which slayeth the saints of God, yea, and tortureth them and bindeth them down, and yoketh them with a yoke of iron, and bringeth them down into captivity.

|v6 And it came to pass that I beheld this great and abominable church; and I saw the devil that he was the founder of it.
|v7 And I also saw gold, and silver, and silks, and scarlets, and fine-twined linen, and all manner of precious clothing; and I saw many harlots.
|v8 And the angel spake unto me, saying: Behold the gold, and the silver, and the silks, and the scarlets, and the fine-twined linen, and the precious clothing, and the harlots, are the desires of this great and abominable church.
|v9 And also for the praise of the world do they destroy the saints of God, and bring them down into captivity.
(BofM:1 Nephi 13:4-9)

|v10 And he said unto me: Behold there are save two churches only; the one is the church of the Lamb of God, and the other is the church of the devil; wherefore, whoso belongeth not to the church of the Lamb of God belongeth to that great church, which is the mother of abominations; and she is the whore of all the earth.

|v11 And it came to pass that I looked and beheld the whore of all the earth, and she sat upon many waters; and she had dominion over all the earth, among all nations, kindreds, tongues, and people.

|v12 And it came to pass that I beheld the church of the Lamb of God, and its numbers were few, because of the wickedness and abominations of the whore who sat upon many waters; nevertheless, I beheld that the church of the Lamb, who were the saints of God, were also upon all the face of the earth; and their dominions upon the face of the earth were small, because of the wickedness of the great whore whom I saw.

|v13 And it came to pass that I beheld that the great mother of abominations did gather together multitudes upon the face of all the earth, among all the nations of the Gentiles, to fight against the Lamb of God.

|v14 And it came to pass that I, Nephi, beheld the power of the Lamb of God, that it descended upon the saints of the church of the Lamb, and upon the covenant people of the Lord, who were scattered upon all the face of the earth; and they were armed with righteousness and with the power of God in great glory.

|v15 And it came to pass that I beheld that the wrath of God was poured out upon that great and abominable church, insomuch that there were wars and rumors of wars among all the nations and kindreds of the earth.
|v16 And as there began to be wars and rumors of wars among all the nations which belonged to the mother of abominations, the angel spake unto me, saying: Behold, the wrath of God is upon the mother of harlots; and behold, thou seest all these things--
|v17 And when the day cometh that the wrath of God is poured out upon the mother of harlots, which is the great and abominable church of all the earth, whose founder is the devil, then, at that day, the work of the Father shall commence, in preparing the way for the fulfilling of his covenants, which he hath made to his people who are of the house of Israel.
(BofM:1 Nephi 14:10-17)

|v18 But behold, that great and abominable church, the whore of all the earth, must tumble to the earth, and great must be the fall thereof.
|v19 For the kingdom of the devil must shake, and they which belong to it must needs be stirred up unto repentance, or the devil will grasp them with his everlasting chains, and they be stirred up to anger, and perish;
|v20 For behold, at that day shall he rage in the hearts of the children of men, and stir them up to anger against that which is good.
|v21 And others will he pacify, and lull them away into carnal security, that they will say: All is well in Zion; yea, Zion prospereth, all is well--and thus the devil cheateth their souls, and leadeth them away carefully down to hell.
|v22 And behold, others he flattereth away, and telleth them there is no hell; and he saith unto them: I am no devil, for there is none--and thus he whispereth in their ears, until he grasps them with his awful chains, from whence there is no deliverance.
|v23 Yea, they are grasped with death, and hell; and death, and hell, and the devil, and all that have been seized therewith must stand before the throne of God, and be judged according to their works, from whence they must go into the place prepared for them, even a lake of fire and brimstone, which is endless torment.
|v24 Therefore, wo be unto him that is at ease in Zion!
|v25 Wo be unto him that crieth: All is well!
|v26 Yea, wo be unto him that hearkeneth unto the precepts of men, and denieth the power of God, and the gift of the Holy Ghost!
|v27 Yea, wo be unto him that saith: We have received, and we need no more!
|v28 And in fine, wo unto all those who tremble, and are angry because of the truth of God! For behold, he that is built upon the rock receiveth it with gladness; and he that is built upon a sandy foundation trembleth lest he shall fall.
(BofM:2 Nephi 28:18-28)

Gen. 14:26-32 JST

26 Now Melchizedek was a man of faith, who wrought righteousness; and when a child he feared God, and stopped the mouths of lions, and quenched the violence of fire.
27 And thus, having been approved of God, he was ordained an high priest after the order of the covenant which God made with Enoch, 28 It being after the order of the Son of God; which order came, not by man, nor the will of man; neither by father nor mother; neither by beginning of days nor end of years; but of God;

29 And it was delivered unto men by the calling of his own voice, according to his own will, unto as many as believed on his name.
30 For God having sworn unto Enoch and unto his seed with an oath by himself; that every one being ordained after this order and calling should have power, by faith, to break mountains, to divide the seas, to dry up waters, to turn them out of their course; 31 To put at defiance the armies of nations, to divide the earth, to break every band, to stand in the presence of God; to do all things according to his will, according to his command, subdue principalities and powers; and this by the will of the Son of God which was from before the foundation of the world.
32 And men having this faith, coming up unto this order of God, were translated and taken up into heaven.

NAUVOO TEMPLE - LIST OF PERSONS WHO RECEIVED THEIR SECOND ANOINTINGS WITH OTHER RELEVANT ORDINANCE DATA 1845-1846

INTRODUCTION

Among the original record books of the Nauvoo Temple is a volume called the "Book of Anointings." This book contains the record of all those who received their second anointings in that temple, between January 8 and February 7, 1846. For a number of years a typescript of notes taken from this record has circulated on the so-called Mormon Underground. This typescript lists the names found in the original book, as well as a few complete entries, including the verbatim record of the ordinance blessings given to Brigham Young and Mary Ann Young, and Heber C. Kimball.

This paper contains an alphabetical listing of names as given in this typescript of the Book of Anointings. The typescript contains a number of transcription errors. Fortunately, the compiler has had access to a revised typescript (of limited in circulation), which corrects some of these errors. This typescript also includes the names of a few persons omitted in the original typescript, as well as adding the names of couples who received their second anointings on 7 February, which did not appear in the original typescript.

While the Book of Anointings records the men's given names and surnames, with few exceptions the volume only records the women's given names. This compilation seeks to identify more fully these women.

The primary sources used for this identification include:

Susan Ward Easton Black, ed., Membership of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 1830-1848, 50 vols. Provo: Religious Studies Center, Brigham Young University Press, 1984.

Temple Records Index Bureau, Nauvoo Temple Endowment Register, Salt Lake City: The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 1974.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, International Genealogical Index (microfiche edition).

The following publications were also useful in identify names of some womem, as well as some sealing dates:

Lyndon W. Cook, The Revelations of Joseph Smith, Provo: Seventy's Mission Bookstore, 1981.

D. Michael Quinn, "Organizational Development and Social Origins of the Mormon Hierarchy,1832-1932," M.A. Thesis, University of Utah, Salt Lake City, Utah, 1973.

The preceding sources were also used to add other relevant ordinances data to this compilation: priesthood office held by the men, endowment date, sealing in marriage date, and sealings in adoptions information (children to parents and men to fathers in the priesthood). The adoption information was taken from a typescript of the "Nauvoo Temple, Sealings and Adoptions, 1846-1847," which is on microfilm at the Salt Lake City Family History Library.

In the compilation, if no surname is given for a woman, the compiler could not locate it in any of the sources consulted. Likewise, a blank in the endowment or sealing dates indicates that this information is lacking in the sources consulted. Since the sources used for this compilation are not the original Nauvoo Temple records, these omissions could only be clarified by consulting these primary documents, which are presently restricted.

The sources contain a wide variation in the spelling of names, especially of women's names. The compiler felt it would be unecessary to list each of these variations. Generally the spelling used is that found in ECM. However, when the ECM spelling is different from the TYPS spelling, it is noted in the footnotes.

A tabulation of the names in this compilation indicates that 583 persons received their second anointings in the Nauvoo Temple. There were 181 men, 9 of whom received their anointings by proxy. There were 402 women who received their anointings, none by proxy. Of the 172 living men who received their anointings, 2 were teachers,(1) 10 were elders, 47 were seventies, 98 were high priests, and 10 were apostles. There were 5 men for whom the compilier could not find their priesthood office in any source.

For the interest of the reader there is attached to this compilation a selection from the diaries of persons who received their second anointings.

----------NOTES----------

(1)Whether or not these men were actually teachers when they were anointed is not clear. The NTER does not give their priesthood office and the only office given in the EMC is teacher. It is likely that by the time these two men, Elisha Averett and Philo Dibble, received their temple ordinances they would have been ordained to the Melchizedek Priesthood.

(2)The Rev-TYPS is alphabetically arranged and it does not give second anointing officiators.

(3)There are errors in numbering in BA and accordingly in TYPS. The following numbers are skipped - 53, 119, 166, 167, 168, 169, 217, 218, 219, 220, 221, and 222; the following numbers are repeated twice - 153, 181, 182, 183, 184, 207 and 208. No attempt has been made in this compilation to correct these errors.

(1)TYPS has Mersa.

(2)TYPS has Lydia; both IGI and EMC have Elizabeth Warren. Neither IGI nor EMC have a Lydia sealed to James Allred. The compiler has arbitarily assumed that Lydia may be a nickname and has inserted Elizabeth Warren.

(3)TYPS has Milo Andrews.

(4)TYPS has Truman Osborne Angell; Truman and Polly Angell adopted to Brigham and Miriam (Mary Ann Young, proxy) Young on 25JAN.

(5)EMC has his priesthood office as teacher; the NTER does not have priesthood data on Elisha Averett, but as late as October 1844 he was still the president of the Nauvoo Teachers Quorum (Joseph Smith. History of the Church, 7:298). Elisha and Sarah Jane Averett were adopted to Brigham and Miriam (Mary Ann Young, proxy) Young on 01FEB.

(6)NTER has Almon W. Babbitt being endowed with Julia Ann Johnson Babbitt on 7JAN46.

(7)TYPS is written "Mary Dittima", which mistakenly indicates one person, instead of two. Dittima refers to Dulcena Didamia Johnson, who was sealed and anointed to Lyman R. Sherman for eternity and to Almon W. Babbitt for time. Mary Tulley does not appear in the NTER nor the EMC, the name is found in RPJS, p. 252.

(8)TYPS has Isreal Barlow. Israel and Elizabeth Haven Barlow were adopted to Brigham and Miriam (Mary Ann Young, proxy) Young on 01FEB.

(9)TYPS has Elizabeth Harren.

(10)TYPS has Edson Barney.

(11)NTER has Lillis Ballou.

(12)TYPS has Royal Barney (Kimball) and Sarah Esther Brooks Barney (Kimball), indicating that the couple was adopted to Heber C. Kimball, but the "Sealing and Adoptions, 1846-1847" does not include their names.

(13)TYPS has Sarah Esther Brooks Barney (Kimball).

(14)EMC indicates that Lettis Palmer was only sealed to Samuel Bent for time.

(15)TYPS has Maria Bent.

(16)NTER has Eliza D. Burgess in End Rec.

(17)The TYPS has Hosewith; this is likely a misidentification of Asenath. IGI has Asenath Slater sld to Samuel Bent on 22Jan46; EMC has Asenath Slafter. NTER does not have Asentha Slafter or Slater; but Asenath Babcock was endowed on 28JAN46, the same day as this woman's anointing.

(18)John Milton Bernhisel was adopted to Joseph Smith (no proxy or mother) on 03FEB.

(19)TYPS has Catharine.

(20)IGI has their marriage date as 30 Nov. 1842, the EMC has no Nauvoo Temple sealing date.

(21)EMC has Ester Raper or Rapier; EMC states that Esther Jones was sealed to James Brown on 27 Aug. 1974 in the Salt Lake Temple.

(22)Harrison and Sophia Burgess were adopted to Heber C. and Vilate Kimball of 25JAN.

(23)TYPS is written "Lucinda Mary", which mistakenly indicates one person, instead of two.

(24)TYPS has Mary Sussan.

(25)EMC has Ezra Chase sealed to his first wife, Terza Wells, on 27JAN, and then lists his second wife as _____ Hills with no sealing information given. EMC states that there is a Elizabeth Hills in the Patriarchal Blessing Index. I have arbitarily assigned the name of Elizabeth Hills in this compilation.

(26)TYPS is written "Mary Elivra", which mistakenly indicates one person, instead of two.

(27)TYPS is written "Dizy, Caroline", which mistakenly indicates two persons, instead of one.

(28)TYPS has Colvinia.

(29)TYPS has Hyrum Daton.

(30)TYPS has Tremelia.

(31)Philo and Hannah Dibble were adopted to Brigham and Miriam (Mary Ann Young, proxy) Young on 01FEB.

(32)TYPS has Simeon Adams Dunn; Simon and Margaret Dunn were adopted to Brigham and Mariam (Mary Ann Young, proxy) Young on 01FEB.

(33)TYPS has John Elldridge.

(34)TYPS has Augustus Farnham.

(35)Joseph and Hannah Fielding were adopted to Hyrum (John Taylor, proxy) and Jerusha (Mary Fielding Smith, proxy) Smith on 26JAN.

(36)TYPS has Jacob Fontz

(37)TYPS has Lucien Rose Foster.

(38)TYPS does not list Nathan Fulton by name, simply as "husband deceased"; no proxy is listed in TYPS.

(39)TYPS states that in BA the name is given as Phylena Fulton Winchester, with the last name crossed out with red ink.

(40)TYPS has Stephen H. Goodard; Stephen and Zereh Goddard were adopted to Brigham and Miriam (Mary Ann Young, proxy) Young on 01FEB.

(41)TYPS has Zernah; IGI has Zemiah Norwood Roby.

(42)George and Elizabeth Grant were adopted to Brigahm and Mariam (Mary Ann Young, proxy) Young on 25JAN.

(43)TYPS has Kirby Green

(44)TYPS has Edmond M. Green.

(45)Brigham Young stood proxy for John P. Greene in his Second Anointing.

(48)TYPS has Henry Harriman.

(49)TYPS has John Harrington.

(50)Lucinda Pendleton sealed and anointed to George Washington Harris for time only; see Smith, Joseph.

(51)TYPS has Drussilla Dorris

(52)IGI has Charolette Carter married to Isaac Higbee on 16 Apr 1842; no sealing date is give in IGI or EMC.

(53)IGI gives sealing date of 14JAN.

(54)Chandler and Eunice Holbrook were adopted to Brigham and Mariam (Mary Ann Young, proxy) Young on 01FEB.

(55)Joshua and Rebecca Holman were adopted to Brigham and Mariam (Mary Ann Young, proxy) Young on 25FEB.

(58)Angeline Horne was sealed and anointed to Moses Horne for eternity and to Albert P. Rockwood for time.

(59)TYPS has Joseph Grafton Harvey; Joseph and Martha Hovey were adopted to Heber and Vilate Kimball on 25JAN.

(60)TYPS has William Smith; this should be William Snow.

(61)TYPS has Polly Lyman.

(62)The BA mistakenly has her name as Elizabth Ann Whitney, probably a clerical recording error. NT records have her name as both Marinda Nancy and Nancy Marinda. A Marinda was also anointed to Joseph Smith on 15JAN; this may have also been Nancy Marinda Johnson.

(63)TYPS has Polly Zarrah.

(64)TYPS has Sarah Parry.

(65)TYPS is written "Clarissa, Crisy", which mistakenly indicates two persons, instead of one.

(66)TYPS has Arma Alice.

(69)Crossed out in BA.

(70)TYPS has Christian.

(73)Joseph C. Kingsbury and his two wives, Dorcas and Lorenza, were adopted to Newel K. and Elizabeth Ann Whitney on 27JAN.

(80)TYPS has Lanna.

(81)John and Christina Lytle were adopted to Brigham and Mariam (Mary Ann Young, proxy) Young on 01FEB.

(82)TYPS has no wife anointed to William M. Major, but the Rev-TYPS does. William and Sarah Major were adopted to Brigham and Mariam (Mary Ann Young, proxy) Young on 01FEB.

(83)TYPS has Duncan McArthur.

(84)TYPS has Cyntha.

(85)TYPS has Lydia.

(86)Isaac and Lucy Morely were adopted to Brigham and Augusta Adams Young on 02FEB.

(87)TYPS has Hanah Blakela.

(88)Joseph and Mary Adeline Noble were adopted to Heber and Vilate Kimball on 25JAN.

(89)No proxy listed in TYPS.

(90)TYPS has John Park.

(91)TYPS does not have a wife anointed with Noah Packard, but his diary mentions that his wife, Sophia Bundy, was anointed to him on 24JAN (Noah Packard Journal, Lee Library, Brigham Young University); the BA probably contains a clerical error.

(92)Abraham and Patience Palmer were adopted to Brigham and Mariam (Mary Ann Young, proxy) Young on 01FEB.

(93)TYPS has Patience Delita.

(94)TYPS has Almeta Sophia.

(95)TYPS mistakenly has Calvin Crane Hamilton; Hamilton was the surname of Sally Ann Seavey's first husband.

(96)TYPS has Laure.

(97)William and Cornelia Pitt adopted to Heber and Vilate Kimball on 25JAN.

(98)TYPS has Daniel Maghole Repshire and Hannah Repshire (Young) indicating that this couple was adopted to Brigham Young, but the "Sealings and Adoptions, 1846-1847," does not record such an adoption.

(99)TYPS is written "Sara Ann Persis", which mistakenly indicates one person, instead of two.

(100)NTER has initiatory anointing on 10DEC and endowment on 10JAN.

(101)TYPS states that BA has no woman anointed to Lewis Robbins.

(112)Lydia Dibble Granger was sealed to John Taylor for time.

(113)Polly Miller was sealed and anointed to Samuel Bent for time.

(114)TYPS is written "Julia Asenath", which mistakenly indicates one person, instead of two.

(115)Heber C. Kimball was Joseph Smith's proxy for the sealings and anointings on 12JAN.

(117)Eliza Maria Partridge was sealed and anointed to Amasa M. Lyman for time.

(118)Emily Dow Partridge was sealed and anointed to Brigham Young for time.

(119)Louisa Beaman was sealed and anointed to Brigham Young for time.

(120)Marinda anointed to John Smith for time; this entry mostly likely refers to Nancy Marinda Johnson, who was previously sealed (11JAN) and anointed (12JAN) to her husband, Orson Hyde. Apparently, she was also anointed to Joseph Smith for eternity in the Nauvoo Temple and later sealed to him. Temple records indicate that Nancy Marinda Johnson was sealed to Jospeh Smith for eternity on 31 July 1851 in the Endowment House (Endowment House Sealing Records, Book C, entry 1536).

(121)Lucy Walker was sealed and anointed to Heber C. Kimball for time.

(141)Presendia Huntington sealed to Heber C. Kimball for time, and anointed to Joseph Smith without a proxy.

(149)TYPS has Williard Snow.

(150)John Taylor was proxy for Robert B. Thompson; Robert and Mercy Thompson adopted to Hyrum (John Taylor, proxy) and Jerusha (Mary Fielding Smith, proxy) Smith on 26JAN.

(151)TYPS has Alvah Lewis Tippets; Alvah and Caroline Tippits were adopted to Brigham and Mariam (Mary Ann Young, proxy) Young on 01FEB.

(158)TYPS has Lewis Dunbar.

(159)TYPS has L. D. Wilson.

(160)The TYPS entry is problematic. It reads, "To HCK, Mary Harvey Young, Margaret Whitesides Young, 22 J by OH." The ECM, RPJS, and Quinn, "Mormon Hierarchy," state that Mary Pierce and Margaret Pierce were sealed to Brigham Young on 22JAN. The TYPS entry suggest that these two wives of Brigham Young were anointed to Heber C. Kimball. This does not seem logical and the TYPS may be in error on this point. I have accordingly placed Mary and Margaret with Brigham Young, instead of with Heber C. Kimball. It should also be noted that Robert and Hannah Pierce, parents of Mary and Margaret, were adopted to Brigham Young and Augusta Adams on 02FEB.

(161)TYPS has Margaret Whitesides Young. See footnote 160.

(162)TYPS is written "Clarissa Susan", which mistakenly indicates one person, instead of two. Brigham Young was sealed to two Clarissa's: Clarissa Chase, who was endowed on 05JAN and sealed to him on 21JAN, and Clarissa Decker, who was endowed on 01JAN and sealed to him on 26JAN. Since the Clarissa in the TYPS was anointed on 21JAN, the same day that Clarissa Chase was sealed, I have selected Clarissa Chase, instead of Clarissa Decker.

(163)TYPS has Nobby.

THE ORDINANCE OF SECOND ANOINTINGS
The Washing of The Feet
by Richard Ware

The following are concepts that are important to understand in order to comprehend the ramifications of this ordinance.

1. Heber C. Kimball and his wife, Vilate Kimball, were anointed king and queen, priest and priestess in January of 1844. In April of this year Heber receives the second part of the ordinance from Vilate. She anointed not only his feet, but notice all else that she did. And not only was it a "washing", but also an "anointing" as well. The purpose was that Vilate might have claim upon Heber in the resurrection. (1)

2. Wilford Woodruff and his wife Phoebe received the first part of their second anointings in January of 1844. In May of this same year, Phoebe washed Wilford that he "might be clean every whit." (2)

3. Here Heber C. Kimball receives the washing of feet from a plural wife. (3)
4. Rhoda Ann Fullmer calls this part of the ordinance "the last anointings." (4)
5. The washing of the feet is here referred to as an ordinance "pertaining to the house of the Lord". Jennette Richards indicates that she attended to this ordinance with Willard Richards. her husband. (5)

6. Phinehas Richards receives his second anointings under the hands of Parley P. Pratt, not the President of the Church. Phinehas indicates his learning about the "washing & anointing of feet for burial." (6)

7. Nancy Wilson attended to the washing of the feet after she had become a queen and a priestess. She anointed her husband to be her king, priest. and Savior, and that she might have claim on him in the resurrection. (8)

8. Indicates the Savior was married. Spoke of an ordinance that only one of his wives had attended to. (9)

9. Ruth anoints Samual's feet, wipes them with her hair, and then kisses them after the New Testament pattern. Both the house and room had been dedicated for this purpose. (10)

10. It is not necessary to perform this part of the ordinance by proxy. (11)

11. George Q. Cannon performs the second anointing upon his son, Abraham H. Cannon. After this ordinance the washing of the feet ordinance was explained. (12)

12. John R. Winder administered the second anointings upon William Smart and his wife. They later dedicated a room in their home wherein they performed "the second part of the ordinance of second anointings." (13)

Gospel Mysteries

The Washing of the Feet

Matt. 26

6. Now when Jesus was in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper,
7. There came unto him a woman having an alabaster box of very precious ointment, and poured it on his head, as he sat at meat.
8. But when his disciples saw it, they had indignation, saying, To what purpose is this waste?
9. For this ointment might have been sold for much, and given to the poor.
10. When Jesus understood it, he said unto them, Why trouble ye the woman? for she hath wrought a good work upon me.
11. For ye have the poor always with you; but me ye have not always.
12. For in that she hath poured this ointment on my body, she did it for my burial.
13. Verily I say unto you, Wheresoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, there shall also this, that this woman hath done, be told for a memorial of her.

Mark 14

3. And being in Bethany in the house of Simon the leper, as he sat at meat, there came a woman having an alabaster box of ointment of spikenard very precious; and she brake the box, and poured it on his head.
4. And there were some that had indignation within themselves, and said, Why was this waste of the ointment made?
5. For it might have been sold for more than three hundred pence, and have been given to the poor. And they murmured against her.
6. And Jesus said, Let her alone; why trouble ye her? she hath wrought a good work on me.
7. For ye have the poor with you always, and whensoever ye will ye may do them good: but me ye have not always.
8. She hath done what she could: she is come aforehand to anoint my body to the burying.
9. Verily I say unto you, Wheresoever this gospel shall be preached throughout the whole world, this also that she hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her.

Luke 7

36. And one of the Pharisees desired him that he would eat with him. And he went into the Pharisee's house, and sat down to meat.
37. And, behold, a woman in the city, which was a sinner, when she knew that Jesus sat at meat in the Pharisee's house, brought an alabaster box of ointment.
38. And stood at his feet behind him weeping, and began to wash his feet with tears, and did wipe them with the hairs of her head, and kissed his feet, and anointed them with the ointment.
39. Now when the Pharisee which had bidden him saw it, he spake within himself, saying, This man, if he were a prophet, would have known who and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him: for she is a sinner.
40. And Jesus answering said unto him, Simon, I have somewhat to say unto thee. And he saith, Master, say on.
41. There was a certain creditor which had two debtors: the one owed five hundred pence, and the other fifty.

42. And when they had nothing to pay, he frankly forgave them both. Tell me therefore, which of them will love him most?
43. Simon answered and said, I suppose that he, to whom he forgave most. And he said unto him, Thou hast rightly judged.
44. And he turned to the woman, and said unto Simon, Seest thou this woman? I entered into thine house, thou gavest me no water for my feet: but she hath washed my feet with tears, and wiped them with the hairs of her head.
45. Thou gavest me no kiss: but this woman since the time I came in hath not ceased to kiss my feet.
46. My head with oil thou didst not anoint: but this woman hath anointed my feet with ointment.
47. Wherefore I say unto thee, Her sins, which are many, are forgiven; for she loved much: but to whom little is forgiven, the same loveth little.
48. And he said unto her, Thy sins are forgiven.

John 11

1. Now a certain man was sick, named Lazarus, of Bethany, the town of Mary and her sister Martha.
2. (It was that Mary which anointed the Lord with ointment, and wiped his feet with her hair, whose brother Lazarus was sick.)

John 12

1. Then Jesus six days before the passover came to Bethany, where Lazarus was which had been dead, whom he raised from the dead.
2. There they made him a supper; and Martha served: but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him.
3. Then took Mary a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair: and the house was filled with odour of the ointment.
4. Then saith one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, which should betray him,
5. Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence, and given to the poor? 6. This he said, not that he cared for the poor; but because he was a thief, and had the bag, and bare what was put therein.
7. Then said Jesus, Let her alone: against the day of my burying hath she kept this.*
8. For the poor always ye have with you; but me ye have not always.

*7. I.V.: ". . .for she hath preserved this ointment until now, that she might anoint me in token of my burial."

Morning pleasant. Pres. B. Young's health is improving. At 10 Alanson Allen, my grandson, arrived in camp for the settlements in Mo. Brought in a load of meal. Said that Caroline [Wife No.4] and his mother's family were all well. Today at 1 p.m. the aged men of Israel, called the Silver Grays, met and celebrated the praise of Zion's kings at the hall. Pres. B. Young, Kimble and others of the 21 participated in the worship. About 9 I was washed in salaratus and water from head to foot, afterward in spirits, then anointed in like manner by Louisa [Wife No. 3] and Rachel [Wife No. 6] (as I told them) preparatory to my burial. They both were very kind and attentive to me. In the eve. I felt some better. Weather warm.

So, she. Nancy Wilson, departed this life at the age of 41 years having been the mother of eleven living children, nine of them on my hands. . .[she] died having been in the church 15 years. having become a member at the age of 26 years during which time she has attended every ordinance of the Gospel that has been offered in her day. and in fact all that I know anything about. She was baptized for the remission of her sins and had hands laid upon her for the reception of the Holy Ghost. and confirmed in the Church and has received blessings from time to time.

At the temple at Nauvoo she received her washings and anointings even to become a queen and a priestess, after which time she attended to one other ordinance which was to wash the feet of her husband and anoint him to be her king and priest and Savior, that she might have claim on him at the resurrection... Nancy Wilson, who knew and died in triumph of faith in the gospel of the Son of God, after having lived and obeyed all the laws and ordinances of the Church. . . died full in the faith of a glorious resurrection with the just and was buried on the Missouri Bluff just above Kanesville [20 July 1851].

time was short and he must soon leave them Now she says I design to attend to his words and teaching Let Martha and the rest say what they would. The Savior then told Martha to let Mary alone for she had chosen the better part which should never be taken from her Now said He follow me and you shall see my father This she did even to the tomb and was the first to see him resurrected from the grave.

[Letter from Pres. Woodruff to Eliza I. Jones; Church Archives under date:]

Feb. 24th, 1888.

Mr. Eliza I. Jones

10th Ward, Salt Lake City

Dear Sister:

The ordinance of which you speak. and which you say you failed to attend to before the death of your husband. is one that should not be written about, and it cannot be attended to by proxy. Your husband is dead and, so far as the ordinances is concerned, it is all right.

12. Journal of Abraham H. Cannon, Vol 17:22-23; BYU Special Collections; Wednesday, June 7. 1893; Ordained an apostle in 1889.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 7th, 1893 . . . At 6 o'clock I went to the [Salt Lake] Temple where I met my folks, we having received permission from Pres. Woodruff to receive our second anointings. Father [George Q. Cannon of the First Presidency] was there to perform the ceremony. Bro. [Francis M.] Lyman was also there to be with his wife Susan D. Callister Lyman as she received this blessing. Father anointed and spoke the words. John D. T. McAllister held the horn [containing the consecrated oil], and Lorenzo Snow and John R. Winder were the witnesses. Sister Lyman was the first anointed in the presence of us all, she thus being the first to receive this blessing in this building. I then received mine, and my wives followed in the order of their marriages. I felt very much pleased to be thus favored. The ordinance of the washing of feet was explained by Bro. McAllister, after the anointings had been given.

13. William Henry Smart Journal. 1862-1937; Photocopy of holograph. Univ of Utah, Special Collections, Marriott Library; CHO/Ms/d/85/Bx 2/fd 1.

30 May 1901 [Thursday]: . . . This afternoon my wife and I took train for Salt Lake City to get our second anointings and attend 100th anniversary of Brigham Young's birth.

31 May 1901 [Friday]: Went to Temple this morning presenting recommend which Pres. Snow gave me about 3 months ago. We had not come before for our second anointing as the baby was young. and because we desired to become settled in our new home.

I was called to speak during the services of the temple. Dwelt principally upon the necessity of keeping awake during temple services and keeping awake in our duties. I consider this a very great honor to be called to speak in the House of the Lord. Bp John R Winder annointed us and Elder Madsen instructed us. These are the greatest blessings that are bestowed upon man in the flesh. We were both melted in tears and I felt the patriarchal spirit of pure affection more than I have done before. The witnesses to the annointing were John R. Winder annointed. Adolph Madsen assisted John Nicholson Recorder.

21 June 1901 [Friday; at their home; he was the Wasatch Stake President in Heber Utah at this time]: This evening from about 9-30 to 12 O.C. my wife and I attended to the second part of the ordinance of second anointings. We besides the ordinance itself sang "We thank thee O God for a prophet," conversed concerning our duties to each other and children, read from John XII: 1-8 verses, read the Rev. on the Eternity of the Marriage Covenant. Section 132. We dedicated [the] room for the purpose of this meeting. Closed by singing: "Oh My father thou that dwellest." Anna was mouth in preliminary prayer, I gave the dedicatory prayer and the benediction. The spirit of the Lord was with us and we felt nearer together than usual: were much encouraged in pressing onward in an endeavor to succeed in life. We fasted during the day and broke our fast together a little after 12 O.C.

AN OUTLINE OF
THE ORDINANCE OF SECOND ANOINTINGS

I. THE ORDINANCE OF THE WASHING OF THE FEET

1. The ordinance of washing of the feet, for the man, precedes the second anointing ordinance.

2. It is normally performed in the Holy of Holies, or a sealing room set apart for such an ordinance.
3. It is performed by, or under the direction of, the Prophet.
4. The ordinance was used once, in the days of the Prophet Joseph, to seal individuals up to eternal life, but it is not used for that purpose today.
5. The ordinance cleanses the brother from the blood and sins of this generation.
6. This ordinance should not be confused with the last ordinance of the second anointing which is also referred to as the washing of feet.

II. THE ORDINANCE OF SECOND ANOINTINGS -- Part One
Anointed & Ordained a King/Priest, Queen/Priestess

1. It is normally administered in the Holy of Holies, but can be, and has been, administered in different locations, in a room dedicated for that purpose.
2. It is performed by, or under the direction of, the Prophet.
3. There are normally two witnesses to the event.
4. The individuals who are being anointed are dressed in their temple robes.
5. The officiator does not have to dress in his robes.
6. The husband leads in a prayer circle, and offers the signs, and prays at the altar.
7. The husband is anointed with oil, on the top of his head, and then hands are laid upon his head, and he is ordained a king and a priest unto the Most High God, to rule and reign in the House of Israel forever. This ordinance gives him the fulness of the priesthood.
8. The husband is blessed with the following (as the spirit dictates):
   (1) Sealing power to bind & loose, curse & bless. (2) Blessings of Abraham, Isaac & Jacob.
   (3) The Holy Spirit of Promise bestowed.
   (4) Blessed to live as long as life is desirable. (5) Blessed to attain unto the Godhood.
   (6) Power to be a member of a Godhead bestowed.
   (7) Sealed to eternal life, if not done previously.
   (8) Power to have the heavens opened.
   (9) Other blessings as inspired to give.
9. The wife is then anointed with oil, on the top of her head, and then hands are laid upon her head, and she is ordained a queen and a priestess unto her husband, to rule and reign with him, in his kingdom forever.
10. The wife is blessed with the following (as the spirit dictates):
   (1) Receive all the blessings of the everlasting priesthood.
   (2) An heir to all the blessings that are sealed upon her husband.
   (3) Exalted to her husband's exaltation.
   (4) Ministering angels may attend her.
   (5) Sealed up unto eternal life.
   (6) Receive the blessings of Godhood.
   (7) May attain unto the eternal Godhead.
   (8) Live as long as life is desirable.
   (9) Power of eternal lives (posterity w/o end).
   (10) Other blessings as inspired to give.

11. The couple receives a "charge" as a part of the second anointing. Part of the covenant involved in this charge is that they do not reveal to other individuals that they have received this ordinance.

12. This ordinance can be performed for the dead, by those who have already received the ordinance.
13. The second part of the second anointings is explained to the couple. They are told to attend to this last ordinance.

III. THE ORDINANCE OF SECOND ANOINTINGS -- Part Two
"The Washing of The Feet", Wife to Husband

1. This ordinance is performed in the couple's home.
2. The husband dedicates the home, and a room in which they will perform the ordinance.
3. The ordinance follows the pattern of when Mary anointed Jesus, in Matthew 12. What the wife does here is in memorial of what Mary did.
4. The wife washes the body of her husband (similar to initiatory).
5. The wife anoints the body of her husband (similar to initiatory).
6. The ordinance prepares the husband for burial, and in this way she lays claim upon him in the resurrection.
7. Having authority, she can pronounce whatever blessings she feels appropriate upon her husband in this ordinance, as guided by the spirit.
8. This ordinance is not performed in behalf of the dead.

This is the order observed by the Prophet Joseph, he first baptized Oliver, then Oliver baptised him. [p. 3]

4. The following was forged by Mark Hoffman: Copy of a holograph found among the personal effects of an individual's grandfather, who had served in the Salt Lake Temple during the 1920's. The document surfaced sometime in June of 1978. On the document the words "SALT LAKE TEMPLE" were stamped with a rubber stamp. The words "Destroy this copy" were written in pencil and had been erased, but were still legible.

Dear Bro. :--having the authority of God, I pour this holy anointing oil upon your head, & anoint you a King & a priest unto the Most High God to rule & reign in the House of Israel forever, I bestow upon you all of the rights, blessings, & authorities appertaining unto the Holy Priesthood for the building up of the Kingdom of God on earth.

By virtue of this anointing I seal you up unto eternal life wherein nothing but the unpardonable sin of shedding innocent blood or consenting thereto by denying the Holy Spirit may deprive you of this promise & blessing. Thou shalt be exalted in the Celestial Kingdom of God & shall dwell with the patriarchal family of God for ever.

With this exaltation I ordain you an equal in the order of the everlasting priesthood with the Gods, & all the holy angels your fellows. Your kingdoms & power & glory shall have no end. Your righteous seed shall be from everlasting to everlasting & shall continually sing praises unto you worlds without end.

All of this I lawfully do, by right of the Holy Priesthood, in the name of the Father & of the Son & of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

_____ _____, having authority of Jesus Christ, I anoint you a priest and a king unto the Most High God, to rule and reign in the House of Israel forever and I seal upon you your exaltation and the promise of eternal life, even the glory of the celestial kingdom of God, which glory is that of the Church of the Firstborn, even of God, the holiest of all, through Jesus Christ his Son, according to the Holy Spirit of Promise, the Second Comforter, whereby ye are sealed up unto the day of your redemption, that ye may not fall, notwithstanding the hour of temptation that may come upon you, Amen.

A COMPILATION OF QUOTATIONS ON SECOND ANOINTINGS CHURCH OF THE FIRSTBORN KINGS & PRIESTS/QUEENS & PRIESTESSES FULNESS OF THE PRIESTHOOD

1. T.P.J.S., pp. 63-66; January 22, 1834; Joseph Smith Jr.

In the 22nd chapter of Luke's account of the Messiah, we find the kingdom of heaven likened unto a king who made a marriage for his son. That this son was the Messiah will not be disputed, since it was the kingdom of heaven that was represented in the parable; and that the Saints, or those who are found faithful to the Lord, are the individuals who will be found worthy to inherit a seat at the marriage supper, is evident from the sayings of John in the Revelation where he represents the sound which he heard in heaven to be like a great multitude, or like the voice of mighty thunderings, saying, the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth. Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honor to Him; for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and His wife hath made herself ready. And to her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white: For the fine linen is the righteousness of the Saints (Rev. 19).

That those who keep the commandments of the Lord and walk in His statutes to the end, are the only individuals permitted to sit at this glorious feast, is evident from the following items in Paul's last letter to Timothy, which was written just previous to his death,--he says: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love His appearing." * * * Reflect for a moment, brethren, and enquire, whether you would consider yourselves worthy a seat at the marriage feast with Paul and others like him, if you had been unfaithful? Had you not fought the good fight, and kept the faith, could you expect to receive? Have you a promise of receiving a crown of righteousness from the hand of the Lord, with the Church of the Firstborn? Here then, we understand, that Paul rested his hope in Christ, because he had kept the faith, and loved His appearing and from His hand he had a promise of receiving a crown of righteousness.

If the Saints are not to reign, for what purpose are they crowned? * * * John represents the sound which he heard from heaven, as giving thanks and glory to God, saying that the Lamb was worthy to take the book and to open its seals; because he was slain, and had made them kings and priests unto God; and they should reign on the earth (see Rev. v). * * *

Most assuredly it is, however, that the ancients, though persecuted and afflicted by men, obtained from God promises of such weight and glory, that our hearts are often filled with gratitude that we are even permitted to look upon them while we contemplate that there is no respect of persons in His sight, and that in every nation, he that feareth God and worketh righteousness, is acceptable with Him. But from the few items previously quoted we can draw the conclusion that there is to be a day when all will be judged of their works, and rewarded according to the same; that those who have kept the faith will be crowned with a crown of righteousness; be clothed in white raiment; be admitted to the marriage feast; be free from every affliction, and reign with Christ on the earth. . . .

And though we cannot claim these promises which were made to the ancients for they are not our property, merely because they were made to the ancient Saints, yet if we are the children of the Most High, and are called with the same calling with which they were called, and embrace the same covenant that they embraced, and are faithful to the testimony of our Lord as they were, we can approach the Father in the name of Christ as they approached Him, and for ourselves obtain the same promises. * * * . . .and when these promises are obtained, they will be promises directly to us, or they will do us no good. They will be communicated for our benefit, being our own property (through the gift of God), earned by our own diligence in keeping His commandments and walking uprightly before Him. If not, to what end serves the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, and why was it ever communicated to us?

While attending college at Oberlin, Ohio, in the spring of 1836 I had occasion to visit Kirtland, some sixty miles distant, where two of my sisters were residing. * * * I became acquainted with Joseph Smith, his counselors, and a number of prominent leaders. * * *

Being at that time a young man, full of worldly aspirations, with bright prospects, and means to gratify my ambition in acquiring a liberal collegiate education; also having a host of wealthy, proud, aristocratic friends and relatives watching eagerly for my achieving high honors in life, of course, you can easily understand that it was a great trial, and required the strongest effort to form a resolution to abandon those prospects, disappoint expectations, join the poor, ignorant, dispised Mormons, and follow Old Joe Smith, the money digger, as he and they were regarded.

Had I then understood, as I now know, the ultimate results of obedience to the gospel, a life of purity, and after its close an exaltation to the fulness of the Godhead, I should then have been ashamed to have called it a sacrifice. But in my ignorance, at that time, of its blessings and glories, it was the fiercest struggle of heart and will I ever experienced before or since. But through the help of the Lord, for I feel certain that He must have helped me, I laid my pride, worldly ambition and aspirations upon the altar, and as humble as a child went to the waters of baptism, received the ordinance administered by an Apostle, and afterwards the laying on of hands.

All must act in concert, or nothing can be done, and should move according to the ancient Priesthood; hence the Saints should be a select people, separate from all the evils of the world---choice, virtuous, and holy. The Lord was going to make of the Church of Jesus Christ a kingdom of Priests, a holy people, a chosen generation, as in Enoch's day, having all the gifts as illustrated to the Church in Paul's epistles and teachings to the churches in his day. . . .

June 1842 I was initiated into the ancient order, was washed and anointed and sealed and ordained [to become] a priest and so forth, in company with many others. That is, Joseph Smith, Hiram Smith, Wm. Law, Wm. Marks, Judge Adams, Brigham Young, Willard Richards, George Miller, Newel K. Whitney.

My feelings at the present time are that inasmuch as the Lord Almighty has preserved me until today, He will continue to preserve me, by the united faith and prayers of the Saints, until I have fully accomplished my mission in this life, and so firmly established the dispensation of the fullness of the priesthood in the last days, that all the power of earth and hell can never prevail against it.

5. History of the Church, Vol. 5:212; 30 December 1842; Joseph Smith Jr.

While in conversation at Judge Adams during the evening, I said, Christ and the resurrected Saints will reign [as kings & priests] over the earth during the thousand years. They will not probably dwell upon the earth, but will visit it when they please, or when it is necessary to govern it. There will be wicked men [those who have not been baptized] on the earth during the thousand years. The heathen nations who will not come up to worship will be visited with the judgments of God, and must eventually be destroyed from the earth.

6. Times & Seasons, Vol. 4:81-85; February 15, 1843; Joseph Smith's poetic version of the revelation currently recorded in D&C 76, known as the vision.

For these overcome, by their faith and their works,
Being tried in their life-time, as purified gold,
And seal'd by the spirit of promise to life,
By men called of God, as was Aaron of old.

They are they, of the church of the first-born of God,
And unto whose hands he committeth all things;
For they hold the keys of the kingdom of heav'n,
And reign with the Saviour, as priests and as kings.

They're priests of the order of Melchisedec,
Like Jesus (from whom is this highest reward), Receiving a fulness of glory and light;
As written--they're God's, even sons of the Lord.

If a man gets a fullness of the priesthood of God, he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordinances of the house of the Lord. * * *
All men who become heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ wilT have to receive the fulness of the ordinances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordinances will come short of the fullness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole.

Meeting of the Twelve Apostles in Philadelphia. * * *

President Brigham Young addressed the congregation at considerable length. * * * He also remarked that if any in the Church had the fullness of the Melchizedek Priesthood, he did not know it. For any person to have the fullness of that priesthood, he must be a king and priest. A person may have a portion of that priesthood, the same as governors or judges of England have power from the king to transact business; but that does not make them kings of England. A person may be anointed king and priest long before he receives his kingdom.

The sound saluted by ears---"Ye are come unto Mount Zion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels, to the general assembly and church of the firstborn, which are written in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect, and to Jesus the Mediator of the new covenant" (Hebrew xii:22,23,24). What would it profit us to come unto the spirits of the just men, but to learn and come up to the standard of their knowledge? * * *

Four destroying angels holding power over the four quarters of the earth until the servants of God are sealed in their foreheads, which signifies sealing the blessing upon their heads, meaning the everlasting covenant, thereby making their calling and election sure. When a seal is put upon the father and mother, it secures their posterity, so that they cannot be lost, but will be saved by virtue of the covenant of their father and mother.

The speaker continued to teach the doctrine of election and the sealing powers and principles, and spoke of the doctrine of election with the seed of Abraham, and the sealing of blessings upon his posterity, and the sealing of the fathers and children, according to the declarations of the prophets. He then spoke of Judge Higbee in the world of spirits, and the blessings which he would obtain, and of the kind spirit and disposition of Judge Higbee while living; none of which was reported. * * *

The world is reserved unto burning in the last days. He shall send Elijah the prophet, and he shall reveal the covenants of the fathers in relation to the children, and the covenants of the children in relation to the fathers.

11. Manuscript History of the Church, Ms/f/315/Book E-1; August 13, 1843.

Doctrine of election---sealing of the servants of our God on the top of their heads---'tis not the cross, as the catholics would have it. Doctrine of election to Abraham was in the relation to the seed. A man wishes to be embraced in the covenants of Abraham.

Judge Higby in the world of spirits is sealed unto the throne, and doctrine of election sealing the fathers and children together.

4 destroying angels holding power over the 4 quarters of the earth ___ until the servents of God are sealed in their foreheads what is that seal. shall I tell you? No. ___ Doctrine of Election ___ sealing (of the servent forged) on the top of their heads. tis not the cross as the catholics would have it.

13. T.P.J.S., pp. 322-323; August 27, 1843; Remarks by the Prophet Joseph Smith.

What was the power of Melchizedek? 'Twas not the Priesthood of Aaron which administers in outward ordinances, and the offering of sacrifices. Those holding the fullness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessings. In fact, that priesthood is a perfect law of theocracy, and stands as God to give laws to the people, administering endless lives to the sons and daughters of Adam. * * *

How shall God come to the rescue of this generation? He will send Elijah the prophet. The law revealed to Moses in Horeb never was revealed to the children of Israel as a nation.

Elijah shall reveal the covenants to seal the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers.

The anointing and sealing is to be called, elected and made sure. * * * Men have to suffer [to wean us away from this world] that they may come upon Mount Zion and be exalted above the heavens.

There are 3 grand principles or orders of Priesthood portrayed in this chapter [Heb 7].

lst Levitical which was never able to administer a Blessing but only to bind heavy burdens which neither they nor their father [were] able to bear.

2 Abrahams Patriarchal power [endowment thru temple marriage] which is the greatest yet experienced in this church [the second anointing ordinance which makes a man a king & priest was introduced a month later].

3d That of Melchisedec who had still greater power even power of an endless life of which was our Lord Jesus Christ which also Abraham obtained by the offering of his son Isaac which was not the power of a Prophet nor apostle nor Patriarch only but of King & Priest to God to open the windows of Heaven and pour out the peace & law of endless Life to man & no man can attain to the Joint heirship with Jesus Christ without being administered to by one having the same power & Authority of Melchisedec.

15. Joseph Smith Diary; Sunday morning, August 27, 1843.

What was the power of Melchisedeck twas not P. of Aaron &c. a king & a priest to the most high God. a perfect law of Theocracy holding keys of power & blessings. stood as God to give laws to the people. administering endless lives to the sons and daughters of Adam kingly powers of anointing.

16. James Burgess Notebook; Sunday morning, August 27, 1843.

Abraham's priesthood was of greater power than Levi's and Melchizedeck's was of greater power than that of Abraham. * * * I ask was there any sealing power attending this priesthood [Aaronic] that would admit a man into the presence of God. Oh no, but Abraham's was a more exalted power or priesthood he could talk and walk with God [thru the endowment & temple marriage] and yet consider how great this man was when even this patriarch Abraham gave a tenth part of all his spoils and then received a blessing under the hands of Melchesideck even the last law or a fulness of the law or priesthood which constituted him a king and preist after the order of Melchesideck or an endless life. * * * It is understood by many by reading this chapter [Heb 7] that Melchesedeck was king of some country or nation on the earth, but it was not so, In the original it reads king of Shaloam which signifies king of peace or righteousness and not of any country or nation. * * *

Men will set up stakes and say thus far will we go and no farther, did Abraham when called upon to offer his son, did the Saviour, no, view him fulfilling all righteousness again on the banks of Jordan, also on the Mount transfigured before Peter and John there receiving the fulness of priesthood or the law of God, setting up no stake but coming right up to the mark in all things here him after he returned from the Mount, did ever language of such magnitude fall from the lips of any man, hearken him. All power is given unto me both in heaven and the earth.

I assure the Saints that truth, in reference to these matters, can and may be known through the revelations of God in the way of His ordinances, and in answer to prayer. The Hebrew Church "came unto the spirits of just men made perfect, and unto an innumerable company of angels, unto God the Father of all, and to Jesus Christ the Mediator of the new covenant." What did they learn by coming to the spirits of just men made perfect? Is it written? No. What they learned has not been and could not have been written. What object was gained by this communication with the spirits of the just? It was the established order of the kingdom of God: the keys of power and knowledge were with them to commmunicate to the saints. Hence the importance of understanding the distinction between the spirits of the just and angels. * * *

The spirits of just men are made ministering servants to those who are sealed unto life eternal, and it is through them that the sealing power comes down.

. . . the power of Elijah is sufficient to make our calling and election sure.

Although David was a king, he never did obtain the spirit and power of Elijah and the fullness of the Priesthood; and the priesthood that he received, and the throne and kingdom of David is to be taken from him and given to another by the name of David in the last days, raised up out of his lineage. * * *

Again: The doctrine or sealing power of Elijah is as follows:--If you have [the sealing] power to seal on earth and in heaven, then we should be wise. The first thing you do, go and seal on earth your sons and daughters unto yourself, and yourself unto your fathers in eternal glory.

46. T.P.J.S., pp. 362-63; 8 April 1844; Discourse by Joseph Smith.

The declaration this morning is, that as soon as the Temple and baptismal font are prepared, we calculate to give the Elders of Israel their washings and anointings, and attend to those last and more impressive ordinances, without which we cannot obtain celestial thrones. But there must be a holy place prepared for that purpose. There was a proclamation made during the time that the foundation of the Temple was laid to that effect, and there are provisions made until the work is completed, so that men may receive their endowments and be made kings and priests unto the Most High God, having nothing to do with temporal things, but their whole time will be taken up with things pertaining to the house of God. * * * . . .every man who wishes to save his father, mother, brothers, sisters and friends, must go through all the ordinances for each one of them separately, the same as for himself, from baptism to ordination, washing and anointings and receive all the keys and powers of the Priesthood, the same as for himself.

47. T.P.J.S., p. 366; 2 May 1844. Also H.C. 6:363-67. Discourse by Joseph Smith.

I am going on in my progress for eternal life. It is not only necessary that you should be baptized for your dead, but you will have to go through all the ordinances for them, the same as you have gone through to save yourselves. There will be 144,000 saviors on Mount Zion, and with them an innumerable host that no man can number. Oh! I beseech you to go forward, go forward and make your calling and election sure.

49. Times & Seasons, Vol. 5:661, 663-4; Sunday, September 8, 1844; Trial of Sidney Rigdon.

[Comments by Elder John Taylor:]

Elder Rigdon was appointed by President Smith to go to Pittsburg and build up a church; but he was expressly forbid to take any one with him. Now I would ask, has Elder Rigdon accomplished his mission? Has he sought to build up the church according to President Smith's order? No. He has been holding secret meetings; he has ordained men illegally, and contrary to the order of the priesthood; he has been ordaining men to the offices of prophets, priests and kings; whereas he does not hold that office himself; who does not know that this is wrong? There is not an officer belonging to the church but what is acquainted with this fact. Can a teacher ordain a priest? Can a priest ordain an elder? Can an elder ordain a high priest, or any of the former ordain an apostle? You all know they could not, it is contrary to the order of God; and yet we find that President Rigdon, a man who ought to know better---who does know better---has been ordaining men to offices that he does not hold himself: and yet he has come to us with a revelation to lead this church to the Celestial kingdom of God; and even if he had the authority to ordain these men, he could not do it in and of himself without the accompanying ordinances, and under the circumstances which he did.

[Comments by Heber C. Kimball:]

He (Sidney Rigdon) has no authority only what he receives from the church, if he was one with us, why was he not in our councils? He was not in the council pertaining to the High Priesthood until just before he started for Pittsburgh. Brother Phelps was the means of bringing him in [i.e., Phelps helped him get the endowment.], but he has not got the same authority [a fulness of the priesthood through the second anointing ordinance] as others; there are more than thirty men who have got higher authority than he has. * * *

There are men here, brethren who have got authority, but we don't want to mention their names, for the enemy will try to kill them.

50. History of the Church, Vol. 7:268-69; Sunday, September 8, 1844.

Minutes of a meeting of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints held on the meeting ground of the city of Nauvoo. * * *

Elder W. W. Phelps moved that Elder Sidney Rigdon be cut off from the church, and delivered over to the buffetings of satan until he repent.

Bishop Newel K. Whitney then presented the motion to the high council (who was trying the case) and the vote was unanimous in the affirmative. * * *

President Young arose and delivered Sidney Rigdon over to the buffetings of satan in the name of the Lord, and all the people said, Amen.

[Footnote comments by B. H. Roberts:]

Very serious charges are made against Elder Rigdon for insubordination, for claiming to hold keys and authority above any man or set of men in the church, even superior authority and keys thereof than those held by the Twelve; and likewise he had ordained men to positions---places and offices not recognized as properly belonging to the church.

51. Letter written by Orson Hyde to Ebenezer Robinson, September 19, 1844. Steam Boat North Bend,

Sept. 19th, 1844

Dear E. Robinson,

You probably may have received something by way of counsel from Nauvoo from Brother Young, if so, I trust you will regard it as coming from "the proper source." We have had a charge given us by our prophet, and that charge we intend to honor and magnify. It was given in March last. He said; "let no man take your crown, and though you should have to walk right into death, fear not, neither be dismayed." "You have to die but once." "To us were committed the Keys of the Kingdom, and every gift, key and power, that Joseph ever had," confirmed upon our heads by an anointing, which Bro. Rigdon never did receive.

We know the charge which the prophet gave us, and the responsibility which the Spirit of the living God laid on us through him, and we know that Elder Rigdon does not know what it was. We have counted the cost of the stand we have taken, and have firmly and unitedly, with prayer and with fasting---with signs and with tokens, with garments and with girdle, decreed in the name of Jesus Christ, that we will honor our calling, and faithfully carry out the measures of the prophet so far as we have power, relying on the arm of God for strength in every time of need.

I know that the curse of God will fall upon every one that tries to give us trouble or to weaken our hands in the work in which we are engaged, for this promise we have obtained from the Lord in solemn convocation.

I want you to read this letter to the Saints in Pittsburg, not to the world.

My kind love to all the Saints, to yourself and family.

Yours truly, Orson Hyde

52. Times & Seasons, Vol. 5:670, (October 1, 1844); John Taylor, Editor.

The truth is, religion---old fashioned Abel, Noah, Abraham, Israel, Moses, Shadrach, Meshach, Abendnego, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Daniel, Jesus Christ, Apostolic, Mormon religion---is made up of "obedience," come life or death, with crowns for crosses; being ordained to eternal life [through the second anointing] after sin is overcome [through the washing of the feet]. Therefore brethren, endure, like good soldiers, to the end, and you will be ordained [kings & priests] to this highest honor of the priesthood.

53. History of the Church, Vol. 7:281-282; October 1, 1844; General Epistle to the Saints by President Brigham Young.

Yes, brethren, we verily know and bear testimony, that a cloud of blessing and of endowment, and of the keys of the fulness of the priesthood, and of things pertaining to eternal life, is hanging over us, and ready to burst upon us; or upon as many as live worthy of it, so soon as there is a place found on earth to receive it. Therefore, let no cunningly devised fable, no false delusive spirit, or vision, no man or set of men who go out from us, but are not of us, have any influence on your minds for a moment, to draw your minds away from this all important work. But enter steadily and regularly upon a strict observance of the law of tithing, and of freewill offerings, till Jehovah shall say it is enough; your offerings are accepted; then come up to the House of the Lord, and be taught in his ways, and walk in his paths; yea, enter his sanctuary; and receive the oil of joy for mourning, and the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness.

[29 December 1844, discourse by Amasa Lyman:]

Now I say unto you come try all what your teachers tell you and you will receive light & wisdom knowledge and truth, wash yourselves, keep yourselves clean for the lord will have clean vessels and he is a god of order therefore we must have our bodys washed and anointed that we may be clean Also our feet that we may receive our Endowment and hands Laid on to Exalt ourSelves to the highest glory and Exaltation. But there are some gone out from us that have no order. They ordained kings and Priests and know not them Selves nor understand the order of the kingdom, and they drew away some with them. But the time will come that they will say Lord Lord have we not prophesied in thy name Cast out devils in thy name Laid hands on the sick and done many mighty works in thy name But the Lord will Say depart from me ye workers of Iniquity for I know you not for ye have not kept the commandments as it becomes Saints. Amen.

[31 December 1844, remarks by Heber C. Kimball:]

If we [are] to become Kings and Priests unto God we must make our children just as happy as they can be & we must be rulers over them to give them their inheritance.

55. Millennial Star, Vol 5:149-153, March 1845; Written in New York, January 1, 1845 by Elder Parley P. Pratt

He [Joseph Smith] proceeded to confer on elder Young, the President of the Twelve, the keys of the sealing power, as conferred in the last days by the spirit and power of Elijah, in order to seal the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the hearts of the children to the fathers, lest the whole earth should be smitten with a curse.

This last key of the priesthood is the most sacred of all, and pertains exclusively to the first presidency of the church, without whose sanction and approval or authority, no sealing blessing shall be administered pertaining to things of the resurrection and the life to come.

The despised and degraded son of the forest, who has wandered in dejection and sorrow, and suffered reproach, shall then drop his disguise and stand forth in manly dignity, and exclaim to the Gentiles who have envied and sold him---"I am Joseph; does my father yet live?" or, in other words, I am a descendant of that Joseph who was sold into Egypt. You have hated me, and sold me, and thought I was dead; but lo! I live and am heir to the inheritance, titles, honours, priesthood, sceptre, crown, throne, and eternal life and dignity of my fathers, who live for evermore.

He shall then be ordained, washed, anointed with holy oil, and arrayed in fine linen, even in the glorious and beautiful garments and royal robes of the high priesthood, which is after the order of the Son of God; and shall enter into the Holy of Holies, there to be crowned with authority and power which shall never end.

The spirit of the Lord shall then descend upon him like the dew upon the mountains of Hermon, and like refreshing showers of rain upon the flowers of Paradise.

His heart shall expand with knowledge, wide as eternity, and his mind shall comprehend the vast creations of his God, and his eternal purpose of redemption, glory, and exaltation, which was devised in heaven before the worlds were organized; but made manifest in these last days, for the fulness of the Gentiles, and for the exaltation of Israel.

He shall also behold his Redeemer, and be filled with His presence, while the cloud of His glory shall be seen in His temple.

58. Times & Seasons, Vol. 6:954; Speech delivered by President B. Young, in the City of Joseph; April 6, 1845.

The Lord has led this people all the while in this way, by giving them here a little and there a little, thus he increases their wisdom, and he that receives a little and is thankful for that shall receive more and more, and more even to the fullness of the eternal Godhead: there is no stopping place, but the weak capacity of man cannot understand it unless the spirit of the eternal God is in their hearts, and then they can comprehend but a little of it.

59. Times & Seasons, Vol. 6:920; publication date: June 1, 1845; Funeral date & date of discourse: May 24, 1845; Elder Orson Pratt.

The next thing we will speak of will be the reward that will be bestowed upon the resurrected Saints. This is something upon which all inspired men have spoken and written; and it is a theme that rejoices the hearts of the Saints while contemplating it.

The Saints will not receive their crowns of glory until after their resurrection. When the curse in part shall be removed from the world; when wickedness and abomination shall be known no more in the land, then will the Saints come forth clothed with immortality, and be crowned with power and glory as a reward for all their labors. No person will be crowned with power in the eternal world, (we are to be kings and priests to God to all eternity,) unless they have been ordained thereto in this life, previous to their death, or by some friend acting as proxy for them afterwards, and receiving it for them. What is it to be kings and priests? It is to have honor, authority and dominion, having kingdoms to preside over, and subjects to govern, and possessing the ability ever to increase their authority and glory, and extend their dominion.

This is the order observed by the Prophet Joseph, he first baptized Oliver, then Oliver baptised him. [p. 3]

I was among the first to receive my washing and anointings, and even received my second anointing [this date], which made me an equal in the order of the priesthood, with the right and authority to build up the kingdom in all the earth, and power to fill any vacancy that might occur. I have officiated in all the different branches, from the highest to the lowest. There were about forty men who attained to that order in the Priesthood, including the twelve Apostles and the first presidency, and to them was intrusted the keeping of the records.

In the Temple I took three more wives--Martha Berry, Polly Ann Workman and Delethea Morris, and had all my family sealed to me over the altar, in the Temple, and six of them received their second anointings, that is, the first six wives did, but the last three we had not time to attend to.

I received my Second ordinances in the Priesthood with my wife Margaret and Sister Sariah Gibbon, under the hands of George Miller, President of the High Priest Quorum, in room No. 4 attick story of the Temple of the Lord. I was called upon by the President to open the Meeting by prayer which I complied with, with feelins of much gratitude to my Heavenly Father and my brethren that surrounded us. The Services of this holy anointing commenced at the hour of 6 o'clock in the afternoon and closed at 7. We then resumed our seat in the celestial department of the Temple and heard a number of lectures from the brethren on the principles of Priesthood pertaining to exaltation. We also listened with pleasure to the verses of Solomon Hancock, composed on the removal of the Saints to California, with a number of others of the songs of Zion.

87. Millennial Star, Vol. 9:23, 26; January 15, 1847; Farewell address of Elder Orson Hyde. It will be seen by the above diagram that there are kingdoms of all sizes, an infinite variety to suit all grades of merit and ability. The chosen vessels unto God are the kings and priests that are placed at the head of these kingdoms. These have received their washings and anointings in the temple of God on this earth; they have been chosen, ordained, and anointed kings and priests, to reign as such in the resurrection of the just. Such as have not received the fulness of the priesthood, (for the fulness of the priesthood includes the authority of both king and priest) and have not been anointed and ordained in the temple of the Most High, may obtain salvation in the celestial kingdom, but not a celestial crown. Many are called to enjoy a celestial glory, yet few are chosen to wear a celestial crown, or rather, to be rulers in the celestial kingdom.
Brother Franklin D. Richards, a worthy young man, who has received the fulness of the priesthood in the Temple of God, will be our successor to the editorial department of this paper, and also will take the presidency of the whole church in the British Isles under the direction and instruction of the Council of the Twelve Apostles. With all confidence we resign our trust into his hands, being satisfied of his competency and ability to perform the work assigned him; and what is still better, we know that God is with him. We leave our blessing upon him in the name of the Lord, and say to the Saints, listen to his counsel and instruction; in doing so you shall be blessed with life and salvation. He that blesseth him shall be blest, and he that curseth him shall be cursed. Whomsoever he blesses shall be blessed, and whomsoever he curses shall be cursed.--We are happy to introduce him through the medium of the STAR to the Saints, and we can assure them that the more they become acquainted with him the better they will like him. Uphold him by your faith and prayers, by your love, and by your good will, and heaven will bless you.

Morning pleasant. Pres. B. Young's health is improving. * * * About 9 I was washed in salaratus and water from head to foot, afterward in spirits, then anointed in like manner by Louisa [No. 3] and Rachel [No. 6] (as I told them) preparatory to my burial. They both were very kind and attentive to me. In the eve. I felt some better. Weather warm.

89. "Record of Lewis Dunbar Sr. and Nancy Ann Wilson" Typescript, Church Archives; Account written shortly after 20 July 1851. [While writing a eulogy in honor of his wife who died following the birth of a son, Lewis Dunbar Wilson speaks of his Nancy's faith in the Gospel and her obedience to its ordinances, particularly by referring to events that occurred on or shortly after 20 January 1846:]

So, she, Nancy Wilson, departed this life at the age of 41 years having been the mother of eleven living children, nine of them on my hands. . .[she] died having been in the church 15 years, having become a member at the age of 26 years during which time she has attended every ordinance of the Gospel that has been offered in her day, and in fact all that I know anything about. She was baptized for the remission of her sins and had hands laid upon her for the reception of the Holy Ghost, and confirmed in the Church and has received blessings from time to time.

At the temple at Nauvoo she received her washings and anointings even to become a queen and a priestess, after which time she attended to one other ordinance which was to wash the feet of her husband and anoint him to be her king and priest and Savior, that she might have claim on him at the resurrection... Nancy Wilson, who knew and died in triumph of faith in the gospel of the Son of God, after having lived and obeyed all the laws and ordinances of the Church. . . died full in the faith of a glorious resurrection with the just and was buried on the Missouri Bluff just above Kanesville [20 July 1851].

90. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 1:290-91; July 25, 1852; Speech delivered by Elder Orson Pratt; Salt Lake Tabernacle.

Now we see the reason why they are to wear crowns, for they will be made Kings and Priests on the earth: the Lord then, must have some way to give this kingly power.

Do you understand this, brethren and sisters? If you were to speak, I should hear innumerable voices respond, "Yes, we understand it; the Lord has revealed the ordinances; we know how the sons and daughters of God obtain this kingly office, while living here in this mortal tabernacle.

We will pass over that; suffice it to say, that death does not wrench it from them; for they are to be kings, not for a day, not for this short life, but they are to remain to all eternity kings; having their thrones, and acting in the duties belonging to their kingly office. Compared with this, what are all the little, petty kingdoms of this earth worth? They are not worth one snap of the finger. The kings of the world exercise a certain authority over the nations---over their subjects, issuing laws, and framing governments, and controlling them; and do you suppose that the Saints will be kings in the eternal world, and sit down upon thrones, in silence, not exercising the functions of their office? No. That is not the way the Lord has organized His creations; if there are kings, you may depend upon it they will have kingdoms under their control; they will have authority and dominion; they will give laws to those subjects over whom they bear rule; they will control them by the priestly office, for it is combined with the kingly office, and neither can be separated and contracted in His feelings, in His views and disposition, that He would limit the authority of the priestly office to this little globe we inhabit? No. God has more expansive views; His works are without beginning, and without end; they are one eternal round. What kind of works are they? They are to make creations, and people them with living beings, and place them in a condition to prove themselves; and to exercise the kingly and priestly office to redeem them after they have suffered pain, and sorrow, and distress; and to bring them up into the presence of God; that they, in their turn, may become kings and priests for other creations that shall be made, and that shall be governed and ruled over by those possessing the proper authority.

Letter Extract of the First Presidency:

Think not, 0 ye Elders of Israel! that your eternal heirship is won, and immutably secured, because you have attained to a portion of the Holy Priesthood, and a few of its initiating ordinances, while as yet your life and the security of all your great and glorious blessings in hope and prospect, are as a vapour before the sun; as yet depending wholly on your meekness, faithfulness, and perseverance to the end, in everything good. Think not that you are legally entitled to even one wife, while you live on this earth, unless you are sealed up to everlasting lives, by the will and decree of the Eternal Father, and a knowledge of the fact has been communicated to you, through the proper source, and not direct, to you in person. And consider that the blessings you have hitherto received, through the mercies of Him who loveth you, even your Father in heaven, will all be wrested from you, like David's of old, should you err like him.

93. The Seer, Vol. 1, No. 10 (October, 1853); "Power and Eternity of the Priesthood"; Elder Orson Pratt. Compare these comments of Orson Pratt with President John Taylor's views of king & priest in The Mediation & Atonement, 1882 ed, pp. 158-159, herein quoted.

The Priesthood of God is the great supreme, legal authority that governs the inhabitants of all redeemed and glorified worlds. * * * The Kingly authority is not separate and distinct from the Priesthood, but merely a branch or portion of the same. The Priestly authority is universal, having power over all things; the Kingly authority until perfected is limited to the kingdoms placed under its jurisdiction: the former appoints and ordains the latter; but the latter never appoints and ordains the former: the first controls the laws of nature, and exercises jurisdiction over the elements, as well as over men; the last controls men only, and administers just and righteous laws for their government. Where the two are combined and the individual perfected, he has almighty power both as a King and as Priest; both offices are then merged in one. The distinctions then, will be merely in the name and not in the authority; either as a King or a Priest, he will then have power and dominion over all things, and reign over all. Both titles, combined, will then not give him any more power than either one singly.

[See also 23 July 1843 where Joseph Smith said he would advance from prophet to priest (which happened 28 Sep 1843) and then to king of this earth (which took place 11 Apr 1844). Kings who rule over the different nations, and kings who rule under God in eternity are different functions. The former king has no priesthood, while the latter king holds a fulness of the priesthood.

. . .the Saint who has been sealed unto eternal life and falls into transgression and does not repent, but dies in his sin, will be afflicted and tormented after he leaves this vale of tears until the day of redemption; but having been sealed with the [holy] spirit of promise through the ordinances of the house of God, those things which have been sealed upon his head will be realized by him in the morning of the resurrection.

95. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 2:301; Address by Pres. Brigham Young, given in the Salt Lake Tabernacle, June 3, 1855.

To have such a promise [of receiving eternal lives] so sealed upon our heads, which no power on earth, in heaven, or beneath the earth can take from us, to be sealed up to the day of redemption and have the promise of eternal lives, is the greatest gift of all. The people do not fully understand these things and have them not in full vision before their minds, if they did I will tell you, plainly and in honesty, that there is not a trial which the Saints are called to pass through that they would not realize and acknowledge to be their greatest blessing.

96. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 3:265-66; Remarks made in the Bowery, Provo, Utah, July 14, 1855, by Pres. Brigham Young.

Says one, "How will you explain this to me?" We understand we are to be made kings and Priests unto God; now if I be made the king and lawgiver to my family, and if I have many sons, I shall become the father of many fathers, for they will have sons, and their sons will have sons, and so on, from generation to generation, and, in this way, I may become the father of many fathers, or the king of many kings. This will constitute every man a prince, king, lord, or whatever the Father sees fit to confer upon us.

In this way we can become King of kings, and Lord of lords, or Father of fathers, or Prince of princes, and this is the only course, for another man is not going to raise up a kingdom for you.

97. Journal of Wilford Woodruff, August 5, 1855.

President Young thought none would inherit this earth when it became celestial & translated into the presence of God, but those who would be crowned as Gods & able to endure the fulness of the presence of God, except they might be permitted to take with them some servants for whom they would be held responsible. All others would have to inherit another kingdom, even that kingdom agreeing with the law which they had kept.

[Heber C. Kimball] came to our room [and] said he did not feel well. spoke of an ordinance which he had previously taught and said that only one of his wives had attended to it. he then spoke of our Savior and his wives but more particularly of Mary [and her] faithfulness to her Lord Said Mary felt to say that she intended to devote her time to him for he had told her that his time was short and he must soon leave them Now she says I design to attend to his words and teaching Let Martha and the rest say what they would. The Savior then told Martha to let Mary alone for she had chosen the better part which should never be taken from her Now said He follow me and you shall see my father This she did even to the tomb and was the first to see him resurrected from the grave.

99. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 5:18-19; Discourse by Pres. Heber C. Kimball, delivered in the Bowery, Salt Lake City; April 6, 1857.

If I obtain all the blessings of the Priesthood, all the endowments, all the blessings that God has to confer upon us in this probation, and keep those things sacred while I live, I am then as pure and holy as it is possible for a man to be while in the flesh. Then, if my wives are one with me, my children and their posterity will partake of those blessings which have been placed upon me. Every blessing conferred upon me tends to benefit my posterity. Those blessings are for every righteous man; and the blessings that are conferred upon faithful men and women in their holy anointings and sealings will rest upon their posterity after them for ever and for ever, through their faithfulness; and there is no end to it. * * * If we live so as to attain to the principles and fulness of perfection and to secure the promises of eternal lives, then those blessings will rest upon us and our children. * * *

We are now attending to matters that will answer every purpose, until that Temple is completed. Those who go through their endowments now and are sealed up unto eternal lives, those blessings will stick to them, if they will stick to the blessings and promises that are made over unto them, and step forward with one heart and one mind to do the will of God as made known to them from time to time from this stand.

If they had been sanctified and holy, the children of Israel would not have traveled one year with Moses before they would have received their endowments and the Melchizedek Priesthood. But they could not receive them, and never did. Moses left them, and they did not receive the fullness of that Priesthood.  The Lord told Moses that he would show himself to the people; but they begged Moses to plead with the Lord not to do so.

102. Journal History, Friday, December 18, 1857; Manuscript History of Brigham Young, 1857, p. 904.

Some of the Brethren inquired upon Pres. Young to make inquiries upon certain teachings of Joseph concerning the endowments. Elder Geo. A. Smith said that Joseph taught that but one king and priest could be anointed at one meeting in a private room dedicated by permission to anoint in, and but one person could be anointed in a day, but in the Temple several could be anointed in a day, but at each anointing the meeting was dismissed and then came together again. Pres. Young said that Joseph taught him to take the quorum* and anoint them kings and priests to God, and when he got through with that begin at the beginning again to administer for the dead. When the Temple is finished and a place duly prepared we should not be confined to any particular number in sealing and anointing. The rooms next to the east pulpit, or over it will be the place to attend to the second anointings. Under the pulpit in the west end will be the place to offer sacrifices; there will be an altar prepared for that purpose so that when any sacrifices are to be offered they should be offered there.

*[In the Wilford Woodruff journal for this date it reads:]

President Young said Joseph taught him to take the Quorums of the Church in their order beginning at the oldest of each Quorum & Anoint them Kings & Priests unto God, when I got through with that begin at the beginning again to administer for the dead.

Passing through the veil into the "Celestial glory" ends the first anointing. . . .arrived at this point, the candidate, is prepared to proceed to the second anointing. This I have never received, and for various reasons, not the least of which was, that very few have received this as yet, and not until the new temple at Salt Lake City if finished. I had also heard hinted, that the "second anointing" was administered without clothing of any kind; and more over as will be seen hereafter, I had reason to doubt somewhat though not entirely to discard Mormonism.

104. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 8:154-55; Remarks by Pres. Brigham Young made in the Bowery, Salt Lake City; August 26, 1860; Entitled "The Three Glories".

The sectarian world, as we call them, is a professed church of God, without the Priesthood. Sectarians have not the Priesthood; but all of them who live according to the best light and intelligence they can obtain through faithfulness to what they believe, as taught unto them, will receive a kingdom and glory that will far transcend all their expectations, imaginations, or visions in their most excited moments, whether in their falling-down power, jumping power, or squawling power. All they have ever desired to anticipated they will receive, and far more; but they cannot dwell with the Father and Son, unless they go through those ordeals that are ordained for the Church of the Firstborn. The ordinances of the house of God are expressly for the Church of the Firstborn. * * *

Let us so live, that when we receive our bodies in the resurrection, we will be received in the presence of the Father and the Son. This kingdom is designed expressly to prepare the people to dwell with God the Father and his Son Jesus Christ, and all the world beside will receive according to their works upon the earth. This is a joy that is unspeakable; it is a glory beyond the capacity of our minds at the present time to appreciate. It is a great joy to me.

I will give you a few words of doctrine, upon which there has been much inquiry, and with regard to which considerable ignorance exists. Br. Watt will write it, but it is not my intention to have it published; therefore pay good attention, and store it up in your memories. * * *

Woman must atone for sins committed by the volition of her own choice, but she will never become an angel to the devil, and sin so far as to place herself beyond the reach of mercy. * * *

I wish to say to my young sisters, if you can go into the hands of a man, that will lead you into the kingdom of heaven, and exalt you there to become an Eve--a queen of heaven--the wife of a god; and you can remain with that man whom your soul delights, 107. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 10:251, 254; Remarks made by Pres. Brigham Young in the Bowery, Great Salt Lake City; October 6, 1863.

We talk a great deal about our religion. It is not now my intention to deliver a discourse on this subject, enumerating facts and producing evidences in my possession which are unanswerable, but I will merely give a text, or make a declaration, that our religion is simply the truth. It is all said in this one expression---it embraces all truth, wherever found, in all the works of God and man that are visible or invisible to mortal eye. It is the only system of religion known in heaven or on earth that can exalt a man to the Godhead, and this it will do to all those who embrace its laws and faithfully observe its precepts. This thought gives joy and delight to the reflecting mind, for, as has been observed, man possesses the germ of all the attributes and power that are possessed by God his heavenly Father. * * *

There are some of the sealing ordinances that cannot be administered in the house that we are now using [the Endowment House]; we can only administer in it some of the first ordinances of the Priesthood pertaining to the endowment. There are more advanced ordinances that cannot be administered there; we would, therefore, like a Temple, but I am willing to wait a few years for it. I want to see the Temple built in a manner that it will endure through the Millennium. This is not the only Temple we shall build; There will be hundreds of them built and dedicated to the Lord. This Temple will be known as the first Temple built in the mountains by the Latter-day Saints. And when the Millennium is over, and all the sons and daughters of Adam and Eve, down to the last of their posterity, who come within the reach of the clemency of the Gospel, have been redeemed in hundreds of Temples through the administration of their children as proxies for them, I want that Temple still to stand as a proud monument of the faith, perseverance and industry of the Saints of God in the mountains, in the nineteenth century. * * *

Some of us are not dependent on the Temple for our endowment blessings, for we have received them under the hands of Joseph the Prophet, and know where to go to bestow the same on others. You may ask me whether the leaders of this Church have received all their endowment blessings. I think that we have got all that you can get in your probation, if you live to be the age of Methuselah; and we can give what we possess to others who are worthy.

108. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 10:355; Discourse by Pres. Brigham Young, given in the Bowery, Salt Lake City; November 6, 1864.

A few words in explanation of this may not be amiss. When the Holy Priesthood, which is after the order of the Son of God, is upon the earth, and its organizations, ordinances, gospel, powers, authorities and blessings are enjoyed by the children of men; then by means of sealing powers and keys, and an everlasting covenant, the sons of men become the sons of God by regeneration, and are entitled, every man in his order, to the privileges, exaltations, principalities and powers, kingdoms and thrones, which are held and enjoyed, by the Great Father of our race; and all these are obtained through the law of natural increase, and the saving of that which the Father puts into our power. * * * We have not yet received our kingdoms, neither will we, until we have finished our work on the earth, passed through the ordeals, are brought up by the power of the resurrection, and are crowned with glory and eternal lives. Then he that has overcome and is found worthy, will be made a king of kings, and lord of lords over his own posterity, or in other words: A father of fathers. This latter rendering, is more strictly in accordance with the original text.

Not only after this [the marriage of her daughter, Clara, to John A. Young]. my husband one day told me that a select few had been chosen to receive the Second Endowments, and that we were to be honored with the same privilege. This I was told was one of the highest honours that could be conferred upon us, as the Second Endowments had never been given to anyone since the Mormons left Nauvoo.

When we reached the Endowment House, we ladies were shown into one room and our husband into another. We then proceeded to array ourselves in our robes, caps, and aprons--the same as when we received our first Endowments--and when all was ready we were ushered into another room by one of the brethren, who was also dressed in his Temple robes. There we met our husband and several other brethren, all dressed the same way. We sat down, and oil was then poured upon the head of our husband by two of the brethren--Daniel H. Wells and another--and he was ordained a King and Priest to all eternity. After that, we two wives were anointed in like manner, and ordained Queens and Priestesses, to reign and rule with our husbands over his kingdom in the celestial world.

When a man revolts against the work of God and against the counsels of his servants, and will not be subject to the Holy Ghost which dwells in him, he commits treason against God, and against his authority on the earth, and neither the Father, nor the Son, nor the Holy Ghost will take up their abode with such a man, and he may bid farewell to the guidance of good angels.

But the day will come when the Lord will choose a people out of this people [church of the Firstborn], upon whom he will bestow his choicest blessings.

111. Journal of Wilford Woodruff, Ms/f/115; December 26, 1866; Wilford Woodruff speaking.

I met with the Presidency and Twelve at President Young's Office at about 12 o'clock. The subject of the Endowments & 2nd Anointings was presented when President Young said that the order of the 2d Anointings was for the persons to be anointed to be clothed in their Priestly robes the man upon the right hand and wife or wives upon the left hand, the administrator may be dressed in his usual clothing or in his Priestly robes as he may see fit. The meeting should be opened by prayer then the administrator should anoint the man a King & Priest unto the Most High God, then he should anoint his wife or wives, Queens & Priestesses unto her husband. There should be but one man anointed at any one meeting. If more than one man is anointed in a day, they should come together and open by Prayer as though there had not been any meeting before and thus continue to the end. President Young said when a woman was anointed a Queen to a good man, and he died & the woman was sealed to another man for time, it was not necessary for her to be anointed a Queen again, but if she was anointed a Queen to a man who was not worthy of a wife & she is sealed to another man, she should be anointed a Queen unto him. When a good man dies & his wives have not been anointed Queens unto him they may be anointed Queens to him after his death without any proxy.

120. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 11:326; Remarks given by Pres. Brigham Young at the Tabernacle in Salt Lake, on February 10, 1867.

Will the time ever come that we can commence and organize this people as a family? It will. Do we know how? Yes; what was lacking in these revelations from Joseph to enable us to do so was revealed to me. Do you think we will ever be one? When we get home to our Father and God will we not wish to be in the family? Will it not be our highest ambition and desire to be reckoned as the sons of the living God, as the daughters of the Almighty, with a right to the household, and the faith that belongs to the household, heirs of the Father, His goods, His wealth, His power, His excellency, His knowledge and wisdom? Ought it not to be our highest ambition to attain to this? How many families do you think there will be then?

This fall I was called to go to Salt Lake City with my wives to get our second anointings. We left home on the 16th of September and it was the rainiest day I had seen for years and it truly seemed that the Devil was determined to prevent our going, however we got started about one o'clock p.m. and got into the city at daylight on the 17th of September.

We went to the Endowment House and Heber C. Kimball and D. H. Wells officiated in giving us our second anointings. My wife, Melissa, stood proxy for my wife, Eunice, and then Melissa, and Mary received their blessings.

After the services we had a very pleasant visit with our Brethren and went home thankful that we had lived and been considered worthy to receive that blessing.

129. St. George Stake Historical Record, #97707, Vol. 3:28; Discourse given by Pres. George A. Smith, on Friday, December 25, 1874, and was recorded by James G. Bleak, Clerk and Historian of the Southern Mission. The discourse was later published in the Millennial Star, Vol. 37:66-67, Tues., February 2, 1875.

Prest. Smith, on rising. . . .spoke of the Solemn Assembly which convened in Kirtland nearly forty years ago, and of the great blessings poured out by the Lord on that occasion. He felt glad to see present here today perhaps forty witnesses of what then took place. He alluded to councils which had been held in Nauvoo, and to the fact of the Prophet Joseph calling the Twelve together, and, at a meeting called for that purpose, of Joseph and Hyrum the Patriarch administering to Brigham Young, then President of the Twelve Apostles, what is known as the Second Anointing, and instructing him to administer in like manner to his brethren of the Twelve, which he did to the nine of the Twelve who were then at home. He stated that the Twelve were then instructed to administer in the ordinances of the Gospel for the dead, beginning with baptism and the laying on of hands. This work was at once commenced. It soon became apparent that some had long records of their dead, for whom they wished to administer. This was seen to be but the beginning of an immense work, and that to administer all the ordinances of the Gospel to the hosts of the dead was no light task. The Twelve asked Joseph if there could not be some shorter method of administering for so many. Joseph in effect replied---"The laws of the Lord are immutable, we must act in perfect compliance with what is revealed to us. We need not expect to do this vast work for the dead in a short time. I expect it will take at least a thousand years."

Brother George A. Smith, in the foregoing recital incidentally remarked that Elder Sidney Rigdon had never received the Second Anointing, nor the keys pertaining to baptism for the dead. The speaker warmly and most earnestly exhorted the people to energetically prosecute the work on the St. George Temple, so that President Young and the Twelve might have the opportunity of going therein to communicate the keys of knowledge and power which the Prophet Joseph had conferred upon them, and which could only be conferred on others in a Temple. Monday 22 September 1879 the evening of the fifty second Anniversary of the Angel delivering of the Plates of the Book of Mormon to Joseph Smith the Prophet of the Lord, I dedicated the house and room also blest the Oil after which my Ruth Anointed my feet and wiped them with the hair of her head, then kissed them after the pattern as written in the Testament of the Lord Jesus Christ.

141. Juvenile Instructor, Vol. 15:111; May 15, 1880; Article entitled "Temples", written by Daniel Tyler.

The Lord informed the prophet that the temples were the places to receive "the fullness of the priesthood." He said: "for a baptismal font there is not upon the earth, that my Saints may be baptized for those who are dead; for this ordinance belongeth to my house," (a temple) "and cannot be acceptable to me, only in the days of your poverty, wherein ye are not able to build a house unto me."

These additional powers include all the keys that belong to the holy priesthood on the earth, or were ever revealed to man in any dispensation, and which admit men and women within the veil. They enable them to pass by the angels and the gods, until they get into the presence of the Father and the Son. They make of them kings and priests, queens and priestesses to God, to rule and reign as such over their posterity and those who may be given to them by adoption, in the great jubilee of rest which is near at hand. It gives them the right to the tree of life, and the "seal of the living God in their foreheads," spoken of by John the revelator. No marvel, then, that the Lord requires sacred places for such great and glorious things--"the fullness of the holy priesthood" to be restored.

I went to Washington, 6 miles (from St. George); when I returned home I found Zina there comfortably visiting with the family. She and I went to Bro. McAllister's who very kindly consented to suspend some of the rules of the Temple, or rather the usages and accommodate Zina and me by giving me "second annointing" and attending to the ordinance of adoption for us and family on the following day instead of as usual on Friday.

143. Diary of Oliver B. Huntington, Vol. 2:5-6; Mor/M270.1/H925h; BYU Library; January 12, 1881.

My wife, her mother, Nelly and I went to the [St. George] Temple according to previous arrangement with Zina and Bro. McAllister and spent the forenoon in sealings of adoptions -- My father's family and my mother's father, mother and children all were adopted to my father, then father and mother were adopted to grandfather Huntington also all his brothers and sisters were adopted to him.

Next grandfather and mother were adopted to Joseph Smith. After that my wife and I received second annointing. I received second annointing for grandfather Huntington and Zina for his two wives.

At Cedar Springs (on my way home from St. George) I had an interview with old Sister Huldy Barns, a wife of Heber C. Kimball, now 77 years old; and from her I learned the following items of intelligence, that are perhaps no where written. They were the natural outgrowth of conversation and question.

"In the temple at Nauvoo she assisted in giving endowments as long as anyone. There were 90 persons that received their second annointings. None was given to the dead by proxy."

[The above statement by sister Barns is not at all accurate as can be seen from the "Book of Anointings", Nauvoo Temple. There were over 200 living who received their second anointings, and there were several given by proxy to the dead.]

144. Journal of Wilford Woodruff; July 31, 1881; Wilford Woodruff speaking.

Those who are ordained kings and priests unto God will receive all things either in time or eternity and will become counselors to the Savior and dwell and labor with him throughout all eternity and we are the noble spirits who were appointed to come and dwell on the earth in the last dispensation and to labor with him in the building up his Kingdom and prepare it for his coming, to prepare the world for the judgments of God.

President John Taylor St. George--May 22nd 1882

Dear Brother

Mrs Elizabeth Gilbert, (who is in her Eighty-second year) is here for the purpose of obtaining her Second Anointing, together with her husband, Algernon Sidney Gilbert, who Died when Zion's Camp went up to Missouri--My Brother Henry Rollins, Stands as Proxy for her husband--his uncle.

I also wish to know if the sealing of My Mother to Mr. John M. Burk, in Nauvoo can be changed. As she did not wish to be Sealed to him--But Brother Young told her to let it be so for the present, and it could be changed afterward, (or words to that effect).

Must her sealing remain as it was in Nauvoo? Or she be sealed to Joseph--For that is our Desire Henry desires to be adopted into Josephs Kingdom-

Respectfully

/s/ Mary E[lizabeth]. [Rollins] Lightner /s/ James A. Rollins

Dear President Taylor

as I understand you are well acquainted with Bro James A. Rollins and his sister Mary E. who is the wife of Joseph the Prophet. It does not require a great deal of writing from me, he has had his Second Anointing, and can act for his uncle if approved. They are very much exercised about their Mother. He informs me it was understood when living at President Smith's that he was to be in his family, and would like his mother sealed to him.

146. The Mediation and Atonement, pp. 84-87, 158-59; 1882 edition; 1973 photomechanical reprint; by President John Taylor.

Hence, while they are saviors, preach to the spirits in prison and judge the dead, we build temples and administer for them upon the earth, and thus become, as it is written, "saviors upon Mount Zion," operating and co-operating with the Priesthood behind the veil, in the interest, happiness, salvation and exaltation of the human family. Thus shall we also become legitimately and by right through the atonement and adoption, Kings and Priests---Priests to administer in the holy ordinances pertaining to the endowments and exaltation; and Kings, under Christ, who is King of Kings and Lord of Lords, to rule and govern, according to the eternal laws of justice and equity, those who are thus redeemed and exalted. * * *

"For this Melchizedek was ordained a priest after the order of the Son of God, which order was without father, without mother, without descent, having neither beginning of days nor end of life. And all those who are ordained unto this priesthood are made like unto the Son of God, abiding a priest continually." (I.V. Heb. 7)

In Genesis, inspired translation, chapter xiv, it is also stated regarding Melchizedek:

"Thus, having been approved of God, he was ordained an high priest after the order of the covenant which God made with Enoch, it being after the order of the Son of God; which order came, not by man, nor the will of man; neither by father, nor mother; neither by beginning of days, nor end of years; but of God. And it was delivered unto men by the calling of his own voice, according to his own will, unto as many as believed on his name. For God having sworn unto Enoch and unto his seed with an oath by himself, that every one being ordained after this order and calling should have [the sealing] power, by faith, to break mountains, to divide the seas, to dry up waters, to turn them out of their course, to put at defiance the armies of nations, to divide the earth, to break every band, to stand in the presence of God; to do all things according to his will, according to his command, subdue principalities and powers; and this by the will of the Son of God, which was from before the foundation of the world. And men having this faith, coming up unto this order of God, were translated and taken up into heaven. And now, Melchizedek was a priest of this order; therefore he obtained peace in Salem, and was called the Prince of peace, and his people wrought righteousness, and obtained heaven, and sought for the city of Enoch which God had before taken; separating it from the earth, having reserved it unto the latter-days, or the end of the world, and hath said, and sworn with an oath, that the heavens and the earth should come together; and the sons of God should be tried so as by fire. And this Melchizedek, having thus established righteousness, was called the king of heaven by his people, or, in other words, the King of peace."

From the above it would seem that this people possessed the power of Translation, and that they "obtained heaven, and sought for the city of Enoch which God had before taken," or which was before translated.

The principle of power also over the varied creations of God, above spoken of, pertaining to the Holy Priesthood after the order of the Son of God, has, by faith, been manifested to the world in the lives and actions of numbers of the servants of the Most High. The power of Enoch, wherein he caused the earth to tremble, whilst mountains fled at his command, and rivers were turned out of their course, has already been referred to. By this power, exercised in mighty faith, Melchizedek stopped the mouths of lions and quenched the violence of fire [I.V. Gen 14:26]; by it the waters of the Red Sea were divided by Moses, and the children of Israel passed through dry shod [Ex 14:21]; by it Elijah [2 Kings 2:7-8] and Elisha [2 Kings 2:14] smote the waters of the Jordan and crossed on dry land; by it Daniel escaped the ferocity of the lions [Dan 6:16-23], and the three Hebrew children were delivered from the fiery furnace [Dan 3:19-27].

By this same power in the Messianic dispensation the Apostles were delivered from the bonds and imprisonment; by it Paul shook off the viper that had fastened upon his hand [Acts 28:3-6]; by it Philip [Acts 8:39] was caught away by the Spirit of the Lord after he had baptized the Ethiopian eunuch; by it John was preserved when he was cast into a cauldron of boiling oil, that it did not hurt him; by it the dead were raised, the lepers cleansed, the sick healed, devils cast out, and other mighty works performed by Jesus and His disciples; and by it Christ broke the bands of death and became the resurrection and the life, the first fruits of them that slept, the conqueror of death, the Savior of the world and Redeemer of mankind.

Again, on this continent, one of the Nephite Prophets, Jacob, the son of Lehi, records: "We truly can command in the name of Jesus, and the very trees obey us, or the mountains, or the waves of the sea." (Jacob, 4:6). By faith the brother of Jared, who held this power, said unto the mountain Zerin, Remove; and it was removed [Ether 12:30]; by it Alma and Amulek caused the walls of the prison in Ammonihah to tumble to the ground [Alma 14:26-29]; by it Nephi and Lehi wrought the surpassing change upon the Lamanites that they were baptized with fire and the Holy Ghost [Hel 5:43-49]; by it Ammon and his brethren wrought so great a miracle in the conversion of the Lamanites [Alma 17-27]; and by it also the disciples of Jesus who tarried amongst the Nephites showed forth the power spoken of in the following passage:

"Therefore they did exercise power and authority over the disciples of Jesus who did tarry with them, and they did cast them into prison; but by the power of the word of God, which was in them, the prisons were rent in twain, and they went forth doing mighty miracles among them. Nevertheless, and notwithstanding all these miracles, the people did harden their hearts, and did seek to kill them, even as the Jews at Jerusalem sought to kill Jesus, according to his word; and they did cast them into furnaces of fire, and they came forth receiving no harm; and they also cast them into dens of wild beasts, and they did play with the wild beasts even as a child with a lamb; and they did come forth from among them, receiving no harm." 4 Nephi 1:30-33.

This same power has also been abundantly manifested in these latter days in the midst of the Saints of God, in deliverances from evil, in escapes from enemies, in the quelling of mobs, in the stilling of the angry waves of the sea, in the healing of the sick, in the casting out of unclean spirits, and in many other miraculous manifestations of the power and goodness of God, and of the authority with which He has invested His servants who are endowed and clothed upon with the Priesthood, which is endless and after the order of the Son of God.

147. Journal of Discourses, Vol. 24:161; Erastus Snow; June 24, 1883.

This new and everlasting covenant reveals unto us the keys of the Holy Priesthood and ordinances thereof. It is the grant keystone of the arch which the Lord is building in the earth. In other words, it is that which completes the exaltation and glory of the righteous who receive the everlasting Gospel, and without it they could not attain unto the eternal power and Godhead and the fullness of celestial glory. Now, many may enter into the glory of God, and become servants in the house of God and in the celestial kingdom of God, who are not able to abide this new and everlasting covenant; but as we are told in the Doctrine and Covenants, with them there is an end to their exaltation, but they enter not into the order of the Gods. They cannot progress through the ceaseless rounds of eternity except they abide in the covenant, and abide in the covenant, and abide the law that governs it, and the Lord will not be mocked in these things.

When he [Brigham Young] sealed a man up to eternal life, he bestowed upon him the blessings pertaining to eternity, and to the Godhead, or when he delegated others to do it in his stead, God in the eternal world recorded the act; the blessings that were sealed upon that man or that woman, they were sealed to be binding in this life, and in that life which is to come; they became part of the records of eternity, and would be fulfilled to the very letter upon the heads of those upon whom they were pronounced, provided they were faithful before God, and fulfilled their part of the covenant.

Forty years ago [1884], when President Merril was the President in the logan Temple he gave me a great blessing while I was there with my husband having our second endowments. He said my mission on this earth was to tend the sick. He commanded me to go forth and take care of the sick. * * * It is evident that this blessing was inspired and he also said I would live long on the earth and be a queen among queens in the eternal worlds and said many more great things that I cannot remember at this time. I had to be helped into the temple but walked out without help. This had always been a strong testimony to me.

[Elder Erastus Snow speaking at Taylor, Utah:]

Let us be careful not to take upon ourselves these Covenants [of plural marriage] too hastily, before we have had a proper training. The Lord is trying to elevate his people upon a higher plane, to be Kings and priests unto him forever. We can only come upon this higher plane by putting away evil from our midst.

C Jones of your Circle he died soon after we came from Logan Temple working for our Dead and having our 2d Ontingins where we told to attend to the Washing of Feet at home the baby was sick after we came home so I asked Bro Jones when we should attend to it and he said we had better wait till the baby is better but he was taken sick and Died before it was attended to can that be done by Proxy or not as I feel sorry about it for he was a good man and I gave him 2 living Wives and 3 Dead ones and worked hard to help him to keep them.

[Letter from Pres. Woodruff to Eliza I. Jones; Church Archives under date:]

Feb. 24th, 1888.

Mr. Eliza I. Jones
lOth Ward, Salt Lake City

Dear Sister:

The ordinance of which you speak, and which you say you failed to attend to before the death of your husband, is one that should not be written about, and it cannot be attended to by proxy. Your husband is dead and, so far as the ordinances is concerned, it is all right.

I spoke to Prest Woodruff respecting Peter W. Conover of Provo obtaining his Second anointings. He told me to write to him informing him that he can have those blessings upon submitting his recommend properly signed.

Jesus has given us to understand that it is impossible for his disciples to be perfect; for he says: "Be ye therefore perfect even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." He did not mean by that that we should attain to the fulness of the godhead in this life, but that we should carry out in our lives and exemplify in our conduct those laws and principles which God has revealed, and which are the principles of perfection and godliness.

Apr. 8. Tuesday. We went up to the Temple, which is a magnificent building standing on the bench above the city. We did some work in the temple. I had my father adopted to the prophet Joseph Smith. I would have been sealed to my father, but as my sisters who were in the church were not present, it was thought best to postpone this work. I received my second anointing also my wife Eliza did. She also acted for my wife Mary Campbell in having her second anointing.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 7th, 1893 . . . At 6 o'clock I went to the [Salt Lake] Temple where I met my folks, we having received permission from Pres. Woodruff to receive our second anointings. Father [George Q. Cannon of the First Presidency] was there to perform the ceremony. Bro. [Francis M.] Lyman was also there to be with his wife Susan D. Callister Lyman as she received this blessing. Father anointed and spoke the words, John D. T. McAllister held the horn [containing the consecrated oil], and Lorenzo Snow and John R. Winder were the witnesses. Sister Lyman was the first anointed in the presence of us all, she thus being the first to receive this blessing in this building. I then received mine, and my wives followed in the order of their marriages. I felt very much pleased to be thus favored. The ordinance of the washing of feet was explained by Bro. McAllister, after the anointings had been given.

It has been the rule in Logan Temple not to allow any person who had not been married under the covenant to officiate at the marriage alter in behalf of the dead. This rule, he [W. Woodruff] said was wrong and must not be acted upon in the future. The reception of the endowment enabled a person to act in behalf of the dead in any of the ordinances in the house of the Lord, except the highest [second anointing].

Sunday Even not very well & spent the day at home. I had a Dream in the night---l met with Benjamin Franklin. I thought he was on the Earth. I spent several hours with him And talked over our Endowments. He wanted some more work done for Him than had been done which I promised him He should have. I thought then he died and while waiting for burial I awoke. I thought very strange of my dream. I made up my mind to get 2d Anointing for Benjamin Franklin & George Washington.

Can you tell me where the people are who will be shielded and protected from these great calamities and judgments which are even now at our doors? I'11 tell you. The priesthood of God who honor their priesthood, and who are worthy of their [second] blessings are the only ones who shall have this safety and protection. They are the only mortal beings. Why did the Lord ask such things of Abraham? Because, knowing what his future would be and that he would be the father of an innumerable posterity, for he was determined to test him. * * * He [God] tries us for our own good that we may know ourselves; for it is most important that a man should know himself.

He required Abraham to submit to this trial because He intended to make him a king and a priest, to share with Himself the glory, power and dominion which He exercised.

Discourse delivered by President Lorenzo Snow at St. George, Utah, on Thursday, May 8, 1899.

Teach them [the children] to pay their tithing while they are young. You mothers, teach your children that when they get any money they should pay one tenth of it to the Lord, however little it may be. Educate them to pay their tithing in full. Then we will have a people prepared to go to Jackson County. President Smith was talking yesterday about the land of Zion. Yes, surely, this entire continent is the land of Zion, and the time will come when there will be Temples established over every portion of the land, and we will go into these Temples and work for our kindred dead night and day, that the work of the Lord may be speedily accomplished, that Jesus may come and present the kingdom to His Father. He is coming soon, too. But we will not hear His voice until we build up Jackson County. Now we should make the preparation for this. We are not only going to have Zion throughout this continent, but we will have it over the whole earth. The whole earth is the Lord's The time will come when it will be translated and be filled with the spirit and power of God. The atmosphere around it will be the spirit of the Almighty. We will breathe that Spirit instead of the atmosphere that we now breathe. But now it is for us to make the preparation, that we may be worthy to be called into the house of the Lord and receive our second blessings. I do not want the presidents of Stakes to send any person to our Temples to receive the highest blessings that have ever been bestowed upon man since the world began, until it can be said of him, "He pays his full tithing." When you find an honest faithful Latter-day Saint who is worthy of receiving His blessings, send him along. I do not care how fast they come. The time is now at hand when the Latter-day Saints can be greatly and abundantly blessed, so that they can make the preparation in its fulness.

In the year 1900 my wife and I were called to go to Utah to receive our second anointing in the temple of the Lord, so we started by rail in company with Bro. Hyrum S. Phelps & part of his family, on the 17th day of August. On arriving there, we went to work in the Logan temple where we worked for about three weeks & did a good deal of work for my wife's folks who were dead. We also did work for some of my folks & the sealing for my grandparents for five generations back. We also rec'd our second anointing & returned home in Sept. 1900, feeling thankful that we had been counted worthy to receive such great blessings in the house of the Lord.

[Charles Hopkins Allen was born in New York on October 15, 1830. He lived shortly in Kirtland, Ohio, and then moved to Nauvoo with the saints. He personally knew the Prophet Joseph, Brigham Young, Eliza R. Snow and other church leaders. His parents received their "blessings" in the Nauvoo temple during the winter of 1845-46 before moving west with the saints. In 1912 he was ordained a patriarch by Elder James E. Talmage and passed away in 1922, in Mesa, Arizona, a faithful member of the church.]

Taylor was authorized by the First Presidency of the Church to invite Ida and I TO RECEIVE OUR SECOND ANNOINTINGS, AND IN THE TEMPLE, ON THIS MOMENTOUS DAY, President John R. Winder, President of the Temple, explained fully what the 2nd annointings were and told us of the glorious promises offered to those who keep the commandments of the Lord and live a worthy and holy life: that these were the highest of all earthly blessings and no one receives them but those selected by the President of the Church. No one else has that right. How wonderful they were, what hopes they inspire, what a strength they give, what anticipations they awaken in our hearts and how wonderful it is to feel a nearness to the Lord by righteous living. We were thrilled in expectancy and joyous in hopes of living worthy to secure all that was promised us. We have started on an everlasting journey and all depends on whether we endure until the end.

Dear Brother,

In harmony with the wishes of President Snow, to the effect of the leading brethren and sisters of the several Wards and Stakes of Zion, should be granted the privilege of receiving their second blessings in the House of the Lord, and in view of your continued faithfulness and untiring activity in the great cause our Father has established, for the exaltation of his children,-- it affords us true pleasure to enclose you herewith your Temple recommend, duly signed, with the invitation to proceed to the Temple at your earliest convenience and receive this great blessing your second annointing.

May the Lord bless and preserve you in the purity of these high covenants, we are with warmest regards.

Your Brethren,

Thurs. 3. Went to the Temple of the Lord with Flora and received our Second annointings. Prest. John R. Winder officiating. The greatest day of my life.

186. Journal of Thomas A. Clawson, 1895-1904 Book, pp. 226, 228; April 8, 1901.

After the opening exercises Prest Lorenzo Snow spoke upon the Subject of the giving of Second Anointings. He said that this blessing brought a person to a greater knowledge of the things pertaining to God and his purposes in the earth, that the glorious things of the kingdom were made clear to the understanding of man. Therefore it would be a very serious thing for a man to apostatize after he had received this great blessing. He warned the Presidents of Stakes that they should exercise great care when giving recommends to those of his stake to receive these great blessings and should know by their work their integrity and devotion to the cause of the Gospel, for the responsibility would rest upon them if any were recommended unworthily or that apostatized. * * *

Prest. Jos. F. Smith then made a few remarks on the Subject of the Second Anointing. He said that it was the crowning blessing of and the highest gift to be conferred by the Melchizedek Priesthood. Elders should do something to be worthy to receive this great blessing and there are many ways out of the ordinary routine duties by which a man could earn the good will of God to the obtaining of this blessing. Every man should be determined to place every thing on the altar even to the laying down of life itself for the gospel sake in order to be truly worthy of this blessing.

187. Journal of Anthony W. Ivins, Apostle; Monday, April 8, 1901.

Meeting of Presidency, Apostles & Church Officers. Prest. Snow said that persons who are recommended for second anointings should be those who have made an exceptional record, that they are persons who will never apostatize. Prest. of Stakes assume a great responsibility when they recommend persons for second anointings. Now I wish to say a word in regard to going back to Jackson County. The time is nearer than many of us suppose. I want to impress upon the minds of all that they cannot go back to Jackson County unless they obey the law of tithing. Jos. Smith had a book in which all of the names of tithe payers was recorded which was called the Book of the Law of the Lord. This Church as a Church will never go back to Jackson Co. till the people learn to observe the law of the Lord. I fear that some of the bishops do not fully believe in the law of tithing - Excellent remarks.

Bro. Jos. F. Smith said - No man receives a fullness of the Melchizedek Priesthood till he has received his second anointings. Men recommended for this sacred ordinance should be men of God whose faith and integrity are unquestioned.

Gospel Mysteries

30 May 1901 [Thursday]: . . . This afternoon my wife and I took train for Salt Lake City to get our second anointings and attend 1OOth anniversary of Brigham Young's birth.

31 May 1901 [Friday]: Went to Temple this morning presenting recommend which Pres. Snow gave me about 3 months ago. We had not come before for our second anointing as the baby was young, and because we desired to become settled in our new home.

I was called to speak during the services of the temple. Dwelt principally upon the necessity of keeping awake during temple services and keeping awake in our duties. I consider this a very great honor to be called to speak in the House of the Lord. Bp John R Winder annointed us and Elder Madsen instructed us. These are the greatest blessings that are bestowed upon man in the flesh. We were both melted in tears and I felt the patriarchal spirit of pure affection more than I have done before. The witnesses to the annointing were John R. Winder annointed. Adolph Madsen assisted John Nicholson Recorder.

21 June 1901 [Friday; at their home; he was the Wasatch Stake President in Heber Utah at this time]: This evening from about 9-30 to 12 O.C. my wife and I attended to the second part of the ordinance of second anointings. We besides the ordinance itself sang "We thank thee 0 God for a prophet," conversed concerning our duties to each other and children, read from John XII: 1-8 verses, read the Rev. on the Eternity of the Marriage Covenant, Section 132. We dedicated [the] room for the purpose of this meeting. Closed by singing: "Oh my father thou that dwellest." Anna was mouth in preliminary prayer, I gave the dedicatory prayer and the benediction. The spirit of the Lord was with us and we felt nearer together than usual: were much encouraged in pressing onward in an endeavor to succeed in life. We fasted during the day and broke our fast together a little after 12 O.C.

President Cannon.

Pres. Brigham Young left St. George on 16 April 1877 for Salt Lake City and on the 17 April Prest. Young blessed me and set me apart to do sealings, adoptions, 2nd Anointings and all work in this holy Temple. This was done in Bellvieu (sic) at the house of Brother Jacob Gates. I rejoice in this work and hope the time is not far distant when the temple will be filled with saints laboring for their dead. Be attentive and calm; see and hear what is done and said. Keep a record of what you do.

Stake President can recommend someone who is dead and do it by proxy. Stake Presidents personally recommend them and personally responsible.

We cannot speak too emphatically on this subject to our brethren who are on missions, by way of caution against the infraction of their covenants, and in condemnation of those who do this for the purpose of impressing others with their self-importance when they boast of having received "the highest blessings," conveying the idea that they are more advanced in those things than some of their fellow laborers. "The secrets of the Lord are with them that fear him," and they who do not "fear him" sufficiently to keep to themselves that which was only intended for them and which they are forbidden to make known to others, prove themselves unworthy to receive the fulfillment of the promise of God, to "crown them with honor, immortality, and eternal life."

196. Utah Genealogical Magazine, Vol. 21:53-57; Elder Joseph Fielding Smith; 1930; "Temples and the Sacred Rites Therein".

Only in the temple of the Lord can the fulness of the Priesthood be received. Now that temples are on the earth, there is no other place where the endowment and the sealing powers for all eternity can be given. No man can receive the keys of exaltation in any other place. Joseph Smith has said that "the Saints have not too much time to save and redeem their dead, and gather together their living relatives * * * before the earth will be smitten and the consumption decreed falls upon the world." When that day comes those who have professed to believe in the latter day work, and who have rejected the doctrine of temple building and the ceremonial endowments therein, will find themselves shut out of the kingdom of God. This subject occupied the mind of the Prophet Joseph Smith for several years before his death, for the Lord revealed to him all things pertaining to the work in the temples, and he revealed them unto others that the work might on. In the Temples the Saints are performing the ordinances which will insure, through faithfulness, the fulness of the blessings of the kingdom of God. (p.57)

Latter-day Saints believe in this progression in eternity until, eventually, we become worthy through knowledge, wisdom, humility, and obedience, to be like God, and then to have the privilege of being made equal in power, might and dominion (D.C. 76:95), and to possess all that the Father hath (D.C. 84:38) as members of "the Church of the First-born." (D.C. 76:54,94.) ***

Elijah was clothed with the fulness of Priesthood and by this authority all things done in the name of the Lord are made valid. * * *

The Church of the Firstborn

Each person baptized into the Church is under obligation to keep the commandments of the Lord. He is under covenant, for baptism is a "new and an everlasting covenant." (D&C 22:1) When he has proved himself by a worthy life, having been faithful in all things required of him then it is his privilege to receive other covenants and to take upon himself other obligations which will make of him an heir, and he will become a member of the "Church of the First born." Into his hands, "the Father has given all things." He will be a priest and a king, receiving of the Father's fulness and of his glory. Is this worth having? It cannot be obtained without some effort. It cannot be obtained without knowledge of the things of God. We frequently hear quoted these words of the Lord to Joseph Smith: "It is impossible for a man to be saved in ignorance." In ignorance of what" the philosophies of the world? No! In ignorance of the Gospel truth---the saving principles and ordinances by which salvation comes! These must not only be understood, but they must be lived! These must not only be understood, but they must be lived! Knowledge of them will not in itself save us! Obedience thereto will! And then will come the fulness of knowledge, bringing with it wisdom, power and dominion. And the fulness of these blessings can only be obtained in the temple of the Lord! * * *

I wrote Prest. Heber J. Grant as fol:

Dear Pres. Grant:

If the following named brethren, General Authorities of the Church, and their wives have received their Second blessings, the Salt Lake Temple Records do not disclose that fact, I therefore conclude that they have not except possibly Pres Hart who may have received his blessings in the Logan Temple:

J. Reuben Clark Jr. [GA in 1933]

Charles H. Hart	[GA in 1906]
Antoine R. Ivins	[GA in 1909]
Samuel 0. Bennion	[GA in 1933]
John H. Taylor	[GA in 1933]

I understand that it is in order for a member of the Council of Twelve to recommend worthy members to the President of the Church to receive their Second blessings. Accordingly, I recommend that these brethren and their wives be invited to receive their blessings.

Salt Lake City, Utah Dear Brother:

Regarding your proposed new book on "Temples of the Most High", I suggest that you confine your statistics to those which have already been approved by the General Authorities for publicity. Even some already published by the Arizona Temple, by Brother Frank T. Pomeroy, are now withheld from the general public. No statistics should be given out by any of the Temples until the items are first submitted to the First Presidency. Bishop Christiansen was right when he answered you to this effect.

Again, thanking you for a copy of "The Vision", I remain

Sincerely yours.

December 10, 1942:

I attended regular Thu[rsday]. meetings. At the lO:-A.M. meeting of the Presidency, the Twelve and the Patriarch held in the Temple, the matter of allowing the administration of second blessings was considered. I brought up the subject at our last Quarterly meeting of the Twelve held in the Temple Sept. 29th last. I made quite an extended talk on the subject at that time at the conclusion of which it was decided by vote to present the question to the Council of the First Presidency, the Twelve and the Patriarch. To-day all were present except Geo. Albert Smith, Richard R. Lyman and Sylvester Q. Cannon and I suggested to Pres. Clawson that he bring the question forward, which he did. I had a chance to explain, and it was decided that the four members of the Council, viz. J. Reuben Clark Jr., Albert E. Bowen, Harold B. Lee and the Patriarch Jos. F. Smith should be privileged to receive theirs and others whom the members of this council may recommend and the Council sustain. Pres. Grant appointed me to administer these blessings. I suggested that Jos. Fielding Smith be appointed to assist me in this work. We are to make the appointment, i.e. Jos. Fielding & I, for the brethren.

I have anxiously looked forward to this action.

The records show that there have been 32,495 such blessings administered in the Church and that during the last 12 years there have been but 8 administrations. Thirteen of the 32 General Authorities had not had theirs and at least two others who have had them with their first wives have later wives not yet anointed to their husbands.

December 24, 1942:

I obtained permission of Pres. Grant to see him at his home. I found him in bed and his condition seemed worse than I had expected to find. I gave him a blessing, and recommended that he issue recommends to all the General Authorities and their wives who have not received their second blessings and give it [to] them for Christmas which he approved and authorized also approved Stephen L. Chipman & Wife whom I recommended. I reported to Joseph Anderson, who had recommends made. These I took to the President and he signed them. I returned the signed recommends to Joseph Anderson, the President's Secretary, for distribution. I feel that this day's accomplishments has been inspired and is a wonderful accomplishment. May the Lord be praised for ever.

This is one of the most happy days of my life. I am sure it will endure over Christmas.

December 31, 1942:

This has been a wonderful year for me and my family. . . .I have also been instrumental in renewing the former practice in the Church of administering Second Anointings to faithful members, the practice having gone practically into disuse, only eight such blessings having been administered in the past twelve years. Up to twelve years ago there had been administered in the Church thirty two thousand plus of such blessings. The day before Christmas I was instrumental in getting Pres. Grant to sign recommends for thirteen of the general authorities and their wives and the wives of two others of the Council to their husbands; also a recommend for Stephen L. Chipman and wife, he having had his previously. I am sure that the Lord has inspired what I have been able to do along these lines. Pres. Grant, in our council meeting of a few weeks ago appointed me to administer these blessings and at my request appointed Elder Jos. Fielding Smith to assist me. We are the only ones in the Church having this authority by appointment.

October 14, 1943:

Attended 10:00 A.M. meeting of the First Presidency, the Twelve & the Patriarch. The council approved my recommendation that 2nds be offered the following: Harold S. Snow of St. George Temple, El Ray Christiansen Pres. of Logan Temple and David Smith, Pres. of Idaho Falls Temple.

August 12, 1949:

I attended quarterly meeting of the Twelve where I presided and presented my views respecting the non administration of seconds, which received approval with the request by motion made by Stephen L. Richards that I present the matter to the Presidency if I could get a hearing, either to them alone or in the Council of the First Presidency & the Twelve.

August 18, 1949:

At the 10:00 A.M. Council meeting of the Presidency and Twelve I read a paper of 5 or 6 pages deploring the neglect on our part in not administering Second blessings as formerly. The paper and other statements made by me in connection therewith were accepted 100%.

[Excerpts from the paper referred to are given here:]

Gospel Mysteries

To the Members of the First Presidency and the Quorum of the Twelve: Dear Brethren:

For a long time I have felt that I would like to express to you the disappointment I feel that we have practically discontinued the administration of Second Anointings in the Church, and to give to you some of the reasons why I feel as I do.

I have not been able to bring myself to feel that the Lord is pleased with us in neglecting such an important and sacred endowment, which He has given us to be administered in His holy temples to worthy members of His Church.

The Second Anointings were given by revelation to the Prophet Joseph Smith to be administered to worthy members of the Church, both the living and the dead; and from the days of the Prophet Joseph to the days of President Heber J. Grant that practice continued.

[Quotes: D&C 124:40,41 and D&C 124:47,48; and then says:] These things' I understand to mean and include the Second Anointings, a neglect to administer which in the temples reared for that purpose will be attended by the Lord's displeasure, and bring upon us cursings instead of blessings, wrath, indignation and judgments.

We calculate to give the Elders of Israel their washings, and anointings, to attend to those last and more impressive ordinances without which we cannot obtain Celestial thrones. . . .Joseph Smith's Teachings, p. 362.

This refers directly to the Second Anointings. Nowhere else in Church ordinances are men made kings and priests unto the Most High God.

In olden times, kings in Israel were anointed such by the Prophets of God. Should not those who are to become kings and priests and attain to Godhood be anointed thereto while here on earth? That is the nature of the work of Second Anointings.

Every man and woman who has received his or her first endowments has received a PROMISE that through faithfulness they would be privileged to receive the Second Anointings.

"Brethren and Sisters, if you are true and faithful, the day will come when you will be chosen, called up and anointed kings and queens, priests and priestesses, whereas you are now anointed only to become such. The realization of these blessings depends upon your faithfulness." (Endowment Ceremonies, p. 1x2.

Thousands of good and faithful men and women are dying without receiving a fulfillment of the promise made them in connection with the temple ceremonies.

When living members receive their Second blessings, or anointings, they are given a charge that they must not speak of those things to anybody; that only those who are invited by the President of the Church are to receive them, and that none others are supposed to know anything about them.

Formerly, the Stake Presidents made their recommendations for Second Anointings to the President of the Church, and when approved by him the individuals so approved received their invitation from the President of the Church, and on presentation of that recommend to the Temple President of the temple district where the individuals resided, the temple president officiated for them. The Stake Presidents had SPECIAL recommend books for that purpose.

About 1928 an incident occurred which so incensed the First Presidency that they had all the recommend books brought in to the President's office, and instructions were given that no recommends of that character should be given by stake presidents thereafter.

The Twelve were authorized to make recommendations; but their recommendations were rarely ever acted upon favorably, so that the administering Seconds almost entirely ceased. In twelve years, from 1930 to 1942, when these facts were tabulated, but eight such blessings were administered in the Church. Only EIGHT blessings in twelve years!

The following tabulation of Second Blessings administered in the temples where such blessings were administered will no doubt be of interest to you:

Temple	Period	Living	Dead	Total
Salt Lake	To Dec. 10, 1942	14,847	6,226	21,073
Logan	To Oct. 13, 1931	3,139	1,229	4,368
St. George	To Jan. 13, 1938	1,885	1,619	3,504
Manti	To Dec. 12, 1929	2,407	1,143	3,550
Nauvoo	In Jan. & Feb. 1846			406
	Totals	22,278	10,217	32,901

The incident above mentioned which so exasperated the First Presidency was as follows: A brother who had received his Second Blessings, while speaking in a priesthood meeting in one of the Idaho stakes, told the brethren that they all should have their Second Blessings. Of course that was a serious infraction of the charge which he received when he had his Second Anointings; but I have never learned of any serious consequences to follow, except the action on the part of the Authorities, discontinuing the administration of those blessings in the Church.

It appears to me that the mistake made by the good brother in Idaho was not so serious as to justify letting those sacred ordinances come into disuse in the Church. I think now is the time to act; with such modifications as to details as the brethren might feel to make, insuring that these blessings be administered only to those who are worthy to receive them. * * *

If there is condemnation resting upon us for our neglect, the longer we delay action the greater will be our condemnation. . . .

Temples under construction now and in the future should be provided with a room for the administration of these blessings alone, to be known as the Holy of Holies, for if we do not move in the matter before us, some others coming after us will do so for it must be done, and temples should be designed and constructed with that thought in mind.

It is to be hoped that this communication will not be shelved and forgotten without full consideration by this Council. For several years these matters have given me great mental anxiety and spiritual concern, and but for want of courage I would have sought an opportunity to be heard years ago. I do not want to leave this sphere of action without VIGOROUSLY protesting our indifference and neglect.

Sincerely and affectionately your brother,
GEORGE F. RICHARDS, President, Council of Twelve.

December 7, 1949:

I went to the temple at 11:00 a.m. and assisted Elder Jos. Fielding Smith, administered Seconds to Preston D. Richards and wife Barbara, and the members of Emigration Stake Presidency and their wives.

Second anointing

"A rather common phrase at times in Mormon communities was the phrase the "second endowments."
Very little information can be gathered about the "second endowments."

SECOND ANOINTINGS

The "Second anointing" was rather clearly a temple ordinance. It seemed to have something to do with elevating the rights or privileges or authority of an already "endowed" person (initiate) to a level "equal" with some select group of persons already high in authority.

(ln Nauvoo, I11. in the Winter of 1845)
". . .a few men had dispensations granted them to enter into plural marriages which were thought to be the stepping-stone to celestial exaltation. Without plural marriage a man could not attain to the fullness of the holy priesthood and be made equal to our savior."

205. Doctrines of Salvation, Vol 2; by Joseph Fielding Smith; compiled by Bruce R. McConkie; 19bb edition.

Eternal life is life in the presence of the Father and the Son. Those who receive it become members of the "Church of the Firstborn" and are heirs as sons and daughters of God. They receive the fulness of blessings. They become like the Father and the Son and are joint-heirs with Jesus Christ. [p. 9] * * *
We must continue to the end; we must obey the commandments. We must keep the ordinances. We must receive covenants, sealings, the sealing power, and privileges which are obtained in the temple of the Lord, and then live in accordance with them. That we must do. [p. 15] * * *
Comparatively few of the children of men will find the salvation which is found in the celestial kingdom, or in other words the exaltation which will make of them heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ---even sons of God. Those who gain this exaltation receive the fulness of the power, might, and dominion of that kingdom. They overcome all things. They are crowned as priests and kings and become like Jesus Christ. [p. 24] * * *

Those who are faithful in obtaining the priesthood and magnifying their calling become members of the Church of the Firstborn, receiving all that the Father hath; and this is according to an oath and covenant that cannot be broken. * * *

The destiny of the faithful man in this Church and the faithful woman is to become a son and daughter of God. * * *

Now how are we going to become the sons of God and, of course, daughters as well? How is it done? Can we become the sons and heirs of our Eternal Father simply by being baptized for the remission of our sins after we have repented and have had faith, and have had hands laid upon us for the gift of the Holy Ghost, and have come into the Church? No, it takes more than that. * * *

If you would become a son or a daughter of God and an heir of the kingdom, then you must go to the house of the Lord and receive blessings which there can be obtained and which cannot be obtained elsewhere; and you must keep those commandments and those covenants to the end. * * *

The ordinances of the temple, the endowment and sealings, pertain to exaltation in the celestial kingdom, where the sons and daughters are. The sons and daughters have access to the home where he dwells, and you cannot receive that access until you go to the temple. Why? Because you must receive certain key words as well as make covenants by which you are able to enter. * * * You get your key in the temple, which will admit you. ***

Those who become servants are those who are not willing to receive these blessings in the house of the Lord and abide in them. They are not sons; they are not daughters. They are children of God, it is true, for all men are his children. But they do not inherit, and therefore they remain servants throughout eternity. * * * There will be a great many servants, but there will not be many heirs. * * *

Those who gain exaltation in the celestial kingdom are those who are members of the Church of the Firstborn; in other words, those who keep all the commandments of the Lord. There will be many who are members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints who shall never become members of the Church of the Firstborn.

So being ordained an elder, or a high priest, or an apostle, or even President of the Church, is not the thing that brings the exaltation, but obedience to the laws and the ordinances and the covenants required to those who desire to become members of the Church of the Firstborn, as these are administered in the house of the Lord. To become a member of the Church of the Firstborn, as I understand it, is to become one of the inner circle. We are all members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints by being baptized and confirmed, and there are many who seem to be content to remain such without obtaining the privileges of exaltation.

The Lord has made it possible for us to become members of the Church of the Firstborn, by receiving the blessings of the house of the Lord and overcoming all things. Thus we become heirs, "priests and kings, who have received of his fulness, and of his glory," who shall "dwell in the presence of God and his Christ forever and ever," with full exaltation. Are such blessings worth having? * * *

If you want salvation in the fullest, that is exaltation in the kingdom of God, so that you may become his sons and his daughters, you have got to go into the temple of the Lord and receive these holy ordinances which belong to that house, which cannot be had elsewhere. No man shall receive the fulness of eternity, of exaltation, alone; no woman shall receive that blessing along; but man and wife, when they receive the sealing power in the temple of the Lord, if they thereafter keep all the commandments, shall pass on to exaltation, and shall continue and become like the Lord. And that is the destiny of men; that is what the Lord desires for his children. * * *

The endowments are for advancement in that kingdom, and the sealings for our perfection, provided we keep our covenants and obligations. [pp. 35-45]

206. Doctrines of Salvation, Vol. 3; by Joseph Fielding Smith; compiled by Bruce R. McConkie; 1956 edition.

FULNESS OF THE PRIESTHOOD

How Christ Gained Fulness of Priesthood. Joseph Smith said: "If a man gets a fulness of the priesthood of God, he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordinances of the house of the Lord."

I hope we understand that. If we want to receive the fulness of the priesthood of God, then we must receive the fulness of the ordinances of the house of the Lord and keep his commandments. * * *

Let me put this in a little different way. I do not care what office you hold in this Church--you may be an apostle, you may be a patriarch, a high priest, or anything else--you cannot receive the fulness of the priesthood unless you go into the temple of the Lord and receive these ordinances of which the Prophet [Joseph] speaks. No man can get the fulness of the priesthood outside of the temple of the Lord. There was a time when that could be done, for the Lord could give these things on the mountain tops--no doubt that is where Moses got it, that is no doubt where Elijah got it--and the Lord said that in the days of poverty, when there was no house prepared in which to receive these things, that they can be received on the mountain tops. [pp. 131-32] * * *

There is nothing in the teachings of the gospel which declares that men are superior to women. The Lord has given unto men the power of priesthood and sent them forth to labor in his service. A woman's calling is in a different direction. The most noble, exalting calling of all is that which has been given to women as the mothers of men. Women do not hold the priesthood, but if they are faithful and true, they will become priestesses and queens in the kingdom of God, and that implies that they will be given authority. The women do not hold the priesthood with their husbands, but they do reap the benefits coming from that priesthood. [p. 178]

207. BYU Faculty Meeting, prior to 1965.

Brother Robert Bushman questioned Elder Harold B. Lee at a BYU faculty meeting [sometime before 1965] about the second endowment and Elder Lee said there was no tie in with that and seeing Jesus. The second endowment is being done [inferred he had been called up to it]. Pres. McKay called some up. He refused to associate the second endowment with seeing Jesus. He refused to comment on it.

208. Mormon Doctrine; 1966 edition; Elder Bruce R. McConkie.

After a person has advanced in righteousness, light, and truth to the point that the fulness of the ordinances of the house of the Lord have been received so that he has been sealed up unto eternal life, then as expressed in the Prophet's language, the law is: "If a man commit adultery, he cannot receive the celestial kingdom of God. Even if he is saved in any kingdoms, it cannot be the celestial kingdom." (H.C. Vol 6:81) [pp. 24-25]

The President of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints holds the keys of salvation for all men now living because he is the only one by whose authorization the sealing power of the priesthood can be used to seal men up to salvation and exaltation in the kingdom of God. [p. 411]

209. Interview with Elder Theodore M. Burton, December 8, 1966, by Kenneth W. Godfrey.

In an interview with Elder Theodore Burton on December 8, 1966 he told Kenneth W. Godfrey that the complete Nauvoo temple book was in the Salt Lake Temple. He further stated that in this book was the full ceremony relative to giving second endowments. This ceremony is confidential and only given to a person when called by the First Presidency of the Church. He also stated that temple work is done differently today than it was then in that not as many people receive their second endowments. He further stated that he had not had his second endowment as yet but that his father and mother had had theirs before their deaths.

212. The Improvement Era, pp. 65-66; June 1970; April General Conference, Priesthood Session by President Joseph Fielding Smith; "Magnifying Our Callings in the Priesthood".

What a glorious thing it is to know that the Lord has offered to each of us the fullness of the priesthood, and has promised us that if we will receive this priesthood and magnify our callings, we shall gain an everlasting inheritance with him in his kingdom! * * *

To prepare the way for the coming of Elijah and the restoration of the sealing power, because of which men may receive the fullness of the priesthood, John the Baptist came in May of 1829 and conferred upon Joseph and Oliver the Aaronic Priesthood. A short time later Peter, James, and John came and gave them the Melchizedek Priesthood.

Then on April 3, 1836, in the Kirtland Temple, Elijah the prophet returned and bestowed upon them the sealing power, the power to use the priesthood to bind on earth and seal in heaven.

Then in 1841 the Lord revealed to the Prophet that "the fullness of the priesthood" was available to men only in the temple in "a house" built to his name. (See D&C 124.) And in 1843 the Prophet said: "If a man gets a fullness of the priesthood of God he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordinances of the house of the Lord." (D.H.C., Vol 5:244)

Let me put this in a little different way. I do not care what office you hold in the Church---you may be an apostle, you may be a patriarch, a high priest or anything else---but you cannot receive the fullness of the priesthood and the fullness of eternal reward unless you receive the ordinances of the house of the Lord; and when you receive these ordinances, the door is then open so you can obtain all the blessings which any man can gain.

Do not think because someone has a higher office in the Church than you have that you are barred from receiving the fullness of the Lord's blessings. You can have them sealed upon you as an elder if you are faithful; and when you receive them, and live faithfully and keep these covenants you then have all that any man can get. There is no exaltation in the kingdom of God without the fullness of the priesthood, and every man who receives the Melchizedek Priesthood does so with an oath and a covenant that he shall be exalted.

213. Comment by Paul Royall, 1970.

THE HIGHEST PRIESTHOOD BLESSING

The Lord through Moses revealed that it was his purpose to bring to pass man's resurrection and also his eternal life, or godhood; it was designed in the heavens that through priesthood powers the blessing of exaltation would be received. (Moses 1:39; D&C 128:5) * * *

The temple has been built to provide a place where the endowment, eternal marriage, and the fullness of the priesthood may be received. (D&C 124:25-28; TPJS, p. 308) The Prophet said the following regarding women in the Church:

> The faithful members of the Relief Society should receive them [the keys of the Priesthood] with their husbands. (Ibid., p. 226)

215. The Ensign/December 1972, p. 34; October General Conference, 1972; President Spencer W. Kimball.

Joseph Smith bestowed upon the Twelve apostles all the keys and authority and power that he himself possessed and that he had received from the Lord. He gave unto them every endowment, every washing and anointing, and administered unto them the sealing ordinances.

June 4-- . . . President Spencer W. Kimball called me in to notify me that Dantzel and I were to report to the temple on June 9.

June 9--Dantzel and I were privileged to enter the temple on this Sabbath day to attend a special meeting at the invitation of President Spencer W. Kimball. The sacred nature of this event precludes our mentioning more about it here other than to say that it did take place, but this experience is of the greatest importance to us and to our family.

217. Melchizedek Priesthood Manual, 1973-74, pp. 27, 49.

It is not necessary however for one to hold the keys of the Priesthood, that is, become President of the Church, in order to have a fulness of the Priesthood. As President Smith says: 'If we want to receive the fulness of the Priesthood of God, then we must receive the fulness of the ordinances of the house of the Lord and keep his commandments. . .No man can get the fulness of the Priesthood outside of the temple of the Lord. . . .EVery man who is faithful and will receive these ordinances and blessings obtains a fulness of the Priesthood and the Lord has said that he makes them equal in power, and in might, and in dominion.'

Thus in the restoration of the Melchizedek Priesthood. . .the Lord has provided the means that men may. . .go to the temples of the Lord and receive the higher ordinances and a fulness of the Priesthood, so that if they are faithful to their covenants they may become joint-heirs with Jesus Christ.

In order for men to obtain exaltation they must not only receive the Gospel, they must receive the Melchizedek Priesthood, and not only the Melchizedek Priesthood, but the fulness of the Priesthood, meaning the fulness of the blessings of the Priesthood, which can be obtained only in the temples of the Lord through the holy endowment and the sealing ordinances of the Priesthood.

Salvation could not come to this world without the mediation of Jesus Christ. How shall God come to the rescue of the generations? He will send Elijah the prophet. The law revealed to Moses in Horeb never was revealed to the children of Israel as a nation. Elijah shall reveal the covenants to seal the hearts of the fathers to the children and the children to the fathers. The anointing and sealing is to be called, elected, and the election made sure.

I know that God lives. I know that Jesus Christ lives," said John Taylor, my predecessor, "for I have seen him." I bear this testimony to you brethren in the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

[Note: The reference to the anointing and sealing comes from Teachings of the Prophet Joseph Smith, p. 323: "The anointing and sealing is to be called, elected and made sure", and refers to the second anointing and subsequent sealing which makes a person's calling and election sure.]

D&C 131:1-4. Which temple ordinance is required for entrance into the highest degree of the celestial kingdom?

In this regard, President Joseph Fielding Smith wrote, "No man shall receive the FULNESS OF ETERNITY, of exaltation, alone; no woman shall receive that blessing alone; but man and wife, when they RECEIVE THE SEALING POWER IN THE TEMPLE OF THE LORD, if they thereafter keep all the commandments, shall pass on to exaltation, and shall continue and become like the Lord, and That is the destiny of men; that is what the Lord desires for his children." (D.S. 2:44) 221. Commitment, p. 16; 1982 ed., by Elder Vaughn J. Featherstone.

I made the decision that I wanted to walk in high places---not in an aspiring way, but I wanted to serve. It appeared to me that leaders did most of the serving.

When I was about eighteen, I heard of solemn assemblies and priesthood leadership meetings held in conjunction with stake conferences. I heard about nine-hour testimony meetings in the mission field. I heard about meetings in the assembly room in the temple, and I longed to be worthy to one day attend such meetings. I didn't ever want anything to come into my life that would prevent me from having such opportunities.

St. George,

Dear Brother:--

I very much object to telegrams such as that regarding Bp. Dorius. It compromises all parties concerned, the principals, the sender, and the receiver, and much prefer that communications on such matters be made through the mail. Those desiring such work done must make the proper arrangements before hand or they must wait.

Bp Dorius has our consent to his request.

My Dear Brother

To satisfy a feeling which has been on my mind for some time. I submit the following; My Son George Q. who died in this City when he was 18 years and 21 days old, was very faithful to us as a son, and also in the Holy Priesthood so far as he had opportunity when a Deacon, he was 1st Councilor to the President of the Quorum, which position he filled honorably, untill ordained an Elder, previous to receiving his Endowment. He was appointed Clk of the (p. 2) 1st Quorum of Elders in the Stake, being naturally of a religious turn of mind it seemed natural for him to perform his spiritual duties. He acted as a Teacher in the Ward, with entire satisfaction to the Saints up to the time of his death.

When on his death bed I asked him if there was any thing that he would like me to do for him, he said "I would like you to have some wives sealed to me." According to this request I have had two girls who died in the Church sealed to him. Two others, apreciating his worth have expressed a desire to have their daughters sealed to him, which will be done. These tokens of respect fills our hearts (p. 3) with joy feeling as we do, that our dear boy was worthy.

Now the question is, do you think he was old enough to receive his 2d Anointing?

Bro McAllister it is not my desire to seek blessings for my sons that they are not entitled to. But I had great hopes in this son, for I fully appreciated his worth, and would like to see that every blessing was put in his reach, to which his faithfulness entitled him.

You as the Prest. of the St George Stake knew him, hence I submit the question to you.

I am very respectfully
Your Brother in the Gospel

President John Taylor
Dear Brother.

The theme of my correspondence on the present occasion will be a subject that has engrossed my mind for many years and especially of late.

I have just returned from St George wither I had been with a portion of my family to work for my dead relatives and friends in the Temple of the Lord.

I find in looking over my record that my Father died an Elder; I recd for him some 7 years ago his second anointings. He was a good man and was called hence without a moments warning by a Stoke of lightning at the age of 63. He was Killed on Beaver City some 27 years ago and I am very desirious to receive for him the ordination as an High Priest that he may belong to the same quorum as my Brother Joshua and myself If it meets with your approval. (p. 2) Bro Erastus Snow was some little acquainted with Father and to him I refer as his advocate.

My Brother Joshua had his failings, like many more, but my mind has been set at rest for many years in regard to his present condition and situation in the spirit world. He was never cut off the Church altho he demeaned himself very improperly for some time before his death and no doubt brought about his early demise thro his bad habit of drinking. Nevertheless from manifestations I have received since his death I am satisfied that he has sorrowfully repented and is now engaged in doing all the good he can on the other side. If it meets with your approval I would very much like him to receive his second anointings. I was rebaptized for him in the Temple at St George some 8 years ago I take pleasure in mentioning the names of Judge Elias Smith and Prest Daniel H Wells as his advocates.

I have another Brother dead named Benjamin he lived on Greenville Beaver Co (p. 3) also died in the faith. I should be pleased to receive for him his second anointings and will mention the name of Prest John R. Murdock of Beaver Stake as his advocate.

I hope dear brother you will not deem me presumptous in asking for blessings for my dead relatives--they are very dear to me and I am fully satisfied that the three I have mention'd are doing all they can according to their calling and Priesthood to further on the work of the Lord where they are--I have done for them all I can--I have recd the blessings mention'd for myself and earnestly wish that these near and dear to my heart should share in the same blessings and privileges that I by the clemency of the Priesthood have been permitted to receive.

Praying the Lord to shield and protect you and the brethrn with you in the future as he has in the past and with due respect I desire to subscribe myself you[r] Brother in the Gospel

Dear Brother

Three years ago I got ready by the council of Apostle George Teasdale to go to St. George, to attend to Temple work also to get my second anointings in connection with my wives. One of my wives Maria was taken sick which hindered me from going at that time, afterward my wife Eliza now seventy nine years old, became too feable to travel that distance. I have been in hiding Seventeen months past but I think I can go safely to the Logan Temple. I aske if I now with my wives can have the privilege of this great blessing. I therefore think and feel as if I ought not to neglect this matter any longer if the privelege is mine I would also like my first wife Ann who is dead, died three years and a half ago, to recieve the blessing through one of my living wives acting for her.

Please endorse upon the recommends, if you will grant me this privilege and return to me that I may know how to prepare, as I am not known by my riqht name here please send the recommends to Brother Joseph E. Taylor with whom I am acquainted.

I will see him and ask him to recieve them for me. I remain your Brother in the Gospel

Dear Brother:

In reply to your letter of the 12th of November. There is no objection to Brother Noah Brimhall receiving his second anointing and I have endorsed his recommend accordingly. But his present wife cannot be anointed to him as she is only his wife for time, and when she receives her anointings to her deceased husband, Bailey Lake, his other two wives should also receive theirs.

If Brother Brimhall were to act for Bailey Lake and she were to be anointed to him as proxy, it might lead to confusion. The better way, in order that the records may be straight, is for some one to act for Brother Lake and the three wives be anointed at the same time. Brother George Lake having one these wives and being his brothers heir could do this with the greatest (p. 2) propriety, if he should be worthy of the ordinance.

Under the circumstances I think Brother Brimhall had better get a relative of his own, or of his deceased wifes, or in the absence of such a relative, some friend who has had her second anointing to act as proxy for his deceased wife, and let Sister Lavina Jones Lake Brimhall wait for this ordinance until arrangements can be made for the other wives of Brother Lake to join her in obtaining this ordinance

With Kind regards
Your Brother.

Dear Brother,

Your letter of the 18th inst. in which you express your wishes concerning an Indian girl who has been sealed to you receiving her second anointing, and also respecting her doing work for 7 or 8 of the early martyrs, unmarried women, and having them sealed to you, has been received.

I think it is better for you to defer the ordinance of second anointing for this indian girl who has been sealed to you since her death. It will be no lost to her for the present.

As to the martyrs of whom you speak, we see no impropriety in having the ordinance of baptism attended to for them, especially if you know who they are: but before having them sealed to you, you should certainly have some knowledge of them and of your right to have them, as others may claim that they have a better right than you hereafter.

With kind regards,

His wife Hannah Pexton married him in England and they were sealed in the Endowment House 1855. He took another wife considerably neglected his first and she obtained a divorce from him through the courts. Now comes the question of Second Anointing raised by the eldest son who [is] doing work in the Temple, wished his father to receive his full blessings with his mother Hannah Pexton. She reports to James Pexton came to her in a dream and asked her to forgive him. She is willing to forgive him. Wishes to know if she should be resealed to him, and whether it would be proper for him to have his full blessings and she enjoy the same with him. The son James D. Pexton is 39 years of age [and is the] 2nd Counselor to Bp Thos H. G. Parks of the North Ward Nephi. Is he old enough to receive his full blessings? and then stand for his father. Sister Hannah Pexton who lives in Nephi, called upon Pres. Woodruff and asked these questions and it was taken under advisement.

January 24th, 1888
President Angus M. Cannon,
Salt Lake Stake.

Dear Brother,-- Your letter in reply to mine upon the subject of second anointings for Brother George Lufkin and Brother James Townsend, has been received and considered.

Whoever attends to the ordinances for Brother Townsend should certainly take his last wife to the Temple with them, so that she might receive the blessing as well as the deceased wife. Is Brother George Lufkin the proper person, who is as worthy as he, who is nearer as heir to the Townsend Family than he is? If he is the proper partyto represent Brother Townsend, under the circumstances you are at liberty to inform him that if he will get his recommendation properly signed, I will endorse it for him to receive his second anointing and to act for Brother Townsend, on condition, also, that he takes Brother Townsend's surviving wife with him.

Now, in relation to the other subject which you mention--the cases of worthy men and women who are aged who have not had their second anointings, and who, are waiting to have this privilege accorded to them, being counseled by, you not to ask for the privilege. We think such cases deserve consideration, and where you know of aged men and woman who are worthy to receive this ordinance, I would like you to forward their names to me for consideration: and these that we decide as proper persons to receive this ordinance can have their recommendations signed to that effect.

Mrs. Eliza I. Jones
lOth Ward, Salt Lake City

Dear Sister:

The ordinance of which you speak, and which you say you failed to attend to before the death of your husband, is one that should not be written about, and it cannot be attended to by proxy. Your husband is dead and, so far as the ordinances is concerned, it is all right. If there are any.of his children who were not born in the covenant and they are dead, a living child, or children can officiate for them in being sealed to their parents.

You ask a question whether a sister can be sealed to her first husband, who never heard the Gospel, if she has embraced it and been married and sealed to another.

We do not consider it safe for a woman in the Church to be sealed to a man who died before receiving the Gospel.

With kind regards,

PRESIDENT'S OFFICE,
Salt Lake City, Utah, May 22, 1888

Bishop S. A. Woolley,

Ninth Ward, Salt Lake City.

Dear Brother:

I have read with interest your favor of the 16th., in which you set forth the circumstances connected with the life and demise of your son Samuel Henry.

I have no doubt that he was a most excellent young man, as what you say about him is fully corroborated by Brother George Q. Cannon, who appears to have been well acquainted with him. It would give me pleasure to grant the request which you make concerning his receiving his second anointing if I did not have a feeling that there is an impropriety in administering this ordinance to young men, either living or dead, at the present time. In the days of the Prophet Joseph and Brigham this ordinance was not sought for and would not have been administered to any who did seek for it. It was administered only to aged people, or men who were advanced in life, who had been well tried and proved. I have received since President Taylor's death a number of requests from parents and others whose sons have died, asking me to grant them the privilege of officiating in this ordinance on behalf of their sons. I have invariably declined to grant these requests, because I have felt under the circumstances it would not be proper to do so. Your son will lose nothing by not having this attended to now, and you can comfort your heart with the reflection that you have done all that you can for him at[p.2]the present.

You ask whether a person who has once been married in the Endowment House or Temple, and is left a widow or a widower, commit adultery by marrying again when the ceremony is performed by a justice of the peace or civil officer.

There is a manifest impropriety, which every Latter-day Saint who has had his or her endowments should perceive, in such a person going to a civil officer to have a ceremony of marriage performed. The fact that such a person does so is an evidence that he or she is falling away, because if in good standing a recommendation could be obtained for the Temple, where the ceremony could be performed according to the order which God has instituted. But a person marrying under such circumstances does not commit adultery.

You ask some other questions concerning how many living wives a man must have to fulfil the law.

When a man, according to the revelation, marries a wife under the holy order which God has revealed and then marries another in the same way, he enters into the new and everlasting covenant, and so far as he has gone he has obeyed the law. I know of no requirement which makes it necessary for a man to have three living wives at a time.

I enclose herewith the answer to Sister Fail. I sent it to you that you may see its contents and then hand it to her.

The case of Henry Lovesey and Emma Townsend, which you describe, is not very savory one in all its particulars, and I feel that she had better let the matter rest for the present. I do not feel clear in my mind about breaking the seal "with the [p.3] old man" or consenting to the change that she seems anxious to make.

With kind regards,

I remain Your Brother,

W. Woodruff

PRESIDENT'S OFFICE
Salt Lake City, Utah, May 24, 1888

Gospel Mysteries

Elder J. Don Carlos Young,
Architect Salt Lake Temple.

Dear Brother:

I take the liberty of making the following suggestions to you respecting the Temple as they now occur to us, and it is proper that they should be before you for your consideration, that you may be able as you progress to make the necessary arrangements to carry out these suggestions:

A room should be prepared, convenient to the entrance, for the President of the Temple to hold private interviews with parties who may wish his counsel.

Care should be taken to have the Recorder's Room conveniently situated for the work they have to do, be well lighted, and should have at least one vault immediately connected with it. It must not be understood from this that one vault only is needed in this Temple. The vaults which are to contain books and papers should be well ventilated, and have communication with the outside air.

In the Logan and Manti Temples the rooms designed for the ordinance of second anointing are quite plain. In this Temple the rooms should be as well situated and at least as elegantly decorated as any other room in the building, so as to impress those who receive this sacred ordinance with its importance and elevated and solemn character. It would be well if two small dressing rooms could be near by or connected with it.

A good room convenient for its purposes should be provided for the President of the Temple; also suitable rooms for the Presidency of the Church and the leading authorities.

We shall from time to time, probably, amek further suggestions as they may occur to us in regard to the interior arrangements of the Temple. We desire that the greatest pains will be taken by yourself to have everything done in the most perfect manner, and so carefully considered beforehand that we will not be under the necessity of making changes or tearing down work that has already been done. We know that you have labored under disadvantages because of the incompleteness of the plans turned over to you, and also because of the improvements that you have felt compelled to make in those plans. We would much prefer holding the work in abeyance till you can feel sure that whatever is required to be done is done properly, than to have it pushed forward without the plan being well matured. At any time when you wish to submit any questions concerning the work we shall be glad to accord you an interview upon your notifying us to that effect.

It will be well for you to keep this letter where you can refer to it.

With kind regards, and praying the Lord to bless you in the performance of the important labor entrusted to you,

I remain,
Your Brother,

Dear Brother:
Your pencil memeranda, dated Oct 18th, showing a list of names of persons in Morgan Stake deemed worthy to receive their second anointings, came duly to hand.
There seems to be some misunderstanding in these matters by you in sending such a formidable list, and in such a manner as the one received. In such an important matter as second anointings it is not expected that the Stake or the Wards are to be hunted over to find names to recommend for such an ordinance. It is only contemplated that we be furnished with the names of those who are deemed worthy by the Presidency of the Stake, and who are quite ages, and whose life and labors in the Church have been such as to entitle them to this blessing. When such names are submitted the ages of the parties should be noted, and you will be informed as to their acceptance before the parties receive any information or their recommends are endorsed to go to the Temple.
Trusting that you will now understand this matter thoroughly and will act accordingly, and with kind regards,

I am, Your Brother,

PRESIDENT'S OFFICE
Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 13, 1888

President D. H. Wells,
Manti Temple.

Dear Brother:--Your letter of Nov. 9th representing the wishes of Sister Sarah Clarke who was sealed to David Wood in Salt Lake City in 1854 to have her second anointings, also to officiate for Brother Wood's First wife who is dead, has been received.

You say that Brother David Wood received his second anointing in 1867, but neither of his wives was anointed to him at that time because his first wife was not present. You are hereby authorized to administer that ordinance in behalf of Brother Wood's first wife, and afterwards Sister Smith can also be anointed to Brother Wood. It will be necessary for some persons who have received this ordinance to officiate for Brother and Sister Wood, deceased, and Sister Smith can act for herself. You can arrange about that.

In regard to establishing a rule in such cases as this one, as you intimate in your letter, I do not desire it be so; but prefer that all matters pertaining to this ordinance shall first be referred to me, as also all cases where a liv[p.860]ing man has had his blessings and brings his wife or wives to receive theirs: he and they should first have permission before the ordinance is performed.

With kind regards,

Your Brother in the Gospel,

Dear Brother:--The enclosed recommend for Christian P. Boreguard and his wife Anna to obtain their second anointings, is returned herewith for corrections.

In regard to these matters, I will say that it is not expected that the Bishops will take these cases in hand and recommend persons for this ordinance.

The instructions which have been given on this subject are, that the President of the Stake, as they shall find from time to time in their Stake those brothren who are aged, and who have been faithful in the Church during their lives, and through their untiring energies have proven themselves worthy of this blessing, will take note of such cases and, through the President, will submit to me the names of such persons and their wives, both living and dead, who have also been faithful and are worthy for consideration. In forwarding to me the names of such persons, I must have the age, in years, of each one named. It is not expected that any person will be informed of what action is being taken until [p.425] after their names are approved and their recommends properly endorsed by me. Faithful and worthy aged brothren who have died without this blessing, should be remembered with their wives in this connection.

After names of worthy aged persons have been submitted by the President of the Stakes and been approved by me. the usual recommend can then be forwarded, with a slip of paper calling my attention to the fact.

Trusting this will be satisfactory to you, and with kind regards,
I am your Brother W. Woodruff

President John D.T. McAllister,

Dear Brother:--Your letter of Feb. 27th, asking certain questions pertaining to Temple ordinances, has been received and considered.

In regard to your last question, pertaining to a woman having been sealed and anointed [second anointing] to her husband, but subsequently divorced from him, he continuing a faithful, good man, etc, is she to be anointed to a second good man as though she never had been anointed? I answer, No. In such a case it will not be proper for the sister to be again anointed.

Your second question as to my having any word for you in relation to adoption---

I would say it will be well to leave the matter of adoption for the present as they have been, and not make any changes. This will also answer your question in regard to going back as far as records can be obtained correctly in adoptions. [p.2]

In relation to children who are old enough to be baptized [&] who are dead, receiving their endowments. I will say that in performing ordinances for the dead it is safe to follow the rules observed in regard to the living, unless there may be special occasions which can be attended to when the circumstances require.

President Woodruff
Salt Lake City, Dear Brother,

I with my youngest wife, have received our 2d anointing, but the 2 older ones have not yet been able to get to the temple, to attend to theirs but intend to as soon as circumstances will permit. I was informed there was another ordinance which might be given at some future time in an upper room. Can we not pass through them all for that is my blessing given by the Patriarch. So I feel to ask for all, although the day may be breaking, I cannot let thee go, except thou bless me. So said our father Jacob. I have one wife who died in the faith. She was a good saint, she had her endowment in the Endowment house in Salt Lake, and was sealed to me by permission of President Taylor. Can she receive the 2d anointing by Proxey. Should not those wives that have been sealed to me who died out of the church, be adopted to their parents who will have done the work for [her] in the temple. And should not those parents, who adopted to us who have done this work for them, as we have been adopted. I suppose none of these recieve a 2d anointing who have not recieved the gospel in the flesh. Please excuse me, for so much inquisitiveness for I know not where else to apply for this information. The spirit prompts me to ask is there not another ordinance yet concerning a rod, if so can I receive it. I do not know that there is, but I feel to ask for all that is for me. Your brother

Elder Phineas W. Cook,

Dear Brother:--I have received your letter of the llth inst., in which you speak of another ordinance in addition to the second anointing, which might be given at some future time in an upper room.

You have received all the ordinances which we administer. The ordinance to which you refer is one between yourself and your family, and which doubtless was explained to you when you received your second anointing.

Your wife who is dead, and who, you say, was a faithful woman, can receive her second anointing. One of your other wives can act for her. Those who died out of the Church, and who have been sealed to you since, need not at the present time receive this ordinance. We do not administer it to those who are in this condition.

As to the ordinance connected with the rod, we know nothing of that. You will have to wait for awhile or until we meet Aaron.

Of course, your present living wives, if they are worthy and can obtain recommendations from the Bishop, can receive the ordinance of second anointing, whenever it will be convenient to you and to them. With kind regards,

I am your brother,

W. Woodruff

Dear Brethren'

It has been decided that it is no longer necessary for those going to the Temples to attend to ordinances therein to send their recommends to President Woodruff to be by him endorsed. The signatures of the Bishop and Stake President will be all that is required.

This decision applies to all ordinances attended to in the House of the Lord, except Second Anointings, which last named will still require the approval of the President of the Church before they can be administered. This being the decision, Bishops of Wards and Presidents of Stakes will see the increased necessity for care, so that no unworthy person will be recommended for ordinances in the Temples.

Dear Brother,
During the lifetime of the late President Wilford Woodruff a rule was established by him not to permit a woman to be anointed to a man unless she had lived with him as a wife. This was a restriction of the rule in such cases which obtained during the lifetime of Presidents Brigham Young and John Taylor. After considering the matter we have concluded to restore the practice as expressed in the following, and which will govern in such cases in the future:

Any woman, who has been sealed to a man in life or by proxy. whether she has lived with him or not, shall have the privilege of being anointed to him inasmuch as he shall have had his second blessings.

Coalville. Dear Brother:--

This is in answer to your note on the back of a letter written by Elder William Asber to Bishop Joseph Hopkin, of Echoe, in which Brother Asber requests the bishop to take steps to procure for him a recommend in favor of Elias Asber and wife, his deceased brother and sister-in-law.

In the first place we would say that recommends for second blessings are not Bishop's recommends and their names therefore should not appear on them at all. The President of Stakes alone are held responsible for people recommended for second annointings, and where they are not personally acquainted with the parties to be recommended, it would be in order for them of course to satisfy themselves through other reliable sources. In the next place we would say that it is not expected that people shall be found asking that this most sacred ordinance shall be administered to them, but you should take pains to seek out the worthy people under your Jurisdiction, and this by means of your counselors and Bishops. In this particular case however you will be perfectly safe in issuing the recommends sought for, as we personally know the parties to be worthy.

Dear Brother:--

This is in answer to yours of the 3rd inst.

It is not in order for people to ask for recommends for second blessings. They should be chosen through the Stake Presidency because of their faithfulness, fitness and worthiness to receive this higher ordinance of the house of the Lord. It is understood of course that you have received second anointings yourself, otherwise you had better refrain from recommending for the present. We may say however that second blessings are not administered to single individuals of either sex, but to men and their wives.

It was never intended that bishops should recommend for second blessings: neither that people should ask for recommends to obtain them. Dear Brother:

We are often requested to grant the privilege, or rather to give recommends, to persons to get second annointings for worthy persons who are dead. Up to the month of December, 1900, there was no question, so far as we know, in our Stake about granting this privilege for the worthy dead.

On December 1, 1900, however, the Presidency of this Stake received a letter from President Snow, in which he made the following remarks:

"I would also suggest that for the present you will confine your names to men who are living, and their wives, living and dead, who are worthy,--to assist them to be more faithful and energetic in the future, and not so much for the dead. The time will come when the dead will be properly cared for."

Since the receipt of the above mentioned letter, the Presidency of this Stake have followed President Snow's instructions. But yesterday we received a very pressing request from the family of Brother Franklin Merry Whitmore, of Springville Third Ward, who died Feb. 15, 1902. He leaves one wife living; one died before him. The family has requested that he be permitted to receive his second annointings. Shall we give recommends for this purpose or not?

In answer to yours of the 29th ult, we would say that under the following ruling by the Council of First Presidency and Apostles you would be authorized to administer Second Anointings in behalf of deceased women, after receiving the usual Sepcial temple recommends in their favor signed by the Stake President and endorsed by the President of the Church.

-------Ruling.-------

No person, Males or female, living or dead, can receive [the] highest blessings in the House of the Lord without special recommend for this purpose signed by the President of the Stake and endorsed by the President of the Church. The recommend, for dead as well as living, should be based on competent evidence of faithfulness and, in cases of those who are not members of the Church at their death, on evidence of their chaste and moral conduct in life.

Dear Brother:--

This is in answer to your of the 23rd inst.

Brethren recommended to the temple for second anointings should be men of experience whose integrity to the work of the Lord is beyond question, and who are known for their continued faithfulness, as it would be very unfortunate thing indeed for a man to receive the higher blessings and aftewards apostatize. The question of age would naturally be a consideration in recommending for the higher ordinances, but it is not to be understood for a moment that you should wait until brethren become old before recommending them to receive these blessings. The chief qualifications are worthiness, fitness and unshaken integrity, and these should be combined in man thus recommended whether they occupy presiding positions or not: but as a matter of course the brethren occupying presiding positions, such as those of the stake presidency, high counsilor (sic) president of the high priest's quorum, patriarch and bishop are suppose to be in possession of these qualifications.

The usual form of recommend should be used containing the name of the brother recommended, also the name of his wife or those of his wives, dead or alive, as the case may be, to be anointed to him, and all such recommends should be sent this office for endorsement accompanied by a letter of explanation.

Dear Brother:--

Complaints have reached us from Presidents of Stakes that persons doing temple work have been advised by temple workers to speak to the President of their Stake about obtaining their Second Anointing. This must not be done, or suggested by any one laboring in our temples. None but Stake Presidents have the right to suggest and recommend persons to obtain their Second Annointings. The reason is plain: those working in the temples see people in their Sunday clothing only, and are not acquainted with their every day life. When such persons come to their Stake Presidents and ask for this blessing, saying they were counselled to do so in the temple, it places him in the unpleasant position, perhaps, that he has to refuse their request, and he is blamed by the applicants. No person has the right to ask for this blessing. He must wait till sought out by his Stake President. If the President of a temple feels impressed with the worthiness of any person, dead or alive, he can make suggestions to the President of the Stake, but he should not mention this to the persons themselves.

Please have these instructions repeated to all laboring in you[r] temple.

Dear Brother,--

In yours of the 21st inst. we desire to know if a regular recommend should be used for deceased people, when recommending to the temple.

Our answer is that in recommending for second blessings the same form of recommend should be used for the dead as for the living, but when people are recommended who are dead, the fact that they are dead should be so stated in the recommend. It is needless for us to say that you should recommend no deceased person to receive his second anointing without satisfying yourself of his worthiness to receive those great blessings.

Dear Brother,

Referring to yours of the lst inst., recommending Sister Harriot B. The First Presidency desire me to inform you that second blessings are not administered to any accepting those who receive the gospel and are known for their worthiness. The women therefore referred to in your letter who have been sealed to Elder Beckstrand, but who did not receive the gospel in their lifetime, should not be recommended by you to receive these blessings.

And furthermore bishops are not competent to recommend for second blessings, and their names therefore should not be on such recommends. This privilege belongs solely to the Stake President in connection with his counselors. The Stake President however may confer with bishops in regard to this matter, but he must became responsible for the recommend through his own signiture.

Dear Brethren:--

We herewith submit answers to the questions contained in yours of the 14th inst.

Question, Where we grant a brother and sister the privilege of second blessings, and they desire the same blessings in behalf of their deceased parents who were true and faithful members of the Church while they lived, shall we grant their request?

Answer' Yes, provided they can be properly recommended.

Question, Where the husband is dead and his widow living, is it alright for her to receive these blessings and have someone who has received them to stand for him, provided of course he was a worthy man?

Answer: Yes.

Question: A brother who was recommended for this purpose a year or two ago asked permission to receive this ordinance in behalf of his son, a worthy young man who had died. Would you approve of this request being granted?

Answer, Not at present.

Question: If the good record of a man is broken by his falling into transgression, say adultery or fornication, and he repents and makes restitution as far as he can do so, and has received forgiveness, can he afterwards, by living a faithful and good life, be entitled to receive these higher ordinances?

Answer: Every such case should stand on its own merits. In some instances it may be highly proper to recommend for second anointings, in others improper. For instance, a man who commits adultery after receiving his endowments should not be recommended to receive second blessings. Let the cases of all such men be considered and determined by the authority on the other side of the veil. But where a man commits adultery before joining the Church or even after baptism but before receiving his endowments his condition is different, and yourself and counselors must be the judges as to his worthiness to receive these blessings.

Question: We have not recommended anyone, only in exceptional cases, who have not reached the age of 50. Is that age limit alright?

Answer: If a man 50 years of age has been faithful he may be recommended for higher blessings.

Dear Brother:

Please present our complements to Brother McAllister and say to him that it is not customary for woman to be anointed to men, to whom they may have been sealed after death, but with whom they had not lived in their lifetime as husband and wife in the marriage relation. Both of you will at once perceive the consistency and wisdom of this when you call to mind the fact that the second anointing consists of positive blessings bestowed only upon people who are known, and who can be recommended, for their long and steadfast faithfulness in the Church. And indeed, so particular have the Presidencies been at administering second anointings, that they drew the line between faithful members of the Church who died without gathering with the Church, and faithful members who gathered with the body of the Church and remained faithful afterwards, leaving the faithful people who have died in a scattered condition to be dealt with by the authority on the other side of the veil. But the main thought intended to be conveyed by us in this particular case is that the parties receiving the blessings must not only be known for their fidelity and faithfulness, but they must be, or have been, husband and wife as well, or one flesh, to use the scriptural expression.

Prest. Oleen Stohl,
Brigham City,

Dear Brother,--

This is in answer to yours of the 11th inst.

Inasmuch as you can recommend Bro. Robert Henderson and wife, deceased, to receive their second blessings, it will be in order for you to do this. And in fact, this instruction applies to any other faithful members of the Church of your Stake whom you can recommend as worthy to receive these blessings but who passed away without them.

In the case of Bro. and Sister Henderson, Sisters Peters can officiate for Sister Henderson (her mother), and she and the family can agree among themselves as to who shall stand proxy for Bro. Henderson.

With kind regards, your brethren,

Dear Brother,--

Please find enclosed recommends for second blessings endorsed by President Smith.

The First Presidency direct me to call your attention to the printed form used by you in this instance recommending for a second blessings, and would thank you to let them know if this particular form was prepared by yourself, or purchased by you of the printer already prepared? Their reason for illiciting this information is this, the form is unauthorized, and not in accordance with their mind in recommending for the second anointing. In other words the word "second" should not be in the recommend at all, and you are therefore requested to discard this particular form, and in fact to destroy it.
Instructions have been given so many times in regard to this matter, that it has been taken grandid that every Stake President is fully informed in relation to it. The way to do is to use the common form of temple recommend, and write a letter in connection with it explaining who the people are thus recommended, and given, as near as you can, their ages and a brief account of their lives so that the presidency may by this means gather some idea of their suitableness and worthiness to receive the endorsement of the President. And it is taken for grandid that you take pains to become personally acquainted with everybody recommended by you for second blessings, and you are of course at liberty to adopt every necessary means to acquire the information; and strict privacy should be enjoined by you and all so recommended by you.

Yours, &c.

Geo. F. Gibbs, Secretary

President Oleen N. Stohl,
Brigham City

Dear Brother,--

This is an answer to yours of the 21st inst.

People who are not members of the Church during their lifetime are not eligible to receive second blessings. They should not only have been members of the Church, but their faithfulness and worthiness to receive these blessings should be unquestioned, and besides the line has been drawn in favor of those who have either gathered with the body of the Church or died on their way to the gathering place, all others are left to be dealt with by the authority on the other side of the veil. The recommends in favor of Mary Morgan and Mary Ann Love are therefore herewith returned unendorsed.

The case of the grandfather of Sister Owens of Willard City, with his wife who died before the Church was organized, comes within the rule, and it will be for you to therefore to satisfy yourself from the best evidence obtainable as to his worthiness and govern yourself accordingly. If he should be found worthy his wife, in this instance, would be an exception to the rule.

Prest. William Budge
Logan Temple,

Dear Brother:--

We have just returned to President Stohl two temple recommends, given by him for second blessings in behalf of two women, one of whom was not a member of the Church, the other was but she died also in a foreign land without having gathered with the body of the Church. A brother, living in Box Elder Stake, who had recently been doing work in the Logan Temple in behalf of the women referred to, was told, while there that it was in order now for him to have those women anointed to him, and he therefore procured recommends from his Stake President to have this work done for them.

We have just informed President Stole that a rule of the temple forbids deceased women who were not members of the Church prior to their demise, or who did not gather with the body of the Church, being anointed to men, therefore, we could not endorse the recommends of the sisters referred to.

We write this for your information: also to say that it is not becoming in brethren to suggest that second blessings be given to anybody, living or dead, unless they are delegated by the President of the Church to act in this capacity, and it would be well therefore for you to so inform your Temple workers.

Dear Brother,--

The general rule adopted by the First Presidency in regard to the second anointing, is in effect that those blessings should be confined to the faithful members of the Church who have gathered with the body of the Church, or who died on the way in an effort to do so. Inasmuch therefore as you shall be able to satisfy yourself through the testimony of such men as Elders E. W. and Ralph Smith that their father, who died in Australia, where he is said to have gone for the purpose of making money to immigrate himself and family to Zion,--that he died in a state of worthiness. you may consider yourself at liberty to recommend him and his wife for second blessings.

Dear Brother'--

We regret to say that we could not possibly find time to give second blessings to the large number of brethren and sisters mentioned in yours of the 23rd inst., during the coming conference. The Logan Temple will re-open on the 12th of April, and it may be that Prest. Budge will be able to accomodate your people within the conference date, and we suggest that you write him on the subject.

On behalf of the First Presidency

P.S. There were no temple recommends enclosed in your letter. Of course you understand it to be in order that temple recommends should be issued to each man and his wife or wives, and sent here for the endorsement of the President before presenting them at the temple.

If you had consulted us beforehand we should have advised not giving recommends for second blessings to so many at the same time, as privacy and regard to this matter is strictly a required, and this you should charge them with, if they all come at one time especially.

64. Messages of the First Presidency, Vol. 5:110-112 Circular Letter of First Presidency, 1918.

Bishops are not to issue recommends for second anointings: that is the province of Presidents of Stakes, under approval of the President of the Church, and the individuals selected must not be informed until after the issuance of such recommend. As a general rule, such recommends are issued only in behalf of those who have had endowments in lifetime, and have been sealed and lived together faithfully as husband and wife, and who have been valiant in the defense of truth and active in all good works.

Prest. William L. Rich,

Dear Brother:--

I have signed the seven recommends for second blessings contained in yours of the 22nd inst., and have forwarded the same to President Shepard of the Logan Temple, as requested by you.

The following is one of the instructions given to Stake Presidents in connection with their issuing temple recommends for second blessings:

> "Send each and every recommend direct to the President, not by the hand of anybody, the person recommended included. After the President returns the recommend to you bearing his signature of approval, it will then be in order for you to deliver it in person to the head of the family thus recommended, explaining to him in a private confidential way the sacredness of the ordinance, cautioning him at the same time not to speak of it to anybody outside the temple: and in the interest of privacy you are requested not to send more than one family to the temple the same week bearing a recommend of this character."

If you and Prest. Sheperd of the Logan temple can agree between yourselves that these blessings can be administered to each family recommended by you without other families so recommended knowing anything at all about it, you have my consent that the recommends be acted on during the week of the visitation of yourself and people at the temple, otherwise the instruction in regard to this matter should be strictly adhered to.

Your brother,
Heber J. Grant

To the Stake President:--

1. Give names in full, using one form only and the next for each and every family.
2. Leave the line commencing with the word "for" blank.
3. Send each and every recommend direct to the President, not by hand of anybody, the person recommended included. After the President returns the recommend to you bearing his signiture of approval, it will then be in order for you to deliver it in person to the head of the family thus recommended, explaining to him in a private confidential way the sacredness of the ordinance, cautioning him at the same time not to speak of it to anybody outside the temple: and in the interest of privacy you are requested not to send more than one family to the temple the same week bearing a recommend of this character.
4. All persons thus recommended should be true and faithful men, as a general thing rippened by age and experience, men valiant for the truth, who have never been known to waiver in the defense of the faith or to withhold their allegiance to or their support of the constituted authorities of the Church, as well as of clean moral lives, and their wives true and faithful Latter-day Saints. If there should be any doubt in your mind as to the entire worthiness of any person contemplated by you, it would be quite in order for you to satisfy yourselves by inquiry, but without mentioning the purpose thereof.

5. In the earlier life of the Church, the President thereof made the selections himself, but on account of its growth numerically, the Stake President, and he alone, has been designated to do this for him, subject of course to his approval and the Stake President therefore becomes the sole custodian of this book.
6. A letter addressed to the President should accompany each recommend, giving a brief account of the man thus recommended. A valiant, faithful men, deceased, should not be overlooked. They may be recommended on the strength of the testimony of faithful men who knew them, whose testimony can be relied on.

Dear Brother,--

Referring to yours of the 15th inst. we would say that President Woodruff's instructions to Stake Presidents on the subject of recommending for second anointing limited them to persons who had gathered with the Church, whether dead or alive, and this was the policy adopted by President Snow, although he may have made exceptions to it. And it is our mind that faithful men who have gathered with the Church, who can be recommended as worthy to receive these higher blessings, but who through death were deprived of them, should receive them by proxy. It would be in order therefore to extend your recommends to Franklin P. Whitmore, deceased, inasmuch as you knew him to be worthy.

Dear Brother Chipman,

Gospel Mysteries

I have your letter of the 27th inst., enclosing one from Brother Arthur Bradder, making application for his Second Blessings.

Second blessings are only given by the President of the Church upon recommendation of a member of the Council of the Twelve. At some time when one of the Apostles is in your stake, if he feels to properly recommend Brother Bradder, the matter will be taken under advisement.

I return his letter herewith.

President Joseph W. McMurrin

Dear Brother McMurrin:

Answering your letter of October llth.

We find upon inquiry that it has been some years since ordinances bestowing second blessings have been performed in cases where both parties are dead.

Where people are sealed in the temple for and on behalf of the dead, or in cases where people who are dead were themselves sealed while living, the feeling has always been that every privilege, power and blessing of every description will be given to them, if they have lived worthy of same, and that they could not have more even if they had additional blessings sealed upon them. We, therefore, feel that there is no necessity of performing the ordinances that Sister Smith requests.

With kindest regards,

Sincerely your brethren,

And I seal thee up unto Eternal Life, that thou shalt come forth in the morn of the first resurrection, and receive all these blessings, in their fulness. And thou shalt attain unto [the] Eternal Godhead, and receive a fulness of joy, and glory, and power; and that thou mayest do all things whatsoever is wisdom that thou shouldest do, even if it be to create worlds and redeem them: so shall thy joy be full to the praise and glory of God: Amen.

6. The following was forged by Mark Hoffman: Supposedly a copy of a holograph found among the personal effects of an individual's grandfather, who had served in the Salt Lake Temple during the 1920's. The document surfaced sometime in June of 1978. On the document the words ``SALT LAKE TEMPLE'' were stamped with a rubber stamp. The words "Destroy this copy" were written in pencil and had been erased, but were still legible. This document is included for informational purposes, so others will not be mislead by it.

Dear Bro. :--having the authority of God, I pour this holy anointing oil upon your head, & anoint you a King & a priest unto the Most High God to rule & reign in the House of Israel forever,
I bestow upon you all of the rights, blessings, & authorities appertaining unto the Holy Priesthood for the building up of the Kingdom of God on earth.

By virtue of this anointing I seal you up unto eternal life wherein nothing but the unpardonable sin of shedding innocent blood or consenting thereto by denying the Holy Spirit may deprive you of this promise & blessing. Thou shalt be exalted in the Celestial Kingdom of God & shall dwell with the patriarchal family of God for ever.

With this exaltation I ordain you an equal in the order of the everlasting priesthood with the Gods, & all the holy angels your fellows. Your kingdoms & power & glory shall have no end. Your righteous seed shall be from everlasting to everlasting & shall continually sing praises unto you worlds without end.

All of this I lawfully do, by right of the Holy Priesthood, in the name of the Father & of the Son & of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

Angell, Truman Osborn

The attic [of the Nauvoo Temple] was finished up complete, and made ready for the endowments, while the lower rooms, basement and lower hall were going on.

I received my endowments in the aforesaid attic, together with Polly, my wife, and afterward our sealing and second anointing, which far excelled any previous enjoyments of my life up to that time. ("Diary of Truman O. Angell Sr.", in Archie Leon Brown, 141 Years of Mormon Heritage, Rawsons, Browns, Angells--Pioneers, [1973], p. 128.)

Burgess, Harrison

Jan 22 at 7 o clock PM myself and wife received the ordinance of sealing by Pres Brigham Young. The next morning at 10 o clock we received the ordinance of second anointing by Pres H[eber] C. Kimbal[l]. (Harrison Burgess Journal, Jan. 22-23, 1846, Church Archives.)

Clayton, William

Monday 26th . . . at 1 went to the Temple with Ruth, Margaret and Diantha. We waited till about 8 o clock before we could be waited on. We then dressed and went into room No 1 and were sealed to each other on the alter by Prest. B. Young. Afterwards in No 2 We received our anointing by H.C. Kimball and a number of others. And Afterwards Heber blessed us. I then took ruth and Diantha home but Margaret tarred till morning. (William Clayton, Journal, Jan. 26, 1846, p. 83, Brigham Young University.)

Fielding, Joseph

1846 January 4 Since the Death of Joseph and Hyrum, the Building of the Temple has gone on rapidly, and contrary to the expectation and Prophecy of Sidney Rigdon and others, the Roof has been put on, the Spire put up and beautifully ornamented. The Temple is indeed a noble Structure, and I suppose the Architects of our Day know not of What Order to call it: Gothic, Dorick [sic], Corinthian or What; I call it Heavenly. The upper Room is finished, and about the beginning of December it was dedicated, and the 12 began to give the Saints their Endowments. On the 5[th] I entered it for the first [time] and truly felt as though I had gotten out of the World, and on Friday, the 12th I and my Wife received our Endowment, having formerly received it in the Days of Joseph and Hyrum, but it is now given in a more perfect manner because of better Convenience. The 12 are very strict in attending to the true and proper form. On Sunday, the 21st, 986 had received their Endowment.

On the 3rd of Jan'y Mary Ann received her Endowment in the Temple.

Friday, the 23[rd] of Jan'y, 1846, we were sealed in the Temple by Heber C. Kimball and on the same Day we were also anointed by Parley P. Pratt. Monday, 26[th] our 4 Children were washed, anointed and Sealed to Jos'h & Hannah Fielding, and we [Joseph & Hannah] were sealed to Hyrum Smith for time and Eternity by Elders B. Young & H. C. Kimball. (Joseph Fielding Journal, p. 138-139, Brigham Young University.)

Fullmer, Rhoda Ann Marvin

. . . on the 19th of January, 1846, in the Temple of the Lord at Nauvoo we received our second anointings and ordination and the next day, the 20th of January, we attended to the last anointings, that of the feet. ("Experiences in the Life of Rhoda Ann Fullmer", typescript, Brigham Young University Library, p. 7.)

Hyde, William

The summer of 1845 I spent a portion of the time laboring on the temple and a portion for the support of my family.

On the 23rd of December, myself and wife Elizabeth received our washing and anointing in the Temple, and on the 19th of January, 1846, we were sealed, agreeable to the order the Holy Priesthood, for time and for all Eternity. On the 22nd of January we received our second anointing, on which day my Father and Mother also received theirs. (William Hyde, Journal, typescript, Brigham Young University, p. 16.)

Jacob, Norton

Friday [7 February 1846]--The endowments were continued in the evening. I again repaired to the House of the Lord with my father, Udney, my wife Emily, my daughter Elsie P., and Miss Matilda Stoel. In the course of the night my father, daughter, and Miss Matilda all received their washing and anointing, and about 11 o'clock I, with my wife Emily, received my second anointing [and] was ordained a king and Priest unto God in room no. 4. (The Record of Norton Jacob, typescript, p. 18, Brigham Young University.)

Kingsbury, Joseph Corrodon

I am daily employed under the direction of the trustees at the Temple Office & on the 8 Dec 1845. I received an endowment in the upper room of the Temple in Nauvoo or the City of Joseph, also was sealed to Bishop N. K. Whitney as his son on 27 Jan 1846 the same time and Dorcas A. Moore & Leonza A. Pond were sealed to him as his daughters & the two daughters were sealed to me to be my wives for time and eternity by Pres. Brigham Young & on 28 or 29 Jan. 1846, I received my 2nd Annointing with my two wives, under the hands of Pres. Orson Pratt in the North East Room in the upper part of the Temple in the City of Joseph and these blessings I feel to be thankful for & I pray I may always remember the goodness of the Lord to me & I am making preparations with many other brethren this winter to go to the Wilderness in the Spring. ("History of Joseph Kingsbury, as written by his own hand" p. 8, Utah State Historical Society.)

Knight, Joseph, Sr.

Gospel Mysteries

Feb. 2. My father [Joseph Knight Sr.] in company with his present wife Phebe, entered into the Temple, and were sealed, and received their second anointings, sister Phebe acted as proxy in being sealed for my deceased Mother Polly, my father's first wife. ["They Are My Friends" in William G. Hartley, A History of The Joseph Knight Family, 1825-1850 [1986], p. 158.)

Knight, Newel

[I was] Sealed to Sally Coburn and Lydia Goldthwait as wives for time and eternity and we the same Day was anointed King and Priest, and Queen and Priestess by the hand of Heber C. Kimball [sic, Parley P. Pratt officiated], for which we feel to thank the Lord for his mercy towards us, by the power of the Priesthood with the Lord confered upon his church in these last days. (Newel Knight Journal, Jan. 19, 1846, Church Archives.)

[Note: It might appear from this journal entry that Sally Coburn was anointed to her husband on January 19, 1846, but she was not. Sally, his first wife, died in September 1834. Lydia stood proxy for Sally in the marriage sealing, but not in the anointing. No women were anointed by proxy in the Nauvoo Temple.]

Lee, John Doyle

Jan 14 - 2 of my family came through the washings and anointings...we went into room No 1 where we being clothed in Priestly apparel--kneeled over the alter --rather before the Holy Alter and over it the sacred and solemn covenant and sealing was entered into and ratified in the presence of 3 witnesses-From thus we were conducted to Room No 2 where we received our anointings.

Jan. 17 - From [Room No. 1] thus we were conducted to Room No 2 where we received our anointings yea, Holy anointings in the Temple of the Lord under the hands of Elder Orson Hyde this certainly produced more joy comfort and pleasure & reconciliation of feeling -- than could possibly have been imagined. (John D. Lee Journal, Jan. 12, 17, 1846 Church Archives.)

I was among the first to receive my washings and anointings, and even received my second anointing, which made me an equal in the order of the Priesthood, with the right and authority to build up the kingdom in all the earth, and power to fill any vacancy that might occur. I have officiated in all the different branches, from the highest to the lowest. There were about forty men who attained to that order in the Priesthood, including the twelve Apostles and the first presidency, and to them was intrusted the keeping of the records. I was the head clerk; Franklin D. Richards was my assistant clerk. My office was in room number one, at President Young's apartments.

I kept a record of all the sealings, anointings, marriages and adoptions. . . . In the Temple I took three more wives--Martha Berry, Polly Ann Workman and Delethea Morris, and had all my family sealed to me over the altar, in the Temple, and six of them received their second anointings, that is, the first six wives did, but the last we had not time to attend to. (John D. Lee, Mormonism Unveiled [1881], pp. 169-171.)

Gospel Mysteries

Packard, Noah

In the fall of 1845 I was again taken sick with chills and fever, and was unable to do a day's work for eight months. During this time in the winter of 45 and 46 not withstanding my sickness I went into the Temple in Nauvoo and received my endowments by washing and anointing and was sealed to my wife Sophia for time and all eternity, and afterwards we were annointed the second time a king and queen in the Kingdom of God which annointing in the reality is the third annointing with which I have been annointed in the name of the Lord: for I received my first washing and annointing in the House of the Lord in Kirtland, Ohio, and had neglected to mention it in its place. (Noah Packard Journal, typescript, Jan. 24, 1846, Brigham Young University.)

[Note: It is obvious from this journal entry that Sophia was anointed to her husband on January 24, 1846, although the Book of Anointings does not record her name.]

Richards, Phineas

January 22d 1846. Visited the Temple with Wealthy she was sealed to me by the Prophet B. Young and then we repaired to the High Priests room where we were Anointed King and Queen, Priest and Priestess to the Most High God for Time and through out all Eternity by P. P. Pratt as mouth. . . .

February 1st I labored in the Temple the last 8 working days Annointing in the High Priests Room, learnt the ordnance of the washing & anointing of feet for burial (Phineas Richards Journal, Jan. 22, 1846, Church Archives.)

Smith, George Albert

Tuesday, Jan. 13. I went to the house of the Lord with my wife, Bathsheba W., and were sealed by President Brigham Young, in the presence of witnesses, which was duly recorded. We then received a second anointing under the hands of Orson Hyde. (George A. Smith Family Papers, History of George A. Smith, University of Utah, Special Collections.)

Smoot, Abraham Owen

The 17th, was a day of great enjoyment for me, it gave birth to the greatest blessings and an higher exaltation in the Priesthood than ever had been anticipated by me. I received my Second ordinances in the Priesthood with my wife Margaret and Sister Sariah Gibbon, under the hands of George Miller, President of the High Priest Quorum, in room No. 4 attick story of the Temple of the Lord. I was called upon by the President to open the Meeting by prayer which I complied with, with feelins of much gratitude to my Heavenly Father and my brethren that surrounded us. The Services of this holy anointing commenced at the hour of 6 o'clock in the afternoon and closed at 7. We then resumed our seat in the celestial department of the Temple and heard a number of lectures from the brethren on the principles of Priesthood pertaining to exaltation. We also listened with pleasure to the verses of Solomon Hancock, composed on the removal of the Saints to California, with a number of others of the songs of Zion. (Abraham O. Smoot Journal, Jan. 17, 1846, Marriott Library, University of Utah.)

Gospel Mysteries

Snow, Erastus

On the 12th December Myself & wife Artimesia received the first ordinances of the endowments and were called to labor & administer in the temple from that time forth and I departed not from the Temple day or night but continued in the labors and duties thereof with the Twelve and others selected for the purpose; about six weeks–Mrs. Snow continued in the female department about a month. (Erastus Snow, Diary, p. 95, Brigham Young University, Special Collections.)

I received with Artimesia and Minerva the sealings and further endowments. The Spirit, Power, and Wisdom of God reigned continually in the Temple, and all felt satisfied that during the two months we occupied it in the endowment of the Saints, we were amply paid for all our labors in building it. (Erastus Snow Journal [January 23, 1846], vol. 3, p. 19, as cited in Andrew K. Larsen Erastus Snow [1971], p. 96.)

Wilson, Lewis Dunbar

So, she, Nancy Wilson, departed this life at the age of 41 years having been the mother [of] eleven children, nine of them on my hands... she died having been in the church 15 years, having become a member at the age of 26 years during which time she has attended every ordinance of the Gospel that has been offered in day, and in fact all that I know anything about. She was baptized for the remission of her sins and had hands laid upon her for the reception of the Holy Ghost, and confirmed in the Church and has received blessings from time to time.

At the temple at Nauvoo she received her washings and anointings even to become a queen and a priestess, after which time she attended to one other ordinance which was to wash the feet of her husband and anoint him to be her king and priest and savior, that she might have claim on him at the resurrection . . . Nancy Wilson, who knew and died in triumph of faith in the gospel of the Son of God, after having lived and obeyed all the laws and ordinances of the Church . . . died full in the faith of a glorious resurrection with the just and was buried on the Missouri Bluff just above Kanesville ("Record of Lewis Dunbar Sr. and Nancy Ann Wilson," typescript, Church Archives; account written shortly after July 20, 1851, when Nancy Ann Waggoner Wilson died.)

INTRODUCTION

The first question probably asked by the reader as he starts this paper is, "Why write on an ordiance as sacred as the Second Anointing?" This is, of course, a legitimate question, and deserves an answer.
Although Second Anointings are confidential, there is a surprising amount of source material on it. This material includes official directions, statements, and instructions by the Church, other statements by General Authorities, and accounts in books, letters, diaries, and journals of individuals who have received their anointings. The very existence of the data, leads to the gathering and analysis of it. It is better, I feel, for an active and faithful Latter-day Saints to examine it, rather than allowing an anti-Mormon author to distort, expose, and sensationalize the ordinance.
It is also possible to assembly the data in a reasonable manner, and analyze it without transgressing the limits of propriety. This is possible, of course, because the material itself, in most cases, does not go beyond these limits. Understandably, individuals who received their anointings do not speak of write about their experience, except in the most appreciated manner. I have attempted to take care to not go beyond what is written, but have simply attempted to place the data in a logical format, which only gives a mere glimmer of this most holy ordinance.

A note on terminology:

Anyone who has conducted research on Second Anointings realizes that there is a bewildering variety of terms used to describe the ordinance. These terms include: anointings, second anointings, further anointings, last anointings, higher anointings, second blessings, highest blessings, special blessings, special ordinances, second endowments, etc. All of these terms, however, refer to the same ordinance, which is listed on Church records a "Second Anointings." With this understanding the reader should not be confused or puzzled by the variety of terms, used to indicate the ordinance, that appear in the quotations used in this paper.

PART ONE--THE RECOMMEND

The Recommend

As with other Temple ordinances those individuals who receive their Second Anointings must have a recommend. Ordinarily individuals secure Temple recommends by requesting interviews with their bishops and stake presidents.

Persons cannot, however, request an interview for a recommend for Second Anointings, but they must wait for an invitation, a "call", to come forth and receive this ordiance. Joseph F. Smith gave specific instructions that "individuals selected [for Second Anointings] must not be informed until after the issue of such a recommend." (1) In no other ordiance of the Gospel is it more apparent that many are called, but few are chosen. Many Latter-day Saints request interviews, receive recommends, and obtain their Endowments and Sealings, but only a comparatively few of them receive the invitation to have their Second Anointings.

Apparently there is no special form for Second Anointing recommends; the usual Temple recommend form is used. In 1902 Joseph F. Smith directed a stake president that the "Name of the man and wife (or wives) to be anointed to him [are] to be placed on the usual recommend." (2)

However, under certain circumstances a formal, printed recommend is not necessary. A letter, or simply a note, from the President of the Chruch is sufficient. Joseph W. Musser wrote that he and his wife received their "Higher Anointings" upon the written invitation of President Lorenzo Snow. (3) President Wilford Woodruff wrote a "recommend" for his daughter and son-in-law, in which he stated, "This is to certify that I hereby recommend My Son in Law Ovando C. Beebee And His Wife My Daughter Clara Beebe Worthy of their Second Anointing..." (4) In 1886 President John Taylor wrote a letter to a woman, granting her request for Second Anointings to be administered to her deceased parents, and instructed, "By presenting this [letter] to Bro. M. W. Merrill he will have the Ordinance attended to." (5) Some Presidents also used telegrams. A telegram, sent to Karl G. Maeser informing him of his approval for Second Anointings from President Wilford Woodruff, is in existence. (6)

The Authority for Issuing the Recommend

The issuance of recommends for Second Anointings rests exclusively with the President of the Chruch. In 1891 President Wilford Woodruff directed that Temple recommends, issued by bishops, no longer required the signature of the President of the Chruch, "except Second Anointings, which last named will still require the approval of the President of the Church before they can be administered." (7) This policy remains in effect to this date: "Temple recommends for Second Anointings still require the signature of the President of the Chruch." (8)

Although the President of the Church approves those who receive Second Anointings, he also has the authority to delegate to others the right to nominate individuals for the ordinance. Some Presidents have allowed stake presidents to exercise this privilege. In 1887 President John Taylor approved the request of President L. W. Shurtliff for Second Anointings of a Brother E. G. Williams. (9) In 1889 President Wilford Woodruff directed that "the Presidents of Stakes were to be the judges of who were to receive them." (10) President Lorenzo Snow allowed stake presidents this privilege, (11) and stressed that they were to nominate only worthy individuals. (12) President Joseph F. Smith issued a circular, which included this statement, "Bishops are not to issue recommends for second anointings, this is the province of Presidents of Stakes, under approval of the President of the Chruch." (13) For a time President Heber J. Grant continued the practice of allowing stake presidents to nominate persons for their Second Anointings. In 1921 he wrote a letter, returning such recommends to a stake president, and included these instructions:

> Send each and every recommend direct to the President [of the Chruch,] not by the hand of anybody, the person recommended included. After the President returns the recommend to you bearing his signature of approval, it will then be in order for you to deliver it in person to the head of the family thus recommended. (14)

However, by 1926 President Grant rescinded the authority of stake presidents to issue Second Anointing recommends. In a letter to one stake president, under the date of January 30, 1926, he wrote, "Second Blessings are only given by the President of the Church upon recommendation of a member of the Council of the Twelve." (15) The reason for President Grant's break with tradition is not clear, but this policy of limiting the approval of Second Anointing recommends has apparently been continued by subsequent Presidents of the Chruch. In 1951 Stephen L. Richards of the Council of the Twelve, told Henry W. Richards, "Joseph F. Smith was a little too liberal with them [Second Anointings], some thought, and as a result Heber J. Grant gave them only to people who were General Authorities. George Albert Smith was liberal, and administered to some outside the General Authorities." (16)

An analysis of the limited amount of statistical data available confirms Elder Richards remarks. A report prepared in 1930 showed 14771 Second Anointings administered for the living between 1842 and 1929, or approximately 170 per year. (17) Between 1930 and 1935, there were only six Second Anointings performed for the living, or one per year. (18) In 1936 no Second Anointings were performed. (19) In 1937 two Second Anointings were administered for the living. (20) In 1938 Two other individuals received the ordiance. (21) In 1967 the foreman of the Salt Lake Temple stated that he had prepared the Holy of Holies for ordinance work only five times between 1955 and 1967. (22) Finally, in 1970 it was reported that thirteen Second Anointings were performed. (23) Presently it is not clear if the Apostles still enjoy the privilege of nominating individuals for Second Anointings. Theodore M. Burton said that Second Anointings "are only given to a person when called by the First Presidency of the Church." (24) Heber Q. Hale, former President of the Boise Stake, stated in 1966 that Second Anointings were "only for the man and his wife who are asked and chosen by the President of the Chruch. Not even the apostles can select persons for that blessing." (25)

Qualifications of Individuals Recommended

Presidents of the Chruch, who have allowed stake presidents to nominate persons for Second Anointings, have given specific instructions concerning the qualifications of those to whom the ordinance is administered. In a priesthood meeting in 1901 Lorenzo Snow forcefully taught the responsibility of stake presidents in recommending only worthy individuals:

After the opening exercises Prest. Lorenzo Snow spoke upon the Subject of giving Second Anointings. He said that this blessing brought a person to a greater knowledge of things pertaining to God and his purposes in the earth, that the glorious things of the kingdom were made clear to the understanding of the man. Therefore it would be a very serious thing for a man to apostatize after he had received this great blessing. He warned the Presidents of Stakes that they should exercise great care when giving recommends to those of his stake to receive these great blessings and should know by their work their integrity and devotion to the Gospel, for the responsibility would rest upon them if any were recommended unworthily or that apostatized. (26)

> Joseph F. Smith stressed the following: "Integrity to work beyond question; for it would be very unfortunate to apostatize afterwards...Chief qualifications are worthiness, fitness and unshaken integrity." (27) In 1901 he taught:
> Elders should do something to be worthy to receive this great blessing and their [sic] are many ways out of the ordinary rutine [sic] duties by which a man could earn the good will of God to the obtaining of this blessing. Every man should be determined to place everything on the altar, even to the laying down of life itself for the gospel sake in order to be truly worthy of this blessing. (28)
> Finally President Smith directed that Second Anointings should be given to those who have born "that heat and burden of the day, and endured faithfully to the end." (29)

Not only must individuals have unshakable integrity and enduring faith but they must also "have had endowments in [their] lifetime, and have been sealed and lived together faithfully as husband and wife." (30) Joseph F. Smith stressed that Second Anointings are only to be given to a married man and his wife or wives. (31)

Age was also a partial factor. Wilford Woodruff stated that Second Anointings "was an ordiance of the eternal world which belonged particularly to old men." (32) But Joseph F. Smith indicated that age alone did not disqualify a man, "Age [is] to be considered, but need not be "old" before receiving it." (33) Age as well as Church callings and positions often necessitate receiving the ordinance. Joseph F. Smith counseled stake presidents that those they nominated "need not be presiding men, but the presiding officers (Stake Presidents, High Council, Presidents of High Priests, etc.) should qualify." (34)

Among the other qualifications, mentioned by presidents of the Church, was the payment of a full tithe. Lorenzo Snow stressed:

> I do not want the presidents of stakes to send any person to our Temples to receive the highest blessings that have ever been bestowed upon man since the world began, until it can be said of him, "He pays his full tithing." (35)
> With the nominating of persons for Second Anointings no longer within the area of authority of stake presidents, the worthiness of those who receive the ordinance rests exclusively within the determining spirit of the President of the Chruch.

PART TWO--THE PARTICIPANTS

The Participants in the Ceremony

Prior to the administration of the Second Anointing ceremony, the ordiance room is prepared by the Temple Foreman. (36)

There are, at a minimum, four men associated with administering Second Anointings. The man, under whose authority the ordinance is performed, is called either the Chief Officiator, or Administrator. (37) Because he gives the blessings, and other spoken portions of the ceremony, he is sometimes called the "Mouth," (38) or the one who speaks the words. (39) He is usually the President of the Church, a Counselor in the First Presidency, an Apostle, or a Temple President. (40)

Assisting the Chief Officiator is a man who holds the "horn of oil." (41) Not only is he charged with this responsibility, but he also instructs those who receive the ordiance about the second part of the ceremony.

(42) He may, therefore, also be called the Instructor.
Two witnesses, who hold the Melchizedek Priesthood, complete the four necessary individuals to officiate in the Second Anointings. (43)
Those individuals who receive the ordiance may be called the candidates. They include a man and his wife or wives. (44) If any of the wives have died previous to the ordinance, proxies represent them in the ceremony. (45)
Normally Second Anointings are administered for the man and his wife (wives), with only the four officiator's and witnesses present. (46)
When several couples were nominated at the same time by one stake president, Heber J. Grant directed that "in the interest of privacy you are requested not to send more than one family to the temple the same week bearing a recommend of this character." (47) When Heber Q. Hale was asked if Second Anointings were administered for a company or a group, he replied, "Oh no. Only for that man and his wife..." (48) President Grant also instructed the above stake president, that if "these blessings can be administered to each family recommended by you without other families so recommended knowing anything at all about it, you have my consent that the recommends be acted upon during the week of the visitation of yourself and people at the temple." (49)

Dress of the Participants

When Fanny Stenhouse received her Second Anointings she wrote that she and her husband's second wife went to the Endowment House, and dressed in "robes, caps and aprons--the same as when we received our first endowments." (50) After thus attired, the two women were escorted to the ordiance room by a man similarly clothed in Temple robes. In the room they met their "husband and several other brethren, all dressed the same way [i.e., in Temple robes]." (51)
Although all the participants in the Stenhouse Second Anointings were dressed in Temple robes, apparently it is not specifically required that all the participants dress in robes. Brigham Young taught that the couple to be anointed were "to be clothed in their Priestly robes...[but] the Administrator may dress in his usual clothing or in his Priestly robes, as he may see fit." (52) On another occasion President Young reiterated this policy to Wilford Woodruff, stating "their [sic] was no necessity of dressing in the Temple Clothing while giving the Second Anointing anymore that in administering the first anointing or ordaining." (53)

PART THREE--THE WASHINGS, ANOINTINGS AND BLESSINGS

The following sections consist of an organized survey of statements, gleaned from a wide variety of sources, by individuals who received their Second Anointings. I have also included some materials from official Church records. It is not my intention to sensationalize, expose, or in anyway demean the holy ordinance of Second Anointings, but rather to gather together what sources there are into an organized, and systematized overview of the ordiance. This will provide the essence, a glimmer at most, of the ordinance.

A Two Part Ceremony

The Second Anointing ceremony is divided into two parts. William H. Smart and his wife participated in the first part on May 31, 1901, and on June 20, 1901, they "attended to the second part of the ordinance of anointing." (54) Rhoda A. Fullmer and her husband received their Second Anointings on January 19, 1846, and on the next day they "attended to the last anointings." (55) Although some individuals experienced a delay of days, even weeks, between the two parts, others did not specifically mention such time lags in their diaries. This seems to suggest that the two parts can be performed within a short time, perhaps even on the same day, of each other.

Location of the First Part of the Second Anointing Ceremony

Most sources indicate that the initial part of the ceremony is administered in the Temple. The first Temple, in which Second Anointings were performed, was at Nauvoo. According to John D. Lee, "There were about forty men who attained to that order of the priesthood." (56) Huly B. Kimball stated, that "there were 90 individuals that received their Second Anointings" in the Nauvoo Temple. (57) The two rooms at the northeast corner of the attic story were utilized for Second Anointings. (58) In a statistical summary of Temple ordinances, performed in the for Utah Temples between 1877 and 1898, Second Anointings were administered in all the Temples. (59) In these Temples the ceremony was performed in sealing rooms, (60) and the Holy of Holies in the Salt Lake Temple as well. (61)
Although the Temple is the most appropriate place for Second Anointings to be given, under special circumstances the ordinance can be administered in locations other than Temples. According to George A. Smith, Joseph Smith "taught that but one king and priest could be anointed at one meeting in a private room dedicated by permission to anoint in, and but one person could be anointed in a day, but in the Temple several could be anointed in a day." (62) Before the dedication of the Nauvoo Temple Second Anointings were administered in such "private" rooms, such as the Mansion House, the Red Brick Store, and Brigham Young's home. (63) But such practices were merely temporary until a proper edifice, the House of the Lord, could be prepared, dedicated and consecrated for administering the higher ordinances of the Gospel.

Opening the Meeting

Joseph Smith taught, that "in the Temple several [persons] could be anointed in a day, but at each anointing the meeting was dismissed, and then came together again." (64) Thus, each anointing of a man and his wife was a meeting distinct from any other Second Anointing service. Brigham Young stressed this same principle, "There should be but one man anointed at any one meeting. If more than one man is anointed in a day, they should come together and open by prayer as though their [sic] had hot been any meeting before and thus continue to the end." (65)
Each Second Anointing service commences with an opening prayer, after which the participants kneel around the altar in prayer, the individual offering the invocation kneeling at the altar. Following these preliminaries the participants offer the signs and tokens of the Priesthood. (66)

Preliminary Ordinances to the Anointing

Entries in a volume, recording Second Anointings administered in the Nauvoo Temple, (67) indicate that the rites and ceremonies performed prior to the anointings include those ordinances associated with the revelation on the School of the Prophets. (68) These ordinances include the so-called Holy Greeting, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and the Washing of Feet. (69)

The Holy Greeting, or Holy Salutation, consists of the following:

> Art thou a brother or brethern? I salute you in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, in token or remembrance of the everlasting covenant, in which covenant I receive you to fellowship, in a determination that is fixed, immovable and unchangeable, to be your friend and brother through the grace of God in the bonds of love, to walk in all the commandments of God blameless, in thanksgiving, forever and ever. Amen. (70)

> This gladsome salutation is offered with hands lifted towards heaven by the Officiator, and the recipient returns the salute in like manner, with hands lifted towards heaven, repeating the greeting, or simply replying, "Amen." (71)

Abraham H. Cannon mentioned that "the washing of feet" was part of his Second Anointing. (72) The purpose of the Washing of Feet is given in the Scriptures:

> And ye shall not receive any among you into this school, save he is clean from the blood of this generation.
> And he shall be received by the ordinance of the washing of feet, for unto this end was the ordinance of the washing of feet instituted. (73)
> When the Savior washed the feet of His Apostles, he stated that they, except Judas, were "clean every whit." (74) In this dispensation Joseph Smith instituted the same ordinance in 1833. On that occasion he "pronounced them all clean from the blood of this generation, but if any of them should sin wilfully after they were thus cleansed, and sealed up to eternal life, they should be given over to the buffetings of Satan until the day of redemption." (75)

The scriptures indicate that the washing of feet is to be administered by "the president, or presiding elder of the church," and that he is "to gird himself according to the pattern given in the thirteen chapter of John's testimony." (76) One recipient of the ordinance left an account of the prayer used in the Washing of Feet:

> In the name of Jesus and by the authority of the holy priesthood I wash your feet in accordance with the pattern set by our Lord Jesus Christ when he washed his disciples feet and told them to wash each others' feet, and also according to the pattern given by the Prophet Joseph Smith as an introductory ordiance to the School of the Prophets.
> I pronounce you clean from the blood of this generation and say unto you, your sins are forgiven, and I seal upon you every blessing, gift, right, and authority pertaining to this holy ordinance, and I do it in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen. (77)

> The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper is always associated with the Washing of Feet. In the scriptures the Lord directs that the ordinance of Washing of the Feet "is to be commenced with prayer; and ...with partaking of bread and wine." (78) Following the Washing of Feet, administered by Joseph Smith in 1833, the brethren closed with a sacramental feast of bread and wine, and they "ate and drank, and were filled." (79) In the Solemn Assembly, held in the Kirtland Temple in 1836, bearers of the Priesthood met to administer the Washing of Feet. They completed the sacred occasion by partaking of the Sacrament. (80) In Salt Lake City in 1852 a feast of "cakes and wine," following the anointings of several brethern and their wives. (81) In 1883, after the Washing of the Feet in a school of the Prophets, "the sacrament was administered, consisting of bread and wine. Of the latter we partook of about one third of a tumbler full each and of the former as much as our appetite would prompt us." (82)

The Oil of Anointing

Olive oil is used for the Second Anointings. It is dedicated and consecrated especially for that purpose. In 1886 Samuel Roskelley noted that in the Logan Temple Joseph F. Smith and others dedicated twelve bottles of olive oil for "Anointings," and then the "same men blessed 6 bottles of oil for 2nd Anointings." (83)

The Anointing

In 1961 Alvin R. Dyer spoke concerning the initiatory ordinances of Washing and Anointing:

> I call your attention now to the washing and anointing that you received in the Temple.... When you went into the washing and anointing room, where you were washed and anointed with water and oil, you were given a new name, and you were promised that some day you would be called to be a king and priest; or a queen and priestess. (84)
> In the initiatory anointing men and women are promised, that, if they are faithful to the covenants made in the Temple, the time will come when they will actually be called up to be anointed kings and priests, or queens and priestesses, whereas in the initiatory anointing they are only promised to become such. Obviously there is then another, or second anointing, promised in the first anointing, which in essence fulfills the contingent blessings made in the first anointing. Hence, this is the reason it is called the "Second Anointing."

Fanny Stenhouse described briefly the Second Anointings, received by herself and her husband:

> We sat down and oil was then poured upon the head of our husband by two of the brethren--Daniel H. Wells and other--and he was ordained a King and Priest to all eternity. After that, we two wives were anointed in like manner, and ordained Queens and Priestess, to reign and rule with our husband over his kingdom in the Celestial world. (85)
> The blessings and promises, associated with the anointing, are manifold. Let us now turn to a brief discussion of the various blessings bestowed in the anointing.

Kings and Priests

As fanny Stenhouse described in her Second Anointing, the man is ordained a King and a Priest. Brigham Young taught that this is the main purpose for the ordiance, "The Administrator should anoint the man a King and Priest unto the Most High God." (86) No other General Authority has spoken as clearly as Orson Pratt on the nature and office of a King and Priest:

> The Kingly authority is not separate and distinct from the Priesthood, but merely a branch or portion of the same. The Priestly authority is universal, having power over all things; the Kingly authority until perfected is limited to the kingdoms placed under its jurisdiction: the former appoints and ordains the latter; but the latter never appoints and ordains the former: the first controls the Laws of Nature, and exercises jurisdiction over the elements, as well as over men; the last controls men only, and administers just and righteous laws for their government. Where the two are combined and the individual perfected, he has almighty power both as a King and as a Priest: both offices are merged into one. The distinctions then, will be merely in the name and not in the authority: either as a King or a Priest he will then have power and dominion over all things, and reign over all. Both titles, combined, will then not give him anymore power than either singly. It is evident that the distinctions of title are only expressive of the condition of things prior to the glorification and perfection of the persons who hold the Priesthood; for when they are perfected, they will have power to act in every branch of authority by virtue of the great and almighty, and eternal Priesthood, which they hold; they can then sway their scepters as Kings; rule as Princes, minister as Apostles, officiate as teachers; or act in the humblest or most exalted capacity. There is no branch of the Priesthood so low that they cannot condescend to officiate therein; nor so high, that they cannot reach forth the arm of power and control the same. (87)

In this same article Orson Pratt stated that "The Saints receive the Priestly and Kingly office here in this life." (88) John the Revelator taught this same doctrine, that Jesus Christ "hast made us unto our God kings and priests." (89) Joseph taught the Saints "have got to learn how to be Gods yourselves, and to be kings and priests to God, the same as all Gods have done before you, namely, by going from one small degree to another and from a small capacity to a great one; from grace to grace, from exaltation to exaltation, until you attain to the resurrection of the dead, and are able to dwell in everlasting burnings, and to sit in glory, as do those who sit enthroned in everlasting power." (90) Although it is necessary for men to learn to be kings and priests, Brigham Young pointed out, that "A person may be anointed a king and priest long before he receives his kingdom." (91)

Patriarchal Priesthood

Brigham Young indicated the patriarchal nature of the office of king and priest, when he said, "This is the order of the Kingdom of Heaven, that men should rise up as kings and priests unto God. We must have posterity to rule over." (92) George Miller, who received his anointings with others from the Prophet Joseph Smith, wrote, "Joseph washed and anointed us kings and priests to God, and over the House of Israel...and conferred on us the Patriarchal Priesthood." (93) After the Prophet gave his brother, Hyrum and his wife, their second anointings, he wrote, "My brother Hyrum and his wife were blessed, ordained, and anointed." (94) When speaking of James Adams, who received his anointings the same time as George Miller, Joseph said, that he "anointed him to the patriarchal power-- to receive the keys of knowledge and power by revelation to himself." (95)

The appropriateness of the Patriarchal Priesthood, being bestowed during the Second Anointing, becomes clearer when we realize that the Priesthood held in the heavens is organized patriarchally. Joseph Fielding Smith explained, "The Patriarchal Priesthood will be the priesthood that will be held by all those worthy of exaltation in the Celestial Kingdom of God. for the whole plan of salvation and exaltation is based on the Patriarchal Order." (96) the following statement by Joseph Smith, when correlated with the above information, assumes greater significance, "The 2nd Priesthood is Patriarchal authority. Go to and finish the temple, and God will fill it with power, and you will then receive more knowledge concerning this priesthood." (97)

Keys of the Priesthood

John D. Lee wrote that his Second Anointings made him "an equal in the order of the priesthood, with the right to build up the kingdom in all the earth, and power to fill any vacancy that might occur." (98) This certainly agrees with the statement of Orson Pratt, that those ordained Kings and Priests can "act in the humblest or most exalted capacity," or that "There is no branch of the Priesthood so low that they cannot condescend to officiate therein; nor so high, that they cannot reach forth the arm of power and control the same." (99) Wilford Woodruff testified that the Twelve Apostles received from Joseph Smith "their endowment, and actually received the keys of the Kingdom of God, and oracles of God, keys of revelation, and pattern of heavenly things." (100) Orson Hyde wrote that "to us [the Twelve] were committed the keys of the kingdom, and every gift, key and power that Joseph ever had, confirmed upon our heads by an anointing." (101) Such statements are in harmony with the revealed word of the Lord that a Temple is built, "For therein are the keys of the holy priesthood ordained, that you [the Saints] may receive honor and glory." (102) Brigham Young indicated that some of the Saints actually received the keys of the kingdom in the Nauvoo Temple, "Such was the anxiety manifested by the Saints to receive the ordinances of Endowment & no less on our part to have them get the Keys of the Kingdom--that I gave myself up entirely to do the work of the Lord in the Temple." (103)

Blessings of Abraham Isaac, and Jacob

Orson Pratt pointed out that the works of the Father continue by mane living worthily, and becoming Kings and Priests:

> His works are without beginning and without end; they are one eternal round. What kind of works are they? They are to make creations; and people them with living beings; and place them in a condition to prove themselves; and to exercise the kingly and priestly office to redeem them, after they have suffered pain and sorrow and distress; and to bring them into the presence of God; that they may become kings and priests for other creations that shall be made; and that shall be governed and ruled over by those possessing the proper authority. (104)
> The Lord has revealed that there are certain promises associated with the works of the Father. In the latter-day revelation He said:
> Abraham received promises concerning his seed, and of the fruit of his loins...which were to continue so long as they were in the world; and as touching Abraham and his seed, out of the world they should continue; both in the world and out of the world should they continue as innumerable as the stars; or, if ye were to count the sand upon the seashore ye could not number them.

> This promise is yours also, because ye are of Abraham, and the promise was made unto Abraham; and by this law is the continuation of the works of my Father, wherein he glorifieth himself. (105)

> The promises, given to Abraham, were continued by the Lord to his son, Isaac, and his grandson, Jacob or Israel. (106) Because these blessings pertain to the seed of the Patriarchs, the chosen House of Israel, they are often called the blessings of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. These blessings and promises are also extended to latter-day Israel:

> Who shall compare it with the Kingdom that God has promised unto us? He has promised us that we shall sit upon thrones, that we shall have crowns, and that we shall have a posterity as numerous as the stars in heaven, as countless as the sand upon the seashore; for he said, 'I seal upon you the blessings of kingdoms, of thrones, of principalities, of powers, and of dominions. I seal upon you the blessings of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob. I seal upon you the promise that you shall come forth in the morning of the first resurrection, clothed with glory, immortality, and eternal lives.' These are the promises that are made to the Latter-day Saints. The most of them have been sealed upon your heads. The Lord promised unto Abraham, that as the stars of the heaven were innumerable in multitude and as the sand on the seashore was countless, so his seed should be. That same promise has been sealed upon your heads, ye Latter-day Saints who have been faithful." (107)

> The Holy Spirit of Promise

Joseph W. Musser wrote that he and his wife received "the Holy Spirit of Promise" at their Second Anointings. (108) The Lord revealed that a man, such as Hyrum Smith, can "hold the sealing blessings of the Church, even the Holy Spirit of Promise." (109) the Lord also revealed that "there is never but one on the earth at a time on whom this power and the keys of this priesthood are conferred." (110) Latter-day revelation teaches that to be sealed with the Holy Spirit of Promise, is to be "sealed up unto the day of redemption, that ye may not fall notwithstanding the hour of temptation that may come upon you." (111) Brigham Young taught that "When men and women have traveled to a certain point in their labors in this life, God sets a seal upon them that they can never forsake their God or His Kingdom; for rather than they should do this, He will at once take them to Himself." (112) The conditions of being sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise, as recorded in revelation, are:

> And verily I say unto you, that the conditions of this law are these: All covenants, contracts, bonds, obligations, oaths, vows, performances, connections, associations, or expectations, that are not made and entered into and sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, of him who is anointed, both as well for time and for all eternity, and that too most holy, by revelation and commandment through the medium of mine anointed, whom I have appointed on the earth to hold this power (and I have appointed unto my servant Joseph to hold this power in the last days, and there is never but one on the earth at a time on whom this power and the keys of this priesthood are conferred), are of no efficacy, virtue, or force in and after the resurrection from the dead; for all contracts that are not made unto this end have an end when men are dead. (113)

Under this law, those sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise, may commit "any sin or transgression of the new and everlasting covenant, and all manner of blasphemies, and if they commit no murder wherein they shed innocent blood, yet they shall come forth in the first resurrection and enter into their exaltation; but they shall be destroyed in the flesh, and shall be delivered unto the buffetings of Satan unto the day of redemption." (114) To such individuals, as Joseph Fielding Smith pointed out, "mere confession is not enough; the sinners are: 1--to 'be destroyed int he flesh'; and 2--to 'be delivered unto the buffetings of Satan unto the day of redemption.'" (115) To be destroyed in the flesh means exactly what it says. Since men's lives cannot be taken at this time for such sins, "What the Lord will do in lieu of this, because we cannot destroy in the flesh, I [Joseph Fielding Smith] am unable to say, but it will have to be made up in some other way." (116)

Although the chance of those sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise committing grievous sins, or remaining unrepentant from less serious transgressions, is always possible, the actuality of such an occurrence is not great. Alma observed, that those persons "after being sanctified by the Holy Ghost [sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise], having their garments made white, being pure and spotless before God, could not look upon sin, save it were with abhorrence." (117)

The position of Second Anointings in the sealing power of the Holy Spirit of Promise is made clear in this statement: "The Expectation of exaltation must be sealed unto you by the Holy Spirit of Promise--that most holy ordinance, the Second Anointing, must be sealed unto you by revelation and commandment through the medium of the Anointed One." (118)

The Morning of the First Resurrection

The scriptures make it clear that all men will be resurrected, "but every man in his won order." (119) Concerning this "order," the Savior said, that all men "shall come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation." (120) These two resurrections are known as the resurrection of the just and unjust, or the first and last resurrections. (121) The nature of these two resurrections is indicated by Joseph Smith, that "some are raised to be angels, others to be Gods." (122) Those destined to inherit the Celestial Kingdom "are they who shall have part in the first resurrection," and they "are priests and kings, who have received of his [God] fulness, and of his glory." (123) This resurrection is often called the "morning" of the first resurrection. Following this resurrection, those persons come forth who "have received their part in that prison which is prepared for them, that they might receive the gospel, and be judged according to men in the flesh." (124) These persons "are the honorable men of the earth, who were blinded by the craftiness of men," and they receive of God's "glory, but not of his fulness." (125) These individuals receive their bodies during the "afternoon" of the first resurrection, and they inherit the Terrestrial Kingdom. The morning and the afternoon of the first resurrection constitute the resurrection of the just.

After the resurrection of the just ends, the resurrection of the unjust commences. This resurrection begins with those who inherit a telestial glory. They are the "spirits of men who ar to be judged, and found under condemnation." (126) These are the wicked "who are thrust down into hell," and are not redeemed from the devil until the last resurrection." (127) This resurrection might properly be called the "evening" of the last resurrection. Finally, at the end of the resurrection the sons of perdition come forth. These "remain filthy still," and they "go away into everlasting punishment, which is eternal punishment, to reign with the devil and his angels in eternity." (128) This can be called the "night" of the last resurrection. The evening and the night of the last resurrection constitute the resurrection of the unjust.

Individuals who receive the Second Anointing, having been sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise, have the Lord's decree that they "shall come forth in the first resurrection, and if it be after the first, in the next resurrection." (129) Indeed these very words are spoken to the candidate, "I seal upon you the promise that you shall come forth in the morning of the first resurrection, clothed with glory, immortality, and eternal lives." (130) But what of those persons, who receive their Second Anointings, are thereby sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise, and are influenced by Satan to such a degree that they are "turned over unto the buffetings of Satan unto the day of redemption." Along with the wicked they must atone for their unrepentant sins, but, while the wicked come forth to a Telestial glory, those sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise come forth to receive that which was sealed upon their heads, even exaltation in the Celestial Kingdom. They come forth not "in the first resurrection" with the just, but in the "next resurrection" with the unjust, but receive their exaltation nonetheless. Orson Pratt explained this doctrine clearly:

> ...the Saint who has been sealed unto eternal life and falls into transgression and does not repent, but dies in his sins, will be afflicted and tormented after he leaves this vale of tears until the day of redemption; but having been sealed with the spirit of promise through the ordinances of the House of God, those things which have been sealed upon his head will be realized by him in the morning of the resurrection. (131)

Godhood and the Godhead

Those who come forth in the morning of the first resurrection, having received the seal of the Holy Spirit to stand as kings and priests unto the Most High, "shall pass by the angels and the gods, which are set there, to their exaltation and glory in all things, as hath been sealed upon their heads, which shall be a fulness and a continuation of the seeds forever and ever...Then shall they be gods, because they have all power, and the angels are subject unto them." (132) Such is the promise contained in the Second Anointing! Not only is this promise of Godhood available to those who are faithful, but even weightier blessings can be bestowed upon the very elect in mortality. Brigham Young spoke of such blessings, when he said, "We talk a great deal about our religion...It is the only system known in heaven, or on the earth that can exalt a man to the Godhead." (133) President Young explained how men can achieve this great promise:

> The Lord has led this people all the while in this way, by giving them here a little and there a little, and thus he increases their wisdom, and he that receives a little and is thankful for that shall receive more and more, even unto the fulness of the Godhead. (134)

When the assurance of the Godhead is given to a man in mortality, by a man having the keys, power and authority of this priesthood, that promise will be recorded and recognized by God. George Q. Cannon testified, "When he [Brigham Young] sealed a man unto eternal life, he bestowed upon him the blessings pertaining to eternity and to the Godhead, or when he delegated others to do it in his stead, God in the eternal world recorded the act." (135) Thus in this life, while some may be anointed and sealed to Godhood, others may receive the assurance of even greater blessings, even that of the Godhead. (136)

The Second Comforter

Closely associated with the blessings and promises of the Second Anointing, is the promise of the Second Comforter, who is Jesus Christ. A patriarchal blessing indicates such a relationship, "Thou shalt go into the Temple of the Lord, the place called the Holy of Holy and converse with angels and be crowned a queen by the hand of you Redeemer, and thy companion a king and priest." (137) Another patriarchal blessing states, "Thou shalt officiate in the Holy Temples of the Lord for the dead and for the keys of the holy washing and anointings and by prayer of faith, God will send the second comforter to build thee up and strengthen thee in the hour of need." (138)
Henry W. Richards stated that the President of the Church calls in the candidates and tells them they "may or may not receive the visitation of Christ then and there, just as with the First Comforter;" he also added that the Savior will eventually appear to them, "just as [they] may or may not receive the Holy Ghost at confirmation, but [they] will, when prepared, see Christ in the Holy of Holies." (139) It is appropriate that in the Holy of Holies in the Salt Lake Temple there "is a window of colored glass depicting the appearance of the Eternal Father and His Son Jesus Christ to the boy Joseph Smith." (140) Beneath this window appears the significant statement, "This is my Beloved Son, hear Him." This window, beautifully symbolizes, the statement of Joseph Smith, "than when any man obtains this last Comforter, he will have the personage of Jesus Christ to attend him, or appear to him from time to time, and even He will manifest the Father unto him, and they will take up their abode with him, and the visions of the heavens will be opened unto him, and the Lord will teach him face to face, and he may have a perfect knowledge of the mysteries of the Kingdom of God." (141)

Women and the Second Anointing

All the blessings and ordinances of the Gospel, except ordinations to the Priesthood, are equally available to women, as well as men. James E. Talmage explained:

> It is a precept of the Church that women of the Church share the authority of the Priesthood with their husbands, actual or prospective; and therefore women whether taking the endowment for themselves, or for the dead, are not ordained to a specific rank in the Priesthood. Nevertheless there is no grade or rank or phase of the temple endowment to which women are not eligible on an equality with men. True, there are certain of the higher ordinances to which an unmarried women cannot be admitted, but the rule is equally in force as to the bachelor. (143)
> This last sentence refers, of course, to the Second Anointing, as noted previously in this paper.

While men are ordained Kings and Priests in the Second Anointing, their wives are anointed and ordained Queens and Priestesses. Brigham Young directed that the Administrator, following the anointing of the husband, "should anoint his wife or wives Queens and Priestesses unto her husband." (144) Fanny Stenhouse wrote that happened in her Second Anointing: "After that [the anointing of her husband] we two wives were anointed in like manner, and ordained Queens and Priestesses, to reign and rule with our husband over his kingdom in the celestial world." (145) In connection with their husbands wives become full partakers in all the rights, powers, blessings, and promises of the Second Anointing.

In passing it should be noted, that when a man has more than one wife, the women are anointed in the order of their marriages. Abraham H. Cannon wrote, "I then received mine [anointings] and my wives followed in the order of their marriages." (146) Frederick Kessler noted that his two wives received their anointings to "Regular Order." (147)

Sealing the Washings and Anointings

Apparently the sealing of the Second Anointing is done over the altar. Although later descriptions of the Holy of Holies do not indicate the presence of an altar in the room, a description of the room, printed in 1893, specifically mentions that the altar in the Holy of Holies in the Salt lake Temple is "rich." (148) During his Second Anointing, Heber Q. Hale stated, "We knelt on opposite sides of the altar, and President [Joseph F.] Smith at the end gave us our second blessings." (149) Brigham Young directed that during the sealings "the man [should] be upon the right hand [of the altar] and the wive or wives upon the left hand." (150)

The Garments of the Holy Priesthood

Individuals who receive their initiatory washings and anointings, and the endowment covenant to henceforth wear a special undergarment. In the scriptures this garment is symbolically called the "shield of faith wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked." (151) As such it is often called the Garment of the Holy Priesthood. Embroidered "marks" are sown on the garment "to remind the wearers of their temple obligations." (152) In a 1936 report to the First Presidency four Apostles recommended "that a definition be given in the temple of the symbolism and significance of the various marks in the garment." (153) The four brethern suggested that the marks be described as follows:

> The Square: Honor, integrity, loyalty, trustworthiness;
> The compass; An undeviating course in relation to truth, desires should be kept within proper bounds;
>
> The Navel: that the spiritual life needs constant sustenance;
>
> The Knee: Reverence for God, the source of divine guidance and inspiration. To this last one might be added that which is now in use: That every knee shall bow and every tongue confess that Jesus is the Christ. (154)
> Herman R. Bangerter described further the symbolic significance of these marks:
> These symbols were often abbreviated: By taking an angle from the square we have an L, or the sign of the square; and angle from the interlaced triangle gives us a V, or the sign of the compass; and the merging of the physical and spiritual is symbolized by the X, which is often written -, or the line... If we write them out we have the Latin word "LVX," which means light. If they are arranged in the form of the spiritual triangle with the point downward, we have the symbol of spiritual light, which is pure intelligence. If an individual is worthy of wearing this symbol on his breastplate, and continues faithfully in the service of the Master, he will receive the SPIRITUAL LIGHT, which will enable him on her to unite the physical and the spiritual, and through the process of Divine Alchemy, change the mortal corruptible body into the Celestial Eternal Body and thereby have eternal life.

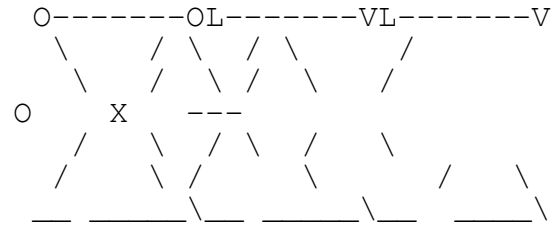
Whenever an individual consecrates his life to the service of God and to his fellowmen, he brings the points of the triangles together thus; which is preparatory to uniting them in the interlaced triangles, as they continue onward through a life of faithful service. (155)



As Herman Bangerter noted above, individuals who receive their endowments, wear the above symbols on their garments, "preparatory to uniting them in the interlaced triangles." Since the above symbols are associated with the initiatory ordiance and the endowment, we would expect that there would be an alteration of the marks, following the Second Anointing, which would indicate the new status of the candidate. Bangerter alluded to this very change:

Whenever individuals are initiated into the mysteries of Godliness they then strive to bring into their beings that principle of balance which is symbolized by the lesser Seal of Solomon, in the five pointed star. After meditation and instruction, they become adepts, and finally after mastering the Mysteries of the Kingdom, they become true priests, or priestesses after the Order of Melchizedek, as Masters of Spiritual Laws, by which they advance to the six-pointed star, or the Great Seal of Solomon, wherein the physical and spiritual become inseparably connected, in the Celestial Kingdom of Eternal Life. (156)

Not only is the six-pointed star, or the Seal of Solomon, significant in relationship to the Second Anointing, but the circle has equal symbolic meaning int he ordinance, because it "is the universal symbol of eternal life," (157) which is the promised blessing associated with the Second Anointing. Thus, it is not without significance that the Holy of Holies in the Salt Lake Temple, the room in which Second Anointings are properly administered, and the room which "is reserved for the higher ordinances in the priesthood," is "of circular outline, eighteen feet in diameter." (158) Of equal importance is the floor of the Holy of Holies, which is composed of "native hard-wood blocks, each an inch in cross-section." (159) These blocks are inlaid in the beautiful depiction of the six-pointed star, or Seal of Solomon. (160)

The Instructions and Closing the Meeting

Following the ordinances, the Assistant who holds the Horn of Holy Anointing Oil, also known as the Instructor, gives instructions to the male candidate and his wife, concerning the second part of the ceremony. Abraham H. Cannon noted that "the ordinance of washing of feet was explained by Br. McAllister, after the anointing had been given." (161) In the Second Anointing of William H. Smart, he noted that "Elder Madsen instructed us." (162) The meeting is then closed with prayer.

PART FOUR -- THE LAST ANOINTINGS

The second part of the Second Anointing, takes place with only the husband and wife participating. Following the instructions, given int he Temple during the Second anointing ceremonies, the couple meet to attend "to the last anointings, that of the feet." (163) William H. Smart briefly described the nature of the "last anointings" in his diary:

> This evening from about 9:30 to 12 O.C. my wife and I attended to the second part of the ordinance of second anointings. We besides the ordinance itself sang 'We thank thee O God for a prophet,' conversed concerning our duties t each other and the children, read John XII:1-8 verses, read the Rev[elation] on the Eternity of the Marriage Covenant, Section 132. We dedicated the room for the purpose of the meeting. Closed by singing: 'Oh my father thou that dwellest.' Ann was mouth in preliminary prayer I gave the dedicatory prayer and benediction. (164)

> John 12:1-8 records the washing of the Savior's fee by Mary, which was done "against the day of my burying." When this ceremony was administered by Vilate Kimball to Heber C. Kimball, they left a written record, attesting to the fact:

> April 1st 1844 I heber C. Kimball, received the washing of my feet and was anointed by my wife, Vilate, for my burial, that is my feet, head and stomach, even as Mary did jesus, that she might have claim on him in the resurrection.
> I, Vilate Kimball, do hereby certify that on the first day of April, 1844, I attended to washing and anointing of my dear companion, Heber C. Kimball, that I may have a claim on him in the morning of the first resurrection. Vilate Kimball. (165)

PART FIVE -- WORDS OF WISDOM AND CAUTION

The Apostle Paul wrote that members of the Church should not be satisfied with only the first ordinances of the Gospel, but they should strive towards perfection, "Therefore not leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and faith toward God. Of the doctrine of baptisms, of the laying on of hands, and of the resurrection of the dead, and of the eternal judgment. And we will go on unto perfection if God permit." (166)
Joseph Fielding Smith taught that if we desire to achieve exaltation, we must not be satisfied with only part of the ordinances, but we must make ourselves worthy to obtain all the ordinances of the Gospel:

> We are all members of the Chruch of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints by being baptized and confirmed, and there are many who seem to be content to remain such without obtaining the privileges of exaltation. The Lord has made it possible for us to become members of the Church of the First Born by receiving the blessings of the House of the Lord and 'overcoming all things.' Thus we become heirs, 'priests and kings, who have received of his fulness, and of his glory,' who shall 'dwell in the presence of God and his Christ forever and ever,' with full exaltation. (167)

Brigham Young and his Counselors also cautioned the Saints not to be quickly satisfied, after having received a few of the ordinances of the House of the Lord:

Think not, O ye Elders of Israel! that your eternal heirship is won, and immutably secured, because you have attained to a portion of the Holy Priesthood, and a few of its initiating ordinances, while as yet your life and security of all your great and glorious blessings in hop and prospects, are as a vapor before the sun; as yet depending wholly on your meekness, faithfulness, and perseverance to the end, in everything good. Think not that you are legally entitled to even one wife, while you live on this earth unless you are sealed up to everlasting lives, by the will and decree of the Eternal Father, and a knowledge of the fact has been communicated to you, through the proper source, and not direct, to you in person. And consider that the blessings you have hitherto received, through the mercies of Him who loveth you, even your Father in heaven, will all be wrested from, like David's of ole, should you err like him. (168)

But even to those, who have received their Second Anointings, Charles W. Penrose, cautioned them not to boast of this, lest they loose that to which they have been sealed:

We cannot speak too emphatically on this subject to our brethren who are on missions, by way of caution against the infraction of their covenants, and in condemnation of those who do this for the purpose of impressing others with their self-importance when they boast of having received 'the highest blessings,' conveying the idea that they are more advanced in those things than some of their fellow laborers. 'The secrets of the Lord are with them that fear him,' and they who do not 'fear him' sufficiently to keep to themselves that which was only intended for them and which they are forbidden to make known to others, prove themselves unworthy to receive the fulfillment of the promise of God to 'crown them with honor, immortality, and eternal life. (169)

Finally in closing this paper I must stress this fact. While the Second Anointing is extremely important in the road which leads to exaltation in the Celestial Kingdom, we must not be overly concerned if we do not receive this ordinance before we die. In a letter to the author Bruce R. McConkie wrote:

...every person who lives worthy to receive a blessing, which for reasons beyond his control does not come to him in this life, will receive the blessing in eternity. No one will ever be denied any reward in eternity that he would have received here had the opportunity to get it here been afforded him. (170)

Elder McConkie stated a true principle. If, through no fault on our part, we are not permitted to obtain the blessings, covenants, promises, ordinances, or any necessary elements of the Plan of Salvation during our mortal estate, we will not be penalized for it in the next estate. This same principle was revealed to Joseph Smith:

All who have died without a knowledge of this Gospel, who would have received it if they had been permitted to tary, shall be heirs of the celestial kingdom of God; also all that shall die henceforth without a knowledge of it, who would have received it with all their hearts, shall be heirs of that kingdom, for I, the Lord will judge all men according to their works, according to the desires of their hearts. (171)

At the end of the above letter form Bruce R. McConkie to the author, he wrote, "...none of us need to have anxieties about what happens or does not happen in the administration of the ordinances." (172) Men shall receive the necessary ordinances when it is required for their advancement. Nonetheless we should always strive to live worthily, and be prepared to receive any of the ordinances at any time.

A FULNESS OF THE PRIESTHOOD COMPILATION

|v10 Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall:
|v11 For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.
(NewT:2 Peter 1:10-11)

The [Sacrament and the] Washing of the Apostle's Feet:

|v1 Now before the feast of the passover, when Jesus knew that his hour was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end.
|v2 And supper being ended, the devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray him;
|v3 Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was come from God, and went to God;
|v4 He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself.
|v5 After that he poureth water into a basin, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded.
|v6 Then cometh he to Simon Peter; and Peter saith unto him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet?
|v7 Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter.
|v8 Peter saith unto him, Thou needest not to wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me.
|v9 Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head.
|v10 Jesus saith to him, He that has washed his hands and his head, needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit; and ye are clean, but not all. Now this was the custom of the Jews under their law; wherefore, Jesus did this that the law might be fulfilled.

|v11 For he knew who should betray him; therefore said he, Ye are not all clean.
|v12 So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you?
|v13 Ye call me Master and Lord; and ye say well; for so I am.
|v14 If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet.
|v15 For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.
|v16 Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him.
|v17 If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them. (JST John 13:1-17)

Anointing and Sealing:

|v21 Now he which stablisheth us with you in Christ, and hath anointed us, is God;
|v22 Who hath also sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts. (2 Corinthians 1:21-22)

Calling and Election--Sealed by the Holy Spirit of Promise:

|v13 In whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation: in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise,
|v14 Which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory. (Ephesians 1:13-14)

Knowing Christ:

|v1 Brethren, this is the testimony which we give of that which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled, of the Word of life;
|v2 (For the life was manifested, and we have seen it, and bear witness, and shew unto you that eternal life, which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us;)
|v3 That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us; and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ. (JST John 1:1-3)

Kings and Priests unto God [for time and all] Eternity [D&C 132:7]:

|v5 Therefore, I, John, the faithful witness, bear record of the things which were delivered me of an angel, and from Jesus Christ the first begotten of the dead, and the Prince of the kings of the earth.
|v6 And unto him who loved us, be glory; who washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father. To him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.
|v7 For behold, he cometh in the clouds with ten thousands of his saints in the kingdom, clothed with the glory of his Father. (JST Revelation 1:5-7)

|v9 And they sung a new song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation;
|v10 And hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth.
(NewT:Revelation 5:9-10)

A Man Anointed of the Holy Spirit Needeth Not That Any Man Teach Him:

|v22 Who is a liar but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ? He is antichrist, that denieth the Father and the Son.
|v23 Whosoever denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father: (but) he that acknowledgeth the Son hath the Father also.
|v24 Let that therefore abide in you, which ye have heard from the beginning. If that which ye have heard from the beginning shall remain in you, ye also shall continue in the Son, and in the Father.
|v25 And this is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life. [The promise of Eternal life--This is an unconditional promise of the Holy Anointing].
|v26 These things have I written unto you concerning them that seduce you.
|v27 But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you: but as the same anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in him.
|v28 And now, little children, abide in him; that, when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming.
|v29 If ye know that he is righteous, ye know that every one that doeth righteousness is born of him.

|c3|v0 Sons of God shall become like Christ--Love for the brethren required to gain eternal life--Obedience assures us an answer to our prayers.

|v1 Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God: therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not.
|v2 Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is.
(NewT:1 John 2:22-3:2)

23 December 1830 - Monday

Joseph Smith, the Prophet, was born in Sharon, Windsor Co., Vt. (Church Chronology, A Record of Important Events, Pertaining to the History of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Compiled by Andrew Jenson, Assistant Church Historian, 2nd ed., 1914, p. 1.)

Spring 1820 -- The First Vision

The Father and the Son Appear to the Prophet Joseph Smith as a result of fervent prayer (Joseph Smith 2:11-20):
Joseph Smith learn's that the Father and the Son were two separate and distinct personages (Joseph Smith 2:17):

The Father and the Son talked to Joseph Smith face to face as one man speaks to another (Joseph Smith 2:17–20):

Joseph Smith was told that None of the Sects Would bring Heavenly Fathers Children back to Him:

I was answered that I must join none of them, for they were all wrong; and the Personage who addressed me said that all their creeds were an abomination in his sight; that those professors were all corrupt; that: "They draw near to me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me, they teach for doctrines the commandments of men, having a form of godliness, but they deny the power thereof." (PoGP:J Smith–History 1:19)

Note: In other words, the Father, through His Only Begotten Son, was saying that there was no way to be sealed up our hearts to Him--This was their major concern. To Honor the Father's by sealing up the Children to them all the way back to our Heavenly Father. Joseph smith was told that non of these sects had the power of God [to ultimately seal up the Children to the Father through the Fulness of the Priesthood and bring Honor and Glory to the Father (Joseph Smith 2:20).

Here we can visibly see that the ultimate, mission statement and objective of the Father and the Son in the First Vision is to declare that:

[1] all sects of religion had gone astray from the fulness of the priesthood and

[2] the ability to bring the Children of God unto Exaltation and Eternal Lives by Honoring the Father and Sealing the Children back up to him through the Fulness of the Priesthood and

[3] The Prophet Joseph Smith would be the means by which the Lord would restor these highest and glorious blessings.

A great illustration of this, is the statement of the Father, through the whisperings of the Holy Spirit, on 28 May 1894, to Wilford Woodruff. He writes:

I went before the Lord to know who I should be adopted to (we were then being adopted to prophets and apostles), the Spirit of God said to me, "Have you not a father, who begot you?"
"Yes, I have."
"Then why not honor him? Why not be adopted to him?"
"Yes," said I, "that is right."
I was adopted to my father, and should have had my father sealed to his father, and so on back; and the duty that I want every man who presides over a temple to see performed from this day hence forth and forever, unless the Lord Almighty commands otherwise, is, let every man be adopted to his father. When a man receives the endowments, adopt him to his father; not to Wilford Woodruff, nor to any other man outside the linage of his fathers That is the will of God to this people. I want all men who preside over these temples in these mountains of Israel to bear this in mind. What business have I to take away the rights of the lineage of any man? What right has any man to do this? No; I say let every man be adopted to his father; and they you will do exactly what God said when he declared he would send Elijah the prophet in the last days. Elijah the prophet appeared unto Joseph Smith and told him that the day had come when this principle must be carried out. Joseph Smith did not live long enough to enter any further upon these things. His should was wound up with this work before he was martyred for the word of God and testimony of Jesus Christ. He told us that there must be a welding link of all dispensations and of the work of God from one generation to another. This was upon his mind more than most any other subject that was given to him.

In my prayers the Lord revealed to me that it was my duty to say to all Israel to carry this principle out, and in fulfillment of that revelation I lay it before this people.

I say to all men who are laboring in these temples, carry out this principle, and then we will make one step in advance what we have had before.

Myself and counselors conversed upon this and were agreed upon it, and afterwards we laid it before all the apostles who were here (two were absent)--Brothers thatcher and Lund, the latter being in England), and the Lord revealed to every one of these men--and they would bear testimony to it if they were to speak--that that was the word of the Lord to them. I never met with anything in my life in this Church that there was more unity upon than there was upon that principle. They all feel right about it, and that it is our duty. That is one principle that should be carried out from this time henceforth.

"But," says one, "suppose we come along to a man who perhaps is a murderer." Well, if he is a murderer, drop him out and connect with the next man beyond him. But the Spirit of God will be with us in this matter.

We want the Latter-day Saints from this time to trace their genealogies as far as they can, and to be sealed to their fathers and mothers. Have children sealed to their parents, and run this chain through as far as you can get it. ... This is the will of the Lord to this people, and I think when you come to reflect upon it you will find it to be true.

There will be very few, if any, who will not accept the gospel. Jesus, while his body lay in the tomb, went and preached to the spirits in prison, who were destroyed in the days of Noah. After so long an imprisonment, in torment, they doubtless gladly embraced the gospel, and if so they will be saved in the kingdom of God. The fathers of this people will embrace the gospel. It is my duty to honor my father who begot me in the flesh. It is your duty to do the same. When you do this, the Spirit of God will be with you. And we shall continue this work, the Lord adding light to that which we have already received. I have had friends adopted to me. We all have, more or less. But I have had a peculiar feelings about it, especially lately. There are men in this congregation who wish to be adopted to me. I say to them today, if they can hear me, Go and be adopted to your fathers, and save you fathers, and stand at the head of you father's house, as saviors upon Mount Zion, and God will bless you in this. This is what I want to say, and what I want carried out in our temples.... I have had a great desire that I might live to deliver these principles to the Latter-day Saints, for they are true. They are one step forward in the work of the ministry and in the work of the endowments in these temples of our God. ...Those of you who stand here--I do not care whether you are apostles or what you are--by honoring your fathers you will not take any honor from you heads; you will hold the keys of the salvation of your father's house, as Joseph Smith does. You will lose nothing by honoring your fathers and redeeming your dead. (Millennial Star, 56:339-341, May 28, 1894; The Discourses of Wilford Woodruff, Bookcraft, p. 157-159.)

From Wilford We can see a clearer Picture of what the Father and Son was telling the Prophet Joseph Smith--And the Concern and Direction the Ultimately wanted The Fulness of the Priesthood to Take His Children was to Seal up the Children to The Father through father's and Honor our Eternal Father:

We can now also see that this is one of the ten Commandments which the Lord Gave Moses to bring back His children to Him. Perhaps we can greater light of understanding can be had in reading the following scriptures if we realize that Honoring our Father and Mothers is receiving the Fulness of the Gospel and Priesthood and being sealed to them that we might be able to live with them on Celestial Soil:

Honour thy father and thy mother: that thy days may be long upon the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee. (OldT:Exodus 20:12. See also, Deut. 5:16.)

Wherefore the Lord said, Forasmuch as this people draw near me with their mouth, and with their lips do honour me, but have removed their heart far from me,.... (OldT:Isaiah 29:13)

This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their lips; but their heart is far from me. (NewT:Matthew 15:8)

Honour thy father and thy mother: and, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.
(NewT:Matthew 19:19)

He answered and said unto them, Well hath Esaias prophesied of you hypocrites, as it is written, This people honoureth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me. (NewT:Mark 7:6)

Honour thy father and mother; (which is the first commandment with promise;) (NewT:Ephesians 6:2)

Now unto the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honour and glory for ever and ever. Amen. (NewT:1 Timothy 1:17)

This is my work and my glory--to bring to pass in immortality and eternal life of man. (PoGP:Moses 1:39)

Forasmuch as this people draw near unto me with their mouth, and with their lips do honor me, but have removed their hearts far from me, and their fear towards me is taught by the precepts of men-- (BofM:2 Nephi 27:25)

I was answered that I must join none of them, for they were all wrong; and the Personage who addressed me said that all their creeds were an abomination in his sight; that those professors were all corrupt; that: "They draw near to me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me, they teach for doctrines the commandments of men, having a form of godliness, but they deny the power thereof." (PoGP:J Smith-History 1:19)

Now that we can see that the mission statement of the Father is to bring honor and glory unto himself by bringing to pass the immortality and eternal life of man through the Sealing power and the Fulness of the Priesthood the following takes place:

The Prophet Joseph Smith was Left alone for a Time:

Like father Adam, the Prophet Joseph Smith had talked to the Father and the Son and received instruction from them (Joseph Smith 2:17-20).

The Prophet Joseph Smith was left alone for a time to ponder the instructions which he had learned from the Father and the Son (Joseph Smith 2:20).

Satan sent Preachers, trained in the ministry, a "few day after", to teach, discourage and lead astray the Prophet Joseph Smith (Joseph Smith 2:21-23).

The minister told Joseph Smith his concept of God and God's kingdom and told him what he had learned for the Father and the Son was wrong and was of the devil -- Sounds like Adams experience portrayed in the temple ceremony, doesn't it! (Joseph Smith 2:21).

Like father Adam, Joseph Smith knew that he had seen the Father and the Son and could not deny it. He did not believe, nor comprehend what the minister told, "to him it was all a mass of confusion" and their religions were all wrong, and he could never join none of them--So the Satan, through the Minister set forth to persecute the Prophet Joseph Smith and destroy the Fathers plan of Exaltation and Eternal life (Joseph Smith 2:21).

Joseph SMith desire's forgiveness for his sins and further light and knowledge from his Heavenly Father--Like Adam did after he was left alone for a time, as portrayed in our temple ceremony (Joseph Smith 2:29).

Like father Adam, The Prophet Joseph Smith having this keen desire for further light and knowledge, Prays for forgiveness and further instruction and light and knowledge from Our Father in heaven and His Eternal Son (Joseph SMith 2:26-30).

21 September 1823--The Father, as shown to John the Revelator many years before, send Angel Moroni to Proclaim the "Fulness of the Gospel" or Outline the steps that would transpire to Seal the Children up to the Father and Receive what was later know as the Capstone of this process as the Fulness of the Priesthood:

John's Testimony:

And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, kindred, and tong and people,
Saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come: and worship him that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters. (NewT:Revelation 13:6-7)

Angel Moroni appears to the Prophet Joseph Smith on 21 September 1823 (Joseph Smith 2:26-30).

Moroni announces himself as "a messenger sent from the presence of God" (Joseph Smith 2:33).

Moroni tells Joseph Smith "that God ha[s] a work for [him] to do" (Joseph Smith 2:33).

Because of the Mission that Joseph was to preform for the Lord, his "name should be had for good and evil among all nations, kindreds, and tongues...[and] people (Joseph Smith 2:33).

THE PROPHET JOSEPH SMITH'S MISSION IS PROCLAIMED OR OUTLINED BY ANGLE MORONI (Joseph Smith 2:34-):

[1] There was a Book "written upon golden plates", which contained the "fulness of the everlasting Gospel", "as delivered by the Savior to the ancient inhabitants" (Joseph Smith 2:34).

[2] Joseph Smith would translate the Book of Mormon (Joseph Smith 2:35, 42, 53). [3] The crowning event of Joseph Smith's Mission--Restore the fulness of the Priesthood--and give Honor to our Heavenly Father by sealing the hearts of the children to the father's:
"Behold, I will reveal unto you [Joseph Smith Jr.] the Priesthood, by the hand of Elijah the prophet, before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord (Joseph Smith 2:38).

[4] The fulness of the Priesthood: "and he [Elijah through the Prophet Joseph Smith] shall plant [seal] the hearts of the children the promises made to the fathers, and the hearts of the children shall turn to the fathers (Joseph Smith 2:38).

[5] The Capstone--The Fulness of the Priesthood to prepare the way of the coming of the Lord--"If it were not so, the whole earth would be utterly wasted at his coming." (Joseph Smith 2:39).

[6] John The Revelator Prophesied that--In the sixth seal the restoration of the gospel would take place and that the Lord would Seal 144,000 in their foreheads [The Fulness of the Priesthood] who would go to every nation kindred tong and people, working in the temples night and day sealing up the hosts of the exalted from all nations, Sealing the dead and the living in their Foreheads with the Fulness of the priesthood (NewT:Revelation 7).

[7] Moroni then tells The Prophet Joseph Smith that there is a great urgency and that he must hurry and prepare the people with the fulness of the priesthood, Elijah, the Capstone of the priesthood, because Christ's Second Coming was about to be fulfilled and that the destroying angles were about to be loosed. Moroni does this through quoting the following scriptures Isaiah 11, Acts 2:22-23 and Joel 2:28-32, (Joseph Smith 2:40-41).

The Keys to accomplish this were given to the Prophet Joseph Smith one at a time Line upon Line--And with each addition Key--Joseph Commenced to restructure the Church:

The Following are Some Main Keys:

15 May 1829--The restoration of the Aaronic priesthood.

The restoration of the Melchizedek priesthood with all its offices.

The building of Temples.

Keys restored in the Kirtland Temple:
[1] Moses appeared before us, and committed unto us the keys of the gathering of Israel from the four parts of the earth, and the leading of the ten tribes from the land of the north (D&C 110:11).

[2] Elias [a forerunner of a greater principal] appeared,and committed the dispensation of the gospel of Abraham, saying that in us and our seed all generations after us should be blessed. (D&C 110:12). Notice that Joseph Smith was laying the foundation for a greater principle that would follow by organizing the Church under the principal of Elias the key of the gospel of Abraham. The Only way--under these keys to receive the fulness of the Priesthood was like Abraham and the house of Israel had to do since this Patriarchal priesthood didn't hold the Keys of presidency like Shem held Abraham Had to Adopt people his son's to legally make them Kings and Priests unto the most High God. Thus did the House of Israel--When people joined the Church or they were Adopted into one of the Tribes of Israel so Because there were no keys of Presidency in the Patriarchal priesthood one can only administer the ordinances of the Gospel to their own family -- Thus Adopt them and then it is legal. Thus Jacob 5 and the Grafting in through Adoption to receive all the ordinances of the Gospel even the Fulness of the Priesthood. In other words A structure is set up to be grafted into because the roots are dead.
Now if you look at the Story of Abraham real close you will discover that Abraham lists his actual linage and then says that the root is dead--His fathers having turned away from the Priesthood so he Goes to Melchizedek and is Made a King and a Priest and given the Fulness of the Priesthood to act in all the ordinances of his Family. Abraham leaves his actual linage rather than say he was Adopted to Melchizedek--This is because Melchizedek held the Keys of Presidency or the Same Keys that Elijah held, from the Lord not only to bless his own family with these keys but all the Lord's Children:
Joseph Smith had to build the church line upon line, first we have to be grafted into the living tree through adoption--then and that is our line of authority then when all our work is done for the dead the Patriarchal Tree will be living and we will be sealed up to our Heavenly Father through our natural parents as he has commanded -- Honor thy Father and thy mother...

This was the finally key given to Joseph Smith:

[3] Elijah the prophet appeared and said; Behold, the time has fully come, which was spoken of by the mouth of Malachi--testifying that he [Elijah] should be sent, before the great and dreadful day of the Lord come--

To turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers, lest the whole earth be smitten with a curse--

Therefore, the keys of this dispensation are committed into your hands--In other words Joseph Smith now holds the Keys of Presidency of the Father or acting Proxie for Him--Therefore he doesn't have to Adopt people to him anymore to bestow the Fulness of the Priesthood upon them] (D&C 110:13-16).

Joseph Smith Restructured the Church and Families under each one of these keys and was Bestowing the Fulness of the Priesthood upon people through Elias [a forerunner of a greater principal] appeared,and committed the dispensation of the gospel of Abraham, saying that in us and our seed all generations after us should be blessed. Elder Woodruff explained Had The Prophet Joseph Smith Lived He would have Moved Fully into the last Key the Key of Elijah-or Presidency, Acting Proxy for the Father as King of Kings and Lord of Lords and would have had people sealed up to their own Father and Mother all the Way Back to Adam and to our Eternal Heavenly Father and Heavenly Mother. He says:

I went before the Lord to know who I should be adopted to (we were then being adopted to prophets and apostles), the Spirit of God said to me, "Have you not a father, who begot you?"

"Yes, I have."

"Then why not honor him? Why not be adopted to him?"

"Yes," said I, "that is right."

I was adopted to my father, and should have had my father sealed to his father, and so on back; and the duty that I want every man who presides over a temple to see performed from this day hence forth and forever, unless the Lord Almighty commands otherwise, is, let every man be adopted to his father. When a man receives the endowments, adopt him to his father; not to Wilford Woodruff, nor to any other man outside the linage of his fathers That is the will of God to this people. You will lose nothing by honoring your fathers and redeeming your dead. (Millennial Star, 56:339-341, May 28, 1894; The Discourses of Wilford Woodruff, Bookcraft, p. 157-159.)

A final observation before we go on--Joseph Smith described Elijah as the Capstone of the temple:

10 March 1844 (The Prophet's Discourse on the Missions of Elias, Elijah and Messiah)

Mission of Elijah:

Now for Elijah. The spirit, power, and calling of Elijah is, that ye have power to hold the key of the revelation, ordinances, oracles, powers and endowments of the fulness of the Melchisedeck Priesthood and of the kingdom of God on the earth; and to receive, obtain, and perform all the ordinances belonging to the kingdom of God, even unto the turning of the hearts of the fathers unto the children, and the hearts of the children unto the fathers, even those who are in heaven.

Malachi says, "I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord: and he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers, lest I come and smite the earth with a curse."

Now, what I am after is the knowledge of God, and I take my own course to obtain it. What are we to understand by this in the last days?

In the days of Noah, God destroyed the world by a flood, and He has promised to destroy it by fire in the last days: but before it should take place, Elijah should first come and turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, &c.

Now comes the point. What is the office and work of Elijah? It is one of the greatest and most important subjects that God has revealed. He should send Elijah to seal the children to the fathers, and the fathers to the children. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:251; Teachings, p. 337.)

10 March 1844 (The Prophet's Discourse on the Missions of Elias, Elijah and Messiah)

For the Living and the Dead:

Now was this merely confined to the living, to settle difficulties with families on earth? By no means. It was a far greater work. Elijah! what would you do if you were here? Would you confine your work to the living alone? No; I would refer you to the Scriptures, when the subject is manifest: that is, without us, they could not be made perfect, nor we without them; the fathers without the children, nor the children without the fathers.

I wish you to understand this subject, for it is important; and if you will receive it, this is the spirit of Elijah, that we redeem our dead, and connect ourselves with our fathers which are in heaven, and seal up our dead to come forth in the first resurrection; and here we want the power of Elijah to seal those who dwell on earth to those who dwell in heaven. This is the power of Elijah and the keys of the kingdom of Jehovah. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:251–252; Teachings, p. 337–338.)

10 March 1844 (The Prophet's Discourse on the Missions of Elias, Elijah and Messiah Continued)

Mission of Elias, Elijah, and Messiah:

The spirit of Elias is first, Elijah second, and Messiah last. Elias is a forerunner to prepare the way, and the spirit and power of Elijah is to come after, holding the keys of power, building the Temple to the capstone, placing the seals of the Melchisedec Priesthood upon the house of Israel, and making all things ready; then Messiah comes to His Temple, which is last of all. Messiah is above the spirit and power of Elijah, for He made the world, and was that spiritual rock unto Moses in the wilderness. Elijah was to come and prepare the way and build up the kingdom before the coming of the great day of the Lord, although the spirit of Elias might begin it. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:254; Teachings, p. 340.)

Finally here we see the symbolism of why Moroni stands on the Capstone of the Salt Lake Temple, Facing the East, Blowing his horn:

[1] He was foreordained by the Lord to Proclaim or Outline the Fulness of the Gospel to the Prophet Joseph Smith in the Dispensation of times.

[2] Moroni stands on the Capstone of the Temple, facing the east representing that he has proclaimed the fulness of the Priesthood even the Keys of Elijah, which precedes the Second coming of the Messiah.

[3] Moroni stands representing all of us having received the fulness of the Priesthood and the Everlasting gospel and that we and fully prepared to meet the Son, being sealed up in our foreheads facing east, standing on the Capstone of the temple waiting for his Second Coming. This is also similar to the reason we are buried, with our heads facing East. So that when we rise we stand up to greet our Lord Fully prepared. Amen.

25 October 1831

Parting the Veil Through Perfect Faith:

Brother Joseph Smith, Jr., said: We have assembled together to do the business of the Lord and it is through the great mercy of our God that we are spared to assemble together, many of us have gone at the command of the Lord in defiance of everything evil, and obtained blessings unspeakable, in consequence of which our names are sealed in the Lamb's book of life, for the Lord has spoken it. It is the privilege of every Elder to speak of the things of God; and could we all come together with one heart and one mind in perfect faith the veil might as well be rent today as next week, or any other time, and if we will but cleanse ourselves and covenant before God, to serve Him, it is our privilege to have an assurance that God will protect us at all times. (F. W. R., p. 13-14., Teachings, p. 8-9.)

November 1831

And of as many as the Father shall bear record, to you shall be given power to seal them up unto eternal life. Amen. (D&C 68:12.)

Section 68 is the first latter-day revelation to address the notion of being sealed up unto eternal life (verse 12). This was a topic of considerable importance during the Prophet's life-time. Shortly after the Orange, Ohio, conference (25 October 1831) high priests began sealing the Saints to eternal life. These early priesthood sealings (1831-35) were not unimportant, but it was later determined that they were insufficient. Although the Prophet received the greater keys of sealing from Elijah in April 1836, he delayed administering the higher (temple) ordinances until the 1840's. The first priesthood (eternal) marriage was performed in April 1841, and the priesthood endowment was administered for the first time in May 1842. Having received these prerequisite ordinances, the faithful could continue on and receive the fulness of the priesthood where in they were sealed up unto eternal [life, and made kings and queens, priests and priestesses]. (The fulness of the priesthood began to be administered in September 1843 [when the Prophet was made a king and priest unto the most High God and his Wife Emma and companions were anointed queens unto their husband.] Thus, a complete understanding of the nature of making one's calling and election sure (i.e., being sealed up unto eternal [life]) developed over a ten-year period, and achieved its fullest expression during the Nauvoo period. (The Revelations of the Prophet Joseph Smith by Lyndon W. Cook, p. 145. fn3.)

Holy Spirit of Promise--Church of the Firstborn--Heirs of all Things Priests and Kings--In Life are Gods:

|v50 And again we bear record--for we saw and heard, and this is the testimony of the gospel of Christ concerning them who shall come forth in the resurrection of the just--
|v51 They are they who received the testimony of Jesus, and believed on his name and were baptized after the manner of his burial, being buried in the water in his name, and this according to the commandment which he has given--
|v52 That by keeping the commandments they might be washed and cleansed from all their sins, and receive the Holy Spirit by the laying on of the hands of him who is ordained and sealed unto this power;
|v53 And who overcome by faith, and are sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, which the Father sheds forth upon all those who are just and true.
|v54 They are they who are the church of the Firstborn.
|v55 They are they into whose hands the Father has given all things--
|v56 They are they who are priests and kings, who have received of his fulness, and of his glory;
|v57 And are priests of the Most High, after the order of Melchizedek, which was after the order of Enoch, which was after the order of the Only Begotten Son.
|v58 Wherefore, as it is written, they are gods, even the sons of God--
|v59 Wherefore, all things are theirs, whether life or death, or things present, or things to come, all are theirs and they are Christ's, and Christ is God's.
|v60 And they shall overcome all things.
|v61 Wherefore, let no man glory in man, but rather let him glory in God, who shall subdue all enemies under his feet.
|v62 These shall dwell in the presence of God and his Christ forever and ever.
|v63 These are they whom he shall bring with him, when he shall come in the clouds of heaven to reign on the earth over his people.
|v64 These are they who shall have part in the first resurrection.
|v65 These are they who shall come forth in the resurrection of the just.
|v66 These are they who are come unto Mount Zion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly place, the holiest of all.

|v67 These are they who have come to an innumerable company of angels, to the general assembly and church of Enoch, and of the Firstborn.
|v68 These are they whose names are written in heaven, where God and Christ are the judge of all.
|v69 These are they who are just men made perfect through Jesus the mediator of the new covenant, who wrought out this perfect atonement through the shedding of his own blood.
|v70 These are they whose bodies are celestial, whose glory is that of the sun, even the glory of God, the highest of all, whose glory the sun of the firmament is written of as being typical.
|v71 And again, we saw the terrestrial world, and behold and lo, these are they who are of the terrestrial, whose glory differs from that of the church of the Firstborn who have received the fulness of the Father, even as that of the moon differs from the sun in the firmament.
|v72 Behold, these are they who died without law;
|v73 And also they who are the spirits of men kept in prison, whom the Son visited, and preached the gospel unto them, that they might be judged according to men in the flesh;
|v74 Who received not the testimony of Jesus in the flesh, but afterwards received it.
|v75 These are they who are honorable men of the earth, who were blinded by the craftiness of men.
|v76 These are they who receive of his glory, but not of his fulness.
|v77 These are they who receive of the presence of the Son, but not of the fulness of the Father.
|v78 Wherefore, they are bodies terrestrial, and not bodies celestial, and differ in glory as the moon differs from the sun.
|v79 These are they who are not valiant in the testimony of Jesus; wherefore, they obtain not the crown over the kingdom of our God.
|v80 And now this is the end of the vision which we saw of the terrestrial, that the Lord commanded us to write while we were yet in the Spirit.
|v81 And again, we saw the glory of the telestial, which glory is that of the lesser, even as the glory of the stars differs from that of the glory of the moon in the firmament. |v82 These are they who received not the gospel of Christ, neither the testimony of Jesus.
|v83 These are they who deny not the Holy Spirit.
|v84 These are they who are thrust down to hell.
|v85 These are they who shall not be redeemed from the devil until the last resurrection, until the Lord, even Christ the Lamb, shall have finished his work.
|v86 These are they who receive not of his fulness in the eternal world, but of the Holy Spirit through the ministration of the terrestrial;
|v87 And the terrestrial through the ministration of the celestial.
|v88 And also the telestial receive it of the administering of angels who are appointed to minister for them, or who are appointed to be ministering spirits for them; for they shall be heirs of salvation.
|v89 And thus we saw, in the heavenly vision, the glory of the telestial, which surpasses all understanding;
|v90 And no man knows it except him to whom God has revealed it.

|v1 Verily, thus saith the Lord unto you who have assembled yourselves together to receive his will concerning you:
|v2 Behold, this is pleasing unto your Lord, and the angels rejoice over you; the alms of your prayers have come up into the ears of the Lord of Sabbath, and are recorded in the book of the names of the sanctified, even them of the celestial world.
|v3 Wherefore, I now send upon you another Comforter, even upon you my friends, that it may abide in your hearts, even the Holy Spirit of promise; which other Comforter is the same that I promised unto my disciples, as is recorded in the testimony of John.
|v4 This Comforter is the promise which I give unto you of eternal life, even the glory of the celestial kingdom;
|v5 Which glory is that of the church of the Firstborn, even of God, the holiest of all, through Jesus Christ his Son--

Initiation Rites For the School

|v127 And again, the order of the house prepared for the presidency of the school of the prophets, established for their instruction in all things that are expedient for them, even for all the officers of the church, or in other words, those who are called to the ministry in the church, beginning at the high priests, even down to the deacons--
|v128 And this shall be the order of the house of the presidency of the school: He that is appointed to be president, or teacher, shall be found standing in his place, in the house which shall be prepared for him. |v129 Therefore, he shall be first in the house of God, in a place that the congregation in the house may hear his words carefully and distinctly, not with loud speech.
|v130 And when he cometh into the house of God, for he should be first in the house--behold, this is beautiful, that he may be an example--
|v131 Let him offer himself in prayer upon his knees before God, in token or remembrance of the everlasting covenant.
|v132 And when any shall come in after him, let the teacher arise, and, with uplifted hands to heaven, yea, even directly, salute his brother or brethren with these words:
|v133 Art thou a brother or brethren? I salute you in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, in token or remembrance of the everlasting covenant, in which covenant I receive you to fellowship, in a determination that is fixed, immovable, and unchangeable, to be your friend and brother through the grace of God in the bonds of love, to walk in all the commandments of God blameless, in thanksgiving, forever and ever. Amen.
(D&C: Section 88:127-133)

|v138 And ye shall not receive any among you into this school save he is clean from the blood of this generation;
|v139 And he shall be received by the ordinance of the washing of feet, for unto this end was the ordinance of the washing of feet instituted.

|v140 And again, the ordinance of washing feet is to be administered by the president, or presiding elder of the church.

|v141 It is to be commenced with prayer; and after partaking of bread and wine, he is to gird himself according to the pattern given in the thirteenth chapter of John's testimony concerning me. Amen.
(D&C: Section 88:138-141)

|v35 Let the anointing of thy ministers be sealed upon them with power from on high.
(D&C: Section 109:35)

22 January 1833

This winter [1832-33] was spent in translating the Scriptures; in the School of the Prophets; and sitting in conferences. I had many glorious seasons of refreshing. The gifts which follow them that believe and obey the Gospel, as tokens that the Lord is ever the same in His dealings with the humble lovers and followers of truth, began to be poured out among us, as in ancient days;--for as we, viz.: Joseph Smith, Jun., Sidney Rigdon, Frederick G. Williams, Newel K. Whitney, Hyrum Smith, Zebedee Coltrin, Joseph Smith, Sen., Samuel H. Smith, John Murdock, Lyman E. Johnson, Orson Hyde, Ezra Thayre, High Priests; and Levi Hancock, and William Smith, Elders, were assembled in conference, on the 22nd day of January, I spoke to the conference in another tongue, and was followed in the same gift by Brother Zebedee Coltrin, and he by Brother William Smith, after which the Lord poured out His Spirit in a miraculous manner, until all the Elders spake in tongues, and several members, both male and female, exercised the same gift. Great and glorious were the divine manifestations of the Holy Spirit. Praises were sung to God and the Lamb; speaking and praying, all in tongues, occupied the conference until a late hour at night, so rejoiced were we at the return of these long absent blessings. (D. H. C., 2:322-323.)

On the 23rd of January, we again assembled in conference: when, after much speaking, singing, praying, and praising God, all the tongues, we proceeded to the washing of feet (according to the practice recorded in the 13th chapter of John's Gospel), as commanded of the Lord. Each Elder washed his own feet first, after which I girded myself with a towel and washed the feet of all of them, wiping them with the towel with which I was girded. Among the number, my father presented himself, but before I washed his feet, I asked of him a father's blessing, which he granted by laying his hands upon my head, in the name of Jesus Christ, and declaring that I should continue in the Priest's office until Christ comes. At the close of the scene, Brother Frederick G. Williams, being moved upon by the Holy Ghost, washed my feet in token of his fixed determination to be with me in suffering, or in journeying, in life or in death, and to be continually on my right hand; in which I accepted him in the name of the Lord.

I then said to the Elders, As I have done so do ye; wash ye, therefore, one another's feet; and by the power of the Holy Ghost I pronounced them all clean from the blood of this generation; but if any of them should sin wilfully after they were thus cleansed, and sealed up unto eternal life, they should be given over unto the buffetings of Satan until the day of redemption. Having continued all day in fasting, and prayer, and ordinances, we closed by partaking of the Lord's supper. I blessed the bread and wine in the name of the Lord, when we all ate and drank, and were filled; then we sang a hymn, and the meeting adjourned.

I completed the translation and review of the New Testament, on the 2nd of February, 1833, and sealed it up, no more to be opened till it arrived in Zion. (H.C., 1:323-324.)

23 January 1833

Zebedee Coltrin reflecting upon his experiences in the Kirtland School of the Prophets recorded in his Journal:

About the time the school was first organized some wished to see an angel, and a number joined in a circle, and prayed when the vision came, two of the brethren shrank and called for the vision to close or they would perish, they were Bros. Hancock and Humphries. At one of these meetings after the organization of the school, on the 23rd January, 1833, when we were all together, Joseph having given instructions, and while engaged in silent prayer, kneeling, with our hands uplifted each one praying in silence, no one whispered above his breath, a personage walked through the room from East to west, and Joseph asked if we saw him. I saw him and supposed the others did, and Joseph answered that is Jesus, the Son of God, our elder brother. Afterward Joseph told us to resume our former position in prayer, which we did. Another person came through; He was surrounded as with a flame of fire. He (Bro. C[oltrin]) experienced a sensation that it might destroy the tabernacle as it was of consuming fire of great brightness. The Prophet Joseph said this was the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. I saw Him.... This appearance was so grand and overwhelming that it seemed I should melt down in His presence, and the sensation was so powerful that it thrilled through my whole system and I felt it in the marrow of my bones. The Prophet Joseph said: Brethren now you are prepared to be Apostles of Jesus Christ, for you have seen both the Father and the Son. (Zebedee Coltrin Journal, under date given, LDS Church Archives; The Revelations of the Prophet Joseph Smith by Lyndon W. Cook, p. 187-189.)

[Like Zebedee Coltrin, I David, as a small boy, have also seen the Father and the Son in their Glory and have born witness of it as the Lord has Commanded. (See My First testimony and the Pictures which The Lord Instructed me to have painted as a witness to all the world.) Amen.]

23 January 1833

Zebedee Coltrin reflecting upon his experiences in the Original Kirtland School of the Prophets, reminisced his experience in the October 3, 1883 School of the Prophets in Salt Lake:

At one of these meetings after the organization of the school, [the school being organized] on the 23rd [of] January, 1833, when we were all together, Joseph having given instructions, and while engaged in silent prayer, kneeling, with out hands uplifted each one praying in silence, no one whispered above his breath, a personage walked through the room from East to west, and Joseph asked if we saw him.

I saw him and supposed the others did, and Joseph answered that it is Jesus, the Son of God, our elder brother. Afterward Joseph told us to resume our former position in prayer, which we did. Another person came through; He was surrounded as with a flame of fire. He (Bro. C[oltrin]) experienced a sensation that it might destroy the tabernacle as it was a consuming fire of great brightness. The Prophet Joseph said this was the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. I saw Him.

When asked about the kind of clothing the Father has on, Bro. Coltrin said; I did not discover His Clothing for He was surrounded as with a flame of fire, which was so brilliant that I could not discover anything else but His person. I saw His hands, His legs, his feet, his eyes, nose, mouth, head and body in the shape and form of a perfect man. He sat in a chair as a man would sit in a chair, but This appearance was so grand and overwhelming that it seemed I should melt down in His presence, and the sensation was so powerful that it thrilled though my whole system and I felt it in the marrow of my bones. The Prophet Joseph said: Brethren[,] now you are prepared to be the apostles of Jesus Christ, for you have seen both the Father and the Son, and know that They exist and that They are two separate Personages*.

This appearance occurred about two or three weeks after the opening of the school. After the Father had passed through, Joseph told us to again take our positions in prayer. We did so, and in a very short time he drew our attention and said to us that Bro. Reynolds Cahoon was about to leave us--and told us to look at him. He (Bro. Cahoon) was on his knees, and his arms were extended, his hands and wrists, head, face and neck down to his shoulders were as a piece of amber,--clear and transparent, his blood having apparently left his veins. Upon the attention of the brethren being thus called to Bro. Cahoon, the change seemed to pass away and Joseph said that in a few minutes more Bro. Cahoon would have left us; but he came to himself again. The school room was in the upper room of Whitney's store. (Minutes of the School of the Prophets, Salt Lake City, Utah, 1883, LDS Church Archives, under date given.)

 APOSTLES:

An apostle is a special witness of the name of Christ who is sent to teach the principles of salvation to others. He is one who knows o the divinity of the Savior by personal revelation and who is appointed to bear testimony to the world of what the Lord has revealed to him. Every elder in the Church is or should be and apostle; that is, as a minister of the Lord and as a recipient of personal revelation from the Holy Ghost, every elder has the call to bear witness of the truth on all proper occasions. Indeed, every member of the Church should have apostolic insight and revelation, and is under obligation to raise the warning voice. (D. & C. 88:81; Mosiah 18:9.) (Mormon Doctrine p. 46-47.)

January 22, 1834 (Address by the Prophet)

As Man Approaches God He is Enlightened:

We consider that God has created man with a mind capable of instruction, and a faculty which may be enlarged in proportion to the heed and diligence given to the light communicated from heaven to the intellect; and that the nearer man approaches perfection, the clearer are his views, and the greater his enjoyments, till he has overcome the evils of his life and lost every desire for sin; and like the ancients arrives at that point of faith where he is wrapped in the power and glory of his Maker, and is caught up to dwell with Him. But we consider that this is a station to which no man ever arrived in a moment: he must have been instructed in the government and laws of that kingdom by proper degrees, until his mind is capable in some measure of comprehending the propriety, justice, equality, and consistency of the same. For further instruction we refer you to Deut. xxxii, where the Lord Says, that Jacob is the lot of his inheritance. He found him in a desert land, and in the waste, howling wilderness; He led him about, He instructed him, He kept him as the apple of His eye, etc.; which will show the force of the last item advanced, that it is necessary for men to receive an understanding concerning the laws of the heavenly kingdom, before they are permitted to enter it: we mean the celestial glory. (D. H. C., 2:8; Teachings, p. 51.)

The Faithful to Receive Celestial Rest:

Here, then, we have this part of our subject immediately before us for consideration: god has in reserve a time, or period appointed in His own bosom, when He will bring all His subjects, who have obeyed His voice and kept His commandments, into His celestial rest. This rest is of such perfection and glory, that man has need of a preparation before he can, according to the laws of that kingdom, enter it and enjoy its blessings. This being the fact, God has given certain laws to the human family, which, if observed, are sufficient to prepare them to inherit this rest. This, then, we conclude, was the purpose of God in giving His laws to us: if not, why, or for what were they given: If the whole family of man were as well off without them as they might be with them, for what purpose or intent were they ever given: Was it that God wanted to merely show that He could talk: It would be nonsense to suppose that He would condescend to talk in vain: for it would be in vain, and to no purpose whatever (if the law of God were of no benefit to man): because, all the commandments contained in the law of the Lord, have the sure promise annexed of a reward to all who obey, predicated upon the fact that they are really the promises of a Being who cannot lie, One who is abundantly able to fulfill every tittle of His word: and if man were as well prepared, or could be as well prepared, to meet God without their ever having been given in the first instance, why were they ever given: for certainly, in that case they can now do him no good. (D. H. C., 2:11-12; Teachings, p. 54.)

[Relate this concept to Elder McConkie's 1969 talk on calling and election. Would God give us baptism, celestial marriage, or calling and election unless we possessed the ability to obtain in this life...]

Those Who Are To Be Crowned Kings Must Make Their Calling and Election Sure:

In the 22nd Chapter of Luke's account of the Messiah, we find the kingdom of heaven likened unto a king who made a marriage for his son. That this son was the Messiah will not be disputed, since it was the kingdom of heaven that was represented in the parable; and that the Saints, or those who are found faithful to the Lord, are the individuals who will be found worthy to inherit a seat at the marriage supper, is evident from the sayings of John in the Revelation where he represents the sound which he heard in heaven to be like a great multitude, or like the voice of mighty thunderings, saying, the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth. Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honor to Him; for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and His wife hath made herself ready. And to her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white: For the fine linen is the righteousness of the Saints (Rev. xix).

That those who keep the commandments of the Lord and walk in His statutes to the end, are the only individuals permitted to sit at the glorious feast, is evident from the following items in Paul's last letter to Timothy, which was written just previous to his death.--he says: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love His appearing." No one who believes the account, will doubt for a moment this assertion of Paul which was made, as he knew, just before he was to take his leave of this world. Though he once, according to his own word, persecuted the Church of God and wasted it, yet after embracing the faith, his labors were unceasing to spread the glorious news: and like a faithful soldier, when called to give his life in the cause which he had espoused, he laid it down, as he says, with an assurance of an eternal crown. Follow the labors of this Apostle from the time of his conversion to the time of his death, and you will have a fair sample of industry and patience in promulgating the Gospel of Christ. Derided, whipped, and stoned, the moment he escaped the hands of his persecutors he as zealously as ever proclaimed the doctrine of the Savior. And all may know that he did not embrace the faith for honor in this life, nor for the gain of earthly goods. What, then, could have induced him to undergo all this toil? It was, as he said, that he might obtain the crown of righteousness from the hand of God. No one, we presume, will doubt the faithfulness of Paul to the end. None will say that he did not keep the faith, that he did not fight the good fight, that he did not preach and persuade to the last. and what was he to receive? A crown of righteousness. And what shall others receive who do not labor faithfully, and continue to the end? We leave such to search out their own promises if any they have; and if they have any they are welcome to them, on our part, from the Lord says that every man is to receive according to his works. Reflect for a moment, brethren, and enquire, whether you would consider yourselves worthy a seat at the marriage feast with Paul and others like him, if you had been unfaithful? Had you not fought the good fight, and kept the faith, could you expect to receive? Have you a promise of receiving a crown of righteousness from the hand of the Lord, with the Church of the Firstborn? Here then, we understand, that Paul rested his hope in Christ, because he had kept the faith, and loved His appearing and from His hand he had a promise of receiving a crown of righteousness. (D. H. C., 2:19-20; Teachings, p. 63-64.)

The Righteous Saints Will Be Crowned Kings For Eternity:

If the Saints are not to reign, for what purpose are they crowned? In the exhortation of the Lord to a certain Church in Asia, which was built up in the days of the Apostles, unto whom He communicated His word on that occasion by His servant John, He says, "Behold, I come quickly: hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown." And again "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with Me in My throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with My Father in His Throne" (see Rev. iii). And again, it is written, "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when He shall appear, we shall be like Him: for we shall se Him as He is. And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as He is pure: (1 John iii:2, 3). How is it that these old Apostles should say so much on the subject of the coming of Christ? He certainly had once come: but Paul says, To all who love His appearing, shall be given the crown: and John says, When He shall appear, we shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is. Can we mistake such language as this? Do we not offer violence to our own good judgement when we deny the second coming of the Messiah? When has He partaken of the fruit of the vine new with His ancient Apostles in His Father's kingdom, as He promised He would just before he was crucified? In Paul's epistle to the Philippians (iii:20,21) he says: "For our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ: who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto His glorious body, according to the working whereby He is able even to subdue all things unto Himself." We find another promise to individuals living in the Church at Sardis who had not defiled their garments: "And they shall walk with me in white: for they are worthy. He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before His angles." John represents the sound which he heard from heaven, as giving thanks and glory to God, saying that the Lamb was worthy to take the book and to open its seals; because he was slain, and had made them kings and priests unto God and they should reign on the earth (see Rev. v). In the 29th chapter we find a length of time specified, during which Satan is to be confined in his own place, and the Saints reign in peace, all these promises and blessings we find contained in the law of the Lord, which the righteous are to enjoy; and we might enumerate many more places were the same or similar promises are made to the faithful, but we do not deem it of importance to rehearse them here, as this epistle is now lengthy; and our brethren, no doubt, are familiar with them all. (D. H. C., 2:20-21; Teachings, p. 64-65.)

The Ancient Saints Obtained Promises / We Should Obtain the Same Promises for Ourselves:

Most assuredly it is, however, that the ancients, though persecuted and afflicted by men, obtained from God promises of such weight and glory, that our hearts are often filled with gratitude that we are even permitted to look upon them while we contemplate that there is no respect of persons in His sight, and that in every nation, he that feareth God and worketh righteousness, is acceptable with Him. But from the few items previously quoted we can draw the conclusion that there is to be a day when all will be judged of their works, and rewarded according to the same; that those who have kept the faith will be crowned with a crown of righteousness; be clothed in white raiment; be admitted to the marriage feast; be free from every affliction, and reign with Christ on the earth, where, according to the ancient promise, they will partake of the fruit of the vine new in the glorious kingdom with Him; at least we find such promises were made to the ancient Saints. And though we cannot claim these promises where were made to the ancients for they are not our property, merely because they were made to the ancient Saints, yet if we are the children of the Most High, and are called with the same calling with which they were called, and embrace the same covenant that they embraced, and are faithful to the testimony of our Lord as they were, we can approach the Father in the name of Christ as they approached Him, and for ourselves obtain the same promises. These promises, when obtained, if ever by us, will not be because Peter, John, and other Apostles, with the churches at Sardis, Pergamos, Philadelphia, and elsewhere, walked in the fear of God, and had power and faith to prevail and obtain them; but it will be because we, ourselves, have faith and approach God in the name of His Son Jesus Christ, even as they did; and when these promises are obtained, they will be promises directly to us, or they will do us no good. They will be communicated for our benefit, being our own property (through the gift of God), earned by our own diligence in keeping his commandments and walking uprightly before Him. If not, to what end serves the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, and why was it ever communicated to us? (D. H. C., 2:21-22; Teachings, p. 65-66.)

January 22, 1834 (Address by the Prophet Concluded)

Gift of Salvation [which includes all the Laws and Ordinances of the Gospel, from the least to the greatest, including the Crowning Ordinances, that of ordaining and anointing Kings and Queens, Priests and Priestesses] Should be Given by the Servants of God. This is what the whole sermon has been talking about:

The Great plan of salvation is a theme which ought to occupy our strict attention, and be regarded as one of heaven's best gifts to mankind. No consideration whatever ought to deter us from showing ourselves approved in the sight of God, according to His divine requirement. Men not unfrequently forget that they are dependent upon heaven for every blessing which they are permitted to enjoy, and that for every opportunity granted them they are to give an account. You know, brethren, that when the Master in the Savior;s parable of the stewards called his servants before him he gave them several talents to improve on while he should tarry abroad for a little season, and when he returned he called for an accounting. So it is now. Our Master is absent only for a little season, and at the end of it He will call each to render an account; and where the five talents were bestowed, ten will be required; and he that has made no improvement will be cast out as an unprofitable servant, while the faithful will enjoy everlasting honors. Therefore we earnestly implore the grace of our Father to rest upon you, through Jesus Christ His Son, that you may not faint in the hour of temptation, nor be overcome in the time of persecution. (D. H. C., 2:23-24; Teachings, p. 68.)

March 28, 1835

The [Higher or] Melchizedek Priesthood holds the right... ...to have the heavens opened unto them, to commune with the general assembly and Church of the First Born, and to enjoy the communion and presence of God the Father, and Jesus the Mediator of the new covenant. (D&C 107:8, 18-19.)

12 November 1835 [Thursday] (Address by the Prophet to the Twelve) The Prophets Discourse on the Ordinance of the Washing of feet:

This evening, at 6 o'clock, met with the Council of the Twelve, by their request. Nine of them were present. Council opened by singing and prayer. And I made some remarks as follows--

The Prophet's Remarks to the Twelve:

I am happy in the enjoyment of this opportunity of meeting with this Council on this occasion. I am satisfied that the Spirit of the Lord is here, and I am satisfied with all the brethren present; and I need not say that you have my utmost confidence, and that I intend to uphold you to the uttermost, for I am well aware that you have to sustain my character against the vile calumnies and reproaches of this ungodly generation, and that you delight in so doing.

Darkness prevail sat (sic) this time as it did at the time Jesus Christ was about to be crucified. The power of darkness strove to obscure the glorious Sun of righteousness, that began to dawn upon the world, and was soon to burst in great blessings upon the heads of the faithful: and let me tell you, brethren, that great blessings await us at this time, and will soon be poured out upon us, if we are faithful in all things, for we are even entitled to greater spiritual blessings than they were, because they had Christ in person with them, to instruct them in the great plan of salvation. His personal presence we have not, therefore we have need of greater faith, on account of our peculiar circumstances; and I am determined to do all that I can to uphold you, although I may do many things inadvertently that are not right in the sight of God. (D. H. C., 2:307-308; Teachings, p. 89-90.)

12 November 1835 [Thursday] (Address by the Prophet to the Twelve Continued) Special Ordinances:

You want to know many things that are before you, that you may know how to prepare yourselves for the great things that God is about to bring to pass. But there is one great deficiency or obstruction in the way, that deprives us of the greater blessings; and in order to make the foundation of this Church complete and permanent, we must remove this obstruction, which is, to attend to certain duties that we have not as yet attended to. I supposed I had established this Church on a permanent foundation when I went to Missouri, and indeed I did so, for if I had been taken away, it would have bee enough, but I yet live, and therefore God requires more at my hands. The item to which I wish the more particularly to call you attention to-night, is the ordiance of washing of feet. This we have not done as yet, but it is necessary now, as much as it was in the days of the Savior; and we must have a place prepared, that we may attend to this ordiance aside from the world.

We have not desired as much from the hand of the Lord through faith and obedience, as we ought to have done, yet we have enjoyed great blessings, and we are not so sensible of this as we should be. When or where has God suffered one of the witnesses or first Elders of this Church to fall? Never, and no where. Amidst all the calamities and judgments and have befallen the inhabitants of the earth, His almighty arm has sustained us, men and devils have raged and spent their malice in vain. We must have all things prepared, and call our solemn assembly as the Lord has commanded us, that we may be able to accomplish His great work, and it must be done in God's own way. The house of the Lord must be prepared, and the solemn assembly called and organized in it, according to the order of the house of God; and in it we must attend to the ordiance of washing of feet. It was never intended for any but official members. It is calculated to unite our hearts, that we may be one in feeling and sentiment, and that our faith may be strong, so that Satan cannot overthrow us, nor have any power over us here. (D. H. C., 2:308-309; Teachings, p. 90-91.)

12 November 1835 [Thursday] (Address by the Prophet to the Twelve Continued)

Order in House of God Always the Same:

The endowment you are so anxious about, you cannot comprehend now, nor could Gabriel explain it to the understanding of you dark minds; but strive to be prepared in you hearts, be faithful in all things, that when we meet in the solemn assembly, that is, when such as God shall name out of all the official members shall meet, we must be clean every whit. Let us be faithful and silent, brethren, and if God gives you a manifestation, keep it to yourselves; be watchful and prayerful, and you shall have a prelude of those joys that God will pour out on that day. Do not watch for iniquity in each other, if you do you will not get an endowment, for God will not bestow it on such [The Lord said that we should forgive all men and he would forgive whom he would forgive. In the Prayer Circle if we cannot forgive we are asked to remove ourselves until we can. This is symbolic of being asked to remove ourselves from the Celestial Kingdom until we can forgive all men]. But if we are faithful, and live by every word that proceeds for the form the mouth of God, I will venture to prophesy that we shall get a blessing that will be worth remembering, if we should live as long as John the Revelator; our blessings will be such as we have not realized before, nor received in this generation. The order of the house of God has been, and ever will be, the same, even after Christ comes; and after the termination of the thousand years it will be the same; and we shall finally enter into the celestial Kingdom of God, and enjoy it forever. (D. H. C., 2:309; Teachings 91.)

12 November 1835 [Thursday] (Address by the Prophet to the Twelve Continued)

Endowment Necessary:

You need an endowment, brethren, in order that you may be prepared and able to overcome all things; and those that reject your testimony will be damned. The sick will be healed, and the lame made to walk, and the deaf to hear, and the blind to see, through you instrumentality. But let me tell you, that you will not have power, after the endowment to heal those that have not faith, nor to benefit them, for you might as well expect to benefit a devil in hell as such as are possessed of his spirit, and are willing to keep it; for they are habitations for devils, and only fit for his society. But when you are endowed and prepared to preach the Gospel to all nations, kindreds, and tongues, in their own languages, you must faithfully warn all, and bind up the testimony, and seal up the law, and the destroying angel will follow close at you heels, and exercise his tremendous mission upon the children of disobedience; and destroy the workers of iniquity, while the Saints will be gathered out from among them, and stand in holy places ready to meet the Bridegroom when he comes.

I feel disposed to speak a few words more to you, my brethren, concerning the endowment: All who are prepared, and are sufficiently pure to abide the presence of the Savior, will see Him in the solemn assembly.

The brethren expressed their gratification for the instruction I had given them. We then closed by prayer, when I returned home and retired to rest. (D. H. C., 2:309-310; Teachings, p. 91-92.)

20 January 1836

Wednesday, 20.--Attended school at the usual hour, and spent the day in reading and lecturing, and made some advancement in our studies.

In the evening I attended a matrimonial occasion with my family, at Mr. John Johnson's, having been invited to join Elder John F. Boynton and Miss Susan Lowell in marriage; a large and respectable company assembled, and were seated by Elders Orson Hyde and Warren Parrish, in the following order--The Presidency and their companions in the first seats, the Twelve Apostles in the second, the Seventy in the third, and the remainder of the congregation seated with their companions. Elder Boynton and lady, with their attendants, came in and were seated in front of the Presidency. A hymn was sung, after which I addressed the throne of grace. I then arose and read aloud a license, (according to the law of the land) granting any minister of the Gospel the privilege of solemnizing the rights of matrimony, and after calling for objection, if any there were, against the anticipated alliance between Elder Boynton and Miss Lowell; after waiting a sufficient time and hearing no objection, I observed that all forever after this must hold their peace. I then invited them to join hands. I pronounced the ceremony, according to the rules and regulations of the Church of the Latter-day Saints, in the name of God, and in the name of Jesus Christ. I pronounced upon them the blessings of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and such other blessings as the Lord put into my heart; and being much under the influence of a cold, I then gave way, and President Rigdon arose and delivered a very forcible address, suited to the occasion, and closed the services of the evening by prayer.

Elders Orson Hyde, Luke S. Johnson, and Warren Parrish, then presented the Presidency with three servers of glasses filled with wine, to bless. And it fell to my lot to attend to this duty, which I cheerfully discharged. It was then passed round in order, then the cake in the same order; and suffice it to say, our hearts were made glad while partaking of the bounty of earth which was presented, until we had taken our fill; and joy filled every bosom, and the countenances of old and young seemed to bloom alike with cheerfulness and smiles of youth; and an entire unison of feeling seemed to pervade the congregation, and indeed I doubt whether the pages of history can boast of a more splendid and innocent wedding and feast than this, for it was conducted after the order of heaven, which has a time for all things; and this being a time of rejoicing, we heartily embraced it and conducted ourselves accordingly. Took leave of the company and returned home. (D. H. C., 2:377.)

21 January 1836

On the twenty-first of January, 1836, the First Presidency, and a number of the presiding brethren in the Church, assembled in the Kirtland Temple where they engaged in the ordinances of the endowment, as far as it had at that time been revealed (Teachings, p. 106):

Thursday, 21.--This morning, a minister from Connecticut, by the name of John W. Olived, called at my house and inquired of my father: "Does the Prophet live here?" My father replied he did not understand him. Mr. Olived asked the same question again and again, and received the same answer. He finally asked: "Does Mr. Smith live here?" Father replied: "O yes, sir, I understand you now." Father then stepped into my room and informed me that a gentleman had called to see me. I went into the room where he was, and the first question he asked me, after passing a compliment was: "How many members have you in your Church?" I replied that we had between fifteen hundred and two thousand in this branch. He then asked: "Wherein do you differ from other Christian denominations?: I replied, that we believed the Bible, and they do not. However, he affirmed that he believed the Bible. I told him then to be baptized. He replied that he did not realize it to be his duty. But when I laid before him the principles of the Gospel, viz: faith and repentance; baptism, for the remission of sins; and the laying on of hands, for the reception of the Holy Ghost, he manifested much surprise. I observed that the hour for school had arrived, and I must attend. The man appeared astonished at our doctrine, but by no means hostile.

About three o'clock, p.m., I dismissed the school, and the Presidency retired to the attic story of the printing office, where we attended the ordinance of washing our bodies in pure water. We also perfumed our bodies and our heads, in the name of the Lord.

At early candle-light I met with the presidency at the west school room in the Temple, to attend to the ordinance of anointing the heads with holy oil; also the Councils of Kirtland and Zion met in the two adjoining rooms, and waited in prayer while we attended to the ordiance. I took the oil in my left hand, Father Smith being seated before me, and the remainder of the Presidency encircled him round about. We then stretched our right hands towards heaven, and blessed the oil, and consecrated it in the name of Jesus Christ.

We then laid our hands upon our aged Father Smith, and invoked the blessings of heaven. I then anointed his head with the consecrated oil, and sealed many blessings upon him. The beginning at the oldest, until they had all laid their hands upon him, and pronounced such blessings upon his head, as the Lord put into their hearts, all blessing him to be our Patriarch, to anoint our heads, and attend to all duties that pertain to that office. The Presidency then took the seat in their turn, according to their age, beginning at the oldest, and received their anointing and blessing under the hands of Father Smith. And in my turn, my father anointed my head, and sealed upon me the blessings of Moses, to lead Israel in the latter days, even as Moses led him in days of old; also the blessings of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. All of the Presidency laid their hands upon me, and pronounced upon my head many prophecies and blessings, many of which I shall not notice at this time. But as Paul said, so say I, let us come to visions and revelations. (D. H. C. 2:378-380.)

Vision of the Celestial Kingdom by Joseph Smith:

The heavens were opened upon us, and I beheld the celestial kingdom of God, and the glory thereof, whether in the body or out I cannot tell. I saw the transcendent beauty of the gate through which the heirs of that kingdom will enter, which was like unto circling flames of fire; also the blazing throne of God, whereon was seated the Father and the Son. I saw the beautiful streets of that kingdom, which had the appearance of being paved with gold. I saw Fathers Adam and Abraham, and my father and mother, my brother, Alvin, that has long since slept, and marvelled how it was that he had obtained an inheritance in that kingdom, seeing that he had departed this life before the Lord had set His hand to gather Israel the second time, and had not been baptized for the remission of sins.

Thus came the voice of the Lord unto me, saying-- (D. H. C., 2:380; Teachings, p. 107.)

Revelation

All who have died without a knowledge of this Gospel, who would have received it if they had been permitted to tarry, shall be heirs of the celestial kingdom of God; also all that shall die henceforth without a knowledge of it, who would have received it with all their hearts, shall be heirs of that kingdom, for I, the Lord, will judge all men according to their works, according to the desire of their hearts.

And I also beheld that all children who die before they arrive at the years of accountability, are saved in the celestial kingdom of heaven. (D. H. C., 2:380-381; Teachings, p. 107.)

Vision of the Apostles:

I saw the Twelve Apostles of the Lamb, who are now upon the earth, who hold the keys of this last ministry, in foreign lands, standing together in a circle, much fatigued, with their cloths tattered and feet swollen, with their eyes cast downward, and Jesus standing in their midst, and they did not behold Him. The Savior looked upon them and wept. (D. H. C. 2:381; Teachings, p. 107.)

The Prophet's Vision of the Twelve:

I also beheld Elder M'Lellin in the south, standing upon a hill, surrounded by a vast multitude, preaching to them, and a lame man standing before him supported by his crutches; he threw them down at his word and leaped as a heart, by the mighty power of God. Also, I saw Elder Brigham Young standing in a strange land, in the far south and west, in a desert place, upon a rock in the midst of about a dozen men of color, who appeared hostile. He was preaching to them in their own tongue, and the angel of God standing above his head, with a drawn sword in his hand, protecting him, but he did not see it. And I finally saw the Twelve in the celestial kingdom of God. I also beheld the redemption of Zion, and many things which the tongue of man cannot describe in full. (D. H. C., 2:381; Teachings, p. 108.)

Many of my brethren who received the ordiance with me saw glorious visions also. Angels ministered unto them as well as to myself, and the power of the Highest rested upon us, the house was filled with the glory of God, and we shouted Hosanna to God and the Lamb. My scribe also received his anointing with us, and saw, in a vision, the armies of heaven protecting the Saints in their return to Zion, and many things which I saw.

The Bishop of Kirtland with his Counselors, and the Bishop of Zion with his Counselors, were present with us, and received their anointings under the hands of Father Smith, and this was confirmed by the Presidency, and the glories of heaven were unfolded to them also. We then invited the High Councilors of Kirtland and Zion into our room, and President Hyrum Smith anointed the head of the President of the Councilors in Kirtland, and President David Whitmer the head of the President of the Councilors of Zion. The President of each quorum then anointed the heads of his colleagues, each in his turn, beginning at the oldest.

The visions of heaven were opened to them also. Some of them saw the face of the Savior, and others were ministered unto by holy angels, and the spirit of prophecy and revelation was poured out in mighty power; and loud hosannas, and glory to God in the highest, saluted the heavens, for we all communed with the heavenly host. And I saw in my vision all of the Presidency of the celestial kingdom of God, and many others that were present. Our meeting was opened by singing, and prayer was offered upon by the head of each quorum; and closed by singing, and invoking the benediction of heaven, with uplifted hands. Retired between one and two o'clock in the morning. (D. H. C., 2:381-382.)

22 January 1836

Friday 22.--Attending at the school room at the usual hour, but instead of pursuing our studies, we spent the time in rehearsing to each other the glorious scenes that occurred on the preceding evening, while attending to the ordiance of holy anointing.

In the evening we met at the same place, with the Council of the Twelve, and the Presidency of the Seventy, who where to receive this ordinance [of anointing and blessing]. The High Councils of Kirtland and Zion were present also.

After calling to order and organizing, the Presidency proceeded to consecrate the oil.

We then laid our hands upon Elder Thomas B. Marsh, who is President of the Twelve, and ordained him to the authority of anointing his brethren. I then poured the consecrated oil upon his head, in the name of Jesus Christ, and sealed such blessings upon him as the Lord put into my heart. The rest of the Presidency then laid their hands upon him and blessed him, each in his turn, beginning at the oldest. He then anointed and blessed his brethren from the oldest to the youngest. I also laid my hands upon them, and pronounced many great and glorious things upon their heads. The heavens were opened, and angels ministered unto us.

The Twelve then proceeded to anoint and bless the Presidency of the Seventy, and seal upon their heads power and authority to anoint their brethren.

The heavens were opened unto Elder Sylvester Smith, and he, leaping up, exclaimed: "The horsemen of Israel and the chariots thereof."

Brother Don C. Smith was also anointed and blessed to preside over the High Priests' quorum.

President Rigdon arose to conclude the service of the evening by invoking the blessing of heaven upon the Lord's anointed, which he did in an eloquent manner; the congregation shouted a long hosanna: the gift of tongues fell upon us in mighty power, angels mingled their voices with ours, while their presence was in our midst, and unceasing praises swelled our bosoms for the space of half-an-hour. I Then observed to the brethren, than it was time to retire. We accordingly closed our interview and returned home at about two o'clock in the morning, and the Spirit and visions of God attended me through the night. (H. C., Vol. 2:382-383.)

[Notice some things in these blessings:

[1] Consecrated the oil
[2] Anointed & Blessed what was in heart-and then
[3] Sealed Blessings and Anointings]

28 January 1836

Thursday, 28.--Attended school at the usual hour. In the evening met the quorum of High Priests, in the west room of the upper loft of the Lord's house [Kirtland], and in anointed the counselors of the presidents of the High Priests' quorum, and, having instructed them and set the quorum in order, I left them to perform the holy anointing, and went to the quorum of Elders at the other end of the room. I assisted in anointing the counselors of the president of the Elders, and gave the instruction necessary for the occasion, and left the president and his counselors to anoint the Elders, while I should go to the adjoining room, and attend to organizing and instructing the quorum of the Seventy.

I found the Twelve Apostles assembled with this quorum, and I proceeded, with the quorum of the Presidency, to instruct them, and also the seven presidents of the Seventy Elders, to call upon God with up-lifted hands, to seal the blessings which had been promised to them by the holy anointing. As I organized this quorum, with the presidency in this room, President Sylvester Smith saw a pillar of fire rest down and abide upon the heads of the quorum, as we stood in the midst of the Twelve.

When the Twelve and the seven presidents were through with their sealing prayer, I called upon President Sidney Rigdon to seal them with uplifted hands; and when he had done this, and cried hosanna, that all the congregation should join him, and shout hosanna to God and the Lamb, and glory to God in the highest. It was done so, and Elder Roger Orton saw a mighty angel riding upon a hose of fire, with a flaming sword in his hand, followed by five others, encircled the house, and protect the Saints, even the Lord's anointed, from the power of Satan and a host of evil spirits, which were striving to disturb the Saints.

President William Smith, one of the Twelve, saw the Heavens opened, and the Lord's host protecting the Lord's anointed.

President Zebedee Coltrin, one of the seven presidents of the Seventy, saw the Savior extended before him, as upon the cross, and a little after, crowned with glory upon his head above the brightness of the sun.

After these things were over, and a glorious vision, which I saw, had passed, I instructed the seven presidents to proceed and anoint the Seventy, and returned to the room of the High Priests and Elders, and attended to the sealing of what they had done, with up-lifted hands.

The Lord assisted my brother, Don Carlos, the president of the High Priests, to go forward with the anointing of the High Priests, so that he had performed it to the acceptance of the Lord, notwithstanding he was very young and inexperienced in such duties; and I felt to praise God with a lord hosanna, for His goodness to me and my father's family, and to all the children of men. Praise the Lord, all ye, His Saints, praise His holy name.

After these quorums were dismissed, I retired to my home, filled with the Spirit, and my soul cried hosanna to God and the Lamb, through the silent watches of the night; and while my eyes were closed in sleep, the visions of the Lord were sweet unto me, and His glory was round about me. Praise the Lord. (D. H. C., 2:386-387.)

6 February 1836

Saturday, 6.--Called the anointed together to receive the seal of all their blessings. The High Priests and Elders in the council room as usual, the Seventy with the Twelve in the second room, and the Bishops in the third. I labored with each of these quorums for some time to bring them to the order which God had shown to me, which is as follows: The first part to be spent in solemn prayer before God, without any talking or confusion; and the conclusion with a sealing prayer by President Rigdon, when all the quorums were to shout with one accord a solemn hosanna to God and the Lamb, with an Amen, Amen and Amen; and then all take seats and lift up their hearts in silent prayer to God, and if any obtain a prophecy or vision, to rise and speak that all may be edified and rejoice together.

I had considerable trouble to get all the quorums united in this order. I went from room to room repeatedly, and charged each separately, assuring them that it was according to the mind of God, yet, notwithstanding all my labor, while I was in the east room with the Bishops' quorum, I felt, by the Spirit, that something was wrong in the quorum of Elders in the west room, and I immediately requested Presidents Oliver Cowdery and Hyrum Smith to go in and see what was the matter. The quorum of Elders had not observed the order which I had given them, and were reminded of it by President Don Carlos Smith, and mildly requested to preserve order, and continue in prayer. Some of them replied that they had a teacher of their own, and did not wish to be troubled by others. This caused the Spirit of the Lord to withdraw; this interrupted the meeting, and this quorum lost their blessing in a great measure.

The other quorums were more careful, and the quorum of the Seventy enjoyed a great flow of the Holy Spirit. Many arose and spoke, testifying that they were filled with the Holy Ghost, which was like fire in their bones, so that they could not hold their peace, but were constrained to cry hosanna to God and the Lamb, and glory in the highest.

President William Smith, one of the Twelve, saw a vision of the Twelve, and Seven in council together, in old England, and prophesied that a great work would be done by them in the old countries, and God was already beginning to work in the hearts of the people.

President Zebedee Coltrin, one of the Seven, saw a vision of the Lord's host. And others were filled with the Spirit, and spake with tongues and prophesied. This was a time of rejoicing long to be remembered. Praise the Lord. (D. H. C., Vol. 2:391-392.)

27 March 1836

Sentence of the Kirtland Temple dedicatory prayer offered by Joseph Smith March 27, 1836.

Let the anointing of Thy ministers be sealed upon them with power from on high;
And let these Thine anointed ones be clothed with salvation, and Thy Saints shout aloud for joy. Amen and amen. (D. H. C., Vol. 2:422, 426.)

March 27, 1836

From the Dedicatory Prayer of the Kirtland Temple:

|v35 Let the anointing of they ministers be sealed upon them with power form on high.
|v80 And let these, thine anointed ones, be clothed with salvation, and thy saints shout aloud for joy. Amen, and Amen.
(D&C: Section 109:35, 80)

March 27, 1836

The Spirit of God Like a fire is burning!
The latter-day glory begins to come forth;
The visions and blessings of old are returning,
The angels are coming to visit the earth.

We'll sing and we'll shout with the armies of heaven--
Hosanna, hosanna to God and the Lamb!
Let glory to them in the highest be given,
Henceforth and forever: amen and amen.

The Lord is extending the Saints' understanding,
Restoring their judges and all as at first;
The knowledge and power of God are expanding;
The veil o'ver the earth is beginning to burst.
We'll sing and we'll shou (sic), etc.

We'll call in our solemn assemblies in spirit,
To spread for the kingdom of heaven abroad,
That we through our faith may begin in inherit
The visions and blessings and glories of God.
We'll sing and we'll shout, etc.

We'll wash and be washed, and with oil be anointed,
Withal not omitting the washing of feet;
For he that receiveth his penny appointed
Must surely be clean at the harvest of wheat.
We'll sing and we'll shout, etc.
(D. H. C., vol. 2:426.)
1836

When the Prophet Joseph had finished the endowments of the First Presidency, the Twelve and the Presiding Bishops, the First Presidency proceeded to lay hands upon each one of them to seal and confirm the anointing; and at the close of close of each blessing the whole of the quorums responded to it wit a loud shout of Hosanna! Hosanna! etc. (Life of Heber C. Kimball, by Orson F. Whitney p. 100-106; Temples of the Most High 9th ed., p. 29.)

29, 30 March 1836

THE ORDIANCE OF WASHING OF FEET

Tuesday, 29.-- ...Accordingly we proceeded cleanse our faces and our feet, and then proceeded to wash one another's feet. President Sidney Rigdon first washed President Joseph Smith, Junior's feet, and then, in turn, was washed by him; after which President Rigdon washed President Joseph Smith, Sen., and Hyrum Smith. President Joseph Smith, Jun., washed President Frederick G. Williams, and then President Hyrum Smith washed President David Whitmer's and President Oliver Cowdery's feet. Then President David Whitmer washed President William W. Phelps' feet, and in turn President Phelps washed President John Whitmer's feet. The Bishops and their Counselors were then washed, after which we partook of the bread and wine. The Holy Spirit rested down upon us, and we continued in the Lord's House all night, prophesying and giving glory to God. [When Abraham was given the Fulness of the Priesthood they partook bread and wine???]

Wednesday, 30.--At eight o'clock, according to appointment, the Presidency, the Twelve, the Seventies, the High Council, the Bishops and their entire quorums, the Elders and all the official members in this stake of Zion, amounting to about three hundred, met in the Temple of the Lord attend to the ordiance of washing of feet. I ascended the pulpit, had passed through many trials and afflictions since the organization of the Church, and that this is a year of jubilee to us, and a time of rejoicing, and that it was expedient for us to prepare bread and wine sufficient to make our hearts glad, as we should not, probably, leave this house until morning; to this end we should call on the brethren to make a contribution. The stewards passed round and took up a liberal contribution, and messengers were despatched for bread and wine.

Tubs, water, and towels were prepared, and I called the house to order, and the Presidency proceeded to wash the feet of the Twelve, pronouncing many prophecies and blessings upon them in the name of the Lord Jesus; and then the Twelve proceeded to wash the feet of the presidents of the several quorums. The brethren began to prophesy upon each other's heads, and upon the enemies of Christ, who inhabited Jackson county, Missouri; and continued prophesying, and blessing, and sealing them with hosanna and amen, until nearly seven o'clock in the evening.

The bread and the wine were then brought in, and I observed that we had fasted all the day, and lest we faint, as the Savior did so shall we do on this occasion; we shall bless the bread, and give it to the Twelve, and they to the multitude. [Great for ward conference's.] (H. C., Vol. 2:429-431.)

|v17 For he received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.
|v18 And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with him in the holy mount.
|v19 We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day star arise in your hearts:
(NewT:2 Peter 1:17-19)

|v13 In whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation: in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise,
|v14 Which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory.
(NewT:Ephesians 1:13-14)

1836 [Speaking of the Kirtland Temple]

When the Prophet Joseph had finished the endowments of the First Presidency, the Twelve and the Presiding Bishops, the First Presidency proceeded to lay hands upon each one of them to seal and confirm the anointing; and at the close of each blessing the whole of the quorums responded to it with a loud shout of Hosanna! Hosanna! etc. (Life of Heber C. Kimball, by Orson F. Whitney, pp. 100-6; Temples of the Most High, N. B. Lundwall, ninth ed. 1954, p. 29.)

27 June 1839

The Prophet's instruction on the Doctrine of Election:

The Doctrine of Election. St. Paul exhorts us to make our calling and election sure. This is the sealing power spoken of by Paul in other places.

"13. In whom ye also trusted, that after ye heard the word of truth, the Gospel of your salvation: in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that Holy Spirit of promise,

"14. Which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of His glory, that we may be sealed up unto the day of redemption."--Ephesians, 1st chapter.

This principle ought (in its proper place) to be taught, for God hath not revealed anything to Joseph, but what He will make known unto the Twelve, and even the least Saint may know all things as fast as he is able to bear them, for the day must come when no man need say to his neighbor, Know ye the Lord; for all shall know Him (who remain) from the least to the greatest. How is this to be done? It is to be done by this sealing power, and the other Comforter spoken of, which will be manifest by revelation. (D. H. C., 3:379; Teachings, p. 149.)

The Two Comforters:

There are two Comforters spoken of. One is the Holy Ghost, the same as given on the day of Pentecost, and that all Saints receive after faith, repentance, and baptism. This first Comforter or Holy Ghost has no other effect than pure intelligence. It is more powerful in expanding the mind, enlightening the understanding, and storing the intellect with present knowledge, of a man who is of the literal seed of Abraham, than one that is a Gentile, though it may not have half as much visible effect upon the body; for as the Holy Ghost falls upon one of the literal seed of Abraham, it is calm and serene; and his whole soul and body are only exercised by the pure spirit of intelligence; while the effect of the Holy Ghost upon a Gentile, is to purge out the old blood, and make him actually of the seed of Abraham. That man that has none of the blood of Abraham (naturally) must have a new creation by the Holy Ghost. In such a case, there may be more of a powerful effect upon the body, and visible to the eye, than upon an Israelite, while the Israelite at first might be far before the Gentile in pure intelligence. (D. H. C., 3:379-380; Teachings, p. 150-151.)

The Second Comforter:

The other Comforter spoken of is a subject of great interest, and perhaps understood by few of this generation. After a person has faith in Christ, repents of his sins, and is baptized for the remission of his sins and receives the Holy Ghost, (by the laying on of hands), which is the first Comforter, then let him continue to humble himself before God, hungering and thirsting after righteousness, and living by every word of God, and the Lord will soon say unto him, Son, thou shalt be exalted. When the Lord has thoroughly proved him, and finds that the man is determined to serve Him at all hazards, then the man will find his calling and his election made sure, then it will be his privilege to receive the other Comforter, which the Lord hath promised the Saints, as is recorded in the testimony of St. John, in the 14th chapter, from the 12th to the 27th verses.

Note the 16, 17, 18, 21, 23 verses:

"16. And I will pray the Father, and He shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever;

"17. Even the Spirit of Truth; whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him; but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you.

"18. I will not leave you comfortless: I will come to you.

"21. He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him.

"23. If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him."

Now what is this other Comforter? It is no more nor less that the Lord Jesus Christ Himself: and this is the sum and substance of the whole matter; that when any man obtains this last Comforter, he will have the personage of Jesus Christ to attend him, or appear unto him from time to time, and even He will manifest the Father unto him, and they will take up their abode with him, and the visions of the heavens will be opened unto him, and the Lord will teach him face to face, and he may have a perfect knowledge of the mysteries of the kingdom of God; and this is the state and place the ancient Saints arrived at when they had such glorious visions--Isaiah, Ezekiel, John upon the Isle of Patmos, St. Paul in the three heavens, and all the Saints who held communion with the general assembly and Church of the First Born. (D. H. C., 3:380-381; Teachings, p. 150-151.)

27 June 1839 (The Prophet's instruction on the Doctrine of Election Continued)

The Spirit of Revelation:

THE SPIRIT OF REVELATION is in connection with these blessings. A person may profit by noticing the first intimation of the spirit of revelation; for instance, when you feel pure intelligence flowing into you, it may give you sudden strokes of ideas, so that by noticing it, you may find it fulfilled the same day or soon; (i. e.) those things that were presented unto your minds by the Spirit of God, will come to pass; and thus by learning the Spirit of God and understanding it, you may grow into the principle of revelation, until you become perfect in Christ Jesus. (D. H. C., Vol. 3:381; Teachings, p. 151.)

Many Are Called and Elected, But Few are Chosen To Be Crowned For Eternity--
Few Are Chosen and Anointed Kings in Eternity:

|v26 God shall give unto you knowledge by his Holy Spirit, yea, by the unspeakable gift of the Holy Ghost, that has not been revealed since the world was until now;
|v27 Which our forefathers have awaited with anxious expectation to be revealed in the last times, which their minds were pointed to by the angels, as held in reserve for the fulness of their glory;
|v28 A time to come in the which nothing shall be withheld, whether there be one God or many gods, they shall be manifest.
|v29 All thrones and dominions, principalities and powers, shall be revealed and set forth upon all who have endured valiantly for the gospel of Jesus Christ.

|v30 And also, if there be bounds set to the heavens or to the seas, or to the dry land, or to the sun, moon, or stars--
|v31 All the times of their revolutions, all the appointed days, months, and years, and all the days of their days, months, and years, and all their glories, laws, and set times, shall be revealed in the days of the dispensation of the fulness of times--
|v32 According to that which was ordained in the midst of the Council of the Eternal God of all other gods before this world was, that should be reserved unto the finishing and the end thereof, when every man shall enter into his eternal presence and into his immortal rest.
|v33 How long can rolling waters remain impure? What power shall stay the heavens? As well might man stretch forth his puny arm to stop the Missouri river in its decreed course, or to turn it up stream, as to hinder the Almighty from pouring down knowledge from heaven upon the heads of the Latter-day Saints.
|v34 Behold, there are many called, but few are chosen. And why are they not chosen?
|v35 Because their hearts are set so much upon the things of this world, and aspire to the honors of men, that they do not learn this one lesson--
|v36 That the rights of the priesthood are inseparably connected with the powers of heaven, and that the powers of heaven cannot be controlled nor handled only upon the principles of righteousness.
|v37 That they may be conferred upon us, it is true; but when we undertake to cover our sins, or to gratify our pride, our vain ambition, or to exercise control or dominion or compulsion upon the souls of the children of men, in any degree of unrighteousness, behold, the heavens withdraw themselves; the Spirit of the Lord is grieved; and when it is withdrawn, Amen to the priesthood or the authority of that man.
|v38 Behold, ere he is aware, he is left unto himself, to kick against the pricks, to persecute the saints, and to fight against God.
|v39 We have learned by sad experience that it is the nature and disposition of almost all men, as soon as they get a little authority, as they suppose, they will immediately begin to exercise unrighteous dominion.
|v40 Hence many are called, but few are chosen.
|v41 No power or influence can or ought to be maintained by virtue of the priesthood, only by persuasion, by long-suffering, by gentleness and meekness, and by love unfeigned;
|v42 By kindness, and pure knowledge, which shall greatly enlarge the soul without hypocrisy, and without guile--
|v43 Reproving betimes with sharpness, when moved upon by the Holy Ghost; and then showing forth afterwards an increase of love toward him whom thou hast reproved, lest he esteem thee to be his enemy;
|v44 That he may know that thy faithfulness is stronger than the cords of death.
|v45 Let thy bowels also be full of charity towards all men, and to the household of faith, and let virtue garnish thy thoughts unceasingly; then shall thy confidence wax strong in the presence of God; and the doctrine of the priesthood shall distil upon thy soul as the dews from heaven.
|v46 The Holy Ghost shall be thy constant companion, and thy scepter an unchanging scepter of righteousness and truth; and thy dominion shall be an everlasting dominion, and without compulsory means it shall flow unto thee forever and ever.

(D&C: Section 121:26-46)

The doctrine of the Resurrection of the Dead & Eternal Judgment are necessary to preach among the first principles of the gospel of Jesus Christ.--

The Doctrine of Election

St Paul exhorts us to make our Calling & Election shure (sic). This is that sealing power spoken of by Paul in other places (see Eph I. 13.14. In whom ye also trusted, that after ye heard the work of truth; were sealed with that Holy Spirit of promise. Which is the earnest of our inheritance, until the redemption of the purchased possession unto the praise of his glory.) That we may be sealed up unto the day of redemption, this principle ought. (in its proper place) to be taught, for God hath not revealed any thing to Joseph, but what he will make known unto the Twelve & even the least Saint may know all things as fast as he is able to--bear then. for the day must come when no man need say to his neighbor know ye the lord for all shall know him (who Remain) from the least to the greatest, [Teachings, p. 149; Jer 31:31-36; Heb. 8:10] How is this to be done? It is to be done by this [1] sealing power & [2] the other comforter spoken of which will be manifest by Revelation.

...When the Lord has thoroughly proved him & finds that the man is determined to serve him at all hazard. then the man will find his calling & Election made sure then it will be his privilege to receive the other Comforter which the Lord hath promised the saints as is recorded in the testimony of St John in the XIV ch from the 12th to the 27 verses Note the 16. 17. 18. 21. 23. verses. (TWOJS, p. 4-5.)

July 2, 1839 (The Prophet's Address to the Twelve)

The Prophet on Priesthood:

The Priesthood was first given to Adam; he obtained the First Presidency, and held the keys of it from generation to generation. He obtained it in the Creation, before the world was formed, as in Genesis 1:26, 27, 28. He had dominion given him over every living creature. He is Michael the Archangel, spoken of in the Scriptures. Then to Noah, who is Gabriel; he stands next in authority to Adam in the Priesthood; he was called of God to this office, and was the father of all living in this day, and to him was given the dominion. These men held keys first on the earth, and then in heaven. (D. H. C., Vol., 3:385-386; Teachings, p. 157.)

July 2, 1839 (The Prophet's Address to the Twelve Continued)

Priesthood Everlasting:

The Priesthood is an everlasting principle, and existed with God from eternity, and will to eternity, without beginning of days or years. The keys have to be brought from heaven whenever the Gospel is sent. When they are revealed from heaven, it is by Adam's authority. (D. H. C., Vol., 3:386; Teachings, p. 157.)

July 2, 1839 (The Prophet's Address to the Twelve Continued)

Adam the Oldest Man:

Daniel in his seventh chapter speaks of the Ancient of Days; he means the oldest man, our Father Adam, Michael, he will call his children together and hold a council with them to prepare them fro the coming of the Son of Man. He (Adam) is the father of the human family, and presides over the spirits of all men, and all that have had the keys must stand before him in this grand council. This may take place before some of us leave this stage of action. The Son of Man stands before him, and there is given him glory and dominion. Adam delivers up his stewardship to Christ, that which was delivered to him as holding the keys of the universe, but retains his standing as head of the human family. [In other words, those who hold the Keys are Proxie King of kings, and Lord of Lords and stand in his place. Adam will Give up standing in the place of Christ, and will deliver this up to the Savior Himself. But by virtue of being the first man will remain the King of Kings and Lord of Lords over his posterity directly under the Savior. The Savior at the end of the Millennium will deliver up the Keys unto his Father and the Father will stand as the King of Kings and Lord of Lords directly under his Father, as Christ stands directly under his Father; as we are all adopted into family of Christ through the Atonement and Resurrection.] (D. H. C., Vol., 3:386-387; Teachings, p. 157.)

July 2, 1839 (The Prophet's Address to the Twelve Continued)

The Spirit of Man:

The spirit of man is not a created being; it existed from eternity, and will exist to eternity. Anything created cannot be eternal; and earth, water, etc., had their existence in an elementary state, from eternity. Our Savior speaks of children and says, Their angels always stand before my Father. The Father called all spirits before Him at the creation of man, and organized them. He (Adam) is the head, and was told t multiply. The keys were first given to him, and by him to others. He will have to give an account of his stewardship, and they to him. (D. H. C., Vol. 3:387; Teachings, p. 158.)

July 2, 1839 (The Prophet's Address to the Twelve Continued)

Keys Given to Peter, James and John:

The Priesthood is everlasting. The Savior, Moses, and Elias, gave the keys to Peter, James and JOhn, on the mount, when they were transfigured before him. The Priesthood is everlasting--without beginning of days and end of years; without father, mother, etc. If there is no change of ordinances, there is no change of Priesthood. Wherever the ordinances of the Gospel are administered, there is the Priesthood. (D. H. C., Vol. 3:387; Teachings, p. 158.)

July 2, 1839 (The Prophet's Address to the Twelve Continued)

Descent of Priesthood:

How have we come at the Priesthood in the last days? It came down, down, in regular succession. Peter, James, and John had it given to them and they gave it to others. Christ is the Great High Priest; Adam next. Paul speaks of the Church coming an innumerable company of angels--to God the Judge of all--the spirits of just men made perfect; to Jesus the Mediator of the new covenant. (Hebrews 12:23.)

I saw Adam in the valley of Adam-ondi-Ahman. He called together his children and blessed them with a patriarchal blessing. The Lord appeared in their midst, and he (Adam) blessed them all, and foretold what should befall them to the latest generation.

This is why adam blessed his posterity; he wanted to bring them into the presence of God.

> Three years previous to the death of Adam, he called Seth, Enos, Cainan, Mahalaleel, Jared, Enoch, and Methuselah, who were all high priests, with the residue of his posterity who were righteous, into the valley of Adam-ondi-ahman, and there bestowed upon them his last blessing [the patriarchal sealing blessing, the last blessing meaning the sealing, the fulness of the priesthood, the passing on of the keys of the first presidency, see D&C 107:42]. And the Lord appeared unto them, and they rose up and blessed Adam, and called him Michael, the prince, the archangel. And the Lord administered comfort unto Adam, and said unto him: I have set thee to be at the head; a multitude of nations shall come of thee, and thou art a prince over them forever. And Adam stood up in the midst of the congregation; and, notwithstanding he was bowed down with age, being full of the Holy Ghost, predicted whatsoever should befall his posterity unto the latest generation. These things were all written in the book of Enoch, and are to be testified of in due time. (D&C 107:53-57.)

They looked for a city, etc., "whose builder and maker is God." (Hebrews 11:10.) Moses sought to bring the children of Israel into the presence of God, through the power of the Priesthood, but he could not. In the first ages of the world they tried to establish the same thing; and there were Eliases raised up who tried to restore these very glories, but did not obtain them; but they prophesied of a day when this glory would be revealed. Paul spoke of the dispensation of the fulness of times, when God would gather together all things in one, etc.; and those men to whom these keys have been given, will have to be there; and they without us cannot be made perfect.

These men are in heaven, but their children are on the earth. Their bowels yearn over us. [My Vision of Joseph Smith in the City Eternal. Lynn Ferrin's Vision of Joseph Smith pouring and grieving over the those name's not contained in the Lambs book of Life. My Vision of Christ before the Spirits in prison with his bowels yearning over those there who were asking him for the fulness of the priesthood.] God sends down men for this reason. "And the Son of Man shall send forth Hid angels, and they shall gather out of His kingdom all things that give offense and them that do iniquity." (Matthew 13:41.) All these authoritative characters will come down and join hand in hand in bringing about this work.

We Cannot Be Perfect Without Our Dead:

The Kingdom of Heaven is like a grain of mustard seed. The mustard seed is small, but brings forth a large tree, and the fowls lodge in the branches. The fowls are the angles. Thus angels come down, combine together to gather their children, and gather them. We cannot be made perfect without them, nor they without us; when these things are done [people have been perfected, received the fulness of the Priesthood] the Son of Man will descend, the Ancient of Days sit; we may come to an innumerable company of angels, have communion with and receive instructions from them; Paul told about Moses' proceedings; spoke of the children of Israel being baptized. (I Cor. 10:1-4.) He knew this, and that all the ordinances and blessings were in the Church. Paul had these things, and we may have the fowls of heaven lodge in the branches, etc.

The "Horn" made war with the Saints and overcame them, until the Ancient of Days came; judgment was given to the Saints of the Most High from the Ancient of Days; the time came that the Saints possessed the Kingdom. This not only makes us ministers here, but in eternity. (D. H. C., Vol. 3:389; Teachings, p. 159.)

July 2, 1839 (The Prophet's Address to the Twelve Continued)

No Salvation Without Revelation:

Salvation cannot come without revelation [More sure word of Prophecy]; it is in vain for anyone to minister without it. No man is a minister of Jesus Christ without being a Prophet. No man can be a minister of Jesus Christ except he has the testimony of Jesus; and this is the spirit of prophecy. Whenever salvation has been administered, it has been by testimony. Men of the present time testify of heaven and hell, and have never see either; and I will say that no man knows these things without this. (D. H. C., Vol. 3:389-390; Teachings, p. 160.)

Hearts of Children Turn to Fathers:

The hearts of the children of men will have to be turned to the fathers, and the fathers to the children, living or dead, to prepare them for the coming of the Son of Man. If Elijah did not come, the whole earth would be smitten. (D. H. C., Vol. 3:390; Teachings, p. 160.)

July 2, 1839 (The Prophet's Address to the Twelve Continued)

Born again comes by the Spirit through Ordinances:

Being Born again, comes by the Spirit of God through ordinances. (D. H. C., Vol. 3:392; Teachings, p. 162.)

One of the Learned men who came to me showed me this Possible example:

Numbered Among the Saints when Christ Comes:

...Let us seek for the glory of Abraham, Noah, Adam, the Apostles, who have communion with [knowledge of] these things, and then we shall be among that number when Christ comes. (D. H. C., Vol. 392; Teachings, p. 162.)

Willard Richards Pocket Companion

It is the privilege of the Children of God to come to God & get Revelation. XIV John [verse 1] Let not your heart be troubled &c, [verse 2] There are a great many Mansions in my Father's house. I am going to prepare one for you rather Better than common. It is the privilege of the Sons of God to inherit the same Mansions &c. When any person receives a vision of Heaven, he sees things that he never thought of before [This is what happened to me in my vision of the saints who were in prison and needed to receive fulness of the priesthood before the resurrection]. if we would tell of different glories as Paul did, in my fathers house are Many Mansions, every Man that receives the Gospel receives that inheritance that the Apostles did. [verse 9] Everyone that hath seen me hath seen the Father. [verse 12] He that believeth, andy person that believes the works I do shall he do also & greater works [verse 13] The Father could not be glorified in the Son [verse 13] on any other principle that we coming to God, aski ng, receiving, heavens open visions &c.--They are done away because of unbelief--[verse 16] I will pray the Father & he shall send you another Comforter to abide with you forever, reach to things within the vail, know that you are Sealed. [*It is interesting that the only promise made in the Sacrament Prayers is this one (That they may always have his spirit to be with them). This is probably most assuredly why after the ordiance of washing of the feet and the fulness of the priesthood Joseph Smith the Savior and Joseph Smith had the sacrament, because of the promise it contains, Abraham received fulness of Priesthood and partook of bread and wine. Expand.....See Scriptures below.] If you get it, it will stand by you forever. How is it obtained? Keep my commandments & I will pray &c.--[verse 17] It is a privilege to view the Son of Man himself, he dwelleth with you & and shall be in you, his spirit shall be in you. [verse 18] [This relates to the only promise in the Sacrament Prayer "that they may always have his Spirit to be with them" D&C 20:77, 79.] (TWOJS, p. 13-14.)

[It is confusing to speak of Christ's dwelling within those sealed up unto eternal life, yet the Savior says that after we enjoy the blessings of the Second Comforter, "then shall [you] know that...I am the true light that is in you, and that you are in me" (D&C 88:50). The same is said in John chapter 14: "At that day [when you receive the Second Comforter] ye shall know that I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in you" See also JST Luke 10:23).

In John 14:17 Christ is also speaking of himself as the source of truth. Similarly, he declared to Joseph Smith, "I am the Spirit of Truth" (D&C 93:26). However, the Savior and the Holy Ghost work in perfect oneness when bestowing these, the highest spiritual blessings of mortality, for the Savior said of the Holy Ghost, "He shall glorify me: for he shall receive of mine, and shall shew it unto you" (John 15:14). The emphasis in John 14:16-17 is the concept that the Savior has been appointed by the Father to be our ultimate source of comfort and truth. (TWOJS, p. 26)] I will not have you comfortless, I will come to you, abide with you forever, Seal you up to Eternal life. [verse 19] Yet a little while & you shall see me no more, but ye see me.--[verse 21] He that hath my commandments & keepeth them, he it is that loveth me &c.--I will manifest myself to him. if he does not he has not told the truth [This will go good with President Kimballs talk, D&C 91:1, President Benson's talk, D&C 132]. I will put promises in your hearts, that will not leave you that will Seal you up. We may come to the general assembly & church of the first born, Spirits of Just men made perfect, unto Christ. The innumerable company of Angels are those that have been resurrected from the dead. the Spirits of Just men made perfect are those without bodies. It is our privilege to pray for & obtain these things. [verse 22] How wilt thou manifest thyself to us & not to the world? evidently knowing that it would be so that he would manifest himself. There was no cholera, no mobs, before this came. I told them that rejoiced in Mobs that they should have them, they have since come in torrents. they did not receive the testimony of the Servants of the Son of God. [verse 23] If a man love me he will keep my words, & my father will love him, & We both me & my father will take our abode with him. [D&C 130:2 and D&C 20:77 & 79. Expand..... this is almost the verbiage of the sacrament Prayer....] There are certain characters that walked with God, saw him, conversed about heaven &c. [verse 26] but the comforter that I will send, (not the other comforter) shall teach you all things.--who?--He that loveth me &c.--This shall bring all things to remembrance whatsoever things I have said unto you, he shall teach you until ye come to me & my father. God is not a respecter of person, we all have the same privilege. Come to God weary him until he blesses you &c--we are entitled to the same blessings, Jesus, revelations, Just Men &--Angels &c. &c. not Laying again the doctrine of Christ go on unto perfection. Obtain [1] that holy spirit of promise--Then [2] you can be sealed to Eternal Life. [1 = Holy Ghost; 2 = Priesthood.]

5 October 1939 Footnote on "Holy Spirit of Promise"

In a certain limited sense, a sense Joseph Smith used many times, the phrase "Holy Spirit of Promise" has reference to the concept of "making your calling and election sure" or "being sealed up unto eternal life" (D&C 88:3-5). Thus, when the Holy Spirit (who was the one appointed by the Father to give final sanctioning authority for all priesthood blessings) receives authorization from Jesus Christ to unmistakably "seal" the promised of eternal life on a worthy individual, he is placing the seals on the highest gospel ordinances in his office as Holy Spirit of Promise (D&C 132:7). The Prophet expressed this concept in his poetic rendition of D&C 76 (v.53):

> For these overcome, by their faith and their works,
> Being tried in their life-time, as purified gold,
> And seal'd by the spirit of promise, to life,
> By men called of God, as was Aaron of old.
> (Times and seasons 4 [1 February 1843]:84). (TWOJS, p. 26.)

5 October 1840 (Prophet at October Conference)

The Melchizedek Priesthood Holds All Authority:

In order to investigate the subject of the Priesthood, so important to this, as well as every succeeding generation, I shall proceed to trace the subject as far as I possibly can from the Old and New Testaments.

There are two Priesthood spoken of in the Scriptures, viz., the Melchizedek and the Aaronic or Levitical. Although there are two Priesthoods, yet the Melchizedek Priesthood comprehends the Aaronic or Levitical Priesthood, and is the grand head, and holds the highest authority which pertains to the Priesthood, and the keys of the Kingdom of God in all ages of the world to the latest posterity on the earth; and is the channel through which all knowledge, doctrine, the plan of salvation and every important matter is revealed from heaven.

Its institution was prior to "the foundation of this earth, or the morning stars sang together, or the Sons of God shouted for joy,: and is the highest and holiest Priesthood, and is after the order of the Son of God, and all other Priesthoods are only parts, ramifications, powers and blessings belonging to the same, and are held, controlled, and directed by it. It is the channel through which the Almighty commenced revealing His glory at the beginning of the creation of this earth, and through which He has continued to reveal Himself to the children of men to the present time, and through which He will make known His purposes to the end of time. (D. H. C., Vol. 4:207, Teachings, p. 166-167.)

5 October 1840 (Prophet at October Conference Continued)

Adam the First Man:

Commencing with Adam, who was the first man, who is spoken of in Daniel as being the "Ancient of Days," or in other words, the first and oldest of all, the great, grand progenitor of whom it is said in another place he is Michael, because he was the first and father of all, not only by progeny, but the first to hold the spiritual blessings, to whom was made known the plan of ordinances for the salvation of his posterity unto the end, and to whom Christ was first revealed, and through whom Christ has been revealed from heaven, and will continue to be revealed from henceforth. Adam holds keys of the dispensation of the fulness of times; i.e., the dispensation of all the times have been and will be revealed through him from the beginning to Christ, and from Christ to the end of the dispensations that are to be revealed. "Having made known unto us the mystery of His will, according to His good pleasure which He hath purposed in Himself; that in the dispensation of the fulness of times He might gather together in one all things in christ, both which are in heaven, and which are on earth; even in Him. (Ephesians 1:9-10.) (D. H. C., Vol. 4:207-208; Teachings 167-168.)

5 October 1840 (Prophet at October Conference Continued) Ordinances Always the Same:

Now the purpose in Himself in the winding up scene of the last dispensation is that all things pertaining to that dispensation should be conducted precisely in accordance with the preceding dispensations.

And again, God purposed in Himself that there should not be an eternal fullness until every dispensation should be fulfilled and gathered together in one, and that all things whatsoever, that should be gathered together in one in those dispensations unto the same fullness and eternal glory, should be in Christ Jesus; therefore He set the ordinances to be the same forever and ever, and set Adam to watch over them, to reveal them from heaven to man, or to send angels to reveal them. "Are they not all ministering spirits, sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation?" (Hebrews 1:14.)

These angels are under the direction of Michael or Adam, who acts under the direction of the Lord. From the above quotation we learn that Paul perfectly understood the purposes of God in relation to His connection with man, and that glorious perfect order which He established in Himself, whereby he sent forth power, revelations, and glory. (D. H. C., Vol. 4:208; Teachings, p. 168.)

Adam Holds the Keys of Presidency:

This, then, is the nature of the Priesthood; every man holding the Presidency of his dispensation, and one man holding the Presidency of them all, even Adam; and Adam receiving his Presidency and authority from the Lord, but cannot receive a fullness until Christ shall present the Kingdom to the Father, which shall be at the end of the last dispensation. (D. H. C., Vol. 4:209; Teachings, p. 169.)

The Saints are commanded by revelation to build a Temple at Nauvoo:

For there is not a place found on earth that he may come to and restore again that which was lost unto you, or which he hath taken away, even the fulness of the priesthood. (D&C 124:28.)

Hyrum Smith Held the Sealing Blessings to the Chruch:

First, I give unto you Hyrum Smith to be a patriarch unto you, to hold the sealing blessings of my church, even the Holy Spirit of promise, whereby ye are sealed up unto the day of redemption, that ye may not fall notwithstanding the hour of temptation that may come upon you. (D&C 124:124.) Joseph Smith Presiding Elder Over All The Church:

I give unto you my servant Joseph to be a presiding elder over all my church, to be a translator, a revelator, a seer, and prophet. (D&C 124:125.)

6 April 1841 - Tuesday

A general conference of the Church was commenced at Nauvoo, and the corner stones of the Nauvoo Temple were laid. The conference was continued till the 11th. The Doctrine of Election:

He [the Prophet Joseph Smith] then spoke on the subject of election, and read the 9th chapter of Romans, from which it was evident that the election there spoken of was pertaining to the flesh, and had reference to the seed of Abraham, according to the promise God mad to Abraham, saying, "In thee, and in thy see, all the families of the earth shall be blessed." To them belonged the adoption and the covenants, &c. Paul said, when he saw their unbelief, "I which myself accursed"--according to the flesh--not according to the spirit. Why did God say to Pharaoh, "for this cause have I rased thee up"? Because Pharaoh was a fit instrument--a wicked man, and had committed acts of cruelty of the most atrocious nature. The election of the promised seed still continues, and in the last day, they shall have the Priesthood restored unto them, and they shall be the "saviors of Mount Zion," the ministers of our God; if it were not for the remnant which was left, then might men now be as Sodom and Gomorrah. The whole of the chapter had reference to the Priesthood and the house of Israel; and unconditional election of individuals to eternal life was not taught by the Apostles. God did elect or predestinate, that all those who would be saved should be saved in Christ Jesus, and through obedience to the Gospel; but He passes over no man's sins, but visits them with correction, and if His children will not repent of their sins He will discard them.

This is an imperfect sketch of a very interesting discourse, which occupied more than tow hours in delivery, and was listened to with marked attention, by the vast assembly present. (D. H. C., Vol. 4:359-360; Teachings, p. 189.)

The organization of the Female Relief Society of Nauvoo was commenced. It was completed on the 24th, with Emma Smith as president; Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Whitney and Mrs. Sarah M. Cleveland, counselors; Miss Elvira Cowles, treasurer; and Eliza R. Snow, secretary. The Relief Society Magazine

Opening The Gate Beautiful:

When the Prophet Joseph Smith asked the Lord for wisdom on that early spring day, in 1820, the Gateway of Heaven was opened, and angels come through for the first time in centuries. That opened Gateway led into the higher courts of life's temple.

In the olden days, women were not permitted to go beyond the Gate Beautiful into the Court of Sacrifice, nor into the Higher Place. During the dark ages, after the light of revelation had been withdrawn from the earth, women felt keenly, but perhaps unconsciously, the heavy hand of superstition and oppression.

Men, because of superior strength and leadership, could force their way through the clouds of darkness and superstition, but helpless women and little children were sufferers, as they always are when society is lighted only by the rays of cold reason, earthly ethics, and lustful desires. So that, when the Vision, given to the Prophet Joseph Smith, came through the Gateway, the women with their little children were among the most blessed recipients of the results of that Vision.

It is very probable that the Vision came to the Prophet on the Paschal day of the year, although no date has been kept for us, but it was on the Paschal day when the Church was organized, when Elijah visited the Prophet in the temple at Kirtland, and when, strange to say, the Prophet organized the Relief Society. That day, the 17th of March, 1842, was the opening of the Paschal season for the year 1842. It was the day celebrated as the fast day of Queen Esther, by the Jews. What a wonderful Easter these events have brought to the earth.

The women, because of the opening Vision, have been permitted to enter into the Court of Sacrifice now symbolized by the sacrament which is given in this Church, not only to women but also to the little children in our Sunday Schools. How symbolic this blessed privilege is to the liberty for women and children which followed that marvelous Vision!

Women have been given the right of franchise, first in the Church itself. They have always voted on all matters of procedure, and on the support of all officers in the Church from the least to the greatest. The doctrine of common consent makes the woman an equal with man in all her religious activities. She is admitted not only into the courts of women, symbolically and equally in our own temples, but also she is given a higher position in this sacred ordinance which she shares, side by side with her husband. Indeed, in the last or Holy of Holies, men must be accompanied by their wives when they secure their blessings [of the fulness of the priesthood].* (Relief Society Magazine, April, 1920; Also, Motherhood A partnership with God, Compiled by Harold Lundstrom, 1956, Bookcraft, p. 339-341.) [Note: From this beautiful article we learn a number of wonderful concepts:

[1] It is very probable that the [First] Vision came to the Prophet on the Paschal day of the year, although no date has been kept for us, but

[2] It was on the Paschal day when the Church was organized,
[3] It was on the Paschal day when Elijah visited the Prophet in the temple at Kirtland, and when, strange to say,

[4] It was on the Paschal day when the Prophet organized the Relief Society. That day, the 17th of March, 1842, was the opening of the Paschal season for the year 1842.

[5] It was the day celebrated as the fast day of Queen Esther, by the Jews.

Observation and commentary:

[1] In the days of when the Lord was on the earth, men had become so caught up in status that they had stopped permitting the women go into the Court of Sacrifice-this not only represents the sacrament but is equivalent to our Law of Sacrifice in our temples today, of which, men and women must jointly proceed to receive their blessings of the fulness of the priesthood together in common.

[2] The Jews celebrated this day as the fast day of Queen Esther. My Mother, Ann Jenson, taught me that she always revered Queen Easter as a Heavenly Queen because of her qualities and attributes and not only as an Earthly Queen. So we symbolically seem to be dealing with an organization, the Relief Society, which appears to be attempting to prepare righteous women to be Queens to their husbands, in heaven and on earth, as Queen Easter is revered by the Jews, and My beloved mother, as a worthwhile Pattern to Follow.

[3] And Finally, because men did not only restrict women, in the olden days, from going beyond the Gate Beautiful into the Court of Sacrifice, but also into the Higher Place, the Holy of Holies they halted their own progression and exaltation. This is readily visible to us today as [our wives are] admitted not only into the courts of women, symbolically and equally in our own temples, but also [they are] given a higher position in this sacred ordinance which [they] share, side by side with [there] husband[s]. Indeed, in the last or Holy of Holies, men must be accompanied by their wives when they secure their blessings [of the fulness of the priesthood]--For as Elder Boyd K. Packer has said, "the highest ordinances in the House of the Lord they [man and wife] receive together and equally or not at all!" And also, "Without her, [Sister Packer] I could not have the highest and most enduring blessings of this 'priesthood... after the holiest order of God' (D&C 84:18), this 'Holy Priesthood, after the Order of the Son of God' (D&C 107:3). For, 'in order to obtain the highest, a man must enter into this order of the priesthood [meaning the new and everlasting covenant of marriage]; And if he does not, he cannot obtain it.'" (D&C 131:104.)". (A Tribute to Women, Elder Boyd K. Packer, July Ensign, 1989, p. 72-75.)

Synopsis of the Prophet's Remarks to the Female Relief Society:

All must act in concert, or nothing can be done and should move according to the ancient Priesthood; hence the Saints should be a select people, separate from all the evils of the world--choice, virtuous, and holy. The Lord was going to make of the Church of Jesus Christ a kingdom of Priests, a holy people, a chosen generation [the whole generation is to be chosen, called up and anointed Kings and Priest, "a kingdom of Priests"], as in Enoch's day, having all the gifts as illustrated to the Church in Paul's epistles and teachings to the churches in his day--that it is the privilege of each member to live long and enjoy health. He then blessed the Saints. (March 30, 1842.) (D. H. C., Vol. 4:570; Teachings, p. 201-202.)

To Say One Knows God One Must Have Handled Something in the 'Holiest of Holies':

Sunday, May 1, 1842.--I preached in the grove, on the keys of the kingdom, charity, &c. The keys are certain signs and words by which false spirits and personages may be detected from true, which cannot be revealed to the Elders till the Temple is completed. The rich can only get them in the Temple, the poor may get them on the mountain top as did Moses. The rich cannot be saved without charity, giving to feed the poor when and how God requires, as well as building. There are signs in heaven, earth and hell; the Elders must know them all, to be endowed with power, to finish their work and prevent imposition. The devil knows many signs, but does not know the sign of the Son of Man, or Jesus. No one can truly say he knows God until he has handled something, and this can only be in the holiest of holies. (H. C., Vol 4:608.)

Highest Order of the Priesthood Revealed--Patriarchs, Priests and Kings:

Wednesday, 4.--I spent the day in the upper part of the store, that is in my private office...in council with General James Adams, of Springfield, Patriarch Hyrum Smith, Bishops Newel K. Whitney and George Miller, and President Brigham Young and Elders Heber C. Kimball and Willard Richards, instructing them in the principles and order of the Priesthood, attending to washings, anointings, endowments and the communication of keys pertaining to the Aaronic Priesthood, and so on to the highest order of the Melchizedek Priesthood, setting forth the order pertaining to the Ancient of Days, and all those plans and principles by which any one is enabled to secure the fulness of those blessings which have been prepared for the Church of the First Born, and come up and abide in the presence of the Eloheim in the eternal worlds. In this council was instituted the ancient order of things for the first time in these last days. And the communications I made to this council where of things spiritual, and to be received only by the spiritual minded: and there was nothing made known to these men but what will be made known to all the Saints of the last days, so soon as they are prepared to receive, and a proper place is prepared to communicate them, even to the weakest of the Saints; therefore let the Saints be diligent in building the Temple, and all houses which they have been, or shall hereafter be, commanded of God to build; and wait their time with patience in all meekness, faith, perseverance unto the end, knowing assuredly that all these things referred to in this council are always governed by the principle of revelation. [Meaning we should look to the 1st Presidency and the Twelve and that they will be instructed of the Lord when He wishes the fulness of the Priesthood to come forth, but that it would come forth to all the Saints, even the weakest of saints before the Second Coming--And My words shall all be fulfilled whether by my own voice or the voice of my servants it is the same.....] (H. The Lord Almighty...will continue to preserve me... until I have fully accomplished my mission in this life, and so firmly established the dispensation of the fullness of the priesthood in the last days, that all the powers of earth and hell can never prevail against it. (Joseph Smith, Jr., H.C. 5:139-40.)

Minutes of the Female Relief Society's Meeting--Remarks of the Prophet:

President Joseph Smith arose and said, "I am happy and thankful for the privilege of being present on this occasion. Great exertions have been made on the part of our enemies to carry me to Missouri and destroy my life; but the Lord has hedged up their way, and they have not, as yet, accomplished their purpose. God has enabled me to keep out of their hands. I have warred a good warfare, insomuch as I have out-generalled or whipped out all Bennett's corrupt host.

My feelings at the present time are that, inasmuch as the Lord Almighty has preserved me until today, He will continue to preserve me, by the united faith and prayers of the Saints, until I have fully accomplished my mission in this life, and so firmly established the dispensation of the fullness of the priesthood in the last days, that all the powers of earth and hell can never prevail against it. (H. While in conversation at Judge Adams' during the evening, I said, Christ and the resurrected Saints will reign over the earth during the thousand years. They will not probably dwell upon the earth, but will visit it when they please, or when it is necessary to govern it. (H. C. 5:212.)

Joseph Smith's Mission

I understand my mission and business. God Almighty is my shield and what can man do if God is my friend? I shall not be sacrificed until my time comes; then I shall be offered freely. All Ordinances Necessary:

The question is frequently asked, "Can we not be saved without going through with all those ordinances, etc?" I would answer, No, not the fulness of salvation. Jesus said, "There are many mansions in my Father's house, and I will go and prepare a place for you." House here named should have been translated kingdom; and any person who is exalted to the highest mansion has to abide a celestial law, and the whole law too.

But there has been a great difficulty in getting anything into the heads of this generation. It has been like splitting hemlock knots with a corn-dodger for a wedge, and a pumpkin for a beetle. Even the Saints are slow to understand. (D. H. C., Vol. 6:184, Teachings, p. 331.)

Unwillingness of Saints to Learn:

I have tried for a number of years to get the minds of the Saints prepared to receive the things of God; but we frequently see some of them, after suffering all they have for the work of God, will fly to pieces like glass as soon as anything comes that is contrary to their traditions: they cannot stand the fire at all. How many will be able to abide a celestial law, and go through and receive their exaltation, I am unable to say, as many are called, but few are chosen. (D.H.C. 6:185; Teachings, p. 331.)

The Prophet Joseph Smith's Poetic Rendition of the Vision Concerning The Requirements for Exaltation in the Celestial Kingdom of Glory:

And again I bear record of Heavenly things,
Where virtue's the value above all that is priz'd,
Of the truth of the gospel concerning the just,
That rise in the first resurrection of Christ.

Who receiv'd, and believ'd, and repented likewise,
And then were baptiz'd, as a man always was, Who ask'd and receiv'd a remission of sin,
And honored the kingdom by keeping its laws.

Being buried in water, as Jesus had been,
And keeping the whole of his holy commands,
They received the gift of the spirit of truth,
By the ordiance truly of laying on hands.

For these overcome, by their faith and their works,
Being tried in their life-time, as purified gold,
And seal'd by the spirit of promise to life,
By men called of God, as was Aaron of old.

They are they, of the church of the first-born of God,
And unto whose hands he committeth all things;
For they hold the keys of the kingdom of heav'n,
And reign with the Saviour, as priests and as kings.

They're priests of the order of Melchisedec,
Like Jesus (from whom is the highest reward),
Receiving a fulness of glory and light;
As written--They're God's, even sons of the Lord.

So all things are theirs; yea, of live or of death;
Yea, weather things now, or to come, all are theirs,
And they are the Saviour's, and he is the Lord's,
Having overcome all, as eternity's heirs.

Yea, the righteous shall dwell in the presence of God,
And of Jesus, forever, from earth's second birth--
For when he comes down in the splendor of heav'n,
All those he'll bring with him to reign on the earth.

These are they that arise in their bodies of flesh,
When the trump of the first resurrection shall sound;
These are they that come up to Mount Zion, in life,
Where the blessings and gifts of the spirit abound.

These are they that have come to the heavenly place;
To the numberless concourses of angels above:
To the city of God, e'en the holiest of all,
And the home of the blessed, the fountain of love;

To the Church of old Enoch, and of the first-born:
And gen'ral assembly of ancient renown'd,
Whose names are all kept in the archives of heav'n,
As chosen and faithful, and fit to be crown'd.

These are they that are perfect through Jesus' own blood,
Whose bodies celestial are mention'd by Paul,
Where the sun is the typical glory thereof,
And God, and his Christ, are the true judge of all.

 I beheld the celestial, in glory sublime;
Which is the most excellent kingdom that is,
Where God, e'en the Father, in harmony reigns;
Almighty, supreme, and eternal in bliss.

Where the Church of the first-born in union reside,
And they see as they're seen, and they know as they're known
Being equal in power, dominion and might,
With a fulness of glory and grace round his throne.

The glory celestial is one like the sun;

But the great things of God, which he show'd unto me,
Unlawful to utter, I dare not declare;
They surpass all the wisdom and greatness of men,
And only are seen, as has Paul were they are.

Calling and Election:

Now, there is some grand secret here, and keys to unlock the subject. Notwithstanding the apostle exhorts them to add to their faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, etc., yet he exhorts them to make their calling and election sure. And though they had heard an audible voice from heaven bearing testimony that Jesus was the Son of God, yet he says we have a more sure word of prophecy, whereunto ye do well that ye take heed as unto a light shining in a dark place. Now, wherein could they have a more sure word of prophecy than to here the voice of God saying, This is my beloved Son.

Now for the secret and grand key. Though they might hear the voice of God and know that Jesus was the Son of God, this would be no evidence that their election and calling was made sure, that they had part with Christ, and were joint heirs with Him. They then would want that more sure word of prophecy, that they were sealed in the heavens and had the promise of eternal life in the kingdom of God. Then, having this promise sealed unto them, it was an anchor to the soul, sure and steadfast. Though the thunders might roll and lightnings flash, and earthquakes below, and war gather thick around, yet this hope and knowledge would support the soul in every hour of trial, trouble and tribulation. Then knowledge though the Lord an Savior Jesus Christ is the grand key that unlocks the glories and mysteries of the kingdom of heaven.

Compare this principle once with Christendom at the present day, and where are they, with all their boasted religion, piety and sacredness while at the same time they are crying out against prophets, apostles, angels, revelations, prophesying and visions, etc. Why, they are just ripening for the damnation of hell. They will be damned, for they reject the most glorious principle of the Gospel of Jesus Christ and treat with disdain and trample under foot the key that unlocks the heavens and puts in our possession the glories of the celestial world. Yes, I say, such will be damned, with all their professed godliness. Then I would exhort you to go on and continue to call upon God until you make your calling and election sure for yourselves, by obtaining this more sure word of prophecy, and wait patiently for the promise until you obtain it, etc. (D. H. C. Vol. 5:338-339; Teachings, p. 298-299.)

Your life is hid with Christ in God, and so are many others. Nothing but the unpardonable sin can prevent you from inheriting eternal life for you are sealed up by the power of the Priesthood unto eternal life, having taken the step necessary for that purpose. (D. H. C., Vol. 5:391.)

Remarks of the Prophet at Ramus--Importance of the Eternity of the Marriage Covenant:

Except a man and his wife enter into an everlasting covenant and be married for eternity, while in this probation, by the power and authority of the Holy Priesthood, they will cease to increase when they die; that is, they will not have any children after the resurrection. But those who are married by the power and authority of the priesthood in this life, and continue without committing the sin against the Holy Ghost, will continue to increase and have children in the celestial glory. The unpardonable sin is to shed innocent blood, or be accessory thereto. All other sins will be visited with judgement in the flesh, and the spirit being delivered to the buffetings of Satan until the day of the Lord Jesus. (D. H. C., Vol. 5:391-392; Teachings, p. 300-301.)

The Celestial Glory:

In the celestial glory there are three heavens or degrees; and in order to obtain the highest, a man must enter into this order of the priesthood [meaning the new and everlasting covenant of marriage]; and if he does not, he cannot obtain it. He may enter into the other, but that is the end of his kingdom: he cannot have an increase." (D. H. C., Vol. 5:392; Teachings, p. 301.)

Salvation and Sure Word of Prophecy:

Salvation means a man's being placed beyond the power of all his enemies.

The more sure word of prophecy means a man's knowing that he is sealed up unto eternal life by revelation and the spirit of prophecy, through the power of the holy priesthood. It is impossible for a man to be saved in ignorance. (D. H. C., Vol. 5:392; Teachings, p. 301.)

Salvation in Knowing You are Sealed Up to Eternal Life:

|v5 (May 17th, 1843.) The more sure word of prophecy means a man's knowing that he is sealed up unto eternal life, by revelation and the spirit of prophecy, through the power of the Holy Priesthood. |v6 It is impossible for a man to be saved in ignorance.

Calling and Election to be made Sure:

Contend earnestly for the like precious faith with the Apostle Peter, "and add to your faith virtue," knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, charity; "for if these things ge in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ." Another point, after having all these qualifications, he lays this injunction upon the people "to make your calling and election sure." He is emphatic upon this subject-after adding all this virtue, knowledge, etc., "Make your calling and election sure." What is the secret-the starting point? "According as His Divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness." How did he obtain all things? Through the knowledge of Him who hath called him. There could not anything be given, pertaining to life and godliness, without knowledge. Woe! woe! woe to Christendom!-especially the divines and priests if this be true.

Salvation is for a man to be saved from all his enemies; for until a man can triumph over death, he is not saved. A knowledge of the priesthood alone will do this. (D. H. C., Vol. 5:402-403; Teachings, p. 305.)

The Design of God:

The design of the great God in sending us into this world, and organizing us to prepare us for the eternal worlds, I shall keep in my own bosom at present.

We have no claim in our eternal compact, in relation to eternal things, unless our actions and contracts and all things tend to this. But after all this, you have got to make your calling and election sure. If this injunction would lie largely on thos to whom it was spoken, how much more thos of the present generation!

1st key: Knowledge is the power of salvation. 2nd key: Make your calling and election sure. 3rd key: It is one thing to be on the mount and hear the excellent voice, etc., and another to hear the voice declare to you, YOu have a part and lot in the kingdom. (D. H. C., Vol. 5:403; Teachings, p. 306.)

Joseph Smith gave endowments, and also instructions on the Priesthood and the new and everlasting covenant: (Church Chronology, A Record of Important Events, Pertaining to the History of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Compiled by Andrew Jenson, Assistant Church Historian, 2nd ed., 1914, p. 23.)

--26--Met with the Prophet Joseph, the Patriarch Hyrum, brothers kimball and Richards, Judge James Adams, and Bishop N. K. Whitney, receiving our endowments and instructions in the Priesthood. The Prophet Joseph administered to us the first ordinances of endowment, and gave us instructions on the Priesthood. The Prophet Joseph administered to us the first ordinances of endowment, and gave us instructions on the Priesthood and the new and everlasting covenant. --28--(Sunday)--I met with brothers Joseph, Hyrum, Heber, Willard, Bishop Whitney and Judge Adams when we administered to brother Joseph the same ordinances of Endowment, and of the holy priesthood which he administered unto us. (Manuscript History of Brigham Young, by Watson, p. 129.)

29 May 1843

--29--Met at 9 a.m., with the same brethren, when Joseph instructed us further in principles pertaining to the holy Priesthood. (Manuscript History of Brigham Young, by Watson, p. 129.)

Consider This in Light of the Fact That the 2nd Anointing is the Highest Ordinance of the Temple:

What was the object of gathering the Jews, or the people of God in any age of the world?

The main object was to build unto the Lord a house whereby He could reveal unto His people the ordinances of His house and the glories of His kingdom, and teach the people the way of salvation; for there are certain ordinances and principles that, when they are taught and practiced, must be done in a place or house built for that purpose. (D. H. C., Vol. 5:423; Teachings, p. 307-308.)

11 June 1843

Principles of the Gospel Never Change:

It was the design of the councils of heaven before the world was, that the principles and laws of the priesthood should be predicated upon the gathering of the people in every age of the world. Jesus did everything to gather the people, and they would not be gathered, and He therefore poured out curses upon them. Ordinances instituted in the heavens before the foundation of the world, in the priesthood, for the salvation of men, are not to be altered or changed. All must be saved on the same principles. (D. H. C., Vol. 5:423; Teachings, p. 308.)

11 June 1843

Salvation for the Dead:

It is that same purpose that God gathers together His people in the last days, to build unto the Lord a house to prepare them for the ordinances and endowments, washings and anointings, etc. One of the ordinances of the house of the Lord is baptism for the dead. God decreed before the foundation of the world that the ordinances should be administered in a font prepared for that purpose in the house of the Lord. "This is only your opinion, sir." says the sectarian.

If a man gets a fulness of the priesthood of God he has to get it in the same way that Jesus Christ obtained it, and that was by keeping all the commandments and obeying all the ordinances of the house of the Lord. (D. H. C., Vol. 5:424; Teachings, p. 308.)

11 June 1843

Some Men "Too Wise to be Taught":

There are a great many wise men and women too in our midst who are too wise to be taught; therefore they must die in their ignorance, and in the resurrection they will find their mistake. Many seal up the door of heaven by saying, So far God may reveal and I will believe.

All Men who become heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ will have to receive the fulness of the ordinances of his kingdom; and those who will not receive all the ordinances will come short of the fullness of that glory, if they do not lose the whole. (D. H. C., Vol. 5:424; Teachings, p. 309.)

11 June 1843

A man of God should be endowed with wisdom, knowledge, and understanding, in order to teach and lead the people of God. (D. H. C., Vol. 5:426; Teachings, p. 311.)

The Son Does What the Father Did:

As the Father hath power in Himself, so hath the Son power in Himself, to lay down His life and take it again, so He has a body of His own. The son doeth what He hath seen the Father do: then the Father hath some day laid down His life and taken it again; so He has a body of His own; each one will be in His own body; and yet the sectarian world believe the body of the Son is identical with the Father's.

Gods have an ascendedcy over the angels, who are ministering servants. In the resurrection, some are raised to be angels, others are raised to become Gods.

These things are revealed in the most holy place in a Temple prepared for that purpose. (Thomas Richard Jackson Journal) Many of the sects cry out, "Oh, I have the testimony of Jesus; I have the spirit of God: but away with Joe Smith; he says he is a prophet; but there are to be no prophets or revelators in the last days." Stop, sir! The Revelator says that the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy; so by your own mouth you are condemned. But to the text. Why gather the people together in this place? For the same purpose that Jesus wanted to gather the Jews-to receive the ordinances, the blessings, and glories that God has in store for His Saints.

I will now ask this assembly and all the Saints if you will now build this house and receive the ordinances and blessings which God has in store for you; or will you not build unto the Lord this house, and let Him pass by and bestow these blessings upon another people? I pause for a reply. (D. H. C., Vol. 5:426-427; Teachings, p. 312.)

Women Anointed [a Queen and Priestess] Unto their Husband:

And as ye have asked concerning adultery, verily, verily, I say unto you, if a man receiveth a wife in the new and everlasting covenant, and if she be with another man, and I have not appointed unto her by the holy anointing, she hath committed adultery and shall be destroyed. (D&C 132:41.)

The conditions of the New and Everlasting Covenant: (commentary)

The expectation of exaltation must be sealed unto you by the Holy Spirit of Promise--that most holy ordiance: the 2nd Anointing must be sealed unto you by revelation and commandment through the medium of the One Anointed--Though you marry a wife in the Temple and the Marriage is sealed, yet it is not said unto you by the Anointed One: "Ye shall Come Forth In the First Resurrection"--You will not in the Resurrection be Prophets, Priests, Patriarchs, Kings or Gods--But if you know Christ in this world (mortality or the Spirit World), then from then on nothing but the Unpardonable Sin can keep you from exaltation. To sin against the Holy Ghost after receiving this Second Anointing, whereby you are sealed up unto Eternal Lives, is to shed innocent blood or assent unto the death of one of Christ's innocent ones, whom he had bought with a price.....

Now read D&C 132:6-9, 19-27:

|v6 And as pertaining to the new and everlasting covenant, it was instituted for the fulness of my glory; and he that receiveth a fulness thereof must and shall abide the law, or he shall be damned, saith the Lord God.
|v7 And verily I say unto you, that the conditions of this law are these: All covenants, contracts, bonds, obligations, oaths, vows, performances, connections, associations, or expectations, that are not made and entered into and sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, of him who is anointed, both as well for time and for all eternity, and that too most holy, by revelation and commandment through the medium of mine anointed, whom I have appointed on the earth to hold this power (and I have appointed unto my servant Joseph to hold this power in the last days, and there is never but one on the earth at a time on whom this power and the keys of this priesthood are conferred), are of no efficacy, virtue, or force in and after the resurrection from the dead; for all contracts that are not made unto this end have an end when men are dead.
|v8 Behold, mine house is a house of order, saith the Lord God, and not a house of confusion.
|v9 Will I accept of an offering, saith the Lord, that is not made in my name?
(D&C: Section 132:6-9)

|v19 And again, verily I say unto you, if a man marry a wife by my word, which is my law, and by the new and everlasting covenant, and it is sealed unto them by the Holy Spirit of promise, by him who is anointed, unto whom I have appointed this power and the keys of this priesthood; and it shall be said unto them--Ye shall come forth in the first resurrection; and if it be after the first resurrection, in the next resurrection; and shall inherit thrones, kingdoms, principalities, and powers, dominions, all heights and depths--then shall it be written in the Lamb's Book of Life, that he shall commit no murder whereby to shed innocent blood, and if ye abide in my covenant, and commit no murder whereby to shed innocent blood, it shall be done unto them in all things whatsoever my servant hath put upon them, in time, and through all eternity; and shall be of full force when they are out of the world; and they shall pass by the angels, and the gods, which are set there, to their exaltation and glory in all things, as hath been sealed upon their heads, which glory shall be a fulness and a continuation of the seeds forever and ever.
|v20 Then shall they be gods, because they have no end; therefore shall they be from everlasting to everlasting, because they continue; then shall they be above all, because all things are subject unto them. Then shall they be gods, because they have all power, and the angels are subject unto them.
|v21 Verily, verily, I say unto you, except ye abide my law ye cannot attain to this glory.
|v22 For strait is the gate, and narrow the way that leadeth unto the exaltation and continuation of the lives, and few there be that find it, because ye receive me not in the world neither do ye know me.

|v23 But if ye receive me in the world, then shall ye know me, and shall receive your exaltation; that where I am ye shall be also.
|v24 This is eternal lives--to know the only wise and true God, and Jesus Christ, whom he hath sent. I am he. Receive ye, therefore, my law.
|v25 Broad is the gate, and wide the way that leadeth to the deaths; and many there are that go in thereat, because they receive me not, neither do they abide in my law.
|v26 Verily, verily, I say unto you, if a man marry a wife according to my word, and they are sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise, according to mine appointment, and he or she shall commit any sin or transgression of the new and everlasting covenant whatever, and all manner of blasphemies, and if they commit no murder wherein they shed innocent blood, yet they shall come forth in the first resurrection, and enter into their exaltation; but they shall be destroyed in the flesh, and shall be delivered unto the buffetings of Satan unto the day of redemption, saith the Lord God.
|v27 The blasphemy against the Holy Ghost, which shall not be forgiven in the world nor out of the world, is in that ye commit murder wherein ye shed innocent blood, and assent unto my death, after ye have received my new and everlasting covenant, saith the Lord God; and he that abideth not this law can in nowise enter into my glory, but shall be damned, saith the Lord.
(D&C: Section 132:19-27)

12 July 1843

For I am the Lord thy God, and will be with thee even unto the end of the world, and through all eternity; for verily I seal upon you your exaltation, and prepare a throne for you in the kingdom of my Father, with Abraham your father. (D&C 132:49.)

In a letter of Willard Richards to Brigham Young he chronicles events in Nauvoo, which would interest Pres. Young: * * *
Sunday, 16th. Joseph preached all day; a.m., 27th chap. Matthew &c. Did not hear him. Man's foes, they are of his own house; the spirit that crucified Christ; same spirit in Nauvoo; referred particularly to--I won't say who; was it Brother Marks? Did not say. Brother Cole? Did not hear the sermon; why ask me. Nothing new [despite this "news" to the Saints, the Twelve fully understood these developments.]; same as when you left[.] The spirit was against Christ because of His innocence; so in the present case. Said he would not prophesy any more; Hyrum should be the prophet; (did not tell them he was going to be a priest now [28 Sep 43], or a king by and by [11 Apr 44];) told the Elders not to prophesy when they went out preaching. * * *
19th I send by this mail six papers to Brother Woodruff, same direction. Just met Hyrum in the street; said to him, I am writing to the brethren, has our new prophet anything to say to them? "Give my respects to them." Elders Taylor's and Hyde's best compliments, with success. (H.C. 5:512-513).

23 July 1843

Last Monday morning certain men came to me.--Bro Joseph Hyrum is no prophet he cant lead the church. you must lead the Church--if you resign I felt curious--& said--here we learn in a priesthood after the order of Melchisedeck--Prophet priest & king. & I will advanced from prophet to priest & then to King not to the kingdoms of this earth but of the most high god. (TWOJS, p. 234.)

Sunday, 23 July 1843

Last Monday morning certain men came to me and said: "Brother Joseph, Hyrum is no prophet--he can't lead the church; you must lead the church. If you resign, all things will go wrong; you must not resign; if you do the church will be scattered."

I felt curious and said: "Have we not learned the Priesthood after the order of Melchizedek, which includes both Prophets, Priests and Kings: see Rev. 1 Chap., 6th v., and I will advance your Prophet to a Priest, and then to a King---not to the Kingdoms of this earth, but of the Most High God. See Rev. 5 Chap., 10th v.---"Thou hast made us unto our God, Kings and Priests, and we shall reign on the earth." (TPJS, p. 318.)

Meeting of the Twelve Apostles in Philadelphia:

The quorum of the Twelve Apostles in Philadelphia held a meeting in the Canaanite Church. About three hundred Saints were present. Meeting was opened by Jedediah M. Grant, and President Brigham Young addressed the congregation at considerable length. He said that a man or woman may ask of God, and get a witness and testimony from God concerning any work or messenger that is sent unto them; but if a person asks for a thing that does not concern him, such as governing the Church, as a member of the Church inquiring concerning the duty of a presiding Elder, what the prophet or the Twelve ought to do, &c. he will not get an answer. It he does it will not be form God. He also remarked that if any in the Church had the fulness of the Melchisedec Priesthood, he did not know it. For any person to have the fulness of that priesthood, he must be a king and priest. A person may have a portion of that priesthood, the same as governors or judges of England have power from the king to transact business; but that does not make them kings of England. A person may be anointed king and priest long before he receives his kingdom. (H. C., Vol. p. 5:527.)

The Prophet's Remarks at the Funeral of Judge Higbee:

... "Ye are come unto Mount Zion, and unto the city of the living god, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels, to the general assembly and church of the firstborn, which are written in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect, and to Jesus the Mediator of the new covenant" (Hebrews xii, 22, 23, 24). What would it profit us to come unto the spirits of the just men, but to learn and come up to the standard of their knowledge?

Where has Judge Higbee gone?

Who is there that would not give all his goods to feed the poor, and pour out his gold and silver to the four winds, to go where Judge Higbee has gone?

That which hath been hid from before the foundation of the world is revealed to babes and sucklings in the last days.

The world is reserved unto burning in the last days. He shall send Elijah the prophet, and he shall reveal the covenants of the fathers in relation to the children, and the covenants of the children in relation to the fathers [What is the covenants of the Fathers.. Why the Father of us all has covenanted with us that we, his children would be like he is when he comes [look up scripture] and be kings and queens, priests and priestesses and that we should have power to come forth in the morning of the first resurrection according to that which was sealed upon us in the marriage covenant and the washings and anointings-These are the covenants of the fathers back to God our Heavenly Father and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent, that he hath made with his children that we would be like him, when he comes not after he come..... expand....].

Four destroying angels holding power over the four quarters of the earth until the servants of God are sealed in their foreheads, which signifies sealing the blessings upon their heads [We have only had the confirmation of kings and priests, queens and priestesses upon our heads-we need this confirmation now sealed.....], meaning the everlasting covenant [what covenant-that of the Eternal Father to his Children when that they would become like him Kings and priests Queens and priestesses.... that covenant the fullness of the Priesthood and the kingdom of the Eternal Father....], thereby making their calling and election sure. When a seal is put upon the father and mother, it secures their posterity, so that they cannot be lost, but will be saved by virtue of the covenant of their father and mother [Except that of denying the Holy Ghost or shedding innocent blood-this is the blessing on our Eternal Father and Mother which they have extended to their children...]. The Prophet Joseph Smith on - The sealing Ordinance:

Four destroying angels holding power over the four quarters of the earth until the servants of God are sealed in their foreheads, which signifies sealing the blessings upon their heads, meaning the everlasting covenant, thereby making their calling and election sure. When a seal is put upon the father and mother, it secures their posterity, so that they cannot be lost, but will be saved by virtue of the covenant of their father and mother. (H. C., 5:530.) Footnote 7 on this date:

7. At this time Joseph Smith was not willing to discuss the temple ordinances of conferral of the fulness of the priesthood, of marriage for time and eternity, or of sealing children to parents; nevertheless, he indicated that the conferral of the fulness of the priesthood was a "sealing...on top of the head" of which the phrase "sealed in their foreheads" was symbolic. Furthermore, Joseph Smith here taught that it was through the ordiance of conferral of the fulness of the priesthood that men could be qualified to be a part of the special missionary force of the last days which would number 144,000 high priests (D&C 77:8-11, 14). When Cornelius p Lott and his wife received these ordinances on 4 February 1844, the Prophet indicated that "the selection of [the] persons to perform that number had already commenced." He had already conferred these blessings on at least 17 men (History of the Church, 6:196 and Wilford Woodruff Journal, under date given). (TWOJS, p. 297.)

13 August 1843 Footnote

8. According to the teachings that the Prophet gave in private (but which he only hinted at in this discourse), to be heir to Abraham's promise that he would head an innumerable posterity, each individual and his children must be sealed for time and eternity. If this sealing was performed, he taught, the covenant relationship would then continue throughout eternity. The Prophet taught, moreover, that such a patriarchal priesthood of kings and priests would have to be established by sealing children and parents back through Abraham to Adam in order to fulfill the mission of Elijah (Malachi 4:5-6). When this was accomplished, the order within the highest degree of the Celestial Kingdom would then be eternally set. Probably no clearer statement of Joseph's theology regarding this concept can be found than what is given in an editorial by Orson Hyde. (The following diagram began the editorial after which came the text.)

p i c t u r e

The above diagram shows the order and unity of the kingdom of God. The eternal Father sits at the head, crowned King of kings and Lord of lords. Wherever the other lines meet, there sits a king and a priest unto God, bearing rule, authority, and dominion under the Father. He is one with the Father, because his kingdom is joined to his Father's and becomes part of it.

The most eminent and distinguished prophets who have laid down their lives for their testimony (Jesus among the rest), will be crowned at the head of the largest kingdoms under the Father, and will be one with Christ as Christ is one with his Father; for their kingdoms are all joined together, and such as do the will of the Father, the same are his mothers, sisters, and brothers. He that has been faithful over a few things, will be made ruler over many things; he that has been faithful over ten talents, shall have dominion over ten cities, and he that has been faithful over five talents, shall have dominion over five cities, and to every man will be given a kingdom and a dominion, according to his merit, powers, and abilities to govern and control. It will be seen by the above diagram that there are kingdoms of all sizes, and infinite variety to suit all grades of merit and ability. The chosen vessels unto God are the kings and priests that are placed at the head of these kingdoms. These have received their washings and anointings in the temple of God on this earth; they have been chosen, ordained, and anointed kings and priests, to reign as such in the resurrection of the just. Such as have not received the fullness of the priesthood, (for the fullness of the priesthood includes the authority of both king and priest) and have not been anointed and ordained in the temple of the Most High, may obtain salvation in the celestial kingdom, but not a celestial crown. Many are called to enjoy a celestial glory, yet few are chosen to wear a celestial crown, or rather, to be rulers in the celestial kingdom.

While this portion of eternity that we now live in, called time, continues, and while the other portions of eternity that we may hereafter dwell in, continue, those lines in the foregoing diagram, representing kingdoms, will continue to extend and be lengthened out; and thus, the increase of our kingdoms will increase the kingdom of our God, even as Daniel hath said: "of the increase of his kingdom and government there shall be no end." All these kingdoms are one kingdom, and there is a King over kings, and a Lord over lords. There are Lords many, and Gods many, for they are called Gods to whom the word of God comes, and the word of God comes to all these kings and priests. But to our branch of the kingdom there is but one God, to whom we all woe the most perfect submission and loyalty; yet our God is just a subject to still higher intelligences, as we should be to him.

...These kingdoms, which are one kingdom, are designed to extend till they not only embrace this world, but every other planet that rolls in the blue vault of heaven. Thus will all things be gathered in one during the dispensation of the fullness of times, and the Saints will not only possess the earth, but all things else, for, says Paul, "All things are yours, whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours, and ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's" (Orson Hyde, "A Diagram of the Kingdom of God." Millennial Star 9 [15 January 1847]:23-24; TWOJS, p. 297-299.)

27 August 1843

The Priesthood:

President Smith read the 7th Chap. Hebrews and said: Salem is designed from a Hebrew term. It should be Shiloam, which signifies righteousness and peace: as it is, it is nothing-neither Hebrew, Greek, Latin, French, nor any other language.

I say to all those who are disposed to set up stakes for the Almighty, You will come short of the glory of God.

To become a joint heir of the heirship of the Son, one must put away all his false traditions.

...The power of the melchizedek Priesthood is to have the power of "endless lives;" for the everlasting covenant cannot be broken. (D. H. C., Vol. 5:554; Teachings, p. 321-322.)

27 August 1843

Three Grand Orders:

There are three grand orders of priesthood referred to here.

1st. The king of Shiloam (Salem) had power and authority over that of Abraham, holding the key and the power of endless life. Angels desire to look into it, but they have set up too many stakes.

God cursed the children of Israel because they would not receive the last law of Moses.

The sacrifice required of Abraham in the offering up of Isaac, shows that if a man would attain to the keys of the kingdom of an endless life; he must sacrifice all things. When God offers a blessing or knowledge to a man, and he refuses to receive it, he will be damned. The Israelites prayed that God would speak to Moses and not to them; in consequence of which he cursed them with a carnal law.

What was the power of Melchizedek? 'Twas not the Priesthood of Aaron which administers in outward ordinances, and the offering of sacrifices. Those holding the fullness of the Melchizedek Priesthood are kings and priests of the Most High God, holding the keys of power and blessing. In fact, that Priesthood is a perfect law of theocracy, and stands as God to give laws to the people, administering endless lives to the sons and daughters of Adam.

Abraham says to Melchizedek, I believe all that thou hast taught me concerning the priesthood and the coming of the Son of Man (I think this is referring to Christs literal coming and also to Christ's personally coming to Abraham as part of the holy Seal of Promise; so Melchizedek ordained Abraham and sent him away. Abraham rejoiced, saying, Now I have a priesthood. (D. H. C., Vol. 5:554-555; Teachings, p. 322-323.)

[In other words Abraham and Sarah are anointed a king and priest and are blessed with the blessings of Most High God Himself. And Abraham said, "Now I have a Priest--Hood.]

The Mission of Elijah:

Salvation could not come to the world without the mediation of Jesus Christ.

How shall God come to the rescue of this generation? He will send Elijah the prophet. The law revealed to Moses in Horeb never was revealed to the children of Israel as a nation.

Elijah shall reveal the covenants to seal the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers.

The anointing and sealing is to be called, elected and made sure.
